FORMER WALTON MAN HONORED

Mrs. Art Stamler received a clipping from The Post-Standard, Syracuse, N. Y., from which we print the following excerpts:

"C. Spencer Chambers, supervisor of penmanship in Syracuse schools and acting principal of Lincoln junior high school, last night (Dec. 16) was guest of honor at a testimonial banquet, given by Lincoln school faculty members in University club. Attending were 44 teachers and husbands and wives of teachers. Mr. Chambers was appointed acting principal after the death of James A. Shea, city councilman and head of the school many years. Faculty spokesmen last night expressed hope that Mr. Chambers' appointment would be made permanent."

Mr. Chambers is a former Walton resident, having graduated at Myers Academy, and has many friends here who wish him continued success.

7 Boone County Men In Jan. Call

A call for seven white men, to be delivered to Ft. Thomas, on Jan. 13 at 9 a. m., E. S. T., has been received by the Local Draft Board, Burlington.

The men named for this Selective Service Call, and their order numbers follow:

Ernest Leroy Hager, V-139; Herschel Mason West, V-392; Russell J. Ryle, V-735; Edgar Goodridge, V-415; Willard Earl Barnes, V-30; Earl Scott, 8; Nathan Lamar Wilson, 9. The "V" preceding the number denotes the men were volunteers.

MRS. W. T. LOOMIS DIES SUNDAY

Mrs. John L. Vest and her brother, Howard Loomis and Mrs. Loomis, were called to Florida, last week, by the serious illness of Mrs. W. T. Loomis.

Word was received here this week that Mrs. Loomis passed away Sunday. We are sorry that we were unable to get further particulars, but will publish more next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Loomis had spent the summer here, leaving for Florida in November.

Lois Rouse Weds Cincinnati Man

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, Dec. 28, at 2 p. m. at Central Christian church, Huntington, W .Va., when Miss Lois Allison Rouse, only daughter of Mr. Clifford Allison Rouse of Huntington, and the late Mrs. Rouse, became the bride of Mr. Silva Lee Maze of Norwood, Ohio, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Maze of Cumberland avenue, Ashland. Rev. Fred Smith, pastor of the Christian church, read the double ring service.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by the organist, Miss Faye Lowry, the bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

The bridal party took their places before a beautifully decorated altar, while nuptial music was softly played throughout the ceremony.

The bride was lovely in a costume suit of dusty rose, with which she wore a dusty rose turban trimmed with a wine veil and all other accessories were wine. Her corsage was of Rubrum lilies.

Miss Sara Gordon of Walton, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She chose a beige costume suit with which she wore blue accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of gladioli and rose buds.

Mr. Espa C. Maze of Ashland, served as his son's best man, and ushers were Mr. Charles Ransler, Jr., of Walton, Ky., cousin of the bride; Mr. William Glass, Lexington, Ky.; Mr. Espa Goodpaster of Owensville, Ky.; and Mr. Theodore Crouch, Lexington.

Mrs. Maze was graduated from High school at Newtonville, Mass., and in the Cambridge School of Liberal Arts' in Cambridge, Mass. She attended Marshall College where she became a member of Psi chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma. She is a member of the Huntington alumnae chapter of her sorority.

The groom was graduated from Owingsville High school and attended Marshall College, where he was pledged by the Alpha Theta Chi fraternity. At present he is connected with the Fisher Body Company of Cincinnati.

Miss Mary Ransler, an aunt of the bride, chose for the occasion, a dress of brown crepe, and her corsage was of Talisman roses. Mrs. Maze wore to her son's wedding a black crepe gown and her corsage was also of Talisman roses.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Maze left by motor for a brief honeymoon, visiting points west. They are now at home to their friends and relatives, in their newly furnished apartment at 5509 Fenwick avenue, Norwood, Ohio.

Others from Walton attending the wedding, were Mrs. C. W. Ransler, and Mrs. Martha R. Wallace, the latter remaining until Monday with her brother, Mr. Rouse.

BETTY S. POPE

An untimely death, which came as a shock to her friends and relatives, was that of Mrs. Betty Sullivan Pope, 40, who passed away at the residence in Waterloo, Boone county Christmas Day, after an illness of six days. Death came as a result of bronchial pneumonia.

The deceased was born and raised in Boone county

She is survived by her husband, Clifford Pope, two daughters, Myrtle Lee and Janet May; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sullivan; one sister, Mrs. Mary Baker; three brothers, Nathan, Layton and Roy Sullivan, besides many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Friday, Dec. 27, from the Baptist church at Bellevue, Rev. Raymond Smith officiating. Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

INCREASED BUSINESS FOR POST OFFICE

According to Postmaster C. F. Cleek, of the Walton office, 1940 showed an increase in business of 18.5% over the December quarter of 1939. In December alone, 15,520 1½ cent stamp sales amounted to $5,449.55. This represents the largest sales for any single year, in the decade—and is probably an all-time record.

The Post Office department appreciates the cooperation given them in handling the Christmas mail, both in town and on the rural routes, Mr. Cleek states.

4-H Weed Show January 18-20

The date for the Northern Kentucky 4-H Tobacco Show and Sale, has definitely been set for January 18-20 by Herbert Whitley, Manager of the Kenton Looseleaf Warehouse, according to word received at the County Agent's Office this week. Mr. Whitley, in making this announcement, stated that 4-H tobacco should be brought to the Warehouse on Friday afternoon or Saturday morning, January 18th. The tobacco is to be delivered early so that it can be weighed and lined on the floor Saturday.

Mr. Whitley also said that each club member could bring his entire crop and would not be limited to just five baskets. This means that each club member can enter five baskets in the show and sell his entire crop.

Many Boone County 4-H members have completed plans for entering this show. Cash prizes are awarded for the best of the various grades of tobacco, as well as for the best record books.

Mattress Applications Are Being Received

Mattress applications, under the Kentucky Rural Mattress Program, are being received by Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Several hundred mattresses will be available to the county.

Application forms were mailed to widely distributed parts of the county the past week. Additional application forms may be secured from the county office in Burlington.

Families that are eligible to receive surplus cotton materials for making mattresses, should meet the following requirements:

1. Farm families with gross income under $600.00 or non-farm families with income $500 or less.

2. Number of mattresses available varies from one matress for a family of one to three persons and three mattresses for a family of six persons or more.

3. Applicants, who apply, will be required to give the amount of work required to make the mattress and pay a fee of $1.00 to cover cost of twine, tufts, needles and etc., used in constructing the mattress.

Material supplied by the Surplus Commodity Corporation through the county AAA committee, includes 50 pounds of cotton and 10 yards of ticking per mattress.

Instruction and educational feature of the program will be under the supervision of the Home Demonsrtation Agent, who will be assisted by the Homemaker's clubs and a county committee. Instructions on mattress making will be given at community meetings.

Further information on the mattress program may be secured from the County Agent's Office, Homemaker's clubs or County AAA Office. All persons eligible should file applications immediately.

Radio Barn Dance Show Here Next Week

The Walton Council, Daughters of America, will sponsor a radio dance show in the Walton School Auditorium on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, January 13, 14 and 15, at 8:00 o'clock, slow time.

The program is based on the popular barn dances heard on the radio each Saturday night. A special hayloft will be erected in the auditorium to give the proper atmosphere to the occasion. A sound system will also be used for the program.

A cast of over 75 will take part in the program and a change of entertainment will be had each evening. When you hear the cow bells ring out, next Monday night, and see the lads and lassles attired in their over-alls and gay gingham dresses, you, too, will want to join the trek to the auditorium for an evening of fun and hilarity .The program is not to be confused with a public dance.

Popular, classical, sacred, and hill-billy music will all have a place in the program, so as to be sure and please all who attend.

An old time community song fest will also be held when all the good old songs of the "horse and buggy" days will be sung and will no doubt bring back many tender memories to some.

Louise Rouse as Aunt Idy, and Lawrence "Fatso" Kendell as little Clifford, will keep the audience highly amused with their antics. It is rumored that Aunt Idy has purchased a new "baby buggy" for little Clifford and she plans to bring him to the barn dance in this new go-cart.

Kenneth Johnson, as Uncle Ezra, is bound to keep the audience in gales of laughter. The role of Lula Belle is to played by Miss Helen Sprodling of Maderia, Ohio.

A special treat of the evening will be the appearance of the Dionne quintuplets, and their nurse, played by five of the "larger" women of the community.

Guest artists will be present from Florence, Morning View, DeMossville, Crittenden, Piner, Independence and Walton.

Harvey Brownfield, Jr., accordian artist from Cincinnati, is to appear on the program. Franklin Daugherty of Independence is to be seen in a clever dance.

The entertainment will last approximately two hours, with never a dull moment. Barbara Ann Crouse will favor with some clever dance numbers.

The finale of the program will come as Mrs. Olive Johnson, as Kate Smith, will sing, "God Bless America" and the American flag is lowered from the top of the auditorium.

The show promises to be the funniest and most novel entertainment ever to be presented to local audiences.

The Daughters of America wish to thank the business men, cast and entire public for the support given them in making their show a success.

There are still some places on the program and any new talent may register at the dress rehearsal at the school on Sunday afternoon. Singers, dancers and musicians of all kinds and ages are wanted to take part.

Floyd L. Miller is director of the show here.

Advance sale of tickets has been quite large and from all indications there will be a good attendance at all performances. Tickets may be purchased in advance of the show at a reduced price from any member of the Daughters of America, or from Mildred Rice at the Post Office.

LESSIE O. HUBBARD

Lessie Otho Hubbard, 73, passed away at the residence at Paint Lick, Gallitn county, January 4, after an illness of one year. The immediate cause of death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Hubbard, who was born in Campbell county, was a well known farmer in his community.

Funeral services were held from the Big Bone Baptist church, of which he was a member, Monday at 2:00 p. m., Rev. Roy Johnson officiating.

The deceased is survived by one son ,Leonard Hubbard, two grandchildren and a number of relatives and a host of friends.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of funeral arrangements.

UNION MAN DIES SUDDENLY

Leonard W. Adams, aged 69 years, 1 month and 14 days, died suddenly Friday morning, January 3rd, 1941, at his home near Union, Ky., Boone county.

He is survived by four sons, Carl and Earl Adams of Walton, Leo Adams of Reading, Ohio, and Charley Adams of Dayton, Ohio; one daughter, Bertha McAnnis, of Covington, Ky.; two sisters, Alice Adams of Covington, and Mrs. Anna Richie of Latonia, Ky.; one brother, John Adams, of Williamstown, Ky.; four grandchildren and a number of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon, Jan. 5th at 2:00 p. m., at the Funeral Home of Chambers & Grubbs, Rev. D. E. Bedinger officiating.

Pallbearers were Roy Adams, Tony Picani, Charley McAnnis, Earl Ashcraft, Fenton Ritchie and Emerson Simpson.

Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of funeral arrangements. Interment was at Hopeful cemetery.

Fink-Worthington Nuptials Dec. 25

On December 25th, at 6:30 p. m., Mr. Charles G. Worthington took as his bride, Miss Mary Fink, daughter of Mrs. Pearl Fink. The ceremony was performed at the home of the officiating minister, the Reverend Tillery, pastor of the Dry Ridge Christian church.

The young couple was attended by Miss Katherine Robinson and Mr. Frederick Worthington.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Worthington of Sherman, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Worthington plan to make their home in Walton, and have the heartiest congratulations and the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and prosperous life together.

FLORENCE GIRL WEDS ON DEC. 28

Miss Alice Sayre Lucas, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lucas of Florence, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Blackburn, son of Sam Blackburn, at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. H. M. Hauter, Saturday evening, December 28. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McGuire of Covington.

The young couple will reside in Covington, where the groom has a nice position.

Their many friends here wish them much joy and happiness.

HENRY B. HANEY

Funeral services were held from the Baptist church at Wellington, Friday, January 3, for Henry B. Haney, 80,

Mr. Haney died at his residence on the Stephenson Mill Road, Walton, January 1, 1941. He was born in Pendleton county.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss three sons, Denver, Earl and George Haney; one daughter, Mrs. Thelma Simms, 20 grandchildren; and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts of Walton.

Chambers & Grubbs were in charge of arrangements.

1-Point Thriller Won By Bearcats

The Walton - Verona High school Bearcats returned to their basketball wars Tuesday night on the home floor, with the Erlanger Juggernauts furnishing the opposition.

From the start, the contest was close and it took an overtime period to settle the issue—30-29 in favor of Walton.

The locals held a 7-6 edge at the end of the first quarter, and at the rest period all things were even at 10-10. In the third quarter it looked bad for the Bearcats, Erlanger holding 22-15 margin at the close of this period. However, in the fourth quarter locals turned on the heat and tied the score 28-28 as the game ended. In the extra period Simpson tossed in a basket for Walton, and the best the Juggernauts could do was a free throw, thus giving W.-V its tenth victory in eleven starts this season.

DeMoisey poured in ten points for the winners, to lead his team in scoring, and for Erlanger, Perkins was high with 12 tallies.

With Welsh leading the way with 10 points, Walton's second team won an exciting 18-17 victory from the Erlanger reserves, in the preliminary contest.

Another red-hot battle is expected Friday night when the Bearcats visit the Pioneers at Simon Kenton High. A lot of friendly rivalry exists between these schools, and both teams really want to win this one. You'll be there, I guess.

Homem'k'rsto Attend Farm, Home Meeting

Boone county local Homemakers' clubs are making plans to send delegates to Farm and Home Convention. The annual get-together of men and women from all parts of the State will be held at the University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture, January 28, 29, 30 and 31.

Several talks at the sessions for women will deal with National Defense and the part homemakers are taking in preserving democracy. Following are some of the speakers for the four-day program: Dr. Carl C. Taylor, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Allen Stockdale, National Association of Manufacturers, and Mrs. Georgette Ross Howard, Washington, D. C.

A demonstration of making a cotton mattress and a Style Show "Cotton Around the Calendar and Around the Clock," will show methods of increasing cotton consumption.

Each local Homemakers' club is planning to send a delegate for part or all of the program, acording to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent. Several of the clubs are spensoring bake sales this month, to make funds for sending a delegate.

BOONE COUNTY RED CROSS NEWS

The Boone county Red Cross Nurse spent most of the time during December making home visits to parents of school children, in regard to corrections of physical defects found when schools had health inspection.

Some home visits were made to other cases and emergency calls answered. Two tonsil and four eye cases were corrected, many others are making plans.

Besides the regular work for January, the Red Cross will assist any or all schools in the county with the Blue Ribbon Program, as outlined by the State Department of Health.

This will require considerable detail, and in order to do a good job, the backing of parents, teachers, Parent-Teacher Associations and all concerned, is needed.

MEETING DEFENSE PROBLEMS

By J. E. Jones

The British Government has laid its cards face down for our Government in Washington to study. London indicates that every kind of help is needed. Director of the new Council, William S. Knudsen, makes it very clear that the Government expects industry and labor to speed up production of machine tools—in fact to roll up sleeves and hop to all the jobs. In October he served notice on the automobile industry that all manufacturers must stand in second place to national defense and he insisted that the Government must have the right of way for the products of manufacturers of machine tools. All private industries have agreed to the demands of the Defense Commission in this matter.

Issues involving the Government of the United States in the European War appear to have been merged by the "terrible urgency of the situation" in the opinion of Mr. Knudsen, pleading with employers and workmen for a "singleness of purpose."

Apparently the labor laws enacted in recent years were intended only for peacetimes, and are not as elastic as they might be for war production.

Factories in England operate from 47 to 72 hours a week, according to Sir Walter Citrine, General Secretary of the British Trades Unions Congress, who spoke at the National Press Club in Washington recently.

Responsible officials of the Federal Government have made it plain that they are not in favor of those measures that are cutting down the production of airplanes by one-third the amount expected each month. These officials recall that in 1917 the Government assumed absolute control over industries and working conditions, and called a moratorium on all methods and formulas that slackened the completion of finished machines and articles.

The Federal Government has full authority and power over industries, including working hours and overtime pay.

Reports of disputes and quarrels described as a struggle between "classes" are mostly imagination, inasmuch as, "human rights" have not been challenged by anyone.

Fortunately National Defense has been carried on independent of politics. The rights of labor will be maintained, and it looks as though factories will soon be running longer working hours and days.

OUNCES OF PREVENTION KEEP THE FLU AWAY

The Health Department in Washington has initiated safeguards to check influenza.

The United States Public Health Service joined in an effort to confine the flu epidemic to California and Western States. Although there were thousands of cases on the West Coast early in December they were fortunately of a mild type. Health officers recall that 1,452 cases broke out in a single Army Camp in twenty days when the epidemic was spreading in 1918.

An Agricultural Department bulletin says grapefruit and oranges "are valued most highly in the diet." Vitamin C, found in citrus fruits, is regarded as a strong resistant to the flu germ, and it also supplies the precious minerals that help alkalize your system in nature's own way.

Nutrition experts in a Government Department have issued a bulletin which advises that the general well being of the body at all ages depends upon "a balanced diet—one that includes foods that will supply sufficient proteins, minerals, vitamins, and energy to meet the needs of the body." Several foods are specified in the bulletin, among which are dairy products, fruits and vegetables. These are designated as "protective" foods, on account of certain minerals and vitamins which they contain.

Many physicians prescribe diets consisting almost entirely of citrus fruits after the flu has struck. That seems to coincide with the plans of nature, supported in a current issue of a Government document reporting that "record supplies of grapefruit and oranges are expected this winter."

We would be led to believe that two big glasses of fresh squeezed oranges and grapefruit a day will help to keep the doctor away.

MORGANSVILLE

"As the heart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after Thee, O, God."

"Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase."

"Cast thy bread upon the waters."

Christians should refrain from many things that in themselves are not sinful, but that may tend to influence others harmfully rather than helpfully.

Usually we are not conscious of our short comings until we see them in others.

Heartiest New Year's greetings are extended to the Editorial staff, readers and correspondents of The Advertiser.

Announcement of the marriage of Jack Smith Morgan and Miss Glenna Groger is of interest to a wide circle, who extend warmest felicitations. May blue skies and sunny days be always theirs.

Grateful appreciation is extended to Mrs. Jasper N. Williams and attractive daughter, Miss Alice Jane, for lovely gifts.

On Christmas Day Mr. and Mrs Harry Fisk and daughter little Miss Nellie of Nicholson delightfully entertained with an elegant turkey dinner in compliment to his parents and kindred. On the following day Mrs. Fisk, Nellie and Mrs. Virginia Wagner called bringing a plateful of Christmas dinner, candy and fruit, which was sincerely appreciated.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Times and theme songs change quickly in Washington, sometimes so rapidly that the singers themselves can't keep up. And sometimes, as now, those who sang loudest wish they had chosen another tune.

Up until the last week in November, the President himself in Hyde Park was making complimentary remarks about the speed of the defense program. Then in mid-December emphasis shifted to talk about how defense is lagging, how the nation hasn't been sufficiently "sold" on the necessity for speed, how the week-end production "blackout" should be eliminated.

To those in the know in Washington, the facts were exactly the same in November as in December. The only thing was that the public had been oversold on a few things.

To illustrate, those who made munitions and guns had been so effectively classed in the public mind as "merchants of death" that there weren't any producers of these goods. New plants had to be built.

Again, machines had been built up as destroyers of jobs. The makers of machines had just been coasting along on the little business which people had to give them. Now, though, machines and machine-makers are needed, but they can't just grow into full operation over night.

Also government press agents had put out a stream of releases about contracts being granted. Since this followed optimistic talk about 50,000 airplanes and two-ocean navies, the people thought everything was rosy. They were undersold on the fact that there is a lot which must happen between ordering a tank and actually getting it.

Still again, people had been told that the nation could arm itself and still have its present comforts and luxuries.

Now there is official doubt about all these things. Even officialdom is beginning to hope the people will see that like total war defense (especially when that includes furnishing Britain's weapons) requires sacrifices.

More information therefore will "leak" out about difficulties the defense program must overcome. There will be talk about how the cost of the program must be increased both to "lease" material to Britain and to meet rising wage levels.

Many manufacturers contracted to produce defense goods with the understanding that their employees would work 40 hours a week. There aren't enough trained workers in numerous industries to put on additional shifts. Therefore, present workers must stay on the job more than 40 hours. But, as it is now being made clear, unions insist upon time and a half for all hours over 40 a week. Hence more money must be spent for the same things if they are to be produced faster.

If night shifts are put on, the cost also will rise in many cases. One defense producer who went on a three instead of a two-shift basis, discovered that his "graveyard" night shift was 23 per cent less efficient than the two day shifts.

Another thing which may be made clear is that makers of defense goods aren't going to be war millionaires. The law permits the War Department to give a fee of 7 per cent to those who produce munitions. The average fee allowed so far is less than 5 per cent, and that, of course, is before Uncle Sam takes his taxes out of the 5 per cent.

In one important industry, the average fee above actual costs is only 2 per cent. The story of one producer in this group shows why it is difficult to tell the facts to the public.

This producer was asked if the government couldn't make a public statement about his patriotism. He raised his hands in horror and refused, saying he didn't want to be painted in public as a "munitions maker."

He may go a long way toward saving the country, but the people won't know it. And all because of a jolly theme song with which politicians had a lot of fun.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST'S VALUATION OF PERSONALITY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 12:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? —Matthew 6:25.

People, people, and more people! Have you ever said, "I'm just so tired of people. I wish I could get away from everybody"? Most of us have felt that way some time and have possibly needed and deserved a rest. We must not permit that feeling to so color our thinking, however, that we lose our interest in men and women, boys and girls.

Jesus had His times of prayer and quiet communion with the Father, but for the most part we find Him out among people. He loved them and consequently dealt faithfully with them, showing tenderness to those who needed it, and often being severely plain and direct in dealing with those who were hypocrites. He valued human personality highly, hence He gave Himself in sacrificial devotion to winning, guiding, controlling and, above all, saving men.

The lesson presents some interesting contrasts.

I. How and How Not to Use the Sabbath (vv. 1-6).

Jesus was at a formal gathering with invited guests (v. 7) in one of the chief houses of the community, on the Sabbath Day. That such a gathering was held on that day was a sign of the degeneracy of the age. "The same thing is being done on Sunday by Christian people today. They go to church (if convenient) in the morning and devote the afternoon and evening to recreation and social" occasions. We agree with Dr. Morgan that "the whole thing is a sign of spiritual decadence." That's how not to spend the day of rest and worship.

Another wrong thing was that they used the occasion to try to entrap Jesus. He was at the feast, not to "have a good time," but to minister to their spiritual needs. They brought the sick man in to tempt Jesus to heal on the Sabbath Day. He used their trickery to condemn them and to silence them (vv. 4, 6).

Declaring God's truth and His love for man by worship and by work for Him—that is the right way to use the Lord's Day. Let's get back to its proper observance.

II. What and What Not to Do for Advancement (vv. 7-11).

Getting ahead, even at the expense of others, seems to have been quite the thing in our Lord's time, as it is today. Looking at that smug, self-satisfied crowd of "grabbers," Jesus made good use of His presence at the feast to expose their folly and selfishness. Again we agree with Dr. Morgan that one should not "try for the chief seat. Why not? Because the place of honor is for the honorable man; and a man who struggles to sit in the place of honor proves thereby that he is not an honorable man." Think it over!

The way up in spiritual things is always down. Humility, which is so despised by the world, is precious in the sight of God, and will be rewarded by Him. The principle stated in verse 11 is and always will be true. The young man or woman who really wants to get ahead will do well to let it control both thought and deed. It is a far better rule for the New Year than any resolution you may have made—and probably forgotten by now.

III. Who and Who Not to Invite for Dinner (vv. 12-14).

Is the Lord interested in such a matter as that? Indeed He is! Everything about life concerns Him, and, as a matter of fact, this is a very important point. Here an attitude toward life is revealed which is vital and fundamental.

Hospitality is a virtue highly regarded by the Bible (see such passages as Rom. 12:13; I Tim. 3:2; Titus 1:8; I Pet. 4:9). To debase it by asking only those whom we expect will ask us in return, is really to destroy it. It is not hospitality at all to limit our invitations to those who invite us. Obviously we are not to cut them off simply because they do ask us. That is not the point. We are not to let that be the controlling factor.

Ask those who cannot pay you back, if you really want to get a blessing out of it. There is so much need in the world that we who follow Christ have little time to spend merely entertaining those who have no need. God will recompense. Dr. J. W. Bradbury in The Gist of the Lesson well says, "There is a good reason not to seek recompense here; there are more enduring and valuable recompenses hereafter (Matt. 6:1-6, 16-18). When we get no recompense here for the good we do, we ought rather to rejoice than be sad. It assures better recompense hereafter."

He goes on to say, "The professing church has often followed the world's method rather than Christ's (James 2:1-6)." Sad—but true. What shall we do about it?

The Donation Party

Preachers in other times preached pretty largely for joy, I suppose, for what they made of this world's goods would hardly hold soul and body together. Their churches, if they were Methodist circuit riders, were often far apart and practically inaccessible in winter weather. It seems to me now that I never heard of a circuit rider in those days who was paid all he was supposed to get. Just how they lived through this trying ordeal is more than I know. Some sort of memorial should be erected to the preacher as a financial manager who could live on practically nothing; it would be better to have the monument to his wife, who had to manage the funds or lack of them.

We parishioners, with our farms and gardens and chickens, sometimes felt sorry for the poor preacher, who went here and there like Halley's Comet and had no chance to acquire anything except the barest necessities of clothes and furniture. Some community leader started collecting material things, for even preachers had to eat. From their abundance people gave canned goods, preserves, dried fruits, and other things, even quilts, brooms, and sometimes clothes. Those approached who could not draw on a home supply spent a few cents and bought some household article at the village store. By degrees a big pile of things was ready. Several couples would load up their buggies or a wagon or two and go across country to where the preacher lived. In addition to the staple articles they carried freshly-prepared foods in abundance ,enough for a big meal for the well-wishers and the family and some to spare. The preacher and his family met the bringers of good things and blessed them genuinely, adding a wholesome religious service as a part of the celebration. Then, after a day with their preacher, the parishioners came away, feeling virtuous for their services to worthy people.

I fear that happenings of this character are now rare, not because they would not be welcome, but because we are a much more matter-of-fact people than we used to be. We have lost many of the principles of good neighborliness, even though we may be a little more prompt with our cash contributions to the church and its agencies. I wonder sometimes whether we are as close to our public servants of all sorts as we used to be or whether we just regard all of them as hired servants who do not need our neighborliness. Certainly there was in the old donation party a heartwarming experience, as I know from memory of the one I attended when I was teaching at a small village, farther west than Fidelity. To the best of my knowledge that one was the last time I ever heard of the traditional celebration; I do hope that there have been many since that time, more than thirty years ago.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

What is the economic outlook for 1941?

It is safe to predict that next year American business will be at one of its highest levels in history. With the war industries as a foundation, business will boom. And the effect of this boom will be felt in almost every town and farm, large and small, throughout the entire land. Some part of the billions of dollars spent on defense will find its way into the pockets of almost every person.

Though farmers are least apt to benefit, higher prices for them may well result; certainly consumption of farm products will increase. And through cooperation among themselves as well as with the Department of Agriculture and by the practice of crop diversification, farmers may pull themselves out of their slump of the past two years.

For the consumer, 1941 will be a year of rising prices. The sooner you buy your goods—almost any goods—the lower will be prices.

As a whole, the coming year looms as a prosperous one for most of us. As I have said before however, there will come a recession if and when the armament boom collapses. Your guess is as good as mine about the time this will occur.

So Happy New Year! Economically, I predict this will be a happier new year than for many years past. But watch out for the year after this!

The Light Bearer's Sunday school class, which was to have had its December meeting during the holidays, because of sickness and other reasons, will not have its December meeting, but will meet the fourth Wednesday in January at the church at 1:30.

The Recruiting Service Hits the Road

Now the modern Army will come to you. The trim, silver truck and trailer shown above is one of the Recruiting Service's new offices on wheels, designed to reach localities where there are no established recruiting stations. They provide sleeping quarters for five men, as well as full office facilities. At right is an interior shot of one of the Army's swanky, new recruiting trailers with a recruiting sergeant preparing a recorded address for broadcast over its public address system. Completely equipped as a streamlined office, the trailer also provides living quarters, cooking stoves, sinks and clothes closets.

These mobile recruiting stations are now in operation in all the nine corps of the United States, two in each corps area. Much public interest is being manifested in their activities.

MINCE MEAT MIRACLE

Desserts may come and desserts may go, but mince meat pie, served hot and fragrant right from the oven, retains its prestige as a particularly delightful climax to a good meal. Small wonder this, for good things from far places join together to make the superb blend of flavor—choice beef and suet, Grecian currants, Valencia seeded raisins and other selected fruits as well as rare spices.

Since mince meat pies are brought to the table steaming, you may give them a place on "quickie" menus—putting the pie in the oven first and letting it bake while you prepare the other foods and serve the main course. Prepared pastry mixes help you make them quickly — or if you like to make your own special brand of pastry you might have some of it stored in the refrigerator ready to roll out. The second recipe given below might be your choice if you don't want to take the time for rolling out pastry.

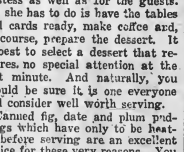
Mince Meat Pie

Line a pie pan with pastry rolled to one-eighth inch thickness. Fill with canned mince meat, using a two-pound can or jar of it for a pie of average size. Moisten the crust edge with a few drops of water, then place narrow strips of pastry across the top in lattice fashion. Cut off ends of strips so they extend one-fourth inch from the edge of the pan. Fold ends under lower crust and press edges firmly together. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) 15 minutes, then reduce temperature and continue baking in a moderate oven (350° F.) about 30 minutes or until the mince meat boils.

Mince Meat Pineapple Pudding

Mix together—



3 cups soft bread crumbs (packed in)
¾ cup canned mince meat
1 cup shredded pineapple
1 cup pineapple juice.

Pour into buttered casserole.

Dot with—

2 tablespoons butter.

Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 45 minutes or until browned. Serve with a hard sauce or whipped cream. (Serves 6.)

DESSERT BRIDGE

Many people are giving dessert-bridge parties on these chill November nights. This is a simple, informal way of entertaining that makes bridge parties fun for the hostess as well as for the guests. All she has to do is have the tables and cards ready, make coffee and, of course, prepare the dessert. It is best to select a dessert that requires no special attention at the last minute. And naturally, you should be sure it is one everyone will consider well worth serving.

Canned fig, date and plum puddings which have only to be heated before serving are an excellent choice for these very reasons. You may get them in the medium (14-oz.) size, the large (1-lb. 11-oz.) size or the small (8-oz.) size to suit your needs and serve them with a variety of delicious sauces. The following recipe combines fig pudding with ice cream or whipped cream.

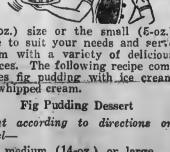


Fig Pudding Dessert

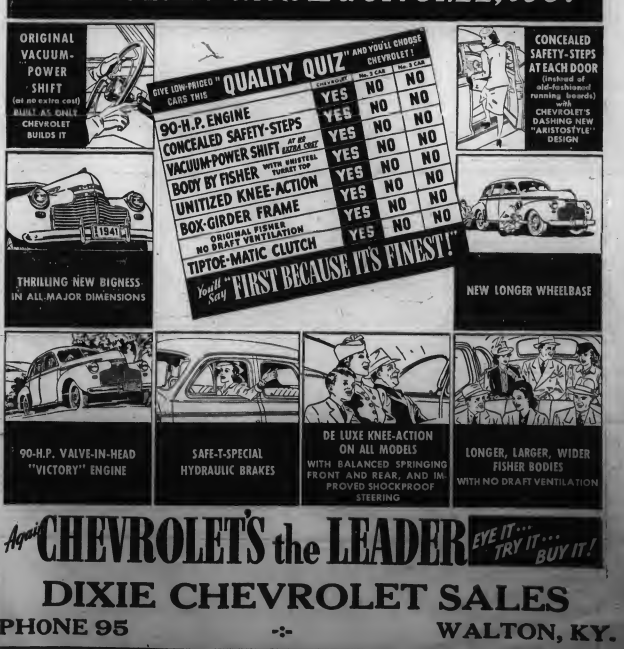
Heat according to directions on label—

1 medium (14-oz.) or large (1-lb. 11-oz.) can fig pudding.

Cut in pie shaped pieces and arrange two pieces per serving on dessert plates with their points together.



Place in center a mound of—

Ice cream or whipped cream.

Garnish with—

Maraschino cherries.

★ FASHION PREVIEW ★

The school teacher who would keep the attention of her classes and earn the devotion of her pupils must avoid the traditional drab garb of the old-time school-marm. Her clothes must have style, dash, and color like the three-piece wool and rayon suit shown above which appears in the January issue of Good Housekeeping.

"Finally brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." Philippians 4:8.

Well, our Christmas and Yuletide, for 1940, have come to a close with the 1941 New Year, with all its new inspiration and we, with our new resolutions for the new year. So please let us be sure of our resolutions, and try to make all of them steadfast, and enforce them that they may help us to become more useful and more ardent to our fellow man. And that we may live and learn, and be uplifted in doing good and being good. "For the most serious mistake we can make is the one from which we can learn nothing." So let us all try to make all of our resolutions good so that they will mean for us and each and everyone a happiness and a brighter year than our past 1940.

Well, everyone is home again from their Christmas vacations—and all report a lovely Christmas and New Year, full of fun and frolic and plenty to eat, the old adage: "Eat, laugh and grow fat."

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walton spent the holidays in Danville, Ky., visiting Mrs. Walton's mother.

E. Huff and family visited Mrs. Huff's sister, Mrs. Thomas, of Carthage, Ohio, New Year's Day, and there partook of a lovely 6 o'clock dinner, which consisted of many good things to eat.

Carl Huffman and family, Harold Rosensteal and wife spent Christmas Day with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Huffman, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Huffman visited Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, of Crittenden, one evening of last week.

Mrs. W. G. Bales and children of Covington spent New Year's Day and the following week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Bales, of this place.

The New Year's Eve dance at Huff's place, was largely attended, dancing the old year out and the New Year in, with Uncle Charlie and his Mountain Rangers furnishing the music. All those attending reported a lovely time.

Ed Walton and wife spent last week in Columbus, Ohio.

A serious accident, which occurred Christmas Day, was that which involved two of our local people, Mr. Jesse Sebree and Mrs. Pore. Mr. Sebree was taking a load of tobacco to Lexington when the truck his was driving was sturck by a reckless drivcr. Mrs. Pore received a broken arm and Mr. Sebree received cuts and bruises about the head and face and suffered severe shock. The driver of the other car was killed instantly. The truck, which belonged to Mr. Pore, was demolished. We are glad to report Mr. Sebree and Mr. Pore doing nicely at this report.

Elizabeth Conrad visited in Dry Ridge one day last week.

E. F. Bales was a business visitor at Ed Monahan's, Saturday.

The new lunch room on the grounds at the tourist camp, known as the Woods on U. S. Highway 25, is nearing completion, and from all appearances it is going to be a lovely structure, classy and up-to-date in every form.

Mrs. Homer Huffman was shopping in Covington, Saturday.

We are sorry to report Carl Huffman, little son of Harry Thomas Huffman, very low at this writing. He is suffering a severe attack of flu, threatened with pneumonia.

It seems as though we are going into winter now about right, from the blizzard and cold wave of Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Sarah Adams visited in Bracht, Saturday.

Homer Huffman and wife, E. Huff and wife were entertained in Covington, Monday evening, at the home of some of their friends and relatives, where a lovely luncheon and card party were enjoyed until a late hour.

We all gladly welcome the New Year and may we keep singing the praises through the year, "Peace on earth good will toward men."

HAWK IN THE WIND

by HELEN TOPPING MILLER

Copyright, 1940, by D. Appleton-Century Co., Inc. WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER II—Next morning it is learned that Wills, a government employee who has been working with surveyors in the district, has developed pneumonia, due to his exposure. He is forced to remain in the household of Marian Morgan, Virgie's daughter, expresses her dislike with the arrangement for she dislikes Wills. Meanwhile trouble is developing as Wallace Withers meets the mill's young chemist, Stanley Daniels, and asks him to call at his home.

CHAPTER III — Virgie accidentally learns that someone is trying to obtain title to timber lands owned by Tom Pruitt, lifelong friend of her deceased husband and part owner of the mill. She advises Tom to clear up title to his property. He promises to do so. She also learns that a love affair is developing between her chemist, Daniels, and her secretary, Lucy Fields.

CHAPTER IV—Wallace Withers attempts to bargain with Stanley Daniels to have him help in getting possession of the Morgan mill. Daniels is flattered by the attention the older man gives him, but being fundamentally honest he refuses to do anything illegal to help Withers gain his end. Later he learns that Tom Pruitt owns a big share of stock in the mill.

CHAPTER V—In the Morgan home Wills improves rapidly and discovers he is falling in love with Marian. She is developing similar symptoms but neither cares to let anyone know of their feelings. Virgie offers Wills a job at the mill. Tom Pruitt learns that the timber interests have sent men to look over his land. He takes his rifle and tramps into the woods.

CHAPTER VI—His health greatly improved and the offer of the job accepted, Wills leaves the Morgan household to live elsewhere in the village. In parting he tells Marian that her mother has given him work in the mill and she tells him of her dislike of this arrangement.

CHAPTER VII—After many days of waiting on his timber property, Tom Pruitt finally spots his "enemy" and fires at them, seriously wounding a man. When Virgie learns of the incident she finds Tom and attempts to save him by helping him escape. Tom, however, is captured and jailed.

CHAPTER VIII—At the mill, the mountain men resent having Wills put in charge of the work but he suffers no active antagonism from them. Marian comes to him and explains that people say he took Tom Pruitt's job while he was stalking the timber men and she asks help to aid her in convincing Tom that he is still wanted at the mill. Tom refuses to be bailed out of jail pending trial because he feels he is not wanted or needed by the Morgans.

CHAPTER IX—A large portion of wood pulp at the mill is spoiled by a poor chemical solution and Virgie suspects her chemist has had something to do with it. She tells her daughter, Marian, that she believes Branford Wills and Marian are in love. Marian denies it.

"You mean — somebody could have ruined that whole digester of pulp—deliberately?"

"I suppose he has another of his ideas. He's always finding something in a catalogue that saves a thousand dollars or so in production costs and only costs fifteen or twenty thousand to install!"

Virgie was very low in her mind as she opened the door of Stanley Daniels' laboratory.

"Well, what's on your mind?" she demanded.

Daniels looked up from his work, wiped his hands quickly.

"Oh, Mrs. Morgan—sorry I had to ask you to come over, but there was a risk that this stuff would solidify if I left it—and I thought you should know about these tests. Something is going wrong with the solvents—I can't say just what till I finish running these. In the number three vat the fiber seems to be so weakened and destroyed that the whole run will be worthless. Would you like to look at this?" He wiped a tube swiftly, held it to the light, shook it.

Virgie crossed the room, studied the brown mixture. "What's wrong with it?" she asked.

"Watch." Daniels tilted the tube, let the solution spin out. Ignorant of processes as she was, Virgie saw enough to know that something was vitally wrong. This was not wood pulp in solution, but a sickening foamy brew that spun out on the filter paper Daniels spread beneath it.

"I have to believe you," Virgie said. "I don't know enough to know what's wrong—but something is, evidently. But—how could it have happened?"

"There could," Daniels said, "have been some chemical accident. Unlikely though, if you bought the stuff at the same place. Changes do occur—accidents in shipment, moisture, too much heat—but not often. But this seems to me too serious to be explained in that way. Something wrong has been added—my tests will show what it is when they're finished. Of course that may have been accidental, too—wrong label, something like that. There's always the human element, you know. Workmen make mistakes and hide them. And then of course we have to consider the possibility that it was deliberate."

Virgie sat down abruptly on a leather-covered stool. Her legs were weak, all the vague misgivings she had felt assumed a definite shape of menace.

"You mean—somebody could have ruined that whole digester of pulp—deliberately? Put in something to destroy the fiber? How could that have happened? You keep the keys. You test everything."

"I did not, unfortunately, test the solvents on this run," Daniels admitted. "I haven't been doing it lately—they come sealed and they've always been perfect before. We depended on the reputation of the manufacturer. Of course, hereafter I'll test everything thoroughly—but that doesn't help us now."

"And in the meantime we lose a batch of pulp and have all the trouble of cleaning the digester out?"

"I'm afraid this lot is useless. I'm running every sort of test to be certain but in the meantime it looks pretty dubious."

Virgie let her breath out slowly. All sorts of odd, wild ideas seethed in her mind. Someone had ruined an expensive run of pulp, someone had it in for her—but why?

Vague rumors she had heard of communists at work in industrial regions, of sabotage and labor troubles fomented, she discounted. Her men had worked in the Morgan mill all their lives. Some of them had helped David Morgan to build the plant, some of them sons of men who had laid the first bricks.

Repeatedly she had called them into conferences, during the black years of the depression, laying the facts before them, speaking their language. She had made sacrifices to keep the mill in operation when there was no profit for her, no possible way to show a profit. If the mill closed there was no other employment for them—and yet here was suspicion, sabotage and ugly doubt that rested, till she had proof and certain knowledge, upon every man in the mill.

Virgie hated the thought with the frightened hate of the innately kind and candid woman. She hated looking at Jerry and Hobe and the Spain boys, with speculation in her eyes. She loathed the feeling that hostile looks might be following her. Every man in the mill owed something to her—and yet people were funny!

She went home at night, lost in a heavy, ruminative gloom.

She changed her clothes and went down to her big chair that faced David Morgan's picture and still had the print of David Morgan's head in the leather of the back. David looked tired, too, she thought. David was out of it all. He was lucky.

Marian sat, moodily, in front of the fire staring into the blaze.

"You," sighed Virgie, sinking into the cushions with a groan, "are a cheerful sight for tired eyes! If a merry laugh or a song ever sounded in this room I suppose I'd drop dead from shock. What were you doing over at the jail?"

"I went over to bring Tom back. He wouldn't come."

"Being locked up on a criminal charge, that is kind of odd."

"You were going to arrange bail for him. Lon Hicks said so. But Tom wouldn't come."

"I suppose you had to take young Wills along in case you needed somebody to carry Tom's baggage —his other bandana! Did Wills mention that he's working for me? Not that it matters, but now and then we do run off a batch of pulp when we can get a little co-operation from the gentlemen I employ."

"Mother, don't be so prickly! I took Mr. Wills over there because Lossie said the people in town were saying you had fired Tom and given Wills Tom's job. I thought perhaps Tom might have heard it. I hope you don't think I took him because I enjoyed his company?"

Virgie looked at her daughter levelly. Her heart gave a little jerk. Like every other mother she had postponed stubbornly admitting to herself her child's maturity; she had put off the inevitable hour of change when some man should desire her child for his own. For days she had been seeing through Branford Wills clearly and she had not been displeased. She liked his straightforwardness, the trace of iron in him, the strong and gentle way he had with women. But there was no seeing through Marian. Virgie admitted to herself that her child was a dark-eyed enigma to her mother. And in her present state of mind, nerve-taut and weary, puzzles were irritating.

"Do you mean to tell me that you don't know that that chap is in love with you?" she demanded. "Have I raised up a daughter with no more feminine intuition than a—ground turtle? Why—Lossie knows more than that! Or am I supposed to be just a nice stupid old mother, blind as a bat?"

Marian's eyes darkened and her face changed queerly. There was a little convulsion of her lips that was a tremor of pain, but Virgie was too spent and too exasperated to see.

"So that," Marian's voice crackled like ice, "is the cute little plot. He's in love with me so you give him a job in the mill. It's a Rollo book—the nice young man works his way up from sweeping the store and the mill owner's daughter is supposed to be all of a twitter because she gets a kind look. Unfortunately, Mother dear, you've been reading Dorothy Dix or seeing too many movies. Mr. Branford Wills happens not to be in love with me—as any observer can see with half an eye. Either half. And I happen not to be in love with him."

"That," Virgie mumbled aloud, when Marian had gone, "is what you could call a dramatic exit. Very satisfying—to the actor."

CHAPTER X

Branford Wills went to his work at the mill in the morning like a young man riding to a crusade. There was about him, as he entered the gate, a feeling of going into battle. No tangible opposition presented itself, no definite hostility. The men were not friendly, but they were heavily polite and reserved, as he knew all mountain men to be until they were won over. Daniels was curt and indifferent but their work did not coincide and Wills, following the milling of the product through the plant, from the first removal of the bark to the warm brown rolls of wood-pulp rolled into storage, saw the chemist but seldom.

But on the snowy morning following his visit to the jail, Daniels emerged from his laboratory, his hands in the pockets of a stained jacket, and came to stand beside Wills who was watching a new couch blanket being spread on one of the big presses.

Daniels spoke without preambie. "You were down at the other end of the mill yesterday, Wills. Did you see anyone fooling around the big vats—the digesters? We lost a batch of pulp through some funny business or other."

"I don't know all the men in the mill as yet," Wills said. "And I was out for two or three hours. The vats have padlocks, don't they?"

"That's it." Daniels frowned. "It's an inside job, evidently—without even a motive that we can discover. You haven't made any of these fellows sore, have you?"

Wills looked puzzled. "How could I? I've only been watching and listening. And if I made a man sore he'd be more likely to give me a poke in the jaw, wouldn't he, than to ruin a run of pulp?"

"It sounds reasonable. It's a mystery—and not so good for me because I carry the keys. Well, much obliged."

At shouted instructions from a lank man in overalls, Wills went to help smooth the thick blanket into place on the bed of the machine. But the odd unease of being pressed upon by strange and unfriendly forces persisted. He hated the feeling of defensiveness, of needing to justify himself in his own mind. He liked this job, and he had been swept up into admiration for the intrepid spirit of Virgie Morgan.

And now, as the mill clamor beat around him, he was certain that it was the remoteness, the indifference in her eyes that made this feeling of being on trial without a friend in court. He had to show her. He had to show her that he was something other than a lost and rather pathetic young man whom a big-hearted elderly woman had befriended.

A sudden sharp nausea caught him as his mind raced. Young men had been befriended by middle-aged women before—if she thought he was that sort, an opportunist, a heel. He gave an involuntary jerk and Bud Spain yelled, "Hey!" But the yell was lost in other yells, rough and sudden and startling.

Frank Emmet banged the gears of the Jordan machine back, jumped and ran. Wills ran, too, and because the others were yelling, he yelled, too. Hobe Anderson was dragging a flat hose off a reel. Another man struggled with a fire extinguisher.

The smoke was pouring from a little oil house, built against the north wall of the mill. They kicked the door in, there were yells and men running into each other, and much coughing and hissing of chemicals. The smoke grew blacker, then turned white and sank to the ground. Wills' eyes were running scalding water but it was he who kicked the smoldering barrel into the open, where Hobe Anderson knocked it over and sent it rolling with a stream from the hose.

"Take it easy!" Wills shouted at Hobe. "Cut that water off. Let's have a look at this."

A dozen hands jerked the charred, smoking staves of the barrel apart. A label, still intact, on its side, indicated that it had held bisulphide. In the bottom an oily mass still smoked acridly. Dragged out, it flared into flame briefly—a soaked, dangerous bundle of cotton rags and paper. Mon stamped out the flame, locked at each other somberly.

"Somebody," announced Frank Emmet, "was fixing to burn the mill."

"Wind's wrong," Hobe said, kicking a smoking heap into a pool of water, "or she'd have went sure. Locks like if anybody wanted to burn her they'd have figured on the wind."

Wills was aware of Lucy Fields' white face near to his elbow.

"It was set, wasn't it?" she said.

"Obviously. Though, even if the barrel had burned, there might not have been serious damage. That little building is more or less airtight. The fire probably would have smoldered out."

"But why would anyone want to set fire to the mill? The town would be ruined if it was destroyed."

"Why," Daniels cut in, "would anyone want to spoil the pulp? Something's wrong somewhere. Where is Mrs. Morgan?"

"She went to Asheville to see Tom Pruitt's lawyers. I'd better telephone her."

"I wouldn't," Wills said. "The fire is out. Why worry her? She has troubles enough already."

"That's true. I won't tell her. You'd better clean this up, Frank."

"Let's have a look at it first." Wills looked at Daniels. "We can find out perhaps where this stuff came from."

For an instant Wills sensed an edge of hesitation in Daniels' manner. His eyes flicked around, then were as quickly guarded. But his voice was carefully casual when he answered, "Not much left—but there may be a clue."

Her face went red and then white as Wills came in.

Wills went back to his work at the Jordan machine. It was an hour later that one of the Spain boys came to him and said, "Lucy wants to see you. In the office."

Wills crossed the yard to the little structure that stood so bleakly alone. Lucy Fields sat at her little desk, and her face went first red and then white as Wills came in.

"Sit down, please," she faltered a little, then plunged rapidly. "Mr. Wills, I'm doing a very bold thing—asking you to come here. But I had to talk to you. There's—nothing else to do."

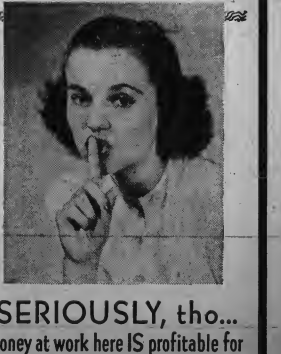
Sparta Man Meets Tragic Death

Emery Corbett was instantly killed, Saturday night, when his stalled car was struck by another car. The accident occurred on Road 42 near Sligo, Kentucky.

Mr. Corbett was thrown from his car when it was struck by a car occupied by three Fort Knox soldiers. He received a broken neck, and the other two occupants of the Corbett car, Joe Yancy and Chester Skirvin, received minor injuries.

The deceased was 41 years of age. He leaves a wife and an infant son, one sister, Mrs. Leslie Minor of Sparta, one brother, William Shirley of Elizabethtown, Kentucky.

Mr. Corbett was the son of the late James and Frances Shirley Corbett. He was a good, law abiding citizen, and an ex-army man, who had served his country 15 years. He was discharged because of his physical condition.



The funeral was conducted from the Sparta Baptist church, Tuesday, after which the remains were laid to rest in Ghent cemetery by C. L. Carlton & Son.

NAGGING BACKACHE

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, chilling, wheated, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our beloved wife and mother, Ida Belle Webster, who passed away January 11, 1940.

Although one year has passed
since God took you away,
To us, dear Mother, it seems like yesterday.
Sometimes we can hardly believe it is true
That now we have no one to tell our troubles to
And when we come home you are not waiting there
Though we know you have no worry or care,
Only God knows how hard it is to bear.
We try our best to smile although our hearts are aching,
And only the memories of your sweet face,
Dear Mother, keep our hearts
from breaking.
Gone is the face we loved so dear
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Keep her, Jesus, in they keeping
Till we reach that shining shore,
Then, O Master, let us have her,
To love her as we did before.

Sadly missed by her husband,
EVERETT WEBSTER,
CHILDREN, AND GRANDCHILDREN.

STAFFORDSBURG

One of the most interesting events of the new year, was the marriage, last Wednesday, of Miss Evelyn Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Richardson of this place, to Mr. Russell Marshall of Dry Ridge. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Daugherty, they journeyed to Louisville, Ky., where they were united in marriage by the Rev. Daugherty, brother of Russell Daugherty. They returned to Mr. Richardson's on Friday, and in the evening were greeted by a group of friends for a charavari. Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Daugherty and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, sr., were guests of the J. B. Richardson family. In the afternoon the bride and groom departed for their home in Dry Ridge. We wish them a long and happy life together.

Charles Klein and children of Dayton, Ohio, spent the week end here visiting relatives.

Charles Denser and William Tieman visited with relatives in Indiana last week.

Miss Minnie Rapp spent the week end here with her sister and brother and families.

Relatives here were saddened by the death ,on January 1, of Mrs. Minerva Cram of Mt. Healthy Ohio. Born and reared in this community, she had lived in Ohio for many years. Her funeral, on Saturday morning, was attended by several of her relatives from here. She leaves to her five children and many relatives and friends, a memory of a kind and gentle mother, sister and friend.

Radio Barn Dance Show A Success

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the closing performance of the radio barn dance show in the Walton school auditorium Wednesday night. The closing performance marked the end of a three-day program sponsored by the local council Daughters of America. A cast of over 75 took part in the program each night. Talent was present from nine towns and communities. The entertainment was full of good, clean comedy, and all who attended were high in their praise of the local production. Floyd L. Miller directed the program here.

Mr. Miller was well pleased with the high caliber talent found in this community, and he suggests that they be given a place in all community programs given in the future, and that the talented people in the vicinity will be encouraged to strive on upward.

The Daughters of America realized a large sum for their treasury, and are deeply grateful to the business men, cast and all who in any way helped make their program a success.

BIG BONE W. M. S. HOLDS JANUARY MEETING

Members of the Big Bone Baptist W. M. U. enjoyed a pleasant day together, when they met at their church last Thursday for their January meeting. Bearcats Break Even In Pair of Contests

W.-V. 31—Simon Kenton 20

Last Friday night at the Simon Kenton gym, the Bearcats took the measure of the Pioneers 31 to 20, in a basketball game that was comparatively close throughout, with W.-V. leading the way. The Bearcats were in front 7-3 at the end of the first quarter, 15-10 at the half, and 19-15 at the start of the final eight minutes of play.

DeMoisey, Bearcat center, was high scorer of the evening with nine points, and Simpson, a team-mate, was next with eight. Casey led Simon Kenton's offensive with seven tallies.

In the preliminary tilt, the Walton reserves trounced the S. K. Trackers 35 to 16.

Newport 38—W.-V. 16

Tuesday night the Wildcats of Newport High gave the Bearcats a severe shelling, the final score being 38 to 16 in favor of the Red and Black. The large floor, plus abundance of man power, as well as basketball ability, aided and abetted in the Bearcats' downfall.

The Wildcats, never headed by their rivals, led 18 to 5 at the half. "Speed" Huskisson led the Newport attack with 11 points. McElroy was high for Walton, with 5 markers. This was the second defeat of the season of the locals, the other setback coming at the hands of Crittenden.

The preliminary game Tuesday night, saw the W.-V. reserves win a close 26-25 game from the Newport Kittens.

Beechwood Here Friday

On Friday night, January 17, the Beechwood basketeers come to Walton, where they will meet the Bearcats and their reserves. This is expected to be a top-notch game, so be sure to attend. The first contest will get under way at 7:00 p .m., C. S. T.

Next Tuesday night the Cats will go to Warsaw for a conference tilt with the Gallatin County High team.

WINS 4-H ELECTRIFICATION AWARD

Assistant County Agent H. B. Drake, is in receipt of a specially designed gold medal, which has been awarded Lee Roy McNeeley for making the highest county score in the fourth national 4-H rural electrification program. The boy is a member of the Burlington 4-H club, led by Mr. Edwin Walton of Burlington.

Participants study the value of electricity to a community, determine its best uses at home and help disseminate results through exhibits, demonstrations and otherwise. Special attention is given lighting, power, heating and proper installations. The activity is supported with county, state and national awards provided by the Westinghouse company to further knowledge on the subject.

MRS. PEARL BEDINGER ENTERTAINS HOMEMAKERS

Lose Eyes In Auto Mishap Saturday

An accident, which resulted in serious injury to two Union youths, and less serious injury to a third, occurred early Saturday when the car in which they were riding is said to have run into a horse on Route 42 at Gunpowder bridge.

The injured were Thelma Sturgeon, 18, and Robert Doane, who lost their right eyes, apparently the result of broken glass from the windshield. Mrs. Sturgeon's husband, Chester, 22, was treated for multiple cuts on the face and body. The condition of Mrs. Sturgeon and Doane were reported fair.

Mrs. Sturgeon also suffered cuts about the head, and Doane suffered multiple cuts on the face and head. They were taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Earl Jones of Crittenden.

It is believed the horse had strayed onto the highway from an adjoining farm.

Troy Fairchild of Boyd county is planning to install a drainage system in a 75-acre field.

William Ransler Passes January 8

Death claimed one of Walton's oldest residents, when it took from our midst William Ransler, who passed away at the residence on North Main St. ,last Wednesday night.

Mr. Ransler had been in ill health for some time, but had felt better Wednesday, and had visited with friends who called late in the evening. The immediate cause of death was attributed to congestion, which was believed to have resulted from a fall, which Mr. Ransler suffered about a week previously.

Since June, a nurse, Mr. Charles Finnell, had been attending Mr. Ransler, and everything possible to help him and relieve him, was done by his son, Charles W. Ransler and his daughter-in-law. Death came shortly after the midnight hour, Wednesday, January 8.

The body was removed to the Chambers & Grubbs Funeral Home, where it was prepared for burial, and later returned to the residence, where it lay in state until Saturday afternoon. Services were held from the Christian church at 1:30, Rev. T. H. Alderson, pastor, assisted by Rev. J. M. Ervin of Versailles, former pastor, and Rev. D. E. Bedinger, officiating.

The deceased was a charter member of the Christian church, having joined at an early age, and had taught a Bible class there for many years. He was a faithful husband and father, a good neighbor and citizen, and was beloved by not only residents of Walton, but by a host of friends near and far.

His son's Sunday school class came as a group, and served as flower girls. The choir sang two of Mr. Ransler's favorite songs, "When The Roll Is Called Up Yonder," and "In The Garden."

Pallbearers were Rome Kinman, T. W. Jones, John C. Bedinger, Hiram English, Allen Gaines, and Stanley Bush. Interment was in Highland cemetery.

William Ransler was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1853, the son of George and Katherine Ransler. In 1858 he moved, with his parents, to Walton, where he had spent the remainder of his life. When a young man, he, with his brothers, was connected with the Whipp Tobacco Warehouse, located not far from the late residence. In later years he was a carpenter and contractor.

About 60 years ago he married Mary Kraus, of Covington, and to this union two children were born, a daughter, Christie, who passed away at the age of eight years, and a son, Charles W. Ransler, with whom he had made his home after the passing of his devoted wife a few years ago.

Besides the son, he leaves a grandson, Charles Ransler, Jr.; two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Beierle of Norristown, Pa., and Mrs. Barbara Gibbs of Detroit, Mich.; and several nieces and nephews.

The whole community joins in extending their deepest sympathy to one of their oldest families, in their sad bereavement.

Attend Funeral

Relatives and friends, from a distance, who attended the funeral of William Ransler, Saturday, were: Mr. and Mrs. Louie Dahling, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reichert, daughter Barbara and son Bobby, and Mr. Edmund Johnson of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Maze of Norwood, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sanders of Hyde Park, Ohio; Mrs. Ivy Stichling and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Egan, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fessler, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Grubbs, Mrs. Elizabeth Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Day and Oscar Schmidt, of Covington; Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Ervin, of Versailles; Mrs. John E. Williams, Howard and Luite, of Lexington; and Mr. and Mrs. Rome Kinman and Joann, of Erlanger, and Mrs. R. H. Morris of Covington.

LAND USE SURVEY IS PLANNED

Boone county has mdae plans for a 1941 Land Use Planning Survey to be conducted during the next few weeks, according to H. B. Forkner, county agent. The program, sponsored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will serve as a basis for more efficient improvement based on the productivity of the land of the various soil types found in the county.

Similar programs, conducted in a number of other counties during the past two years, have brought about much good through a better understanding of agricultural problems. A large number of people will be contacted in this work and it is hoped that all will cooperate .

Literary Club Is Entertained

The home of Mrs. E. E. Fry was opened, last week Wednesday afternoon, to the Walton Woman's Literary Club, when Mrs. Fry and Mrs. Pearl R. Johnson charmingly entertained the group for their January meeting.

The president, Mrs. Alan H. Gaines, presided over the meeting and conducted the business session, following which Mrs. Johnson, as chairman of the better homes committee, read an interesting paper on the topic, "Better Homes."

The program topic for the afternoon was "Customs of Latin America," and was led by Mrs. Clayton Jones, who read a paper on "Adventures in Taste," "Courtship and Wedding Customs," was interestingly handled by Mrs. James H. Talley. Mrs. W. W. Rouse brought this part of the program to a close with the subject, "Music and Dances of Latin America."

As the conclusion to this pleasant and profitable afternoon, the hostesses served a lovely salad course to the following members and guests: Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. John Myers, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. James H. Talley, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, Mrs. Olivia Wills, Mrs. J. C. Bedinger, Mrs. C. Scott Chambers, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. Barnette W. Franks, Mrs. Alan H. Gaines, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. R. F. DeMoisey, Mrs. Gertrude Gardt, Mrs. C. W. Thompson, Miss Irene Hudson, Mrs. Harry Hamilton and Mrs. Mabel Stansifer.

Hybrid corn on 30 Fulton county farms produced an average of 8.3 bushels per acre over common corns.

4-H Club Tobacco Show and Sale

Seven of the ten 4-H clubs in the county will be represented in the annual 4-H tobacco show and sale, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. This show will be held January 18-20 at the Kenton Looseleaf Warehouse. The three clubs not represented have few tobacco project members.

Club members have been instructed to deliver their tobacco to the warehouse Friday or Saturday, so it may be lined on the floor Saturday. The entries will be judged Sunday for individual basket prizes and crop awards. Record books will also be scored and prizes awarded.

Five baskets of tobacco will be considered in making crop awards. Members may enter an unlimited number of baskets in the show. The sale will be conducted Monday morning, January 20.

The counties eligible to enter the show and sale are: Pendleton, Grant, Campbell, Boone, Kenton, and Clermont county, Ohio.

Kenton county has 23 tobacco project members eligible for the show and sale.

Mechanical Classes Are to Be Held

An effort is being made to complete plans for mechanical classes in connection with the defense program sponsored by the United States Government. The following courses are offered: Electricity, maintenance and repair of motors, etc.; Metal Work, shaping both cold and hot metal; Wood Work, emphasizing form work and carpentry; Automobile Mechanics.

Any young man between the ages of 17 and 25 years of age is elegible to take any of the courses offered. The courses are free, as all the expense is borne by the Government.

It requires a minimum of ten persons to organize a class. If you are interested in any of the above named courses send us your name and state your preference of courses, giving a first and second choice. If there are more enrolled for any course than can be cared for at one time, a new class may be started at the end of eight weeks.

We are in need of instructors in some of these courses. If interested in instructing some of these classes, please get in touch with some member of the committee.

This project is under the direction of the Board of Education assisted by a citizens committee. The teacher of Vocational Agriculture, Mr. James R. Huey, will supervise the work. The committee is composed of H. R. Forkner, Courtney Kelly and A. E. Stephens. Send your registration to D. H. Norris, Superintendent of Schools, Burlington, Kentucky.

Weed Growers Favor Co-op. Marketing

One hundred twenty-five tobacco growers attended a county meeting last Tuesday, at Burlington, to discuss a Cooperative Tobacco Marketing Association, according to H. E. White, county chairman. Growers present favored the signing of the marketing agreements of the Cooperative Association of Burley Producers.

The marketing contract calls for the cooperative selling of the crops of its members in connection with the present auction system. Those grades bringing parity prices will be sold, while those grades not bringing a parity price would go into a growers' pool with the Government making a cash advance based on a three-fourths of parity non-recourse loan to the producer. If the Association later sells the tobacco placed under the Government loan for an advance, the grower will receive the advance less handling charges.

Speakers on the Marketing Program were G. P. Summers, Marketing Specialist of the University of Kentucky, Judge Mullins and Senator Paul Sidebottom of Grant county.

A number of contracts were signed at the meeting. Additional contracts can be secured at the County Agent's Office at Burlington or from local committeemen.

MUSIC STORE TO MOVE

Ralph Hodges is planning to move his music store, now located at 5 W. Pike St., to 8th and Monmouth, Newport, by January 31st. It would be well for anyone interested in musical instruments or sheet music, to take advantage of this sale. See his ad in this issue.

A CORRECTION

In last week's issue of the Advertiser, in the Bracht Station news, there appeared the account of an automobile accident in which Mr. Jesse Sebree and Mr. G. J. Poore were involved. We regret having stated in two places that Mrs. Poore was in the accident. It should have been Mr. Poore in all instances.

"DOLLARS CANNOT BUY YESTERDAY"

A journalist, looking back upon the year which has just closed, finds an infinity of matters about which to write. A great war, which is in essence a titanic struggle between two irreconcilable philosophies of life, has steadily spread. A whole continent has felt the boot of a new conqueror with a plan for world dominion as vast as that of Napoleon. The world's economy has undergone violent change, and stability has been replaced by chaos.

Here in our own country we have recently gone through the most tradition-shattering election in our history. The great issues of that election were three-fold. First, whether to elect a president for a third term. Second, how to keep America at peace, while aiding England with all steps short of war. Third, how to best build a military and naval establishment unprecedented in our history.

The second and third issues are the most vital this country faces today. They are not partisan issues.

It is obvious to anyone not blinded by false and baseless optimism that the great plans of last summer for building an impregnable defense at once are not being realized. It is easy to appropriate gigantic sums of money. It is easy to make blueprints of tanks and airplanes and fighting ships. It is easy to have a great defense establishment "on order." But dollars and blueprints do not worry potential invaders. The forces which have again brought the world to Armageddon have respect only for preparedness. The weak are given no quarter. Moral principals ,Christian teachings, are scoffed at. That is not poetry. But it is true.

This America we know cannot be sure of existence unless it solves the problem of how to swiftly build our defenses—and to build them in keeping with the democratic traditition which they are designed to protect and save. All the productiveness of this nation is needed now—of capital, of industry, of government, of labor. The industrialist who seeks outrageous profits; the official who plays politics in time of danger; the labor leader who foments unjustified strikes in vital defense industries—cannot be tolerated. We must never forget that we can be destroyed from within no less than from without.

The American people cannot accept failure from any man—whether the man who fails holds a great title or is a lowly worker in a factory. There is no excuse for failure. No nation in the world is potentially so productive as ours. None has a tithe of our riches—riches of manpower no less than riches of wealth and of natural resources. In this crisis, we shall really learn the calibre of our people and our public men.

It is said of France that, in preparing to resist aggression, her government, her industries and her workers did "too little—and did it too late." We too are doing too little. But let us hope that we correct our errors before it is too late. When the head of our Navy observed that "dollars cannot buy yesterday," he stated a grim truth that every American must realize.

In this great national effort there can be no failure. The thought cannot be tolerated that Democracy here has fallen on such evil days that it cannot compete with the dictators. In England we have a magnificent example of what free men, fighting to retain that freedom, can accomplish against heartbreaking odds.

It was Winston Churchill who said on taking office that he could offer his people nothing save sacrifice and sweat and toil. Here we must absorb an ample measure of that spirit. No one else can make our sacrifices for us. The responsibility for the perpetuation of our way of life falls squarely and irrevocably on the shoulders of us all. No one can avoid it.

To say that we have now entered on the most critical years modern Western civilization has ever known, is to simply state the obvious. We do not know how much time we will have to make ourselves secure to guarantee peace in the only way possible in this disrupted modern world, which is by making ourselves so strong that no aggressor or possible combination of aggressors will dare to try our strength. We do know that time, most precious of all elements, must no longer be lavishly wasted.

To stay at peace—to become strong. Those are our national objectives. We have the great industries—we have the men—we have almost limitless resources. To attain those vital goals demands the full and friendly cooperation of government, of labor, of industry, of agriculture, of all. We must not be tried and found wanting.

SPARTA

January 9 marked the passing of one of Sparta's oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, when the spirit of Mrs. Alma (Craig) Reiblin passed to the great beyond. The deceased had been ill for some time, confined to her bed with a broken hip, sustained in a fall. She bore her suffering with true christian fortitude. She was the eldest daughter of the late John Craig and wife of New Liberty, and leaves to mourn the loss besides the husband, two brothers, Glen and Jack Craig of Owen county. She was a member of the Sparta Christian church. In 1896 she was united in marriage to William Reiblin of Sparta, Ky. Mrs. Reiblin was at one time a teacher in the public schools of Owen and Gallatin counties, and was well educated for her times. The funeral took place from the late residence and was conducted by Rev. Tinsley of the Warsaw Christian church, after which the remains were laid to rest in the New Liberty cemetery by Undertaker Mosgrove of Carrollton.

January 10 the death angel visited the home of Lonnie Miner and wife and took from their circle Little Lonnie T., their 8-year-old son. He had been sick but a few days when death came due to diphtheria. The remains were taken to the Carlton & Son Funeral Home at Warsaw, where the funeral was held Saturday at 2:00 o'clock. Interment was in the Poplar Grove cemetery. The family has the smypathy of everyone. They were former residents of Sparta.

HAMILTON

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hartman and children spent Sunday at the home of her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sebree called on Mr. and Mrs. Tam Huff, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fibbs were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hager.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Asbury, daughter and mother called on Mr. and Mrs. Garland Huff, Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Huff called on them Sunday afternoon.

Eldon Ryle was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hamilton and daughter, Sunday.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

The Defense Commission-War Department rebuff to Sidney Hillman on the Ford contract is but one of the set-backs which this ambitious labor union head has suffered in recent weeks.

Hillman wanted the contract withheld because the Labor Board found Ford guilty of unfair labor practices. It made no difference to Hillman that Ford has appealed the Board's findings to the courts.

The Defense Commission and the War Department need trucks for defense. Ford can furnish them. To these two agencies there was not much difference between cancelling the Ford contract and refusing to let a man join the army because he was once charged with speeding. In neither case has the accused had his last day in court.

But Hillman has another more ambitious scheme which has been stepped on at least for the time being. His idea was to create about 25 regional offices around the country to settle strikes and disputes in defense industries.

As many Washington officials saw it, this would mean letting Hillman-selected labor leaders settle srtikes on the government's behalf, for Hillman would name the people who served in these regional offices.

The things that stopped these plans, but didn't make the headlines, were:

First, in mide-December representatives of various State Labor Departments met in Washington. They adopted a resolution unqualifiedly urging expansion of existing Federal and State conciliation services. This was a direct pat on the back for Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the U. S. Conciliation Service, who settled the Vultee airplane strike after both Hillman and the War Department had failed.

Second, the special Labor Policy Advisory Committee, which Hillman himself appointed, in secret session objected vigorously to his plan. This committee, too, insisted that settlement of strikes and disputes be left in the hands of the U. S. Conciliation Service and that the Defense Commission be called in only when the Conciliation Service reached an impasse.

Labor Policy committee members naturally were afraid that Hillman would appoint to his regional offices people who were biased and whose suggestions for settlement of disputes would be looked upon with suspicion both by employers and employees.

Nobody has accused Hillman of anything except an over-zealous desire to protect the interest of labor organizations. But some researchers, studying Hillman's record for an indication of what his aims might be, found the following once incorporated in the preamble and by-laws of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers which Hillman heads:

"The industrial and inter-industrial organization, built upon the solid rock of organization and CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS, will put the actual working class in actual CONTROL of the system of production and the working class will then be ready to TAKE POSSESSION OF IT."

That, these researchers say, is not Americanism. Then, whether it is pertinent or not, they remind that Hillman was born in Russia, the home of Communism.

The Phil Murray "plan" to turn out 500 PURSUIT planes a day in the auto industry is another case, apparently, of a desire to promote labor organizations with the public.

Neither Murray nor the President, in his press conference comment on the plan, pointed out that (1) the automobile industry itself in mid-October began working with defense officials in Washington on such a plan, and that, (2) as defense officials see it the problem is not getting PURSUIT plantes but BOMBERS.

Auto makers have been trying to figure out how to produre BOMBERS in volume. PURSUIT planes would be a comparatively simple assignment.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE SLIGHTED INVITATION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are now ready.—Luke 14:17.

Actions speak louder than words. What a man says is important, but it is his life which determines whether we accept his words as true. In spiritual things men have too often professed to follow Christ but failed to do His will. It is the business of the church to press home the necessity of an acceptance of Christ as Saviour which also makes Him the Lord of our life.

I. Pious Words (v. 15).

We do not know whether the man who said, "Blessed is he that eateth bread in the kingdom of God," was expressing the sincere longing of his heart or merely making a bit of pious conversation. Jesus had just been dealing with some rather disconcerting matters (vv. 1-14). On such occasions there is usually someone on hand to spoil the effectiveness of the admonition by uttering some religious platitude which will direct conversation into more comfortable channels.

Even though the man was sincere, he had evidently not made any preparations to be present at that great feast. This appears from the story Jesus related in response to his words.

II. Poor Excuses (vv. 16-20).

It is not enough that we know that God has prepared a place of blessedness, nor does it suffice to speak approvingly of God's invitation to come; we must accept. God graciously bids all men to come; but all too many, while willing to admit the desirability of coming and admiring it as the ideal thing to do, begin to make excuses.

Observe that the men gave excuses, not reasons. There is a great difference. Note also that the excuses were poor ones. One had a new possession—a field—which he "must go out and see." The second had a business matter to care for—trying out oxen he had bought. The third had a personal affection he wanted to foster—a new wife whom he could not leave.

The fact is that none of them wanted to come, and these were but excuses. What man buys a field without seeing it, or oxen without trying them? And we agree with Dr. Morgan that the one who had married a wife "was the most foolish of all. Why didn't he take her with him? Just excuses." Reader, what excuse is keeping you from accepting God's invitation?

III. Urgent Invitations (vv. 21-24).

Those who reject God's invitation hurt only themselves, for He will find guests to fill the banquet hall at the marriage supper of the Lamb.

Let us not fail to observe that it is the duty of the Lord's servants (and that means every born-again Christian) to be diligently about the business of urging men to respond to God's call. Let us beware that we do not miss that point by uttering some pious platitudes about soul-winning, and then failing to do anything to reach others.

It is the first business of every Christian who reads these lines to be engaged in personal soul-winning. If you want to do it and do not know how to start, I shall be glad to send you free, a copy of "Lessons in Soul-Winning," by Dr. Will H. Houghton. The important matter is that we get busy giving out these urgent invitations.

It is the first business of the unconverted to accept that invitation. Dare you refuse? In one of his last meetings in Kansas City, Dwight L. Moody graphically portrayed the invitation referred to in our lesson. In closing his message he pointed to the wall of the auditorium and seemed to be writing out a reply to the invitation. He first wrote a note declining, the final words being, "I pray thee have me excused." He said, "Would you sign that, young man? Would you, mother? Would you come up to the reporter's table, take a pen and put your name down to such an excuse? I doubt if there is one here who would sign it. It is a loving God inviting you to a feast and God is not to be mocked Go play with the forked lightning, go trifle with pestilence and disease, but trifle not with God."

Must Have His Spirit

A young Italian boy knocked one day at the door of an artist's studio in Rome, and when it was opened exclaimed: "Please, madam, will you give me the master's brush?" The painter was dead, and the boy, inflamed with a longing to be an artist, wished for the great master's brush. The lady placed the brush in the boy's hands, saying: "This is his brush; try it, my boy." With a flush of earnestness on his face he tried, but found he would paint no better than with his own. The lady then said to him: "You cannot paint like the great master unless you have his spirit." So it is with us in the Church today; if Christians have not the Master's spirit they cannot successfully carry on the Master's work.—F. M. Townley.

Plowing Chairs

Not long ago I was visiting at the home of my older brother and saw a chair that reminded me of my earliest experience. The front legs of this little chair, though originally round, were flat and pretty thin. I was told that this flatness had come about through the chair's use for three-quarters of a century as a plow for children. It had come to Kentucky in a covered wagon from North Carolina, a plain little home-made chair. All the way over on the six-week's trip a little boy who was later to be the uncle of my brother's children had ridden, a sort of seat perilous, I suspect, on many of the mountain trails. That generation of children had plowed the chair across the floor while they were learning to walk and had also ridden it down slopes when sleet or snow covered the ground. It was passed on to the next generation and did equally well there, though meantime its legs were wearing thin. It gives one a sort of poetic glimpse to think how many people learned to walk while pushing this little chair along and how many slightly larger children experienced thrills and spills as they whizzed down the slope by the henhouse or the barn.

Chairs were useful to the imagination of the child in other times. Walkers for small tots were not yet in style; even perambulators had come into only a restricted use. Little boys who had to stay indoors on cold winter days could turn down some chairs and make a train or could plow them in the style of toddlers, if Mother did not object too seriously. On one occasion I went into a home on a cold winter day when all the chairs on the place had been converted into coaches for an imaginary train; the mother of the family spent a good portion of my visit with her apology, which was unnecessary, for my sympathy was with the youngster who had done this.

After we got to be good-sized, we felt sorry for the little boy who had to ride on a chair down a snow-covered hill. Meanwhile in our growingup we had learned how to build a sled, or rather, a slide, which seemed much more masculine. On some occasions, when the ice-crust was very strong, we made a good sled merely by using a wide plank. I was riding on one of this sort the day I tore most of the tail off my overcoat. I should have been sorry for this, but the garment was merely one I had inherited as it had been passed down the line of boys to me. I honestly believe that this disaster made it necessary for me to have a new overcoat, one actually bought for me.

WALNUT LICK

Rev. Smith filled his appointments here Sunday and Sunday night.

Edd Brown and Hobart Speagle were calling on H. D. Edrington, Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Greenwell was calling on Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Kuhn of Williamstown, Ky., Saturday night.

Most everyone who has been on the sick list around here, is on their road to recovery. We are glad to see them out again.

We were sorry to hear of Mrs. A. J. Stone of Verona being so ill, but glad to know she is some better at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Price Webster and son were calling on Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Edrington, Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Webster of Munk, entertained for dinner, Sunday, Rev. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hensley of Ryle, Hobart Speagle and Wilma Beach of this place.

Mrs. Iris Hughes has been confined with an attack of appendicitis.

Mrs. Mag. Chapman spent Saturday night with her sister, Mrs. A. J. Stone, who is very sick.

Quenton West, a Knox county 4-H club boy, grew 113 bushels and 50 pounds of Pride of Saline corn on an acre.

Plans of Muhlenberg county farmers call for increased production of beef cattle and poultry.

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

By

Helen Koues

Director, Good Housekeeping Studio

Different Light for Different Needs

We turn indoors now for many of our pleasures as well as our everyday living; and light, artificial light, becomes very important.

Light is a fascinating subject as it may make or mar the beauty of your house; clothe you in beauty or—awful thought—bring out your defects; be a comfort to your eyes, or be harmful to your eyes. So let's discuss the different uses you should make of light by classifying them to suit your needs. There is Light for Conversation, Light for Reading and Sewing, Light for Dining, Light for Writing and Study, Light for Games, Light for Dressing. Today let's take the first three beginning with:

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

Light for Conversation

When you are talking with friends, or listening to the radio, you obviously only need enough light to make your surroundings pleasant and cheerful. For this you require what is known as general illumination—given by indirect lighting, by the right kind of sidelights supplemented by some lamps, or entirely by lamps, judiciously placed at different points in the room. Use what amounts to 125 watts to 150 watts distributed around the room: two 60 watts in a lamp near chair (only one turned on), two 25 watts in sidelight or ceiling fixture (both turned on), and a couple of 40 or 60 watts in other lamps.

Note light will fall on your book

Light for Reading

Do you have good reading lamps in your living room, conveniently near the comfortable chairs and sofa where you and your family sit and read? Or do you have to move your chair or yourself to the one good lamp in the room? Sit in each chair and sofa and make notes as to whether the light in each spot is adequate or not. If it isn't you are depriving yourself and your family of comfortable relaxation and are taxing that most valuable possession—your eyesight. A reading lamp for the table should be 23 inches high and should contain two 60 watt bulbs. Or use floor or table I.E.S. lamps with the broad shade and inner bowl which throws light both to ceiling and on the book without glare. In such lamps if they have the 100, 200 and 300 watt type of bulb, you can turn the switch up for reading and down for general illumination.

Light for Dining

For dining, as for conversation, a pleasant diffused light is desirable. Use one of the indirect lighting fixtures which throw the light to the ceiling and allow only a soft glow to fall upon the table, and your eyes. Or, in a period room, a chandelier with candle bulbs.

For direct light on the table nothing is so pretty or attractive as two or four candles. In small houses with wide opening from living room to dining room there is often sufficient "general-illumination" from the living room and only candles are needed on the table.

Floyd county farmers will sow at lease 1,000 acres to alfalfa next spring.

VERONA

Sunday was a fine winter day. Good attendance at Sunday school and regular church service.

The P. T. A. held its regular meeting Thursday, with a good attendance. The lunch room is progressing nicely. It was voted to serve lunch at Mr. Omer Johnson's sale sometime in February. Each parent and all who will are asked to bring a quart of soup mixture and a pie.

The Sunbeams met Thursday p. m. with their leader, Mrs. Mattie Orl, with a good attendance.

Miss Anna Lee Wolfe and nephew, Everett Wolfe, were entertained, Sunday, in the home of W. E. Waller and family.

Mrs. Patsy Stone is some better at this writing.

Mrs. Edna Hamilton's mother, Mrs. Bazey has come to spend a few months with her in her new home.

The Happy Twelve Club met at the home of Mrs. Pattie Waller for their January meeting. Quite a few members were not out because of sickness. Members, children and visitors numbered 17.

Friends are congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rouse on their new boy and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kinman on their new daughter.

MORGANSVILLE

"Let not your heart be troubled." No night is so dark that our Father's smile cannot cheer it, and no place is so barren that His mercies cannot reach it.

Charles Otis and Little Miss Jackie Morgan extend heartiest thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Hume for lovely gifts on the Christmas tree at Hickory Grove church.

"No one hears the door that opens
As they pass beyond our call,
Soft, as loosened leaves of roses,
One by one our loved ones fall."

When Mr. Hanrahan left the earth for the eternal hills, Friday, January 3rd, 1941, a shadow of deepest sorrow was cast over a wide circle. He had been in declining health for an extended period, and every effort was put forth to restoration, but despite untiring ministrations, he peacefully sank into that dreamless slumber. He was a noble christian character in possession of many sterling characteristics. Long had he been prominently identified with the activities of St. Cecilia church, Independence, and was a most valued member, faithful in attendance at all of the services, and liberal supporter.

For more than a half century their home was radiant with joy, hospitality and happiness. Their home life was ideal, and for this long time hand in hand, and side by side they had climbed the rough places together. Deepest sympathy is extended to the lonely, faithful companion, may she be soothed and comforted in the thought of a joyous reunion in that cloudless land where ties remain unbroken, and where twilight breaks into eternal dawn.

Requiem High Mass was intoned at the church Tuesday morning by Rev. Leo Wilson, beloved nephew of the wife of the deceased, the pastor and former pastor, followed by interment in St. Cecilia cemetery. Messrs. Christopher Beck, Joseph Beck, David Crowe, Charles Wilson and James Mayer served as pallbearers.

"So live, that when thy summons come to join the innumerable throng which moves to that mysterious realm, where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death, that he may be sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust and approach the grave as one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

POPLAR GROVE

Mr. and Mrs. Blanton Hanks took New Year's supper with Mrs. Belle Coates.

Bro. and Mrs. Otto Peirson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coates called on Mrs. Belle Coates Christmas afternoon.

Miss Thelma Frances Brock spent the week end with the Misses Lillian and Vivian Stewart.

Mr. Harry Brock and Mrs. Belle Coates are on the sick list. We all hope them a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnard Furnish are the proud parents of a little daughter, Peggy Lou.

Herschell Coates, Richmond College, spent a few days at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Coates.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coates and son Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Morland Coates, Mr and Mrs. Leonard Coates and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Coates were the guests of Mrs. Belle Coates, December 29.

HEBRON

Lois, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Howard, was very ill the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Garnett departed last week for St. Petersburg, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Garnett and children of West Covington were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. England and Mrs. Addie Aylor.

Frank Aylor and son Harry Lee are out after attacks of flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker were the Sunday guests of Miss Minnie Baxter and Charles Beall of Florence.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Dickey and Mrs. Nan Baker visited Mrs. Mary Tanner, who has been ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Arnold near Union. Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. James Huey are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son, born January 5. He has been named James Robert.

Mrs. Addie Aylor spent Tuesday with Mrs. Edward Baker.

A large group attended the shower, Thursday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. John Dye, for Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dye. They were the recipients of many nice and useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Rundblum spent Friday with Mrs. Wm. England.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Dickey called on Rev. and Mrs. Forest Taylor and family Saturday evening.

RABBIT HASH

An epidemic of influenza and common colds has been raging in this community for the past two weeks, but at present most of the patients are improving.

Rabbit-Hash Homemakers will meet at the cream station, Tuesday, for an all-day session, with Mrs. Opal Kelly as hostess. The main subject of the day, including the lesson on Rug Making, will be instructions on mattress making under the Kentucky Rural Mattress Program. The club will also appoint a delegate to send to the Farm and Home Convention at Lexington, January 28, 29, 30 and 31.

KETCHUP BEGINNINGS

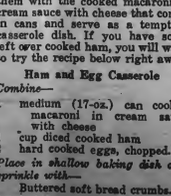
When you are pouring a bit of ketchup over a steak or adding some of its scarlet spiciness to a stew, it is interesting to recall the different facts that are known about its beginning, for here is a story full of mystery and romance and high adventure.

The story starts with the tomato, which is the basis of the sauce—and the earliest information on this fruit comes from the sixteenth century history which describes Pizarro's discovery of the luxurious Incan civilization of Peru. But even before this the spices which enrich its flavor were being fought for and new sea routes by which they could be obtained were being mapped. And here is where the mystery comes in—the person who first thought of combining the spices and tomatoes to make the delicious sauce remains unknown and unsung.

The name "ketchup" comes from a Malay word, though it is thought to have started in China. The English spelled it K-E-T-C-H-U-P in order to give it the same pronunciation as the oriental sauce they were imitating.

Coming back to the present, one discovers that ketchup has varied uses in flavoring foods. Not only is it a sauce to be poured on meats and vegetables at the table, but homemakers keep a bottle of it on the condiment shelf and use its delicious blend of flavors to season different foods. It is particularly valuable when it comes to making the cheaper cuts of meat taste as delicious as tender steaks. The following recipes illustrate this use of ketchup:

Braised Beef with Vegetables



Sprinkle—
4 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
3 pounds beef, round or shoulder.
Dredge with flour and then brown in fat.

Place meat in a deep pan and surround with—
1 cup diced carrots
1 cup diced turnips
1 cup diced onions
1 cup chopped celery.
Combine—
2½ cups hot water
⅓ cup tomato ketchup.

Pour this mixture over meat and vegetables. Cover closely and bake in a slow oven (350° F.) about 2 hours. Turn meat once during the cooking. During the last hour, place whole peeled potatoes around the meat if desired. If the sauce around the meat is not as thick as desired, continue cooking on top of the stove after removing the meat and vegetables, or thicken slightly with flour blended with water.

Breaded Cold Meats

Dip 6 ¼-inch slices—
Left over roast beef, pork, veal or ham
in—
1 cup tomato ketchup
then in—
1 cup rice flakes, crushed, or bread crumbs. Be sure each slice is coated completely. Fry in hot fat until a golden brown.
Season with—
Salt
Pepper
Serve with vegetables.

QUICK CASSEROLE

Here is a tip on a delightful way to serve bits of left overs such as meats and vegetables — combine them with the cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese that comes in cans and serve as a tempting casserole dish. If you have some left over cooked ham, you will want to try the recipe below right away.

Ham and Egg Casserole

Combine—
1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese
1 cup diced cooked ham
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped.
Place in shallow baking dish and sprinkle with—
Buttered soft bread crumbs.
Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 20 minutes. Serves four.

DOES FORD PAY GOOD WAGES?

HERE ARE SOME FACTS about Ford Labor.

During the year ended November 30th, 1940, the Ford Payroll throughout the United States averaged 113,628 hourly wage earners, not including office employes, students, or executives. They were paid $185,105,639.12. On this basis, the average annual wage was $1,629.05.

According to the latest available government figures, the annual average wage of all workers in employment covered by old age insurance law was $841.00.

If the 45,000,000 workers of this country received the same average wage as Ford employes, they would have had additional wages of more than $35,000,000,000, thus increasing the national income about 50%. Think what such an increase would mean to the workers of this country and to the American farmer, whose prices are based on the national income.

Wage scales in the Ford Rouge plants are divided into three classifications:

Unskilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 75c per hour

Semi-skilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 80c per hour

Skilled . . .
Minimum hiring wage . 90c per hour
Higher wages are in consideration of ability and years of service.

Minimum wage scales for unskilled labor at the Rouge plant are the highest in the industry. Top wages for skilled labor compare favorably with, or are higher than, wages in other automobile plants.

Now some facts on Ford labor conditions:

Not only are sanitation and other health conditions the best in the industry, but Ford also leads in safety devices for the protection of employes. Proof of this is found in the following comparison of compensation insurance costs:

The national average rate in automotive manufacturing plants as computed by the National Association of Underwriters is in excess of $1.50 premium on each $100 payroll. The Ford cost of workmen's compensation is less than 50c.

This indicates that the chance of injury in a Ford plant is much less than in the average automobile plant.

The Ford Motor Company has no age limit for labor, and in fact deliberately attempts to keep older workers working. The average age of Ford workers at the Rouge and nearby plants is 38.7.

A recent check-up shows that nearly one-half the workers at these Ford plants were 40 or over, falling into these age groups:

14,731	between 50 and 60
3,377	between 60 and 70
417	between 70 and 80
12	between 80 and 90

In addition to the so-called regular employes, the Ford Motor Company has hired, and now has on the payroll, at the same regular hourly wage, thousands of workers who are blind, crippled or otherwise incapacitated for normal productive work. They are not selected for their ability to build cars or to maintain the plant. They are on the payroll because of Henry Ford's belief that the responsibility of a large company to labor goes beyond the point at which the unfortunate worker can no longer produce profitably.

The above are facts. They are open to anyone who really wants to deal in facts. Anyone who wants to get a job . . . buy a car . . . or place a national defense contract on the basis of fair labor treatment must place Ford at the top of his eligible list.

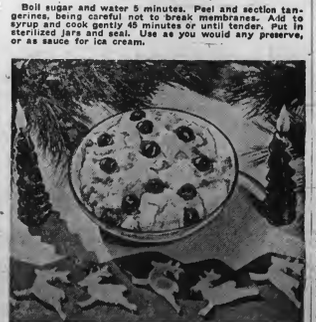
EASY TO MAKE PLUM PUDDING FOR HOLIDAY MEAL: Here is a Christmas Plum Pudding that has all the traditional taste and flavor, yet is light and delicate. This makes it the perfect topper for holiday feasts since turkey and "trimmins" are pretty filling.

GELATINE CHRISTMAS PLUM PUDDING

1 cup milk
½ cup seeded raisins
½ cup currants
2½ cup chopped dates
¾ square chocolate or 3 tablespoons cocoa
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 envelope plain unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup chopped nuts
½ teaspoon vanilla
2 egg whites

Put milk with chopped fruit in top of double boiler and when cooked slightly, add cocoa or chocolate, which has been melted and mixed with a little of the sugar and milk to make a smooth paste. Soften gelatine in cold water and dissolve in hot chocolate-fruit mixture. Add sugar and salt and stir all thoroughly. Cool, and when mixture begins to thicken, fold in chopped nuts, vanilla and stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into pudding mold which has been rinsed out in cold water first, and decorate with whole nut meats and raisins. Chill. When firm, unmold onto platter and garnish with holly. Serve with whipped cream, hard sauce or soft sauce. Serves 6.

FRENCH FRIES FOR TWO—are as practical with broiled chops as are mashed potatoes, and in point of effort they are less trouble to prepare if done this way. Use a deep fat fryer with basket and thermometer, to indicate when the fat has reached the desired 390 degrees F., plus the flexible top burner of the modern gas range, especially adapted to French frying bacauss it can be adjusted for instant changes of heat to maintain that precise temperature. Then the potatoes cannot possibly grow soggy and indigestible as in fat that has cooled, nor can the fat scorch by bacoming too hot. As you see, it's quick, clean and very easy. Pare the potatoes, cut in strips one-half inch thick, soak in cold water to crisp for half an hour, drain and dry thoroughly in a clean towel. When potatoes are a dalicate brown, in six minutes or so, transfer to hot plates and sprinkle with salt. Serve immediately.



PRESERVE TANGERINES FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS: The tangy tangerine again comes to the rescue—this time preserved for a Christmas gift you make yourself. Tie your jars of tangerine preserves in gay wrappings—they're presents you'll be proud to give and anyone would be glad to accept, and you make them this way:

PRESERVED TANGERINES

1 cup sugar — 2 cups water — 2 cups Florida tangerines (peeled and sectioned)

Boil sugar and water 5 minutes. Peel and section tangerines, being careful not to break membranes. Add to syrup and cook gently 45 minutes or until tender. Put in sterilized jars and seal. Use as you would any preserve, or as sauce for ica cream.

THESE TOOTHSOME FONDANT REINDEER will make a gala decoration for the Christmas dinner table. The juveniles can handle this assignment if you giva them this short-cut recipe for fondant, made with sweetened condensed milk. It's sure to produce a creamy, smooth triumph, because it's magically failure proof.

SANTA'S MAGIC REINDEER

2⅔ cup (7½ oz. can) sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups sifted confectioners' (4X) sugar (about)

Mix sweetened condensed milk and vanilla. Add confectioners' sugar gradually, mixing until smooth and creamy. Pat out on a slightly sugared board and cut with a reindeer cookie cutter.

Remember Way Back When...

—cooking involved long hours over a hot and cranky cast-iron stove that needed constant tending?

—the weekly washing was a back-breaking day-long session with tubs and scrub board?

—ironing was done with heavy sad irons that were heated on the stove and were always too hot or too cold?

—housecleaning was a dusty ordeal with broom, dust pan and carpet beater?

That is the way life was lived in a big percentage of American homes as recently as 25 years ago. In those days, housekeeping was a wearying round of toil that began at daybreak and ended only at bedtime.

Today, things are different. Thanks to electricity's tireless hands, the woman of today is no longer a slave to round-the-clock drudgery. Her electric range cooks meals automatically. Her electric washer does the laundry quickly and effortlessly in a fraction of the time required by hand methods. Her electric iron, vacuum cleaner and food mixer make short work of what were formerly tedious, arm-wearying tasks. Her electric refrigerator safeguards the family food supply and her radio brings entertainment at the turn of a dial.

In less than half the span of a lifetime, electricity has completely transformed American home life. It has brought the American homemaker comfort, convenience and leisure that make her the envy of the entire world. And, although it has steadily widened in usefulness, it has steadily decreased in cost. To enjoy its manifold contributions to better living, the average family pays less than the price of a pack of cigarettes a day.

Infantile Paralysis Campaign On; Need for Funds In State Stressed

One of Kentucky's polio victims, charming and patient.

This picture is worth more than the Chinaman's 1,000 words in bringing home the effects of infantile paralysis, and it thus serves to emphasize the real appeal in the campaign under way throughout Kentucky to fight polio.

Outstanding men and women in each county are working under the State Chairmanship of Judge J. J. Kavanagh, Louisville, to raise money in the National drive ending January 30. The need in Kentucky is greater than ever, a fact recognized by those in close touch with the work.

In the various methods at hand the State committee has reiterated the fact that polio knows neither race, creed nor party affiliation. Nor does it recognize wealth or poverty; each is in danger until scientists penetrate the mystery of the disease and discover a means to combat it.

At present the money raised is used for research and for the treatment of the victims.

Money Talks

By

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The American farmer is now feeling the effect of depreciated foreign currency. Depreciated foreign currency simply means that the foreigner cannot purchase as much in the U. S. as he could when his money was at a par with American money.

Let me use Argentine money for example. At par, the Argentinian peso is worth 71 cents in U. S. money and it takes a little over one peso to buy an American dollar. Now the peso has depreciated until it is worth only 23 cents and it takes almost five of them to buy an American dollar. Or to put it differently, where before it took only slightly more than one peso to buy a bushel of wheat it now takes between three and four of them. Thus you see the Argentinian cannot buy as much wheat (or any other American commodity) as he once could.

When we realize that there are very few foreign countries whose currency is not greatly depreciated, then we begin to understand how difficult it is for the foreigners to purchase our goods.

Of course the individual farmer can do very little about this situation. But it must be corrected before he can sell great quantities of American farm products abroad.

Our government must aid in the stabilization of world currencies and thus help our farmers sell their products abroad. It is a difficult task, but not an impossible one.

Scudder-Beall

The wedding bells continue to ring, and the same unalterable fact, voiced by the Creator back at creation's dawn, is still just as true , that "It's not good for man to be alone."

Thus, on Monday, December 30, about 6:00 o'clock p. m., there was a very quiet and impressive wedding at the home of I. E. Stephenson and family, when Milt Scudder and Margaret Beall, two of Gallatin county's outstanding personalities, came, and took upon themselves the pledges and vows of holy wedlock. They were accompanied by the bride's sister, Mrs. Pearl Hendrix, and Harry Ellis, a grandson of the groom.

It is a foregone conclusion that their many friends, acquaintances and relatives will be elated over this union.

It would be difficult, indeed, to find any serious defect in either of their lives. They are both active members of the church of Christ at Sugar Creek, quiet and unpretentious, not spoiled by the fact that they have enough of this world's goods to live comfortably and do much good as they journey down life's way. It's mighty nice to know such people and such friends are above price. Congratulation and best wishes.

HAWK IN THE WIND

by HELEN TOPPING MILLER

Copyright 1939, by D. Appleton-Century Co., Inc.

CHAPTER X—Next day an attempt is made to burn the mill and Wills and Daniels becomes uneasy over the trouble that seems to be brewing. Lucy Fields tells Wills that she believes they are attempting to sabotage the mill because they resent his presence. She asks him to leave the village, but he refuses.

"I see. And what was it you wanted to say to me?" He took the chair opposite—the chair that still bore the imprints of David Morgan's shoulder-blades.

Her throat fluttered. A strained look came over her small wistful face.

"This is such a little town," she began. "It's rather awful to live in such a gossipy little place. It isn't easy—what I have to say—to make it clear, I mean. About the town. About the mill. It belongs to the town—to all of us, Mr. Wills. The men who work here have been here always. Nobody ever came in from outside till Mr. Daniels came last year."

"What is it you're trying to tell me?" Wills asked bluntly. "That I'm an outsider? That somehow or other I am to blame for the trouble in the mill?"

"And so your suggestion is that I leave town in haste and never come back!"

Tears ran down her pale face. "I know I sound like a fool to you, but Mrs. Morgan has been a mother to me—to all of us. We've all fought and worked and struggled together—always for the mill."

"All but the fellow who poured oil on the newspapers and ruined the pulp. He was fighting for himself."

"Perhaps he thought he was fighting for the mill. Perhaps he thought that outsiders would be coming in to take it away from us. He might have thought that you were the first."

"It sounds fantastic. But it may be true. I'll talk to Mrs. Morgan—and you can be sure I won't let the mill be destroyed on my account."

"Oh—please don't talk to Mrs. Morgan! Please—just go! You can make some excuse—you had a job, you can say you are going back to it. You could say you had changed your mind."

"I'm sorry—I couldn't leave without talking to Mrs. Morgan. I'm very much indebted to her."

"I appealed to you," she sighed. "It's all I can do. But—if you were convinced—"

"You've done your part. Whatever happens—I'm to blame."

"I hope nothing happens. I hope I'm wrong." She smiled thinly.

But there was a dubious uneasiness in her heart, as Wills went away. Had Stanley Daniels been a little odd—a trifle curt and watchful? He couldn't know anything about this affair—and yet, he alone carried the keys.

Lucy was heavily unhappy as she walked home alone that night. Life could be so hopeless, so ghastly when you lived in a shabby old house at the end of a shabby street. When you were so achingly in love!

CHAPTER XI

Marian Morgan had driven her little car up a twisting stretch of ridge road, without having any very definite idea of where she was going or why.

She drove slowly because she told herself that it was thrifty to spare tires on a rocky, boulder-edged track. She searched the hills above and below with her eyes, but not even to herself would she admit that she looked for anything. She had heard her mother telephoning instructions that morning, but she had kept her mind sternly on her breakfast grapefruit and adjured herself not to listen. What did it matter where the woods truck went or who went with it?

She slipped out of the car, dragged the cushion out and rummaged for the pump, set it up on the ground. With a nail-file from her purse she pressed down the valve of a front tire, let the air escape until the tire sagged, loose and flabby, a discouraging flummox of limp rubber. Then she climbed back into the car, wrapped the rug around her knees and sat in a small, cold huddle waiting.

Instantly, now that the thing was done, a hundred accusing and condemning voices clamored in her ears. She was being cheap, she was doing the sort of shallow trick that a girl of Lossie's class might devise, she was forgetting that she was the daughter of Virgie Morgan of the Morgan mills. But drawing out all these self-reproaches was the thin, poignant cry that had trembled through her heart and beat in her blood since the night she had talked to her mother before the fire.

"I have to know!" she said, plaintively, aloud. "I know it isn't true—but I have to be sure!"

This contradictory patching up of her conscience helped her to be calm, to wait, though her feet tingled with cold. A mountain jay came and shrieked at her from a sumac clump. A deer stood for an instant, tense and listening under some gnarled ancient apple-trees beside the ruin of a stone chimney. Then suddenly he bounded away. There was a metallic vibration through the woods. The truck was starting. She caught the backfire of a cold engine and the clank of shovels tossed aboard, and leaned her elbow on the button of her horn. The blare made the jays and the little pine sparrows and crossbills scatter with a whirring and snapping of twigs.

Then the rusty radiator appeared over the rise emitting steam. Joe had let the engine run hot on the grade. He was always doing that, too impatient to cool it out properly when they reached the top of a long climb.

Two men jumped down when they saw Marian's car, and came running. One was Joe. The other was Branford Wills. Swiftly Marian put every scruple out of her mind. She was a woman, using a woman's devious and often unfair weapons.

She said, "I'm stuck. That miserable old tire insists on going flat. And I left the key to the spare in my other purse. Isn't mother with you? I thought she came up here. There's a long-distance call for her—I came up to tell her."

"She didn't come with us. She must be at the mill," Wills said. "Let's have a look at that tire."

"It's flat, all right." Joe gave the wheel a kick. "But there's still a little air in it. Maybe we can pump it up so you can get down to the road."

They pumped up the tire, and Joe studied it, testing the valve.

"Must be a pressure leak," he said. "Valve's all right. Can you turn around here without getting stuck?"

"I think so—I'll try."

"You better do it," Joe said to Wills. "It's steep off there. She could turn over easy."

Marian slid along meekly. "I'm a lot of trouble," she said in a voice which would have amazed her mother, so humble was it.

"No trouble," Wills whipped the steering-wheel about. "This is a bad place to turn. Flag for me, Joe," he shouted.

"O. K. Cut deep." Joe semaphored his arms.

The car came about. Wills got out again to look at the tire.

"Standing up all right," he announced. "You'll make it."

Marian's throat cramped. But she fought its quivering, got the words out.

"Would you drive it down for me? The tire might go down again and I'm not much good at the pump."

"Of course." He resumed the wheel again, while Joe followed with the truck. "You shouldn't be driving on lonely mountain roads alone, you know," he said, as they bumped over a wooden bridge.

"No one would hurt me," she declared. "Everybody for miles around knows me—knows mother. And mother hasn't any enemies."

"She has one, obviously," Wills said. "The fellow who kindled a fire in the oil house at the mill yesterday wasn't celebrating the Fourth of July. He was getting even."

Marian looked thoughtful. "Perhaps that wasn't mother's enemy."

"That might be true." He drove the little car carefully around a slippery hair-pin turn. "But even without enemies there are dangers. This morning, for instance. Suppose you had had to walk back to the highway? Suppose the truck had not been on the ridge?"

"I knew the truck was on the ridge." Marian was truthful. "That's why I came. Does this catechism and fatherly admonition have to go on indefinitely? We could talk about other things. I'm fairly intelligent. I know all the tenses and that you shouldn't say ain't."

"I'd better take another look at that tire." Wills stopped on a wide bit of road, waved the truck past. It roared down grade, flinging mud cheerfully.

Marian sat, looking straight ahead, her cameo profile a trifle grim, her chin squared.

"There's nothing the matter with the tire," she said. "I wanted to talk to you."

He looked at her quickly, searchingly. She was so near—and so dear! Even with her chin set at a resolute angle, even with her eyes cool and distant and her lashes evasive. He made an impulsive move, then drew back as her aloof manner did not change.

"I'm listening," he said quietly.

She twisted her fingers together, but kept her eyes straight ahead—on the thickets where the jays quarreled and the frozen slopes where icicles made a diamond passementerie on every rock and twig.

"I don't like fighting," she began with a little difficulty. "We seem to clash. And it's rather silly, don't you think?"

"Very silly. Especially when—"

"Especially when we could arrange things sensibly. I—this isn't easy for me to say. But—I thought if I talked to you—alone—if I appealed to you—"

He stiffened a little. Only the day before Lucy Fields had used those same words. "I've appealed to you!" For a moment eagerness, tenderness had rushed through his blood like flame. He had looked at Marian and seen only her young sweetness, the golden curve of her throat where kisses were born to lie, the yielding curve of her lips. But now the pride in him, that verged so close to a high, fine fury, the terrible, blind, masculine pride, that through a thousand centuries has gone flaunting banners and waving swords and trampling small tender things underfoot, had him again.

He could not see the pulse that quivered where a gold shadow lay upon her throat, he did not see the uncertainty of her fingers and her eyelids quivering. He saw only her profile, set against him, the chin that was like David Morgan's. He was blind and savage with hurt and frozen with disappointment. He was a very stupid young man.

He drew back and swung the car wide on a curve, not looking at her.

"I think I know what you're going to say. I've heard it all, already. I only have one answer. I'm not leaving town. I'm not leaving the mill. I'm not going to be driven out—nor wheedled out. I'm in this to stay. So—it's too bad you went to so much trouble to let the air out of that tire!"

She turned, as though she had been struck, but he did not see. Her face was as white and stiff as his own. Her voice snicked like steel on ice.

"You're a very famous egotist, aren't you?" she said, brutally. "You couldn't possibly think beyond yourself for a moment. It wouldn't occur to you that I might not want to talk about the mill. That I might be thinking—of myself a little. I won't say it now. I won't let you gloat over the kind of a fool that I was. I see—how hopeless it is!" She choked a little, then recovered her control, gave a savage drag at the brake, turned the key.

Wills said, "Marian! Good God!" But she was not listening. Her eyes were black and blazing. She reached across his knees as the car lurched to a stop, and opened the door.

"Get out, will you?" she said hoarsely. "I can't stand any more."

He said "Marian!" again, in a husky, stricken voice, but she was like a woman on fire.

"Get out! I hate you! Get out!"

She snatched at the wheel, whirled away with frosty mud flying, almost before he was on the ground. Down the winding road she swung past the truck, grazing a hemlock tree, careening on two wheels.

She snatched at the wheel, whirled away with frosty mud flying.

"You'd better wait for him," she shouted at the startled Joe. "He isn't riding with me."

Down the mountain she tore blindly, shame and a white, torturing pain burning her. Once she laughed and the laugh was bitter.

So—he was in love with her, was he? She was a song sung to a gipsy tambourine.

Cheap — cheap — to have surrendered even a little! She hated him! She hated him!

As for Branford Wills, he sat morosely in the jolting truck and hated himself for a blundering fool.

Now—with his crass stupidity he had ruined what life with its ruthless distinctions had not made intolerable before.

At the mill gate the truck halted. "Something's busted again," announced Joe grimly.

Somehow, the spur track had been undermined. A car, heavily loaded with pulp, had gone off the rails, swung sidewise, and turned over, tearing up a hundred yards of track.

"This here," declared Joe, "is gittin' so it ain't even funny!"

CHAPTER XII

Virgie took a letter that Lucy handed her, unfolded the single sheet of cheap gray paper, read it through twice. The envelope was marked "Personal." The handwriting was angular and labored, the script of one who expresses himself in writing only at rare intervals.

"Did you take a look at this?" she asked.

"No." Mrs. Morgan. It was marked personal—I opened the envelope but I didn't look at the letter."

"It's from Wallace Withers. He wants to come to my house tonight to talk business, so he says."

Lucy brightened. "Then he has decided to sell that Bennett spruce. He'll try to get three prices out of you, Mrs. Morgan."

"He's sure to try something. I've known Wallace all my life—the old scorpion. The last time he came to see me he tried to talk me into marrying him because he said I didn't know enough to run this mill."

"But—you couldn't! Why, Mrs. Morgan, his poor first wife never did come to town. I don't suppose she ever had more than one decent dress in her whole married life."

"I didn't marry him, did I? I may be getting soft in a few spots, but not in that one. Lucy, you listen. I want you to come out to that conference. If Withers has any idea of selling that spruce I want a record of it. He'll try to work some kind of racket. You can make notes of everything. He says he wants to talk business—well, when I talk business my secretary is present. I'll have Marian there, too. I'd like to have young Wills—where is he?"

"He went up in the woods with the truck."

"Well, I'm glad somebody went besides me. Marian thinks I look like an old fool trailing around in the mud, climbing over timber and wading creeks, a fat old woman like me. Anyway, it's a poor executive who can't get somebody to do the dirty work."

"You're not a poor executive, Mrs. Morgan. Nobody else could have pulled the mill through—"

"I know. You've told me. I reckon I'd better not have Wills out. You can handle anything that needs to be done. I'll send the car after you."

Wills would probably refuse to come to the house, anyway, because of Marian. Marian's attitude was still an enigma to her mother. Marian had always been a bright gift that Virgie was grateful for, but a gift that left her bewildered and a little uncertain and abashed. She found herself constantly contriving to please Marian or to avoid her displeasure, and this was all wrong, of course. Nonsense, being bossed around by ninety-odd pounds of black-eyed girl, but that was the foolishness of mothers. And mothers loved it. They put up a spiritless fight against the dainty tyranny, the disturbing sense of inferiority, the whims and humors forced upon them by their young.

When they did fight they came off bad seconds, usually, and were pitifully patient about that.

Lucy, on the other side of the desk, was swallowing nervously and the red was coming up into her cheeks and throat.

"Mrs. Morgan," she began, in a little rush, "if you think it would be wise, Mr. Daniels might come to the conference tonight?"

"What for?" Virgie asked, bluntly. "Wallace Withers is an old sourpuss, I know that—but I don't need a chemist to find out how acid he is."

"You spoke about Mr. Wills—" Lucy bridled slightly.

"Wills has got that spruce to cut, if I buy it. But I may not buy it. I'd like to let old Withers talk himself blue in the gills and then just blandly tell him we don't need his timber—the worst about that is, we do need it."

"We can run another month on what we have in," Lucy was ready with her little book, "and then we could begin thinning on the Bobcat Run stuff."

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

KENTUCKY BANKS MAKE 137,000 LOANS TOTALING $156,000,000 IN 1940.

Sixteen per cent of Kentucky's commercial banks made more than 137,000 loans totaling $156,000,000 to business firms and individuals throughout the state during the first six months of 1940, according to the semi-annual survey of bank lending activity made by the American Bankers Association.

The A. B. A. loan survey was participated in by 66 Kentucky banks, or 16.1 per cent of the 411 commercial banks in the state.

These 66 banks reported that they made between January 1 and June 30, 1940: 63,113 new loans, totaling $67,111,528; 72,459 renewals of loans, totaling $85,626,270; 1,675 new mortgages loans totaling $3,642,724. A total of 137,247 loans totaling $156,380,522.

The survey showed that business firms in the state used only half of the "confirmed open lines of credit" maintained for their use on the books of banks. A total of twelve banks in the larger centers of the state reported that they carried on their books $49,677,800 in "open lines of credit" offered to and kept available for regular borrowers for use as needed by them. Of this amount $24,837,080 or 50 per cent was used.

The average number of new loans made per bank during the six months period under review was 956 and the average size of loan was $1,063.

The average number of loans renewed per bank was 1,098 and the average renewal was for $1,182.

The average number of new mortgage loans made per bank was 25 and the average new mortgage made was for $2,175.

The Kentucky survey was part of a national survey of bank lending activity made by the American Bankers Association. For the country as a whole 6,203 banks, or 43.3 per cent of the nation's commercial banks reported that they made between January 1 and June 30, 1940: 7,331,097 new loans, totaling $12,253,628,581; 6,134,178 renewals of loans, totaling $8,246,301,835; 177,398 new mortgage loans, totaling $453,653,612, a total of 13,642,673 loans totaling $20,953,584,028.

This is a tol of 13,642,673 credit transactions amounting to $20,953,584,028, reported for the first half of the year by less than half the country's banks.

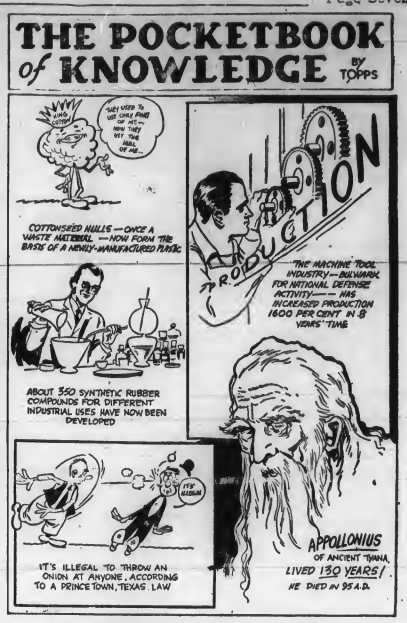
We are sorry to learn that our pastor's wife, Mrs. Kidwell, is ill with the measles. We wish her a speedy recovery.

There has been quite an epidemic of colds in our community, but so far no cases of flu.

The Staffordsburg Missionary Society met last Wednesday with Mrs. Earl Hanna, the president, Mrs. Barkers, being the leader of the meeting. Light refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Staffordsburg Homemakers' Club met at the home of Mrs. Denver Binder, last Thursday. The day was well spent in sewing for the Bundles of Britain, under the direction of Mrs. Leslie Riley. These little girls' dresses and men's clothing are very much needed, as well as all other clothing and food, of course.



Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keeney and family visited with Mrs. Keeney's brother, Thomas Stephens, and family, Sunday.

Miss Virginia Klein and Chester Ballanger called on Mr. and Mrs. Lybran Richardson, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Gedkar called on relatives in Covington, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Binder, Jr., visited with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sweeney and family, Saturday evening.

Twenty Floyd county communities were represented at a farmer-business men's banquet at Prestonsburg.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Should Plan 1941 ACP Practices

Farmers should make all possible headway on their 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program this winter and plan ahead for carrying out soil-building practices in the spring in order to get the work done before the end of the 1941 program year on June 30, 1941, Geo. A. Eubanks chairman of the Kenton County Agricultural Conservation Association advises.

With the earlier closing date this year, farmers will not be able to defer their conservation work under the 1941 program until after harvest as they have under previous programs.

Spreading lime and phosphate and seeding of legumes and grasses in late summer and fall this year will not earn credit under the 1941 program, Mr. Eubanks points out; therefore a larger percentage of the soil-building payments must be earned this winter and spring.

Most farmers in Kenton county have already carried out some practices in their 1941 program. Farmers can top-dress meadows and pastures with lime and phosphate this winter or get these materials on their farms ready for application on spring seedings.

Kenton county farmers have ordered 143 tons of limestone under the Grant of Aid Plan and 245 tons of superphosphate for use in the 1941 program. Farmers who plan to use these materials, should order them now, to avoid delays because of seasonal rush in the spring.

Mr. Eubanks also points out that plans should be made now for spring planting of forest trees and other practices which require materials not now on the farm.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor of the Walton Advertiser:

In this town of Walton there is a colored boy very sick with T. B., one of the worst diseases known to mankind.

Now tell me, what would be a more generous act than for this town to make up enough money to send the boy away to a dry climate, such as Arizona, to give him a small chance for life. Or, if not that, at least enough to make his life here as pleasant as possible?

Now, look, I'm only a boy myself, but I think this is an excellent idea.

Skidding Bearcats Lose 2 Games 22-20

The Walton-Verona Bearcat basketball machine seems to have had the skids applied, judging from the results of the last two games—losing both contest 22 to 20.

The first 22-20 loss came at the hands of Beechwood last Friday night, in an overtime period. The Cats tied the score at 20-all before the fourth quarter endcd, but in the extra session Beechwood tossed in a field, and "took home the bacon," or victory. At the half, Beechwood led 9-7.

Zeidler was high scorer for the victors, with 7 points and for Walton, Mayhugh was tops with 6.

In the curtain-raiser, the W.-V. reserves were victorious 25 to 15. C. Ryan and Groger did the bulk of the scoring for the winners.

The second 22-20 setback came on Tuesday night at Warsaw, where the Gallatin County High team downed the locals for their first Boone County Conference loss of the season. Warsaw was in front 14 to 10 at the intermission.

B. Winchester, with 10 points, was high scorer for the Gallatin county team, and for Walton, Ray Coyle was high with 8 .

Not much can be said in behalf of the Cats in dropping these two games, except that they were without the services of Truitt DeMoisey, lanky center, who could usually be counted on for his share of buckets. DeMoisey V, will probably be out for the remainder of the season.

Two Home Games

The coming week will see the Bearcats in action twice on the home floor. On January 24, Crittenden comes here, and on January 28 another Grant county team, Dry Ridge, visits Walton.

Record Christmas Seal Sale In '40

All reports of sales of Tuberculosis Christmas Seals are not in, but all records for sales in Boone county have been shattered, according to R. V. Lents, Seal Sale chairman. All schools in the county, both public and parochial, took part in the sale of the seals. Many individuals were mailed blocks of seals, and this proved successful, according to Mr. Lents. The portion of the proceeds of the seal campaign that is left in Boone county, will aid in keeping the county nurse. Many other county organizations contribute to this cause.

R. V. Lents, Executive Secretary of the Boone County Protective Association, an organization of the schools of Boone county, thanks, through the columns of this paper, each and every school that took part in the campaign, the Advertiser and the Recorded, for their many columns of free publicity, and last but not least, those hundreds of civic minded citizens who purchased the little bright colored stamps.

Each and every worker in the seal sale campaign gives his services free, and all it costs to conduct the campaign is for prizes given to school children making the most sales, stationery, and postage.

A CORRECTION

In the issue of December 12, in the Elliston news, it was stated that there had been a dance at the store of Mr. Steager, in Zion Station on the previous Friday night. Mr. Steager has been in our office, and he states that he never had a dance in his place of business in his life, and cannot understand why this news was sent in. And so, therefore. the persons named in this article as taking part, could not have been there either. We are indeed very sorry this has occurred.

It was only about a week ago that Mr. Feldhaus lost his own mother.

Kentucky Farmers Boost Crop Profits

CHICAGO. — Treating Kentucky farm manure with superphosphate will help provide a balanced supply of plant food that can be produced at a low cost, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

Such a measure, says the statement, will improve the soil fertility, help increase crop production and boost profits.

"By itself, manure does not provide a sufficient quantity of the vitally important plant food elements —nitrogen, phosphorus and potash," the statement explains. "Moreover, today the average farm produces only a limited amount of manure. Hence it is necessary to add commercial fertilizers to reinforce the soil building qualities of the manure. It has been found that 20 per cent superphosphate provides an ideal addition to manure as a means of increasing the yield of crops.

How to Apply.

"There are a number of ways of adding the superphosphate to the manure. The method may vary according to farm conditions, but it should be carried on continuously—fall, winter, spring and summer.

"One method of treatment is to add the superphosphate to the manure in the spreader as it goes out onto the field. Another is to add it as the manure is stored.

"Perhaps the simplest and most effective method is to scatter one or two pounds of superphospate per animal per day in the gutter or trough behind the animal where the manure is collected. In this way the superphosphate is distributed more evenly through the mixture.

"The superphosphate not only acts to preserve much of the manure's valuable plant food elements that might otherwise be lost but adds to the manure an element in which it is originally most lacking—phosphoric acid. The superphosphate likewise prevents the loss of nitrogen in manure by absorbing the liquid ammonia and thus halting its escape into the air in the form of ammonia gas."

Better Farm Living Program Planned

Boone county home economics and agricultural organizations are making plans for cooperation in a "Live at Home" or better farm living program for 1941, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent, and H. R. Forkner, County Agent. A county meeting on this program will be held in Burlington on Tuesday ,February 4th.

The health of its people is a nation's first line of defense. Of paramount importance in maintaining health is good nutrition. A well planned home food production program is essential to an adequate diet for Kentucky farm families. Hence, the importance of a strong live-at-home program as part of a National Defense program.

The outlook for 1941 emphasizes the necessity of conserving all resources as part of a national program of preparedness for whatever may develop from fast changing world conditions. One of the best ways for the family to conserve its cash resources without sacrificing health is to produce, store and preserve its food supply which represents the largest single item of expense in family living.

The greater farm use of better living promises to be of greater importance during the next few years. This will be not only for National Defense but for a greater net cash income for the farm. Surveys in nearby counties show that the farm food supply alone supplied from 22% of the net income in a profitable year, to a total of 59% in a year of less favorable farm prices. The food supply represents only one source of increasing the income by greater use of the farm products produced.

Planning to Attend Farm, Home Meet

A considerable number of farmers and farm women in Boone county are planning to attend the annual Farm and Home Convention at Lexington the last week in January, County Agent H. R .Forkner announces. More than usual interest is said to prevail in this year's state meeting of farm men and women.

There will be meetings for stock raisers, dairymen, poultry keepers, beekeepers, rural pastors, fruit growers and for men interested in special problems of soil conservation, agricultural adjustment, marketing, crops, and the like.

Attendance at this convention has been increasing every year, and special accommodations are being arranged for the large numbers expected this year.

Women will have meetings of their own throughout the four days. It is expected that at least 2,000 women will attend.

Farmers thinking about attending the convention should see [illegible] Agent H. R. Forkner for [illegible] details.

Economic Highlights

Happenings that affect the dinner pails, dividend checks and tax bills of every individual. National and international problems from local welfare.

Whether or not you personally liked the tone and purpose of the President's dramatic "all out for Britain" speech, one thing can be said for it. It cleared away any doubts that may have existed concerning this Administration's war policy. It eliminated the last semblanme of our theoretical neutrality. It placed us definitely beside England as an active ally, ready to give her almost anything and everything she may need to prosecute the war against the Axis powers. It administered a hearty slap in the face to Japan, by declaring that China too was helping to defend American rights and principles.

Foreign response to the talk could easily have been anticipated. London called it "one of the most powerful indictments of Nazidom ever spoken," and British spokesmen, who have frankly placed much of their hope for eventual victory on U. S. aid, were jubilant. The South American press, which often speaks for the governments, was generally laudatory—the Latin Republics have apparently been looking for a strong lead in order to develop and affirm their own foreign policies. Turkey, a country which has really been on the spot in that it is an ally of England and at the same time is within comparatively easy "shooting distance" of Germany, was extremely pleased—one of the principal Ankara papers said, President Roosevelt has read the death sentence of the Axis countries." The Vichy press was cautious in its comment, which is understandable—the Petain government is forced to walk a dangerous tight rope between the French people's pro-British, pro-DeGaulle sentiment on the one hand, and Germany's nearby armies on the other. Italy made belligerent gestures, but said nothing new. Hitler declared that anyone who said the Nazis plan world conquest, lied—which, in the light of past super-frank statements by Nazi leaders, is curious. Japan, frankly angry, said the Roosevelt policy made a U. S.-Japanese war almost inevitable. Interesting reaction comes from on-the-fence Spain, where, reports say, the President's definite statement that the Axis will not win, excited great interest.

In this country, the bulk of the press approved of the speech in general, even though many papers observed that more words are necessary to adequately arm Britain and ourselves. The President's definite declaration that no U. S. troops would be sent to Europe was applauded widely—the fact is, of course, that at present Britain does not need or want men, in that her armies are doing practically nothing except keep oh the alert against possible invasion. However, certain important government elective officials are all set to fling down the gauntlet and fight the Administration's belligerent policy.

Senate leaders like Wheeler and Clark will make a strong effort to have congress disavow at least part of the Roosevelt aid-England program—for example, they will oppose the transfer of more U. S. fighting ships and airplanes to the British flag. They will also attempt to stiffen the Neutrality Act, which at present is largely a dead letter. It seems to be true that the new congress is as much opposed to war for this country as was the last—even though the majority of the members are extremely pro-British. There will be many a red-hot battle in congress' word-scarred halls during the coming months.

In the meantime, it may prove that one result of the speech will be greatly increased Nazi attack on the staunch British Isles—the purpose being to reduce England before U. S. aid can be materially increased. It is significant that even as the President read his speech from the quiet of his White House study, blacked-out London was being subjected by the Luftwaffe to its most severe air raid of the war. Hitler knows that if this country ever is able to push its arms drive into high gear, a practically unlimited quantity of material of all kinds can be sent England.

Some interpreters read into the President's speech intimations that he will soon declare a "full emergency," as against the "limited emergency" he declared a year ago.

According to legal authorities, this would not give him any important additional powers. Congress must pass new laws, in other words, before the already vast Executive powers can be significantly extended. However, declaration of a "full emergency," in the view o fsome, might help spur industry and labor to greater deeds in producing arms.

Defense officials, such as Mr. Knudson, are talking more and more of the urgency of the situation. And it is true that, while the general production indexes go higher and higher, our production of finished materials of war continues to lag. Both the Army and Navy have been forced time and again to revise their forecasts—and to revise them backward. The bottlenecks grow, rather than decrease.

According to some of the best authorities, the output of finished implements of war will sharply increase in a month or two—or the cause of Britain will look a great deal darker.

OUR DEMOCRACY—by Mat

Washington Snapshots by JAMES "PRESTON"

Now that the President has called upon the nation and Congress to go all-out for defense, the status of the program and things which slow it draw special Washington attention.

The new OPM (Office of Production Management) whose creation was delayed for months after its need became apparent, may solve some of the problems. Time will tell.

But many signs, including the latest Gallup poll, show a growing public belief that government is primarily responsible for delay with labor and labor unions running second.

The job of producing defense goods falls upon manufacturers. They have been coming to Washington in droves since Defense Commissioner Knudsen in a December 13 address before the National Association of Manufacturers first disclosed the urgency of the task.

The stories told by some of these manufacturers are extremely important. They get down to the bedrock of bottlenecks. More will be reported in this column from time to time, but the first thing they all say is that until the President's December 29 fireside chat, in which he described America as the arsenal for democracy, they had assumed that defense production should be superimposed upon normal business.

That was the theme song from all Washington officials—"maintain present standards and do the defense job too." Now, however defense is becoming important enough that normal production is to be made of secondary importance. Already, for example, Washington talk is heard that the automobile industry should not produce new models this year, and maybe stop automobile production altogether, so it may turn out airplanes.

If the government should sanction such a program, and the people accept it, then it will be done. Manufacturers say they don't produce something just because they themselves think it is a good idea but because there is a sale for what they produce—the people want it. They consider themselves servants of public demands.

The second common complaint is lack of planning in Washington. Take priorities, for example. These are suggestions or instructions from the government to manufacturers as to what they should produce first.

So far, priorities are called "preference ratings" and have been issued by several government agencies instead of a single one which can coordinate all priorities. To illustrate, one manufacturer was told by one agency that his product had an A-1 preference, meaning he should turn it out ahead of everything else. But he needed a machine to produce it. And his machine, from a second agency, got an A-3 rating—two grades lower.

Another manufacturer, to speed things, had broken his contract up into parts and farmed it out to sub-contractors. He had agreed to furnish the finished product to the government at his cost plus a fee of 5 per cent. The government was closely watching costs.

This manufacturer soon was assembling his product faster than his parts were coming in. He appealed to sub-contractors to speed up. They replied they could not do so without working men overtime, paying time and a half for overtime, and thus being forced to increase their charge to the manufacturer.

Government officials got this news. But as of this writing they have not yet authorized the manufacturer to assume the extra cost. So he is still ahead of his sub-contractors.

This cost complaint is rather general. "Profits" in general are reported to be extremely low. If they go high, of course, the government will take the excess in taxes. So there's no point in making excess profits.

Even so, manufacturers say they are taking chances, hoping the government will help them meet costs. One manufacturer, after hearing Knudsen's speech, added a third shift, putting his plant on a 24-hour basis. He found the night shift 23 per cent less efficient than the other two. That made him produce and deliver goods to the government at less than they actually cost him. But he is continuing in the hope that if the night shift doesn't become more efficient, the government will make up the difference.

Adding potash to lime and phosphate more than doubled wheat yields in Fleming county.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than to use something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

From Fireplace to Heaters

When I was caught in a storm not long ago in the Mammoth Cave National Park, I sought refuge for the night in an old deserted church. There I found among other remnants of former times a Wilson heater. In the silent watches of the night, when I tried to sleep on the floor, I began to connect that old stove with a whole sycle of changes in the heating of houses.

Forty years ago it was practically impossible to find in most rural sections any other way of heating a house except with the open fireplace. That was the style we had inherited. We cut cords of wood and still did not have enough to last through the winter. It was always necessary to get out in the worst weather and cut more. Practically all of the heat went up the chimney, however poetic the open fire may have been. One side, at least, was warm when the open fireplace was in its heyday. Backlog, forestick, andirons, taking up the ashes, cooking on the fire, wood ashes for lye and soap-making—all of these were tied in with the big open fireplace.

By degrees came heaters, but for many years they had to fight their way. They were called unhealthful, because they heated the air of the room too much. The fact that they consumed much less wood was in their favor, but it is hard to give up old things. Stovewood is so much smalled that it does not take so much strength to carry a load of it as to wrestle with a huge backstick. The wood for the stove is likely to be sawed and not chopped at the woodpile, thus depriving the household of the useful chips. And the fire cannot be seen, an objection I have heard often. I recall how much some people rejoiced that they had stoves with isinglass doors, through which the light could shine. Besides, there was the Franklin stove, which with a little manipulation could be a stove or a grate. Just in recent years I visited in an old-fashioned house where a Franklin stove was still being used, a pretty fair substitute for the open fireplace. One of the objections to a stove is that tobacco-chewing loses most of its zest with one.

Some of the stoves that we had in the early days were cast-iron things that could produce a lot of heat but could rarely warm six feet away. We used to crowd around the stove at school, not to keep warm so much as to break ranks and be less formal than we were in our seats. There may be colder places than the old one-roomed school at Fidelity, but in a half century I have not found them. The two cast-iron stoves roared like furnaces, but winter crept right up to them. We boys dragged in piles of dead saplings and larger wood to replenish the fires, taking turns about in the mornings to build the first fires. We did not die from the exposure, for tight houses were unknown then. Besides, we were wrapped up in several layers of winter clothing, so much so that we perspired freely when we played Dare Base or Wolf Over the River. Then in the cold room we sat, developing a cold that most people regarded as the normal accompaniment of winter.

Stoves are still doing their work well and will long continue to do so, but I fear the old fireplace is a passing institution that few of the younger generation will remember as we do. Dream pictures in the burning coals will have to be sought elsewhere; boys' energies will have to be directed to something else besides bringing in heavy backlogs.

Baby beef production will be one of the largest 4-H club projects in Hickman county.

Miss Mary Gillaspie, the Home Demonstration Agent, is ill at the home of Mrs. Hue of the Dixie Highway.

Lloyd Osborn writes that he is enjoying very good health and working every day in Florida.

Dr. Castleman's car was badly damaged, one night last week in front of his home, by a hit-skip driver.

Everyone was glad to see the Dixie Traction busses running on schedule again.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills of Florence will move to an apartment in the beautiful new home of Mrs. Geneva Souther on Lloyd Ave.

Mrs. Zeffa Osborn and daughter, Mrs. Helen Byrne, and Vernie Simms and wife were called to Williamstown by the death of a cousin, Mrs. Dora Lemon.

Mrs. Lillian Schram was called to Indiana this week by the death of a niece.

Wedding bells will soon be ringing in Florence.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Nead of Plant City, Fla., announce the marriage of their son, John T. Nead, to Miss Patricia Jean Yoder of Lakeland, Fla. The wedding took place at Dade City, Fla., Dec. 28. Mr. Nead, formerly of Florence, is now associated with the Neon Sign & Tube Service Co., of Tampa, where he now claims residence.

Friends of Ben Carl Aylor, who is ill with pneumonia at Deaconess hospital, Cincinnati, will be glad to learn that he is improving at this writing.

Surprised on Birthdate

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tanner of near Florence, was the scene of a happy affair on Wednesday evening, January 15, when a number of friends and relatives walked in unannounced to remind Mr. Tanner that another year had slipped by, and that the calendar had once again turned up his birthdate.

The participants came heavily laden with delicious things to eat, and at 9:00 o'clock the following guests enjoyed supper: Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Markesberry and two sons Billy Ray and Harold Victor, Mrs. Gevena Souther, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bonar and three sons, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Paste nand daughter Gene Elizabeth, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, Frank Marks and Elmo Tanner. At a late hour every one left, wishing Howard many more happy birthdays.

Reforestration work is progressing in Daviess county, with major attention given to locust.

BRACHT STATION

A daily thought: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Gal. 6:7.

The cold snappy weather of this, our new January, 1941, makes us shake and shiver.

Quite a few of our neighbors in this section are housed up with attacks of flu.

Miss Wanda Bales of Covington visited her parents at this place last week end.

E. Huff and Homer Huffman were business visitors in Atwood one day last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Conrad called on Mrs. Susan Bales one evening last week.

E. Huff was in Dry Ridge on business Friday of last week.

A. Feirrock and daughter, Mrs. John Hennassey of Ludlow spent last Friday at the former's farm "Maple Lawn Farm" at this place.

We were very sorry, indeed, to learn of the death of Mr. Charley Sparron. The deeeased was a fine neighbor and citizen, wellliked by all who knew him, and we wish to extend to his bereaved wife and all relatives our heartfelt sympathy and a loving and consoling, "God bless you all, in your trying hour."

Everyone of us has sorrow and disappointments, and to each of us comes, or will come presently, the long separation, for—

"There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there
There is no household, howsoe'er defended,
But has one vacant chair."

Ed Walton and wife were business visitors in Columbus, Ohio, several days last week.

Several of the farmers in this vicinity were on the tobacco market at Lexington a couple of days last week, selling their tobacco with very unsatisfactory sales.

Several of the young folks around this section attended the skating exercises at the Rollerdome at Walton, Sunday afternoon, all reporting a jolly time with lots of fun and frolic.

Miss Sarah Adams called on Mrs. Bales of this place, Saturday afetrnoon.

A. Feirrock, son and son-in-law, were business visitors at Bank Lick one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rorensteal visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Huffman of this place, Sunday.

The cream station at this place is doing nicely under the management of Mrs. Elizabeth Conrad. Friends and neighbors bring her your cream. Give her a trial. Get a square deal, and service with a smile!

Our new 1941 January is nearing a close, so let us trust in providence that th eold groundhog won't see his shadow the second day of February, for we sure don't want to have to stay in with him six long weeks of cold winter weather. Let us pray that we have a speedy and lovely spring this year.

Let this be our prayer and song:

"Ring out, wild bells to the wild sky,
The flying clouds, the frosty light,
January is dying—in the night,
Ring out wild bells and let him die.
Ring out the winter, ring in the spring,
Ring happy bells across the snow;
For January is going—let him go;
Ring out the winter—ring in the spring!"

American Arms for British Civilians

LONDON—English workers unpack small arms and ammunition contributed by Americans through the American Committee for Defense of British Homes, 10 Warren Street, New York City, which is collecting firearms, binoculars and steel helmets for the use of British civilians in event of invasion. Arms are distributed in England by the Civilian Committee for the Defense of British Homes, Birmingham, of which Wickham Steed, former editor of the London Times, is chairman. The American Committee has shipped 168 cases, but, officials say, need for material for civilian defense is still great.

NAPOLEON

Mrs. Dewey Odor, Mrs. W. W. Spaulding and daughter Ruby spent Tuesday with Mrs. Howard Miller and daughter Dorcie.

SOUP WISDOM

Let your family be greeted with the savory scent of a weil-flavored soup when they come in from the wintry scene and they will be more than ever sure that you have their best interests at heart.

If it's dinner time and you are serving this meal in courses, you will have a clear soup bubbling on the stove. For supper or snacking late at night when soup is practically the whole meal, a substantial meaty broth or a chowder will be your choice. When it comes to a casual luncheon, treat them to rich cream soups—Cream of Mushroom or Cream of Tomato. In order to give your family these old-fashioned treats you do not need to stay indoors all day bending over a hot soup kettle. Buy them canned already seasoned so that all you have to do is heat them before pouring into the serving dishes.

The consommés—whether served jellied or hot—are served in consommé cups, which are the small teacup shaped cups with two handles. The soup cups which are more broad and flat, but also have two handles are used for the cream soups. The hearty meat and vegetable type soups which help make the meal are placed on the table in the low, shallow soup plate or perhaps a Petite Marmite, whichever you prefer. The correct spoon for each soup is easy to remember—with clear soups, use the short handled, round bowled bouillon spoon—and the larger soup spoon with the oval bowl is correct with both cream soups and chowder type soups.

Following are three different kinds of menus showing the various roles the soups play in satisfying winter meals:

Dinner Menu
Canned Home-Style Consommé Garnished with Fresh Cucumber Pickle
Relishes
Baked Ham
Oven-Baked Beans
French Fried Onion Rings
Orange and Grapefruit Salad
French Dressing
Hot Rolls Currant Jelly
Hot Mince Pie
Coffee

Supper or Snack Menu
Canned Home-Style Clam Chowder
Crackers
Cheese Rarebit on English Muffins
Dill Pickles
Chilled Fruit Cup Cookies
Tea

Luncheon Menu
Canned Home-Style Cream of Tomato Soup
Buttered Toasted Crackers
Scrambled Eggs with Mushrooms
Hard Rolls
Baked Appies

PARTY FOOD

Delicious macaroni in cream sauce with cheese served in the form of a ring mold is real party fare and grand to serve the bridge club when they have lunch or supper in your home. You can have it baking in a slow oven for an hour without having to give it a thought. When you bring it to the table you find it adds a decorative touch besides providing excellent eating for your guests.

Macaroni Ring

Beat well—
4 eggs.
Combine with—
2 medium (17-oz.) cans cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese, breaking macaroni as little as possible as you mix.

Pour into a well-greased ring mold and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven (325° F.)

1 hour. To serve, loosen the edges and turn the ring out upside down on a large plate. Garnish the plate with sprigs of parsley and sprinkle finely chopped parsley over the top of the ring.

If you like, pile one of the following in the center of the ring: creamed mushrooms, buttered fresh vegetables, creamed chicken or other creamed meats, or tuna fish heated in a small amount of butter.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Craig entertained Mr. W. J. Newhall and Mrs. Grace Sandford at dinner, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thad entertained the East Bend Baptist Sunday school with a social, Thursday night.

Raymond Acra and wife from Cincinnati were down Sunday to visit his mother, Mrs. Harry Acra, who is ill.

Farmers of this community are very busy now shipping their tobacco to the various markets. Ivan Ryle took his crop to Cynthiana, where he got 22 cents for most of his crop.

Mr. and Mrs. John Zook from Bloomington, Ill., drove in here Tuesday and spent two days and nights with her uncle, Bob Wilson and wife.

Friends of Mrs. Mat Hodges are sorry to learn she is ill in bed with the flu. She had just begun to get out a little after rallying from a very deep cold with which she was bedfast for over a week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Wilson entertained, Wednesday at dinner, Mr. and Mrs. John Zook from Illinois, James A. Wilson, Mrs. Minnette Stephens and Miss Brenda Craig of this place.

Burglars, who entered Ryle Bros. store and the Craig store building late Thursday night, escaped with loot totaling approximately $250.00, according to reports. Jack Acra, who operates a creamery in part of the building adjoining the Craig store, reported the burglary. The sheriff found the intruders had tried to pry open the door of Charlie Craig's store, upon failure to get into his store, tried to break in the door of the creamery, then went to the side of the building, broke in a window, entering the creamery. As there was no way of getting into the store from the creamery, they left, taking with them two of Mr. Acra's radios. They then crossed over to Ryle Bros. store, broke open the door, taking loot including shoes, overalls, cigarettes, tires and batteries, and numerous other articles. The doors were pried open with crowbars, which the robbers left, and from which experts had fingerprints taken. This is the fifth time these stores have been broken into—Ryle's store twice in this year.

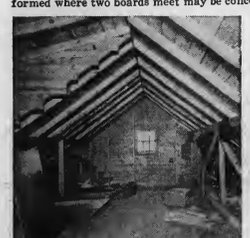
HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

By

Helen Koues

Director, Good Housekeeping Studio



Remodeling Your Attic

You may have a charming, well-designed house, the envy of all your friends, and still be dissatisfied with it because it doesn't contain quite enough space for the comfort of your family. Perhaps it's a bedroom you need for the boys, a playroom for all the children, or a quiet spot for reading and study, and you just don't know what to do about it. Basement bedrooms don't appeal to you, or your basement may already be taken up with a heater room and a laundry. But have you thought about converting the attic into a livable room? Most houses built twenty or more years ago have an attic, for then an attic was considered just as important as a front door.

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

The attic can be made into a livable room by merely applying wall board to the inside of the wall studs and filling the pockets thus formed with some insulating material that comes in batt form. The ceiling may be allowed to run up into the peak of the roof, or a new false ceiling may be hung as shown in the "before" and "after" pictures in this column. Any one of a number of wallboards may be used for this purpose. Most of them are produced with a sufficiently interesting texture so that they need no further decorating unless you wish. The joint formed where two boards meet may be concealed by a wood strip painted to match the woodwork, or sealed with a band of tape. Then, if you desire, they may be painted or even covered with wallpaper. Low bookshelves may be built into the wall to make practical use of the space running back under the eaves, or, if this is needed for storage, cupboards may be installed there. If the space is to serve as a bedroom, hanging closets may be built on either side of the end window, with a window seat between them. Then the walls and ceiling too may be covered in a small-patterned flowered wallpaper. With white ruffled curtains at the windows, and plain chintz for the window seat cushion and an easy chair, it is possible to achieve an attractive room at low cost.

View of the attic before construction had started

Most attics have windows in the end walls where the roof goes to a peak, but if not, it is not a difficult matter to install them. Sometimes dormer windows are needed. These may be installed by making a hole in the roof through which the dormer can project. This will involve cutting one or possibly two rafters. The cut rafters should then be made fast, by inserting a horizontal member between the adjoining solid rafters on both sides, and nailing the cut rafters to this member.

View of the same attic completed and furnished

These reclaimed attic rooms often have immense charm because of their slanting walls, odd nooks, and irregular shape.

FERTILIZER'S USE IS INCREASED ON FARMS IN KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, KY. — Farmers of Kentucky have increased the tonnage of fertilizer used on their land by 92 per cent since 1934, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Kentucky farms utilized 120,009 tons of commercial plant foods in 1939," says the statement, "compared with 62,520 tons in 1934.

"This increase indicates that Kentucky farmers appreciate the place fertilizer must occupy in modern farming conditions. Kentucky soils are becoming older. They have been tilled continuously for nearly a century. The reserve of virgin fertility stored in them during the thousands of years of soil formation which preceded the advent of farming is becoming rapidly exhausted.

Fertilizer helps produce bumper corn crop.

"This means that replacement of vital fertilizing elements removed by growing crops is necessary if profitable crop yields are to be obtained. Higher yields must be produced if farm products are to compete successfully on the market with products grown on more highly fertilized soils.

"The increasing use of fertilizer also indicates that farmers have found them profitable. Surveys have indicated that every dollar spent for fertilizer results in an average increased value of crops amounting to about three and a half dollars."

What rookie has the toughest job in front of him this coming season? Ask that question of Cincinnati baseball fans and the answer will be Chuck Aleno, highly regarded young third baseman, who was pretty much of a sensation for the Birmingham Barons of the Southern League in 1940. Aleno's job is so tough because all he has to do to land a regular berth with the world's champions is to beat out Bill Werber, hero of the last world's series, and whom Cincinnatians think is the best third baseman in the business.

Aleno's predicament might discourage most young fellows, but

BACK in the dark ages, before electric cleaners were invented, people used to hang their rugs on a line and belabor them with instruments like this—imagine!

In those days, cleaning a rug was a morning's work for a reasonably husky man, but today the daintiest woman can clean a rug in 10 minutes without exertion at a cost of less than one cent.

And so it is with other household tasks that formerly took so much of a woman's time and strength. Today, they are done electrically in less time with less effort at a cost that is measured in pennies and fractions of pennies per day.

And as more and more electricity has been used in the home, the cost has come steadily downward. Today, the average customer of this company receives 53% more electricity for his money than in 1930.

Your electric switch is your "open sesame" to comfort, convenience and more leisure time. And electricity is so cheap you can afford to use it freely.

it doesn't mean a thing to this rookie. He has a baseball philosophy that has helped him over the rough spots of his short career, and he believes it will do the same for him from here on in. His idea is to go out there and do the very best you can, battle for every inch, and then let happen what may.

It was this philosophy that helped him win a regular berth with the Birmingham team last spring, when most people figured he would be just one of those boys spending some time in the Barons' camp. Reason for the lack of enthusiasm surrounding his chances centered in his 1939 record at Durham in the Class B Piedmont League. Batting averages showed that Aleno's record with a club two classes below Birmingham was .253, but they didn't show that the boy had compiled this while playing with an injured knee that would have kept most players out of the game altogether. The averages also didn't show that Aleno had the knee operated on after the 1939 season, nor did they reveal anything about the nerve and perserverance of young Mr. Aleno. At any rate, when the Southern League season opened, Chuck was on third base. When the season closed, he was still on third base, but by then was a sensation who already had been notified of his transfer to the team that was to become champions of the world.

This upward movement vindicated the judgement of the scouts, who, when Chuck broke in with Deland of the Florida State League in 1937, claimed he was a sure-fire prospect, one who was a cinch to climb up the baseball ladder quickly. That year Aleno batted .326 in 110 games. The next season, the one in which he became injured, he divided his time between Deland and Muskogee, of the Western Association, batting .314 at Deland and .333 at Muskogee. In 1939 he was at Durham.

Last year with the Barons, Aleno swatted a healthy .332 and made his 182 hits good for 248 bases. Nineteen of his blows were triples. He also was the best defensive third baseman in the league. His rifle arm helped make him a fielding star.

Aleno is just turning 23. He stands 6 feet, 1 inch tall, and weighs 190 pounds. He bats and throws righthanded. He certainly has the physical qualifications. This, plus his fine temperament, should be enough to cause everybody not to sell him short, regardless of how tough a job he faces.

—o—

Linus Frey, who led the National League base stealers last year, is recognized as just about the fastest man in the circuit in circling the bases.

—o—

Bobby Mattick, young shortstop obtained by the Reds from the Cubs, suffered an eye injury when struck by a thrown ball a couple of years ago. This injury has bothered him since, but Cincinnati officials have been advised that his vision is 100 per cent again.

—o—

Only once in the last six seasons has Paul Barringer walked more than 50 men. The high mark for the period came in 1937, when he passed 55 batters. He is recognized as one of the greatest control pitchers in the history of baseball.

—o—

Gene Thompson is no half way pitcher. The star young righthander of the Reds can tell very early if he has his stuff. When he hurls a complete game, it's usually a winner, as evidenced by his 1940 record, which shows that he hurled 17 complete contests, 15 of which were victories. He hurled one two-hit game and three three-hitters.

Defense Program Increases Federal Economic Control

All America is pondering the future of our country. Prophets from Maine to California have lifted their voices in a mass chorus of discordant opinion. But no one can possibly predict with any degree of accuracy what shape the future of the United States will assume.

One voice, however, demands a special hearing. It belongs to Stuart Chase, by far one of the keenest American students of current world affairs. For the February issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine he has compiled a list of events which he rates as certainties, probabilities and possibilities. First in the category labeled "certainties," is the prediction that no matter what the outcome of the present struggle, America will continue to be the strongest nation on earth. Our vast supply of raw materials and industrial products make this possible. "No combination of powers," Chase writes, "can outproduce us if we turn seriously to our gigantic industrial machine for quantity production."

Furthermore, America will not "go bankrupt." We have the men and materials and this requirement surpasses the need for money. Chase points to Germany, a country without money or credit who built in seven years the most powerful military machine of all times. America, he says, can do the same thing. As the defense program expands, federal government will increase control of our economic life. If the United States actually enters the war, government control will expand to the point of making the nation almost a totalitarian economy. Proof of this startling statement can be read in the M-Day Program long since prepared by the War Department.

Self-sufficiency looms large all over the world and will continue to increase, Chase prophesies. World trade, for instance, will undergo drastic revisions. Among the events listed in the article as probable is a hemisphere trading post or cartel to prevent the totalitarians from cashing in on the economic distress of Latin America. According to Chase, America must help clear these southern surpluses of wheat, coffee, beef, nitrates, and so on. To cope with this, another probability is a "hemisphere dollar" handled by a central trading agency.

Invasion, states Chase, is not likely for at least two years. Even then, it is highly improbable, because by that time our defense will be built to a point where invasion will have almost no chance of success. "Unless some extraordinary new method of transportation is invented, North America will not be invaded in our time, but if the United States goes to war as an ally of Britain it will not save democracy, liberty, capitalism or anything on the moral agenda. It may save England from a military defeat, but nothing can save her from going 100% socialist," Chase prophesies. The ruling class and "old school tie" according to this observer are things of the past.

Concluding his article, Chase writes, "Another possibility is that after one or two disastrous wars between the new continental blocs which are forming, mankind will take the final political step, a bloc of blocs, the federation of the world, with one official language, one currency, one tariffless world market, and one powerful air force to keep the peace. You and I will not live to see this, but sometimes in the dead of night I glimpse its shape, far away in the misty future."

The defense program and the international situation have shoved our domestic problems into the background. But we may rest assured they will not remain there long; after all, our domestic inequalities vitally affect all of us. I am again interested in the farmers' status.

Every Congress for the past 20 years has found the farm surplus problem on its doorstep, waiting to besolved. The present Congress is no exception. Prices of butter, eggs, poultry, and many fruits and vegetables.

The recent sensational advance of almost $3.00 per hundredweight in the price of hogs to a $9.00 top in Chicago, has carried values to the best level since 1939. Choice cattle prices have risen more than $4.00 per hundredweight since last summer and are now the highest in more than three years. Butter and eggs, a large source of cash income, are priced about on the same level as a year ago, but are 12 to 16 per cent higher than the low point of 1940.

Wherever possible, farmers have turned from grain, tobacco, and cotton to the production of dairy products, cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, and lambs. Market statistics indicate farmers are receiving from 18 to 50 per cent gress is conscious of the farm problem, aggravated by the war. Farm organizations have already presented their positions and are asking for large farm parity payments and increased funds for the food stamp plan.

We may look for a lively struggle over this legislation. Leaders of the economy bloc argue that agriculture is prospering because of the war and defense spending and no longer needs so much help. This group points to the higher prices for meat, milk, more for their livestock than they were a year ago.

The economy leaders in Congress point to these facts and ask for a slowdown in farm aid. They also point to increased industrial activity which will eventually broaden the farmers' market and raise the price of his products.

There is another side to this Congressional battle, and I will present it next week.

In Rowan county, all the phosphate in storage has been used and more is on order.

CHAPTER XI—Marian attempts to tell Bradford Wills that she cares for him but he suspects that she is leading up to a request for him to leave town for her mother's sake. They quarrel and part on very unfriendly terms

"I don't want to cut on Bobcat. Not for another year if I can help it. Call up Bryson, Lucy, and ask him if he has any of that cider left that hasn't got too darned explosive. There might be a way to limber up old Withers. Most every man has a loose joint somewhere."

"I don't believe Mr. Withers has any. He's made like one of these dry land turtles—all shell and claws and mouth and no soft spot."

"You're real bright at times, Lucy," Virgie applauded. "Just don't forget to be bright—that's all. It's that fifteen-minute interval when a woman forgets that God puts brains inside her head as well as eyelashes on the side of it that ruins a lot of 'em."

"I won't forget."

She will though, Virgie thought, wearily, as she crossed the yard to back her old car out of the shed. That cool-headed young chap from Missouri would give Lucy two languishing looks and reduce her instantly to the compliant softness of a vanilla custard. But the Lord, so Virgie decided, looked after the soft women. It was the tough ones who could take it who had a hard time. The soft ones lay back and whimpered and swiftly somebody else jumped up, with a gallant flourish to carry their load and help them over the steep places.

"But an old battle-ax like me can change her own tires or get herself out of holes. Nobody bothers!"

The sun was dropping behind the black rampart of the mountains as Virgie drove homeward.

The eastern slopes sank into purple shadows, the valleys were lost in a citron-colored mist. But beyond the aloof crests, cold-looking and forbidding now as the mountains are in winter, a saffron line of light burned along the sky. Virgie admired the brilliance briefly, considered the fact that the Almighty seemed to take a lot of trouble to make every act of nature splendid and beautiful. Trees could have been dirty brown or gray, but they weren't. Even stripped of their leaves they were interesting and graceful.

And rocks were softened and made lovely by lichen and waterfall, ferns and the mystery of shadows. Storms, too, were beautiful. The piling anger of the clouds, the fiery skeleton bones of lightning, the silver marching of the rain. And fire—though it had the color of terror, had glory. There was the pink and purple of laurel and rhododendron in the spring, the white candelabra of dogwood set in the forests in spring, the flame of azalea.

Only in making man had the fine brush and chisel of the Creator slipped. Men were a sorry piece of work, so Virgie thought. Dreary to look at, most of them, full of silly hates and greedinesses, schemes to defeat and destroy each other, all to no profit.

Wars and politics, angers and absurdities, these men had made; going on their scrambling way, adding little to the beauty and serenity of the world. The black scald, bristling with broken, burned trunks and charred stumps—men had done that. Mank Pressly had a still up there somewhere, and his fire had got away from him, burned up the still and six kegs of raw whisky before it tore down the ridge to ruin four or five hundred acres of fair timber. And with it had gone thousands of Virgie's little seedling trees.

Surveying this blackened, months-old ruin, Virgie thought of Tom. The man Cragg lived on, and Tom stubbornly refused to be released from the jail. He was a fanatic old fool, he had gone a little mad as lonely old men sometimes do. And here was Wallace Withers scheming to cheat her and she was alone, with no one to go to for the steadying courage that comes with approval.

Fires were burning in the house, for a wonder, and Marian was curled in a big chair under her father's portrait. Marian stayed alone too much lately, was too still.

"Wallace Withers is coming here tonight to sell me some timber," Virgie said at dinner. "I want you to go and get Lucy—then both of you stay around. I don't trust that old man and I want somebody to hear every word that he says."

"Why doesn't he come to the office if he wants to talk business? Why does he come to the house?" Marian asked.

Virgie was a little bothered to find an answer for this. It was incredible, of course, that Wallace might still be harboring some mad idea that his proposal would again be listened to.

"I don't know," she said. "He wrote me a letter. I'm telling you what he said. He's come here before."

"That's just it. Mother"—Marian sat up a little straighter and looked a trifle grim—"doesn't it ever occur to you that you are supposed to be a wealthy widow?"

Virgie buttered a biscuit, her mouth dragged into a dry grin.

"If anything like that did occur to me, all I'd have to do is go down to the bank and have a heart-to-heart talk with some facts and figures. That's about the most awakening thing I know of. What is all this? Have you seen a peacock-blue roadster you can't live without?"

"I'm not talking about myself. I'm talking about Wallace Withers. He hasn't any wife. He isn't an old man—not terribly old—"

"Oh—that!" Virgie was scornful. "He got ideas—weeks ago. He did ask me to marry him. I guess he knows by now that I'm not interested."

"And you refused him?" Marian asked sharply.

"Did you want him for a stepfather? I didn't think you'd like going over there to live in that moldy old house with no lights and no well."

"Heavens, no! But, Mother"—Marian's voice rose almost to a wail—"you never mentioned it! You never told me! If anything like that happened to me I'd tell you—"

"Would you? I seem to remember a Renfro boy, one time—"

"Oh, that awful infant! As though I would consider a boy like that!"

"Well, I'm not considering Wallace Withers either. Nor anybody else. I felt like a fool—he made me mad and I went off in one of my tantrums—then young Wills came stumbling in here and so much has happened since I forgot all about it."

Marian's eyes cooled, withdrew, then turned upon her mother intently.

"It hasn't occurred to you, has it, Mother, that all these things that have happened—ugly, destructive things that have never happened to us before—began after you hired Branford Wills to work in the mill?"

"What?" Virgie straightened up, the poker in her hand. "What are you talking about?"

"I'm talking!"—Marian went on a little breathlessly — "about ruined pulp and fires set to burn the plant, about tracks being torn up, and cars wrecked and shipments delayed. They could be significant, couldn't they? They could mean that the men who've worked for you forever don't want to work with your arrogant young Mr. Wills!"

"There could be," Virgie said slowly, "a wilder idea than that. There could be. But I doubt if there ever was. How could any crazy nut believe that he could get rid of Wills by ruining me? And why are you so poisonous against Wills anyway? He's a nice chap. He can be a lot of help to me."

A sick, ugly doubt crept like a foul-footed creature through Marian Morgan's mind. Older women did get sentimental ideas about young men. It couldn't be—she fougbt the thought away furiously. Her splendid, courageous, capable mother—low; to let such a suspicion creep into her brain. She breathed deep, and threw back her head, and because she had to ignore and defeat it or be tortured endlessly, she managed a cool remoteness.

"It was an idea I had. I don't think it's insane. I think it's quite reasonable," Marian said as she walked to the door, her eyes more like David's than ever.

Lucy settled herself with her notebook and pencil when Marian brought her back, scarlet spots in her cheeks, her eyes as excited as though she was about to attend a seance.

Marian said, "Do I have to listen when old Withers comes or is it all right to go on reading?"

"You don't have to listen unless you want to. I just want plenty of people around when I have to talk to that old scoot."

"Why on earth are you so nervous, Mother, if it's just a business deal?"

"I'm not nervous!" snapped Virgie, putting down the ashtray she was fiddling with. "Why should I be nervous?"

"You have been—I've noticed it for days. You know it, Mother."

"It's because so many things are happening," defended Lucy brightly. "I'm nervous myself. Every time I open a filing cabinet I halfway expect a bomb to go off."

"You've been listening to mystery plays on the radio," Marian drawled.

"We don't have a radio," Lucy returned, calmly.

Wallace Withers came promptly. He had on his funeral suit, he was blue-shaven and rather pompous. He looked doubtful when Marian and Lucy Fields were introduced.

"I came up here to talk business—" he began.

"Lucy knows all my business," Virgie was short, "and you can talk before my daughter."

Withers settled himself, a bit uneasily, in David Morgan's high-backed chair. Virgie sat, straight and uncompromising, on the opposite side of the fire. She had regained her poise, she felt cool again, in command. Wallace Withers was just another countryman with a shrewd way of getting along. She had handled enough men like him in her career. They began being clumsily gallant, usually, then tried to outsmart her.

Wallace Withers put his long fingers together.

"I've got a matter of some importance to discuss," he began. "I reckon you know what it is?"

"I suppose it's Perry Bennett's timber. You knew I was trading for that piece so you skinned around and got in ahead of me. That wasn't a neighborly thing to do. What do you want for it?" Virgie wasted no words.

Withers studied his knuckles elaborately. "I didn't come up here to talk about the Bennett timber, Virgie. It ain't for sale. I got other things on my mind. I reckon you've been told that two fellers from up east—name of Hooper and Payne—have got claims allowed by the court on that piece of stuff Tom Pruitt claims he owns, on Hazel Fork?"

"I heard it. But they won't timber it. I went over day before yesterday and filed foreclosure suits for Tom.' So if you got roped into that business and came up here to argue about it, Wallace, you might as well save your breath. Tom's in jail, but he isn't friendless. He's an old man—a mountain man—and he dealt with those skunks like a mountain man would do. But the law won't beat him out of what is his—not if I can help it."

"I didn't come here to talk about Pruitt, either," Wallace went on. "Though I might as well tell you your foreclosure suit won't interfere with Hooper and Payne—not likely. There's claims that come ahead of first mortgages—claims that have got priority in law."

"What claims?"

"Labor claims. A mechanics' lien supersedes most any other kind of claim—you know that, I reckon."

"When did any mechanic ever set foot on Hazel Fork?"

"There was roads built there—and gradin' done and gravel bauled—"

"Mighty sorry roads. And mighty little of them is left now."

"That ain't here nor there, Virgie. The men who built 'em never got paid."

"So this Hooper and Payne and that man Cragg, I suppose, bought up the labor claims?"

"The court allowed the claims they bold. They financed this Phillips" bunch and all they got was notes and liens—with Pruitt's lien standing ahead of 'em. They had to protect themselves. But they're business men—and they think this country has got a future. They think there's going to be money made over here—in lumber and in by-products."

But Wallace refused to be hurried.

"What did you come here to talk to me about?" Virgie demanded, abruptly, while Lucy made little, frigbtened, scribbling marks on her paper. "When you talk by-products you mean pulp. What's on your mind?"

But Wallace refused to be hurried. He made a steeple with his long fingers, and looked at her blandly over the crest of it.

"There will be," he announced, in an oratorical tone, "big developments in this country—if you don't hinder them, Virgie Morgan."

"If I've been developing the country myself, for a few years! I'd be the last person on earth to hinder anything that was for the good of this country. But—you aren't talking about the good of the country, Wallace Withers. You're frying fish of your own—and I want plain talk, not speeches. What's your proposition?"

"With big business men getting behind things, in this county," he went on, still pompously, "I figure to travel with them, Virgie! Not fight 'em or oppose 'em. I don't aim to fight progress. I aim to get into it and make money along with the rest. So I come up here to talk business to you. I figure to buy your mill!"

CHAPTER XIII

There was an instant's silence.

Virgie sat without moving. Marian gave a little startled gasp and Lucy said vaguely, "Why—"

Then Virgie snorted. "I reckon I'll just have to go on standing in the way of progress, Wallace. Because you won't get my mill."

Withers hitched forward, his eyes showing points of anger.

"I reckon you didn't understand me, Virgie. I want your mill—and I'm going to get it. I've got money behind me—big money. I can get the timber and I can get the markets. I figure on getting into the pulp business."

"And just how," Virgie asked deliberately, "do you plan to get possession of my mill?"

"I figure to buy it—at a fair price, taking account of the depreciation in the value of the stock and the depreciation of the property. I got a right to do it." Slow red crept up into his face. "I figure to buy that property and improve it."

"It needs improvement, does it?" "You know the shape that mill's in! Look here, what's that Fields girl writing down everything I say for?"

"This is a business conference. You said so yourself. I may not know enough to run a pulp mill but I do know enough to run a business conference. Lucy's taking notes because I told her to do it."

"You'd better take a note of this, Virgie—I'm offering an opportunity to sell. If you won't sell—then I figure to put you out of business!"

"You did some fancy figuring, didn't you, Wallace? You must have strained your mind, getting all those high aims and ambitions into language. Too bad it's all going to waste—all that brain power. You could run for something and maybe get elected if you put all your eloquence on the job. As it is, you're just wasting your breath. My mill won't be for sale—tomorrow nor any other day. Not so long as I can find a green stick in this country to grind into pulp. So—this business conference seems to me to be practically over!"

He stood up and Lucy, watching in a sort of fascinated awe over her note-book, saw that his bands trembled. His lips drew back a little showing bis yellow teeth.

"Your mill will be for sale, Virgie Morgan! If it ain't for sale today—it will be. It will be! I don't figure to be balked in what I set out to do. Not by anybody. You better do a little thinking, Virgie. You'll sell to me—reasonable—or I'll get capital and put you out of business. Now I'll thank you for my hat."

She bad not, Virgie thougbt thankfully, afterward, put him out of the house. She had kept her temper and she bad kept her head. But when be bad gone rattling away in his old car, she strode the length of the room and punched the fire savagely.

"The old pea-ben! The old ant-eater! Put me out of business, will he? My mill's falling in, is it?"

From a corner came Marian's worried voice. "He migbt do it, Mother."

"He migbt do it?" Virgie was grateful for an outlet for her sizzling wrath. "He might run for Congress—he might try to blow up Whiteside Mountain, too. But where would be get? Nowhere! He's trying to bluff me out — the penny-pinching old bound dog! He's sore because he couldn't marry my mill and get it without putting out a cent. I know Wallace Withers. I've known him most of his life—as well as though I bad stirred up the mud to make him!"

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST'S CONCERN FOR THE LOST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

Lost! What fear and disquietude grips our hearts when we hear that word! A little boy strays away into the forest, and the whole countryside gives up its work to go and seek him. An airship fails to reach its destination, and hundreds of ships go to seek after it, while an entire nation waits in suspense. A ship is lost at sea, and the whole world grieves.

But listen! It is only when applied to the spiritual life that the word "lost" finds its real depth of meaning. To be "without God in the world" (Eph. 2:12) and without hope—that is to really be lost. Yet parents who would not rest a moment while their child was physically lost go on without concern over his spiritual condition.

Our Lord had no such unconcern. He was deeply moved over the lost condition of men; He came "to seek and to save that which was lost." The two parables of our lesson teach us three truths.

I. Lost and Lamented (vv. 1-4, 8). The publicans and sinners recognized their need of a Saviour and He, knowing their lost condition, received them, much to the disgust of the Pharisees and scribes who felt no need to be saved. They have their descendants in our churches today.

The good shepherd cannot rest while one of the sheep is lost. Though "there were ninety and nine that safely lay in the shelter of the fold," he sought the lost one. His grief-stricken heart compelled him to go out into the night to find him.

One wonders how we who profess to follow Christ, the Good Shepherd, can be so complacent about the lost. What if we do have the ninety and nine in church—where is the lost one? Even if we do have a large Sunday School class—where are the boys and girls who are lost? Do our hearts grieve over them? If so, we will go and seek them. We who would quickly join the woman in seeking for her coin—will we join the Saviour in seeking the lost?

II. Sought by Sacrifice (vv. 4, 8). The woman laid aside her usual duties and the pleasures of life to seek her coin. The shepherd left the warmth, the comfort, and the rest which he had earned to go out into the wilderness to seek his sheep.

"But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed;
Nor how dark was the night that the Lord passed through Ere He found His sheep that was lost."

Soul-winning calls for sacrifice. If the love of Christ constrains us, we will do it gladly, but if the self-seeking, comfort-loving spirit of this age controls our lives, we will always find some excuse (not a reason, but an excuse).

III. Restored With Rejoicing (vv. 5-7, 9, 10). The lost coin back in the owner's hand brought joy to her and her neighbors. The shepherd calls in friends and neighbors to rejoice over the restored sheep. How intensely human that is, and how altogether appropriate.

The great truth, however, is found in verses 7 and 10, where we learn that the repentance of one sinner sets even the bells of heaven ringing as the angels of God rejoice.

How long is it, my Christian friend, since you caused such joy by permitting yourself to be used of God in winning a soul? Yes, I know that it is God who seeks, but He uses human beings as His messengers, as His seekers. That is our first business after we ourselves have been saved.

Our lesson will not be complete unless we consider the rest of the chapter—the parable of the prodigal son. In its main points it is like the other two parables, but there is this vital difference—the shepherd sought his sheep, the woman searched for her coin—the father did not seek the son; the son sought the father.

Some prodigal, far from the house of his heavenly Father, may read these lines and say, "I wish someone would seek me out and bring me to God." But, my friend, you need not wait for anyone. Do as the prodigal did—"arise and go" to God. He is waiting for you; His love has never faltered; He wants you to come now. Make His heart rejoice, and set the choirs of heaven singing, by coming to Him by faith—just now.

As Ye Go, Preach

And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.—Matthew X, 7-8.

Twenty Years Ago In Our Neighboring Communities From The Walton Advertiser

R. C. Green, president and cashier of the Walton Bank & trust Co., spent Friday in Cincinnati on business.

—o—

M. M. Lucas, formerly of Bank Lick, but who now resides in Gallatin county, near Glencoe, was here Monday attending the tobacco sales on the Farmers' warehouse floor. He sold 3,600 pounds of tobacco at that warehouse for which he received over $900.00, the prices ranging from $4 to $50 per hundred and was well pleased with the prices.

—o—

Carroll Dugan of Union, was here on business Monday and attended the tobacco sales on the loose leaf market.

—o—

Born—To Rev. and Mrs. R. F. DeMoisey last Wednesday, a fine nine-pound boy, Dr. G. G. Rankins attending physician.

—o—

J. V. Violette, of Crittenden, attended the tobacco sales here Monday at the Farmers' warehouse, where he had some tobacco on sale. While here he made the Advertiser a pleasant call.

—o—

Miss Addie Ellis and R. B. Parsley, of Huntington, W. Va., were married Sunday afternoon. Rev. H. W. Whitaker performed the ceremony.

—o—

Robert Crisler, wife and bright little son Carlton, of Covington, spent from Friday until Sunday here visiting his sister, Mrs. Sarah Glenn, of High Street, who has been quite ill but has about recovered.

—o—

There were 143,420 pounds of tobacco on the floor at the Farmers' Loose Leaf Warehouse Monday, and the sales amounted to 135,000 pounds with rejections of 8,420 pounds. The average for the day was $19.15 per hundred, which was considered a good average price considering the number of low grade baskets sold. The prices ranged from $1.00 to $55.00 per hundred. One crop of about 2200 pounds, belonging to W. H. Bagly, averaged $41.75.

HAMILTON

John Jones and son visited his father several times this week at his home in Florence. Mr. Jones' condition doesn't seem to improve. We pray for his speedy recovery.

Friends in this community were sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. Addie Burriss, but glad to hear she is improving at this writing. Mrs. Burriss is at the home of Mrs. Harry Jones in Erlanger, during her illness of a severe case of flu, which settled in her throat gland making it necessary to have it lanced. We pray for her speedy recovery.

Twenty-four men of this community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Len Hubbard last Wednesday to strip his tobacco, which he had been unable to strip during the illness and death of his father. Mrs. Orin Edward and Mrs. Wm. Arrsmith spent the day with Mrs. Hubbard.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huff and daughter were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Black.

A surprise birthday was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jones in honor of their father, Waller D. Jones, 72nd birthday. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Chandler and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Jones, Mrs. Esther Fields, Rev. Roy Johnson of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. Will Rogers of Georgetown, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Shields and children of Beaver Lick, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Aylor, James and Marvin Jones, Waller Jones, Paul, John and Dorothy Shields, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jones and children.

Wilbert Pitcher is stationed at the CCC Camp at Georgetown, Ky. Wilbert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Pitcher, and left for camp last week.

Clara Mae Hamilton was the guest of Mrs. Bertha Huff Wednesday and Thursday.

Conner Carroll, Harry and Tom Huff were in Carrollton, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones and children are recovering from bad attacks of the flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ryle called on Mr. and Mrs. Tom Huff Saturday afternoon.

Hamilton Farmers and Little Farmers took two games of basket ball from New Haven Friday night at Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gabbard visited their relatives over the week end.

Billye Wilson entertained the Y. W. A. at her home Thursday evening for their regular meeting.

There Is Hope

THERE is no hopelessness to those who trust in God as the loving, omnipotent, omnipresent Father and protector that He has been through all the ages. In periods of deep distress, such as the world is now passing through, the suggestion of futility presents itself over and over again. The belief in fatality attempts to establish the sense that man is a helpless victim of evil.

During times of war this false sense may say: "What is the use? What can be gained? There is no certain way out." But there is hope. There is always a way out. Even when the evidence before the physical senses seems aggressive, God is All, His glorious supremacy unchanged. When thoughts are deeply stirred, then do the words of Christ Jesus come clearly to us (Luke 21:28), "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."

Every effort of mortal mind to tear down, to destroy, turns thought to the power of God and His goodness; for the destruction which seems to rage requires of us a clearer realization of the eternal fact that since God is omnipresent, He is ever at hand. As we turn to Him unreservedly, the loveliness of divine reality appears to our spiritualized thought.

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 97), "The more destructive matter becomes, the more its nothingness will appear, until matter reaches its mortal zenith in illusion and forever disappears." The effort of evil is to make all men acknowledge that it is something, and that it has power; that the world is in a critical condition; that civilization is threatened; that evil can overthrow good; but the old adage comes to thought with renewed clarity: "It is always darkest just before the dawn." In the midst of strife and darkness it may seem hard to comprehend the allness of God; but the childlike trust which loves Him, finds Him always at hand. . . .

The disappearance of evil is assured, even when error attempts to make itself heard above the ringing voice of Truth. Because of the oppressiveness of error one may seem to be hypnotized by it. But if, instead, one maintains his poise and quietness of heart, above the discordant cries of mortal belief the clear, ringing call of Truth will be heard. It can never be silent, but one requires spiritual listening in order to be aware of it. Truth is not in the detonations of error, but one must lift one's thought to be able to hear the tones of good. . . .

The Bible continually points to life as eternal, and reveals man as one with God, Life. There should therefore be no despondency, no despair, no sense of uselessness, no lack of hope. We are not looking sadly upon the ashes of our endeavors. Rather are we looking up to see materiality disappear in the revelation of true being. Today offers rich opportunities to prove the supremacy of Spirit. Only in this way can we overcome the seeming aggressiveness of evil, and realize that God, good, is All.

It is easy to yield to utter hopelessness in the face of evil claims of large numbers, greater force, or a cunning craftiness; but Mind is able to destroy any seeming cleverness that mortal mind may present, and there is never a moment when Mind is absent. Man is always in the presence of his heavenly Father. Mind illumines, protects, and leads from darkness into light. No matter how clouded the way, how desperate the situation, how befogged the mental outlook may appear to be, the one omnipresent divine intelligence leads into the enlightening knowledge of safety.

In her Message to The Mother Church for 1902, Mrs. Eddy writes (p. 11), "Divine Love waits and pleads to save mankind — and awaits with warrant and welcome, grace and glory, the earth-weary and heavy-laden who find and point the path to heaven."—The Christian Science Monitor.

VIGOR OF GROWING CROPS DEPENDS ON FERTILITY OF SOIL

CHICAGO.—The health and vigor of growing farm crops depends directly on the health and vigor of the soil that produces them, according to a bulletin made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Farmers everywhere in the Middle West," says the bulletin, "are finding that they cannot continually draw against the fertility account of their land without making some substantial deposits in the form of necessary plant foods.

"Only by a steady program of fertility replacement and soil building practices can the continuous productivity of a farm be assured.

"The alert Middle Western farmer spends an average of several hundred dollars each year on the repair of his buildings, machinery, fences and in the purchase of new equipment. However, he spends, on an average, less than thirty dollars for the purchase of fertilizer to replace vital plant food elements removed every year by growing crops. Yet even this small investment means a greater return on his crops and improvements in the form of soil repair.

GROWING NEED FOR SOIL IMPROVEMENT ON MIDWEST FARMS

CHICAGO.—Consumption of fertilizer averages less than half a ton per farm on the 2,240,636 farms of the Middle West, according to a statement compiled here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Approximately 1,000,000 tons of fertilizer are used annually on farms in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas," the statement sets forth. "This means that the average consumption is less than 1,000 pounds per farm.

"Research by the soil scientists of state agricultural colleges and experiment stations throughout this region proves that there is an increasing need for fertilizer on most Midwestern farms.

Serious Deficiency.

"Thousands of samples of soil taken by farmers from their own fields are analyzed by agronomists in these various states every year. The tests reveal that most of these soils are low in at least one and perhaps all three of the major plant foods—nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. Since plants cannot thrive without an adequate diet any more than human beings or livestock can, the use of fertilizer on such soils would result in higher yields and in crops of greatly improved quality.

"Experience under practical growing conditions has proved that fertilizer can be profitably utilized in the production of practically every farm crop grown in the Middle West.

"All things being favorable, a farmer can sometimes expect a dividend of scveral hundred per cent from an investment in fertilizer. There are other important benefits. Fertilizer increases resistance to disease and promotes earlier maturity. One of its chief virtues is its residual value—that is, passing on to the crops which follow, benefits in the form of increased soil fertility."

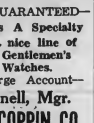
IN MEMORIAM



In loving memory of our beloved husband and father, Jess R. Allphin.

Time speeds on years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will
His vacant place there's none can fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again.

Sadly missed by his Wife, and children, George and Mary.

Community Welfare Association Organized

CANVASS TO RAISE FUNDS TO BEGIN FEBRUARY 3RD

Citizens of Walton and surrounding territory are uniting to promote a program that will be to the general welfare of the entire community. The purposes of the organization as outlined at preliminary meetings are as follows:

"To provide a board that will act as a clearing committee for all applications for assistance that are presented to individual citizens or organizations.

"To investigate and decide the needs and the extent of aid to be given in each separate case.

"To give aid, on a basis of willingness to work, save in emergencies. The individual in the association, representing the group which received the request for aid will act as an investigator of the case involved.

"It is to be the policy of the association to attempt to provide work, of some type, for all aid given.

"The Association shall include in the program, aid to such community interests as Boy Scouts, Girl Reserves, and any other worthy cause which presents itself.

"Serious problems of Community Welfare have presented themselves to individuals and groups. This has been especially true, in recent weeks. Our inability to meet them individually has caused us to unite our efforts. We feel that such efforts will enable us to better solve existing problems as well as those arising in the future. Our aim is also to find a preventative for cases that doubtless will present themselves in the future.

"No doubt the public will feel the gravity of the situation and will support this effort to adjust such an organization to the needs of the community.

"All Civic, Religious and Fraternal groups are urged to become a part of the association. Any group desiring to join in this movement are urged to choose someone to represent them.

The organization has been formed to function locally and has no connection with, nor is it sponsored by, any national group. Necessary funds for the operation of this program will be raised by personal solicitation and contribution.

"Citizens present at the organizational meeting were C. W. Ransler, Rev. J. Russell Cross, Rev. J. H. Talley, Russell Hall, Rev. C. J. Alford, Mrs. Edith Stephenson, Rev. Porterfield, (colored), Mrs. Olivia Wills, Miss Mary Ransler, Mrs. Anna Pearl Gaines, Mrs. Jessie Pruett, John L. Vest, and Clinton F. Cleek.

"Officers selected by this group were: Rev. J. H. Talley, chairman; Russell M. Hall, vice chairman; Clinton F. Cleek, secretary; Powers R. Conrad, treasurer.

"Advisory committee: C. W. Ransler, J. L. Vest and Elmer Ross (colored).

"The canvass to raise funds will begin Monday, February 3. Anyone living outside Walton may send their contribution to Powers Conrad, treasurer.

"In view of the fact that the burden of welfare and relief of the local community will be borne by this group, we urge you to contribute liberally when solicited. We ask you to refer any application you may receive personally to the executive committee."—Executive Committee.

WINTER FRUIT MEETINGS PLANNED

Boone county will hold two winter fruit meetings on Monday, February 10th, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. The meetings are in cooperation with farmers in Burlington and Hebron 1941 Community Agricultural Programs of work and W. W. Magill, College of Agriculture Field Agent.

The morning meeting will be held at 9:40 a. m., at the farm of B. C. Stephens of near Burlington. The afternoon meeting will be held at 1:00 p. m., on the farm of William Moore of near Hebron. All fruit growers are invited to attend.

District Utopia Conference at Hebron

Boone County Utopia Club members will be host to the Northern Kentucky District Utopia Conference, to be held at Hebron on Saturday, February 8th, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Members from Trimble, Kenton, Campbell, Grant, Gallatin, Bracken, Carroll, Owen, Pendleton, Oldham and Henry counties are expected to attend.

Speakers on the afternoon program include Professor N. R. Elliott, Landscape Architecture Specialist; Dr. W. D. Valleau, outstanding plant breeder and developer of many of our improved tobacco and corn varieties; Professor E. S. Good, head animal husbandry department, College of Agriculture; Miss Vivian Curnutt, home economist and Miss Dorothy Trelkeld, 4-H club specialist. Hebron P.T. A. will serve the evening dinner.

The evening program will be devoted to folk games and recreational features, under the supervision of Carl W. Jones, specialist in older boys' and girls' club work.

Reservations for the dinner program should be made at the county or home agents' office.

4-H AGE LIMITS

The ripper age limit for 4-H club membership has been raised from 18 years to 21 years of age, according to word received at the county agent's office from the State Club Department. The rule is that boys and girls who are not 21 years of age on or before January 1st of a given year are eligible for membership during that year. This change in rules will affect many club members who have continued their 4-H membership even after graduating from high school.

For several years Kentucky club members have been handicapped in National contests because of their upper age limit of 18, while surrounding states had a limit of 21. Beginning this year club members between 18 and 21 will be eligible for all State contests as well as National competition.

Farm, Home Meet Attracts Many

"Understanding the World in Which We Live" is the general theme at the women's sessions at the 29th annual Farm and Home Convention at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, January 28-31. The meetings for women are being held all four days in Memorial Hall.

Women's part in national defense, world conditions and farm families, South American friends, reventing peasantry in America, increasing the use of cotton, and women's stake in democracy, are some of the subjects of speakers.

A style show of cotton clothing and a demonstration in cotton mattress making will be features of the women's programs. All sessions are open to all women, and arrangements were made to accommodate a large attendance.

One entire afternoon will be devoted to the problem of food conservation and health in a national emergency, with speakers from a dozen or more counties in the State.

On the last day of the convention the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers will hold its annual meeting, with Mrs. H. L. Crafton of Henderson, president, in charge.

Kenton county women attending the convention are: Mrs. Lyman Faulk, Mrs. Edw. Hauser, Mrs. Elmer Carlson, Mrs. Raymond Eubanks, Mrs. George Klein, Mrs. Charles Carter, Mrs. H. Schmidt, Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, Mrs. Sam Glacken, Mrs. J. E. Beers and Miss Zelma E. Byerly, Home Demonstration Agent.

TO ORGANIZE W. C. T. U., FRIDAY

A meeting will be held at the Methodist church, on Friday afternoon, January 31st, at 2:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Women of all denominations are cordially invited to attend. Mrs. Addie R. Bowman, of Ft. Thomas, State Corresponding Secretary, will preside.

LITERARY CLUB TO MEET

The Literary Club will meet Wednesday afternoon, February 5, at 2:00 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Robert Conrad on South Main Street. An interesting and instructive program will be carried out, so members are requested to mark the date.

49,452 Tons Lime Used In 16 Years

Boone county has used 49,452 tons of agricultural limestone during the past 16 years, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Four hundred thirteen farmers used 9,182 tons of limestone during 1940. This number represents almost one-third of all farmers in the county.

The amount of limestone used during the past 16 years amounts to .7 tons per acre of cropland. The average application of limestone is around two tons per acre with many farms using three tons or more per acre on alfalfa land that is inclined to be flat or sour at the time of seeding.

Limestone and phosphate used together have more than doubled the yields of hay and pasture crops with the increased yield of these crops being received for a period of years. A good application of phosphate will last for four years or more and an application of limestone 10 years or more.

The hundreds of Boone county farmers, who have used limestone, cannot be wrong as to its profitable returns. Those who use lime for the first year invariably come back for greater use of lime in years that follow. For example, in 1926 only 31 farmers used lime; in 1936, 112 farmers used lime; in 1937, 150 used lime; in 1938, 307 farmers; in 1939, 293; and 413 in 1940.

Limestone under the AAA Agricultural Conservation Program, is now available to farmers as Grant of Aid. Eighty per cent of the soil building allowance can be secured in ground agricultural limestone delivered the farm by application through the County Office in Burlington. The following dealers have contract to deliver limestone:

Bearcats Lose 4th Consecutive Game

It seems to be getting to a point where we might use a song title, "The Same Old Story," as a lead line for Walton-Verona basketball results.

On the home floor, Tuesday night, the Bearcats lost their fourth straight game, bowing to Dry Ridge, leaders in the Penogran Conference, 27 to 23. Except on one occasion, at Newport, have the locals really been outclassed, but they are now losing the close ones, whereas, before this slump they were winning the tight games. We wouldn't attempt to explain this situation—except as "one of those things." We believe the Cats can, and will, snap out of it—so come on boys, let's get going!

In the Tuesday tussle, Dry Ridge was leading 18 to 12 at the half. Lowe, Dry Ridge center, was high scorer of the game, with 13 points. For the losers, Welsh and McElroy led, with six points each.

In the preliminary game, Walton's reserves hung up an easy victory, subduing the Ridge second team 38 to 6.

Newport Comes Here Friday

Friday night, January 31, the big red Wildcats of Newport come to Walton for two games, and on next Tuesday night the Bearcats will play a Conference game, their opponents being Burlington.

GARDEN SPECIALIST TO ADDRESS COMMITTEEMEN

John S. Gardner, garden field gent, College of Agriculture, will discuss the garden problems and the 1941 Live at Home Program in a county meeting at Burlington on Tuesday, February 4th, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

Representatives from the Homemakers' clubs and leading farmers are invited to attend the meeting.

Ways for more effective use of the farm to produce the food supply needed to better feed the farm family, will be discussed.

In Graves county, 29,000 black locust and 7,000 pine seedlings have been bought.

Hatcherymen to Aid 4-H Club Members

Grant Maddox of Florence, and Conners' Hatchery of Hebron, have arranged to provide baby chicks to Boone county 4-H club members without cash outlay, at the time of receipt of the chickens.

These local hatcherymen are offering this service to all Boone county poultry club members. The club member agrees to return the cash value of a proportionate number of broilers raised from these baby chicks. This arrangement affords a club member the opportunity of starting his project with a limited amount of cash and selling part of his chickens before it is necessary to pay for the baby chicks. Rather than ask for a definite amount of money to be returned for these chicks, the hatcherymen are willing to accept the money which might be received from the sale of a proportion of the broilers. A definite proportion has not yet been arranged, but it is expected that 50 pounds of broilers should be returned on July 1 for each 100 chicks received.

Club members should contact the county agent's office for further information regarding this project, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. It is expected members will want to avail themselves of this opportunity to secure some early chicks and in some cases they will need to be ordered a few weeks before delivery is expected. All common breeds will be included in this service.

Funeral Rites Wed. For Murder-Suicide Victims

Double funeral services for Omer Hon, 45, and his wife, Mrs. Erma Hon, 40, whose deaths Monday at their farm on Richwood Road, Walton, Route 2, were attributed to murder and suicide by Boone County Coroner Everett Jones, were held Wednesday at 2:00 p. m. from the Kemper funeral home, Warsaw, with burial in the Warsaw cemetery.

Mrs. Hon was killed by two blasts from a single-barrel shotgun, fired by her husband. The first shot struck her hands and arms, and the second her face and neck. Hon locked himself in the milkhouse and fired a shot into his chest with the same gun, according to reports.

The bodies were found Monday by Robert Robinson, milk truck driver, who stopped at the farm to collect milk. When he noticed that the cans were not in their usual place, by the road, he went to the house.

Finding the residence and milkhouse locked, Mr. Robinson went to the Stanley Ransom home, from where Sheriff F. M. Walton and Deputy Sheriff Jake Williams of Burlington, were called.

On entering the house, the officers found the body of Mrs. Hon in a kneeling position on the bed, and Mr. Hon's body in the milkhouse.

A note, left by Mr. Hon, was found, requesting the person finding the bodies to notify his brother, Walter Hon of Elliston, and Chambers & Grubbs, funeral directors, Walton. He also requested, according to reports, that he and his wife be buried at Warsaw.

The bodies were brought to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home for preparation, and laid in state there until Wednesday, and then taken to Warsaw for services and burial.

It appears that neighbors heard no disturbance at the home Monday, but there was evidence of a scuffle in the kitchen before the shooting. Mrs. Hon had been in ill health for about ten years.

Mrs. Hon is survived by her mother, Mrs. Emma Kemper, a sister, Mrs. George Knox, both of Walton, Route 2, and a brother, William Kemper of Warsaw.

Mr. Hon leaves, besides his brother Walter, his mother, Mrs. Lillie Hon of Warsaw, two sisters, Mrs. Ora Furnish and Mrs. Daisy Hendron, both of Warsaw, and another brother, Albert Hon of Kansas.

Use of superphosphate on Leslie county farms has taken a jump after demonstrations showed it led to better crop yields.

LAND USE PLANNING PROGRAM STARTED

Richard Sandefur, assistant county agent in Land Use Planning Work, began work in Boone county the past week, on survey work necessary for developing the Land Use Planning Program. Approximately one year will be required to complete the first phase of this study, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

Land Use Planning studies have been made in a number of counties in recent years. Farmers at the completion of this work, have found much valuable information to be used as a basis for local agricultural improvement.

The land use program is based on the theory that most of our farm problems, both social and economic, revert directly back to the land itself. The program, on identifying the land problems, starts with the land as a basis for future solution and improvement. A number of farmers will be called upon during the year for advice and assistance in completing this study. It is hoped that all will cooperate as far as they can do so conveniently.

WILLING WORKERS' MEET WITH MRS. ALEEN CONNER

Mrs. Aleen Conner was hostess to the Willing Workers' Class of the Christian church, recently, when they met for their regular monthly gathering. Mrs. John Campbell, president conducted the business session, and Mrs. Lula Huey had charge of the devotions.

A delicious lunch was enjoyed by the following members and guests: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ransler, the Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Alderson, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Rice Mr. and Mrs. J. B. QUIET WEDDING AT HOME OF REV. T. H. ALDERSON

On Saturday, January 25, Miss Neva Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cross of Morning View, and Henry Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Marsh of near Walton, were quietly married at the home of the Christian minister, Rev. T. H. Alderson. Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Cross, cousins of the bride, accompanied them. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life together.

RETURNS TO FORMER HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rump, who have been making their home here the past few months, returned to their former home in Worthwhile, Saturday.

Mr. Rump is an employee of the L. & N. Railroad Co., and was assistant signal maintainer at Worthwhile before coming here. He has recently been promoted to signal maintainer at Worthwhile. Mr. E. W. Collins of Falmouth has taken over the position made vacant by Mr. Rump's promotion, for the present.

FISHING IS GOOD—IN FLORIDA!

Messrs. D. L. Lusby, John Wood and Pete Waters, business men of Walton, show evidence that they are enjoying fishing, as well as the sunshine in Florida. A barrell of beautiful fish (if fish can be called beautiful), which they caught at Tarpin Springs, has been received by Mr. Lusby's son, for their families. This is no "fish story," as the reporter saw these fish—and "seeing is believing.!"

Mrs. Patsy M. Stone

Mrs. Patsy M. Stone departed this life January 16th, 1941, at the age of 84 years, 8 months and 23 days. She leaves to mourn her passing, a husband, three daughters, four sisters and one brother, besides a number of other relatives and friends.

We realize her going was gain to her, for she has gone to be with Jesus. We could see her strength slowly failing these last years, and were reminded of what the scripture so truly says, "if man outlives his alloted time of three score years and ten, their last days shall be pain and weariness."

We shall miss her, but we have that hope sure and steadfast that we shall see her again some day as we gather with all the loved ones, who have gone on before.—Her Loved Ones.

Economic Highlights

A senator or representative of half a century ago, would shake his head in amazement at the congresses of recent years. Party lines, which once were almost impregnable, have cracked time and again. And now, with the introduction of the President's "all out for England" bill, they seem to have broken wide open.

Interesting commentary on this is found in the fact that the bill has been endorsed by Republican standard - bearer Wendell Willkie, with certain reservations—and that the principal Senate opposition to it is being led by a Democrat, Senator Wheeler of Montana.

Congressional reception of the bill ran the gamut of extremes. On one side, for instance, doughty Senator Johnson of California, veteran of many an historic debate, described it as "monstrous," and said that "it's up to Congress now to determine whether our government shall be as ordained or become a member of the totalitarian states." And on the other side, Senator Thomas of Utah, strongly interventionist, complained that the bill "is not as far-reaching as world events warrant. The President should have the power to send American ships with supplies into the combat zones."

It is obvious that the real fight on this bill will take place in the Senate—opposition in the House is now almost at its all-time low in effectiveness. A number of senators who have followed the President's foreign policy so far, were rather stunned by the sweeping terms in which the measure is framed. First shock was the provision whereby this country, by executive order, could repair British warships in our naval yards. That, according to lawyers, would amount to utter disregard of international law as it applies to neutrals, and would amount to an act of war. Even so, many congressmen now regard that as merely a detail—as just one more step in a program based on the belief that the survival and ultimate victory of England, and the little countries which are aiding her, is absolutely vital to this country's security. Bigger fight may come over the clause which authorizes the President to "promulgate such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act." That is obviously blanket authority.

The debate over this bill, and other aid-England measures, is not between those who are for Britain on the one hand, and those who are opposed to or cool to England's cause, on the other. The Congress, like the American people, is close to 100 per cent pro-English. But there are many who feel it unwise to give any man unlimited powers, on the grounds that this might lead to one-man government, which is another word for dictatorship. There are others who feel that this is a lesser risk than having Congress carry on long debates every time some new step to help England seems necessary or advisable.

The bill will apparently be fought to a finish, with neither side disposed to give quarter. Intimations came from the White House a few days after its introduction to the effect that the Administration would not oppose some modifications. But Senator Wheeler and his group said that they were out to defeat the measure in entirety.

Even so, prospects now seem highly favorable to its passing, with, perhaps, some stipulations to make it less of a "blank check" measure. Wendell Willkie suggested that a time clause be inserted, under which the powers would be granted for a fixed and limited term so that on some definite future date Congress would automatically review the bill again, and either continue or revoke it. Many favor this.

No one need wonder any longer about this country's neutrality. It doesn't exist. We are a non-belligerent participant in the war. Our relationship to England is about like that of Italy to Germany before Mussolini decided to go all the way. Recent polls indicate that the American public is in favor of our role as we are playing it now.

In military circles, the feeling that Hitler will soon make his supreme effort to defeat England is almost unanimous. Time is working with Britain. Hitler, the officers think, must win this year or centainly lose.

American correspondents in Germany report a feeling of complete and apparently sincere confidence on the part of Reich officials. England, some of them say, will be finished inside six months. Hitler is supposed to be perfecting his plans and organization now. The Germans think England can be broken by destroying her shipping, by greater air raids, and finally, by invasion when British morale has been weakened.

The British are convinced that, with unstinted American aid, they can't lose. They say they have some new weapons which will prove highly unpleasant surprises invaders. The Germans still talk about new weapons too. So far, however, despite all such talk, this war hasn't produced anything but improvements on old weapons.

Britain has just adopted tighter food rationing. German diet is reported still on the downgrade. Europe will be a mightly hungry place when the war ends.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

The astounding scope of the lend-lease plan may have taken some people's breath, but it certainly should make clear to the nation what it means for America to be the arsenal for democracy.

It means that this country is going to supply arms and munitions for nations all over the globe—not only the British Isles—to fight against dictatorship.

For the present at least this does not call for man-power in uniform, but in overalls running machines in plants and factories. And if these men are to give their all to producing defense goods, naturally some of them must stop working on things they have been making.

That industry recognizes the size of the job is apparent. Auto makers, for instance, have been working three months on plans to turn out airplane parts. Now they are talking about abandoning their annual automobile show. Even if they had to go a step farther and not develop new models for next year, that wouldn't be so bad. Some nations in the war aren't producing any automobiles at all for general sale.

It is a tremendous task for the people and for industry. Last June industry, through the National Association of Manufacturers, made clear that it would take 18 months to two years to produce goods needed "even to approximate the requirements of reasonable national defense."

Now, however, we are to supply all democracies. So the job is bigger, but if it proceeds at its present pace it might even be done in the same time.

One manufacturer, for example reports that since the end of 1938 he has increased production of defense goods 600 per cent. On the basis of the new appeal he now has submitted a proposition to the government to increase it 300 per cent more, making his total increase 900 per cent.

This manufacturer knows that he already can turn out more of his particular kind of goods than the country ever would need in peace. But he is going ahead just the same.

This is but one of the many cases that have been cited to Washington and is not reported because it is the exception but because it promises to become the rule.

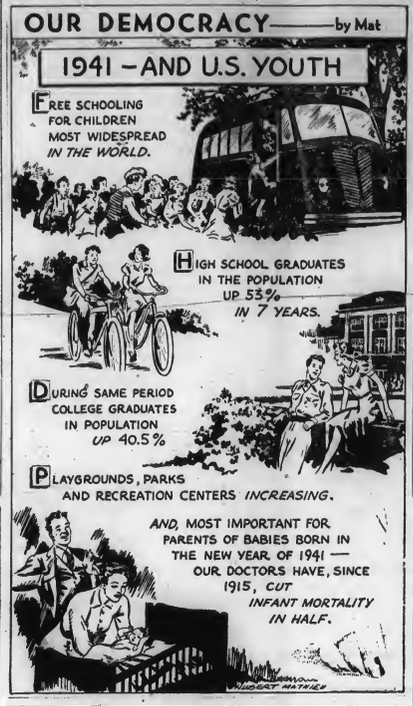
Since it takes time to build new plants, efforts are being made from all sides to bring into play the small shops which are not big enough to get a contract from the government themselves. Manufacturers who do get contracts from the government are farming them out to these small shops.

In this particular field, considerable attention was attracted in Washington to a survey of these smaller establishments being made by the National Industrial Council. When this is completed this month, productive resources in every nook and cranny of the land should be available for use.

While all emphasis is on defense, however, people shouldn't lose sight of other problems. It is being proposed in Washington that unemployment benefits under the Social Security Act be boosted to $25 a week.

That is, first, a lot more money than many working people make; and second, it would bring the unemployed into the income-tax paying brackets.

That would be funny, wouldn't it? Taxing people to pay unemployment insurance and then taxing the payments.



Here is a bit of bad news for readers of small newspapers, many of which already have been hit hard by taxes.

Rep. Cannon of Missouri proposes that the Wage-Hour law be extended to more of them. In H. R. 64, introduced the first day of the session, he would limit exemption from the law to weeklies or semi-weeklies with circulation of less than 3,000, the major portion of which readership must be in the county of publication.

Under the present law, even some dailies are exempt if their circulation does not exceed 5,000 and if most of their circulation is within 25 miles of the place of publication.

This is bad news for readers because some of their papers might be forced to suspend publication if this bill becomes law.

Neighborliness

The art of being a good neighbor has by no means disappeared, but in our standardization of life by the rules of urban society we are likely to lose much of the neighborliness that once characterized all of us. By no means are we harder-hearted, as can be shown every year by the generous response to Community Chests and other forms of charity, but we let our dollars or materials do the work that people in other days did themselves. Long years in a town atmosphere has made us sometimes forget how genuine is the sentiment of old-fashioned interest in what is happening to those whom chance made our nearest neighbors and our friends as a matter of course. When I went back to Fidelity not so long ago to the funeral of my oldest brother, I marveled all the time I was there at the genuine old neighborliness that has never been allowed to die or to weaken. Though my brother had died suddenly late one afternoon, by what we would call early morning the neighbor women had brought in all sorts of food, for it was known that many friends and relatives from a distance would be on hand. Some of those good neighbors must have sat up all night preparing food for this occasion .I had almost forgotten that graves were still dug by the neighbor boys and men. The weather was very warm, there had been a long drought, but help was plentiful for the hard, back-breaking toil. Not to have laid away a citizen in the fashion that the community had always practiced would have smacked of lack of respect, for the man himself and for the community. I came away from Fidelity even prouder of my long connection with it; I hope that ages will pass before this old-fashioned neighborliness will go out of style.

In the very nature of thnigs warmth and neighborliness such as this does not exist in the towns and cities. Probably it is impossible, anyway. But all of the younger generation reared in urban atmospheres have missed something very fine by not knowing the genuine feeling of responsibility and neighborhood pride attached to these customs and others equally good.

Just recently a well-to-do village in the state sent out word for corner-carriers, rafter-makers, and other professionals to assemble for a house-raising. A society of farm boys in the high school of the village had planned to build a clubhouse. One generous man donated the logs, other skilled men and boys hewed them, and then came the old-fashioned house-raising. It made a good item in the paper and caused many of us to recall how ordinary and matter-of-fact such things were in our boyhood. Quaint old customs, you will say, and probably a mere revival of them that will not last long, but for the education of those farm boys in neighborliness I can think of nothing finer. I would hate to see us become such creatures of the state as some of the European peoples, but it would not hurt us to feel again the strange thrill and pride in neighborhood affairs that all of us once had and that most people of the rural sections have never lost.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

SOCIAL AND PERSONALS

BRACHT STATION

Here is just a "Daily Thought" for us:

Let us take up our duty, whatever we can do to make the world more beautiful and good. Do what we can to help every struggling soul, to add strength to any staggering cause—the poor sick man who is beside us; the poor wronged man, whom we, with our influence, can vindicate; the poor boy in our shops that we may set with new hope upon the road of life which is already beginning to look dark to him. We should know our duty. For none of us ever looked for it and did not find it.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Thomas Powers is very poorly again, with complication of diseases.

Clarence Riley and two of his neighbors motored down to Louisville, last week, seeking employment and placing application for same with the contractors on the Government work, which is in progress in that section.

E. F. Bales was helping Mr. Crosswight a couple of days last week ,with some carpenter work around his home.

Mr. Tom Sebree, better known as "Grandad Sebree", is very low at this writing, suffering with flu.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Walton have been away on a business tour, for several days.

Harold Rosensteal and wife called on Mr. and Mrs. Bales one evening last week.

Miss Fay Huffman spent the afternoon with Mrs. Bales, Wednesday.

The dedication and celebration of the "Woodland Inn," which opened its doors for the first time last Thursday evening, was largely attended, and all reported a lovely and enjoyable evening.

Homer Huffman and wife were business visitors in Independence one day last week.

E. Huff and E. F. Bales were in Walton on business one afternoon last week.

Several from this vicinity attended the funeral of Mrs. Reed, in Crittenden, Sunday.

Fay Huffman is employed as waitress at the Woodland Inn.

Mr. Crosswright of this place, is anticipating leaving for Florida within the next few days, where he will spend the remainder of the winter.

Miss Mary Murphy and brother Sam, have been entertaining their older brother, Frank Murphy and family of Ohio, the past two weeks.

T. L. Stephenson and family of this place, visited the former's parents of Green Road, several days last week.

Little Master Harold Conrad spent the day, Sunday, with his aunt, Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, of this vicinity.

"Honor and shame from no condition rise,
Act well your part,—
There's where all the honor lies."

Our Tobacco Situation

It surely presents a dark picture, the prices of today do not represent an actual loss to growers, but they come so close, as to make one's hair stand on end. People are complaining and growling about the selling system. In Washington the Government is "raising Ned" with the big tobacco companies, charging conspiracy between them to set prices. But, judging from the way prices are going, the Government isn't scaring the big boys very badly. It seems odd, in a way, that four or five big companies can continue to tell thousands of farmers where to head in.

Everything seems to have gone wrong, in regard to our tobacco situation, but all of these same troubles have been going on for years; we are no worse off than our fathers were, and our fathers didn't learn their lesson then. And if we don't mind we won't learn our's now. What the farmers need, is not necessarily less tobacco, but better tobacco.

Every farmer knows that good tobacco usually commands a good price—most men know when they have good tobacco. They know they can't sell bad red tobacco for a big price. Let us wake up. Don't be discouraged, for 1940 has been one of the worst tobacco growing years in a long time. Remember the drought in most sections until late August and September, then the rains came and much too much rain. What tobacco needs is temperate weather; our results in quality way below par in most sections.

But, let us remember that God our Almighty, was mostly responsible for our shortage and our prices this season, not so much of the man of today.

So let us hope and pray for a better season this year, 1941.

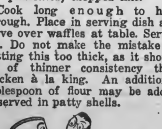
WAFFLE PARTY



If you were one of the lucky persons who was presented with a shiny new waffle iron at Christmas time, no doubt you will be showing it off at a waffle party soon. But even if your iron isn't this year's model you will be clever to entertain in this way, since it is easy to do and everyone has a special fondness for golden brown waffles.

Here is a grand sauce for serving with waffles—creamed chicken made quickly and given extra flavor by prepared cream of mushroom soup as an ingredient.

Creamed Chicken for Waffles

Melt—
1 tablespoon butter.
Add, blending well—
2 tablespoons flour.
Cook until bubbling, then add—
1 medium (16-oz.) can cream of mushroom soup. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened.
Add—
1 small can or 1½ cups diced cooked chicken
1 cup canned or fresh cooked peas
2 pimientos, chopped fine.

Cook long enough to heat through. Place in serving dish and serve over waffles at table. Serves six. Do not make the mistake of getting this too thick, as it should be of thinner consistency than chicken à la king. An additional tablespoon of flour may be added if served in patty shells.

Liver to Everyone's Liking

Liver—that food doctors and dietitians recognize as such a valuable source of iron—is enjoyed for its characteristic flavor by many people, but others find it more to their liking if it appears in a combination dish which partially hides its flavor. The following recipe, which joins liver with cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese, will help you do your duty by your family's health in a way that they appreciate, for there is a certain nippy tang in the sauce that makes this blend of flavors a particular delight.

Spaghetti with Liver and Onions

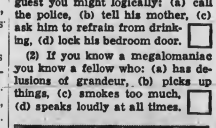
Brown—
1 small onion, finely chopped
in—
3 tablespoons butter.
Add—
¾ lb. calf's liver, finely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper.
Cook 5 minutes, then add—
2 tablespoons finely minced parsley.
Heat—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce.

Heap spaghetti onto hot platter, then arrange liver mixture over top. Serves six.

Well-Sauced Cocktail

A well sauced fish cocktail is an auspicious beginning for a festive dinner party and surprisingly simple to prepare. Fish flakes, such as crab need only to be chilled in the can, while shrimp takes only a little extra time for removing the dark line before chilling. For an expertly seasoned sauce, tomato ketchup gives you the full-bodied basis you need, and it is a simple matter to add the extra piquant touches which makes it a delightful cocktail sauce.

Cocktail Sauce



Combine, then let stand 10 minutes—
1 tablespoon evaporated horseradish
2 tablespoons cold water.
Add—
½ cup tomato ketchup
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt.

Blend thoroughly and chill. Serve over crab meat or other sea food cocktails. Serves 6 to 8.

● Here's a quiz with "easy pickins," for in every question you have a choice of four answers. Simply indicate your answer choice in space provided, check for correctness, then tally score for your rating.

(1) If a somnambulist was your guest you might logically: (a) call the police, (b) tell his mother, (c) ask him to refrain from drinking, (d) lock his bedroom door. ☐

(2) If you know a megalomaniac you know a fellow who: (a) has delusions of grandeur, (b) picks up things, (c) smokes too much, (d) speaks loudly at all times. ☐

(3) They're all on the way down and when they hit this bowler will have scored a: (a) frame, (b) touchdown, (c) ☐ spare, (d) strike.

Horseradish Sauce Accents Savory Salmon

Savory steamed salmon served with piquant horseradish sauce is a very old favorite entree. Years ago, when our forefathers had occasion to celebrate the possession of a salmon, they most often prepared it by carefully sewing the fish in a cheesecloth, cooking it in a fish kettle and, finally, serving it at the feast accompanied and accented by horseradish sauce.

Modern homemakers are more fortunate in that canned salmon—which is fresh-caught, ready-cooked salmon sealed in cans—makes it possible to serve such a festive seafood dinner any time, quickly and economically. For this simple hot service, the canned salmon is best heated in the oven in a covered casserole dish or in a double boiler.

The rich color of the salmon flakes is in pleasing contrast to a green vegetable such as buttered fresh asparagus. An economical company menu built around salmon with horseradish sauce follows:

SALMON WITH HORSERADISH SAUCE
BUTTERED FRESH ASPARAGUS
AU GRATIN POTATOES
HOT ROLLS BUTTER
APPLE COBBLER
COFFEE CREAM AND SUGAR

HORSERADISH SAUCE FOR CANNED SALMON

(A one pound can of salmon serves 4 persons)

¼ cup horseradish
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon mustard
¾ cup whipped cream

Mix horseradish and seasonings. Fold in the cream before serving.

CAVALCADE OF AMERICA

—Thomas Cooper—

By Dr. Frank Monaghan
Historical Consultant for Cavalcade of America

FREEDOM of the press and freedom of speech are rights vitally necessary to guarantee the orderly operation of democratic institutions. They are justly and deeply cherished by Americans, for they have long been foundation stones of the American way of life. They were won and maintained by the exertions (even the sufferings) of many good and brave men. By and large, we have enjoyed these rights ever since they were written into the Federal Constitution. Several times, in the midst of grave emergencies, it has been necessary to modify them temporarily for the common safety. But once, in 1798, they were notoriously curbed and abridged without justification. It is in connection with this episode of the Alien and Sedition Acts, passed by the Federalist Party under John Adams, that we encounter one of the most interesting men in the long struggle for a free press in America: Thomas Cooper.

Thomas Cooper

In 1798 the United States felt that war with France was imminent, and the dominant political party, the Federalists, took this hysteria as a fine opportunity to silence their political opponents by muzzling the press. The Sedition Act made it illegal for any reason to speak or spread "false, scandalous or malicious" writing against the government, the Congress or the President. Federalist judges interpreted this to mean that one could not poke even a little mild fun at governmental officers. It was one of the most hasty and unreasonable measures ever enacted into law.

Cooper published a perfectly valid criticism of President Adams, and was prosecuted. After a long trial in 1800 he was found guilty and sentenced to six months in jail and a fine of four hundred dollars. The fine was paid and the six months were served. There was grave doubt about the constitutionality of the law under which he had been convicted. It expired by limitation and Cooper began the long fight to get Congress to admit that the legislation had been unwise and void. Year after year friends petitioned Congress to repay the fine with interest. Finally in 1850, fifty years after the trial and eleven after Cooper's death, Congress repaid his heirs. Cooper was dead, but he had won his fight for the freedom of the press.

Railroad Facts

One of the early pioneer employees of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Major James Geddes, the Old Reliable's first 50-year, diamond button man, had over 63 years of continuous employment with the L. & N. until the time of his death in November 1914. This record, so far as is known, has never been equaled on that railroad.

According to the L. & N. Magazine for January, it is said that the top layer of each shipment of coal, mined near Cloverport, Ky., during the 1890's, was whitewashed in order that pilfering might readily be detected.

Approximately 50,000,000 crossties are installed every year by railroads of the United States. In 1939 the L. & N. replaced 808,597 cross-ties over its entire system.

The first railroads in this country used wooden rails on top of which a thin strip of iron was fastened, called "strap-rail."

During 1939 th L. & N. Railroad laid in replacement 18,088 tons of new steel rail.

All freight cars owned by railroads, if joined together on one track, would make a train nearly 13,300 miles in length.

Three Agencies Work In Harmony For Kentucky's Crippled Children

S. Lyman Barber, president of the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission, left; Judge J. J. Kavanagh, State chairman of the Committee to Celebrate the President's Birthday for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and H. V. McChesney, president of the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children.

Three agencies in Kentucky concerned with Crippled Children's work cause confusion in the public mind, principally because no one has explained it. This is intended to clear any misunderstanding. It will take two minutes.

Two of the agencies raise money. The third spends it.

The first campaign in the year is for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, ending on the President's birthday, January 30. Half of the money goes for research in all parts of the United States and constitutes perhaps the most important though less appealing phase of the work. The remaining half is spent on infantile paralysis victims in our own State through the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission.

The second campaign is for the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, ending on Easter Sunday. All of this money is spent for all crippled children, whereas the first campaign is for infantile paralysis exclusively. The society arranges for clinics throughout the State and works in close co-operation with the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission, through which it spends its money.

SUGAR CREEK

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Taylor of Lakeland, Ky., spent the week end at their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clifton entertained as their Sunday guests, Mrs. Stella Miskell, son and daughters and Miss Ruby Caldwell of Glencoe, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Ellis and daughter of Covington, and Mrs. Grover Clifton.

Many folks in this community have been suffering with flu.

Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Sisson of Covington called on relatives and friends here, Saturday .

Bertha Collins of Walnut Valley spent Thursday night with Christine Duncan.

David Clifton spent Saturday night and Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Raymond Miller, of Dry Creek.

Mrs. George Spencer, who has been ill for the past few months, has suffered a relapse because of a severe cold.

Frank Lee Ellis, Richard and Howard Shelton of Walton CCC camp, spent the week end at their homes.

Mrs. Stella Osborne and Mrs. Grover Clifton were business callers in Warsaw, Saturday.

Miss Pansy Clifton spent several days at Glencoe, visiting her sister and family.

Jimmie Rhodes and family have moved into the Arch Noel Apt.

Mrs. J. T. Roberts spent a few days last week with her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Chapman and family, in Campbellsburg.

Friends of Mr. Estell Bingham were sorry to hear of the death of his wife, Ura, which occurred last week.

The Light Bearers Sunday school class met Wednesday, January 22, with few in attendance, but with the usual good program and interesting and instructive Bible study. We study the last 14 chapters of Exodus for our February meeting.

Mrs. J. B Lamn and Mrs. Arch Noel spent last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Baker, the latter being very ill.

E. S. Jouett, vice president and general ocunsel of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, has been selected as chairman for Jefferson county, Kentucky, by the Kentucky Committee to celebrate the President's birthday for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, according to the L. & N. Magazine for January.

James B. Hill, president of the L. & N. will be a member of Mr. Jouett's committee. Both men are of Louisville, Ky.

Improving Our Environment

JESUS said (Luke 17:21), "The kingdom of God is within you." Therefore, harmony, satisfaction, contentment, and peace are present for individual realization at all times. . . .

Mary Baker Eddy writes (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, p. 167), "Our proportionate admission of the claims of good or of evil determines the harmony of our existence,—our health, our longevity, and our Christianity." Thus it is evident that what we admit to be true has a marked effect upon our daily experience.

Spiritual understanding is the only effective remedy for erroneous beliefs, since it reveals Mind to be the one true basis for happiness and harmony. The best assurance for maintaining a desirable environment is a consciousness filled with goodness, love, justice—a consciousness imbued with the conviction that "all things work together for good to them that love God" (Romans 8:28). The consciousness of the allness—the omnipresence—of divine Love affords an effective defense against all manner of erroneous suggestion.

Christ Jesus said (John 14:2), "In my Father's house are many mansions." Man, as the idea of God, lives and moves in Mind, the infinite divine consciousness, wherein are only harmony and goodness. Our true selfhood is ever aware of kindness, compassion, peace, health, perfection. God's image and likeness knows no other state of being than that of perpetual harmony. Health, harmony, happiness are attained by spiritualizing individual human consciousness. We should always resist the temptation to believe that we are unable to accomplish a worthy task because of environment, conditions, or unjust opposition. All we need to do is to accept the fact that, as the children of God, omnipotent, infinite Truth, we are endowed with unlimited spiritual capacity. Then we shall begin to express the wisdom and strength necessary to achievement. Consistent harmony and success can be won only as we constantly reason from the basis of Spirit.

As we look at existence from the spiritual point of view, we find joy, beauty, and bliss manifest in our present experience. If we believe ourselves to be material and separated from divine Principle, the goal we desire seems remote and even unattainable. But when we grasp the fact, even faintly, that true selfhood is at one with God, Love, and has no taint of materiality and mortality, the outlook brightens and we find heaven at hand. . . . He who is conscious of the presence of divine power sees as unreal any sense of a disagreeable or cramped environment.

The song of the bird, the beauty of the flower, the sky, the sunlight, all speak to the human heart of peace. Why? Because they lift our thought above the drab outlook of material sense to the contemplation of these symbols of divine goodness. Then, how much more should the Science of Christ, when understood and applied, increase our peace and joy, and promote harmony and success in all worthy enterprises! The only possible way we have of experiencing real and stable happiness and peace is through spiritual thinking, which recognizes the presence and allness of inexhaustible Love. There is but one really satisfying way to improve our environment, and that is by eliminating evil from our thinking, by banishing envy, fear, selfishness, and hatred. The purified consciousness finds concord and bliss where material sense suggests discord and woe.

When we realize that God is omnipresent, we know that evil cannot prevent us from proving the perfection of man, God's likeness. No claim of evil can interfere with our demonstration of goodness, blessedness, and harmony. If harmony does not seem to be present, we need to draw closer to God, and cling more firmly to His allness and goodness. In proportion to our realization of God's all-inclusiveness, and of man's likeness to Soul, will good come into our human experience. Let us accept wholeheartedly the fact that good is infinite, and that error cannot prevent our recognition of the fact. Then the loveliness of creation will unfold before our spiritualized vision, and our present experience will be filled with opportunities for good, friendship, and righteousness.

Building Profitable Pastures on Kentucky Farms

CHICAGO.—How Kentucky farmers can obtain the most profitable results from pasture improvement was described in a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The farmer's primary job," says the statement, "is to get a good stand of legumes and grasses.

"To accomplish this it is important, first of all, to prepare the seedbed early so as to kill as many weeds as possible.

"Next, it is vital to have the soil tested for acidity and to determine whether it is adequately supplied with phosphorus and potash. Whether the stand is a good or poor one will be determined by the presence or absence of plant food.

State Colleges Co-operate.

"Agronomists at state colleges, or county agents are prepared to co-operate in making these tests and providing recommendations covering the use of fertilizers on pasture crops in a rotation.

"In general, where a permanent pasture crop is planned, farmers will find that a top dressing of a complete commercial fertilizer in the fall will pay for itself many times over in producing earlier and more succulent grass for spring grazing, as well as a more sturdy root system, encouraging heavier growth.

Need Fertilization.

"The value of a program of legumes and grasses is manifold. Thousands of acres of farm land throughout the Middle West have been seriously depleted of their life-giving plant food elements by years of grain cropping without the regular and frequent production of legumes and without a program of fertilization which returns nutrients to the soil removed by growing crops. Decreased yields and a serious erosion problem have resulted from this condition.

Lush, productive pastures that are the result of careful soil management and fertilization are among a farm's greatest assets.

Improving Soil Tilth.

"A good sturdy stand of legumes will improve the soil tilth, promote nitrogen fixation, add materially to the active organic matter in the soil and increase the yield of corn or grain crops which follow in the rotation.

"Every farmer knows that his soil 'works' better at some times than at others. Some years a good, firm seed bed is easy to secure. At such times the soil is said to have good physical condition or is in good tilth. At other times only a cloddy field can be obtained. Then the soil is in poor tilth. While the degree of tilth in a soil is a somewhat intangible factor, experience has proved that a good stand of legumes or grasses definitely promotes good tilth, increases fertility and improves the yield of crops which follow."

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

HAWK IN THE WIND

by HELEN TOPPING MILLER

Copyright 1938 by D. Appleton-Century Co. Inc.

WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER XII—At the mill, Virgie Morgan discovers that her timber supply for making pulp is running low and she is hard pressed to find a new supply. She learns from Wallace Withers that he wishes to see her on business matters. He comes to the Morgan home one evening and offers to buy the mill.

"But the mill is shabby, Mother. All the metal roofing is rusty and the mortar falling out of the bricks—and Tom has propped up the fence in a dozen places."

Red burned in Virgie's cheeks. Her eyes shot blue sparks.

"I should spend money to fancy up the mill on the outside when the men aren't back on full pay yet! When I can't even discount my bills! Your father never asked for more than thirty days in his life—and I'm thankful if I can get anything paid off in ninety."

"We only took sixty for the new parts for the Jordan machine, Mrs. Morgan."

"Much obliged, Lucy. Stick with me, will you? I seem to need a couple of friends."

"Father," Marian persisted, "had old-fashioned ideas—you know that, Mother. He was too conservative for these times."

Virgie looked up at David's picture—at the straight, strong, judicial line of his lips, at his thoughtful, cautious eyes. The look heartened her, stopped the odd quivering in her knees, the shaken cold anger that tore at her. David was with her. He had died but he had not taken his spirit away from the mill. It walked there, stood over the blow pits and the great digesters and deckers, where the raw pulp was steamed and thinned and ground and dried—fine fiber that would one day be milled into missals for nuns or paper on which letters would be written to old mothers.

She gave David a look that reached a hand to him through this strange gloom, this shadow which was as fearsome and intangible as the swoop of a hawk through the wind.

"Your father's way was an old-fashioned way," she said, "but so are a lot of things old-fashioned. Things like good credit and a good name, things like fairness and honor and decent dealing. They've invented some smart methods but they've never invented anything that takes the place of those old-fashioned things!"

"We could paint the roller mill," suggested Lucy faintly. "We could let the boys work on it slack days."

"And have Wallace Withers walk by and see that he's got us scared? Let him build his pulp mill. I'm not going to be stampeded into changing my ways. Morgan pulp is known wherever men make paper. Nobody gives a darn if it's milled in a pole shack with a brush roof. It's good pulp. Lucy, you put all this in the form of a report. I might want to prove some time that old Withers threatened me. I'm going to call that lawyer tonight and go over to see Tom the first thing in the morning and enjoin those crooks from cutting that timber."

Marian stood up, slim and grave and gallant. "All right, Mother—if you're going to fight, we'll fight with you."

Virgie's grimness melted and her eyes misted briefly.

"I was just standing here wishing to the Lord that I had a son. Life gets pretty thick for a woman, sometimes. But—if we hang together we can beat 'em. You go now, Marian, and take Lucy home. Make Lossie go with you—I don't want you coming back on that road alone."

"Mother, I've driven it alone a hundred times!"

"I know that. And I've been making pulp for years, but now all of a sudden somebody takes a notion to burn down the mill."

Though she rose at intervals to take bromides, Virgie could not sleep. Her battling spirit was roused, she found herself clenching her fists in the dark, making up savage and telling speeches and muttering fragments of them aloud.

The thin, blue winter dawn came late. She had already given up hope of rest when the east began to be pearl and aquamarine. She got up and dressed, putting on her good blue suit, her best silk blouse. She would have preferred going into action in her old corduroys and boots, but this fight today was to be one of wits, of law and shrewdness—not to be conducted in a disreputable old hat jerked belligerently over one eye.

At least, thank goodness, her enemy was now standing forth in the open. The secret hawk that beat dark wings between her and the sky was a thing of form and definition.

And she felt sure that if she could keep Payne and Hooper and Wallace Withers from getting possession of the timber area on Hazel Fork, she could defeat their schemes. She knew every inch of land, every standing tree, every foot of available pulp wood for a hundred miles around. What little Wallace Withers owned, even counting the acreage he had bought from Perry Bennett, would not go far. No man in his right mind would put money into a mill, with so scant a supply as that in prospect. And the rest, except for Tom's rich heritage, was tied up by leases by power concerns or lumber people—or by the great Champion mill, except what she herself controlled.

She knew that Wallace Withers would extend himself to destroy her. No pestilence ever set loose in any clime could work the havoc wrought by an ignorant, bigoted man, working ruthlessly for his own ends, especially when under this fierce, cold passion for eminence there burned the moving fury of a personal spite. Wallace was a vain and unscrupulous man, disdained. No ethics would deter him, no reasoning touch him. He would break her if he could, because only by reducing her to suppliant meekness could he rebuild the brittle tower of his own prime conceit.

She made a cup of coffee, in the kitchen, and drank it black and hot. Lossie came scuffing in in bedroom slippers, her hair plastered stiffly in a net.

"My goodness," she exclaimed, "you going to the mill this early? Whyn't you call me to get you some breakfast?"

"I'll eat later. I've got a lot to do. I don't know when I'll be back."

Her old car roared down the hill. The early morning fog was lying in great white scarves of feathers down the slopes of the mountains. The steam of the mill drifted like wings against a dawn-quickened sky, as she approached the gate.

Suddenly she found herself deeply moved, loving that shambling building, the windows burning in the wan, wintry sun, the ranked piles of wood, even the choking, sulphide smell that lay along the ground so insistently. The mill was her life—all the rest of her life. It was David—what was left to her of the man she had loved.

She would fight for it. Stiffly she set her chin on that thought.

The night men, not yet gone off shift, stared at her as she walked, eyes ahead, face grim and resolute, across the frozen yard.

CHAPTER XIV

The men at the mill had worked all night, unloading the wrecked car, repairing the track, loading again. Disregarding the raw wind that blew through the valley, the occasional spit of snow, Branford Wills had worked with them, observing and listening, making himself as helpful and unobtrusive as possible. He did not deceive himself. Something was wrong at the mill. There was much shouting and rough talk, but there was also a secretiveness, a watchfulness. It appeared to Wills that among the older hands there was also an uneasy discomfort.

They were uncertain of each other. And a few had an air of insolence, a tendency to swagger. But Wills could not discover that any definite animosity was directed toward him. They were curt and one or two were a bit scornful of his ability in matters of strength or skill, but there were no covert sneers to be detected, no goading or insults. He was a tenderfoot and an outsider and they let him know it, but that was all.

It was growing day when he returned to his room at the Clark cottage to snatch a few hours of sleep. His legs were a trifle shaky, his throat felt raw, but he was grimly resolute. Some undercurrent was working in the Morgan mill and he intended to know what it was and what force impelled it. He had a double motive. He was indebted to Virgie and if he could solve this riddle of sabotage and put an end to it, it was little enough to do to repay that debt. And there was Marian.

Somehow he had to repair his blundering, make himself a man again in her eyes. He slept uneasily, wakened when the morning whistle blew.

Ada Clark's mother protested as he set out again, sheepskin collar shrugged high around his ears.

"You'll be down again and worse than ever if you don't take better care of yourself," she declared.

But he gave her a one-sided grin and tramped off, his two sandwiches in his coat pocket.

At the mill office he found Virgie already at her desk, with Lucy and Daniels standing about, their faces worried.

"Come along in," Virgie ordered as he opened the door. "You'll have to know about this. Seven men quit this morning."

"The Spains—and the two Andersons," Lucy added. "Billy Mount and his boy and Lucius." Her eyes were sorrowful and accusing. Her manner said louder than words, "This is your fault." Daniels was fiddling nervously with the bunch of keys in his fingers. For an instant Branford Wills got the impression that Daniels was evading, that there was something defensive in his manner, but he put that aside. They were all worried, Virgie most of all.

"That West Virginia stuff has to go through," she said. "We'll have to have somebody to tend the decker." For twenty years Billy Mount had tended the great machines, taken a fierce pride in the texture of the pulp that rolled through the presses.

"Could I do it?" Wills volunteered. "I have ordinary intelligence. I think I could do what Billy Mount could do."

"I need you outside," Virgie said. "With the Andersons gone we'll need somebody to get stuff in."

"But—why should those fellows quit?" Wills asked. "There's no other place for them in town. You treated them well—"

"They probably had reasons—fairly good reasons." Daniels was a trifle dry.

"Look here—if I'm in any way responsible for this—" Wills began vigorously, but Virgie waved a hand.

"Sit down—and keep your head on and your shirt-tail in! I'm responsible for this. Wallace Withers wants to buy this mill. Somehow or other he's working against me. How, I don't know yet. But I will know. It's a fight. Wallace says he'll put me out of business if I don't sell. Maybe he will—but he'll have a merry little time doing it. If you people want to stick with me—"

"Of course we'll stick," said Lucy eagerly.

"It might," Stanley Daniels suggested, "be possible to compromise."

Virgie blazed at him. "Compromise? Do I look like a woman who would compromise?"

"Business," Daniels defended, "is built on compromises. It has to be. Individualism cannot always survive."

"And so you think," Virgie cut back, "that I ought not to fight? That I ought to let Wallace Withers threaten to ruin me and never lift a hand? Is that what you think?"

"I think you are fighting a definite trend, Mrs. Morgan." Daniels grew a trifle oratorical. "You're living in an era which will see the death of the small business, of individual enterprise—personal control. There is an inevitability in it that you do not recognize. It may mean defeat for you and I think you are the sort of person who would suffer pretty badly in defeat."

"So you're thinking about my feelings, are you? Well, these are my feelings, in case any of you are in the dark. I had rather see the mill that David Morgan built destroyed—every brick, every wheel, every bolt in it—than to haggle with Wallace Withers—or surrender. If that's crazy, I'm crazy! Now, get to work, all of you! Lucy, get Champion on the wire and tell 'em I want seven hands for a few days. Decker men and outside hands. They've got part-time people always on hand they can spare. We won't grind today, we'll clean the mill. Come along, you boys."

She was fiercely executive all day. The atmosphere of the mill, already tense, grew galvanic as she cracked the whip of her indomitable will. Lucy Fields went about breathing excitedly but Wills, helping old Frank Emmet to clean and oil the drum-barkers and the toothy cables that snaked the green wood in for grinding, kept a thoughtful watch.

Even granting that this man Withers, who coveted the mill had, somehow, been able to engineer the various calamities that had descended on the plant in the past few days, there remained to be discovered the means by which he had worked.

"So you're thinking about my feelings, are you?"

Wills was not satisfied. He meant to do some sleuthing on his own.

He waited till the whistle blew at night and Lucy had put on her shabby green coat and gone out, then went to the office where Virgie sat studying a map on her desk. Outside murky lights burned in the yard and steam drifted down to lie in torn, cold wreaths along the ground.

Virgie looked up at him, and it appeared to Branford Wills that there was something deeper than weariness in her strong face. She looked a little stricken, as though something had been taken away from her that could not be returned.

She showed him the map. "This is what worries me," she said, "this land that belonged to Tom Pruitt. This is what Withers is counting on—this timber acreage. He and Payne and those other fellows—the fellow Tom shot—have got a court order allowing them to cut timber enough to satisfy their claims. And you know what that means. The court can't go up there and scale up stuff. They'll strip it and with what timber is standing there they can set up a mill and run it for three or four years. Long enough to worry me, anyway."

"And you're convinced that Withers is at the bottom of all your troubles?"

"What else can I think? He came to my house last night and made threats. Maybe they're just using him to handle local contracts and connections that outsiders couldn't put over. Mountain people are peculiar. They're suspicious of a stranger but a home-talent crook can do quite a lot with 'em. I reckon Wallace thinks he's in."

"Let me see that map again," Wills said. He had been a maker of maps, Virgie remembered. He anchored the colored sheet with an inkbottle and a slide rule and studied it.

"I filed an injunction to keep them off this morning," Virgie said. "Filed it for Tom, of course. It may not work. They may have the judge sewed up. Tom does what I tell him usually—but I don't always get there quite soon enough. I went over at daybreak—but I should have gone yesterday."

"They'd been there ahead of you? But surely he wouldn't listen to them?"

"I don't know. It's worrying me." She breathed wearily, like a spent runner. "They sent a lawyer to scare Tom, late yesterday. They told him that Cragg was filing suit against him for fifty thousand dollars' damages. Perhaps they can do it, in law—I haven't looked into it. That's not the point. They gave Tom a good scare—and then they offered to settle. So he signed something—and he doesn't know what he signed."

"So everything you have done for him may be lost? Doesn't he understand that you're looking out for his interest?"

"You couldn't understand a mountain man, I'm afraid. Up to a certain point they'll listen. Beyond that—they're rampant individualists, as young Daniels says. Tom has always been a helpless old body—David looked after him. But no mountain man believes that a woman could know more than he does."

"Is there a blue-print of Pruitt's tract anywhere?"

"It's here in the safe. Do you want it?"

"I want it—and I want to see the land. Could I have a car and some one who knows the way to go over there tomorrow?"

"I'll send you a car—and a driver. What do you want to see it for? Even if I keep those men out of it, it will go back to Tom. I'll never timber it."

"I think," Wills said, "that I was once lost in that region. The outline on this map is somehow familiar. It gives me an idea. I'd rather not talk about it till I'm sure of it."

"Most young chaps," Virgie was dry, "want to talk first and do some thing about it afterward."

At home that night Virgie stretched her slippered feet to the fire and faced her daughter resolutely.

MORGANSVILLE

"So teach us to number our days that we apply our hearts with wisdom."

As individuals, men judge christianity by christians. By no chance does the world estimate christianity by those who walk humbly before God, but in the mass, by the failures and sins of professing christians.

Miss Sara Morgan, of Independence, and John Butler, of Nicholson, recently plighted their troth, and pledged their nuptial vows in the church parlor of the Madison Ave. Christian church, Covington. Dr. Kenneth Bowen officiated at the service, blending together their lives. Miss Anne Morgan, sister of the bride, and James Ira Stephens were the attendants. That their future may be serene and cloudless is the united wish of a host of friends.

WITH THE REDS

Recently out of Cincinnati came the news that Gene Thompson, 23 year old righthand pitcher, had been signed to a two-year contract by the Reds. This was an unusual announcement because of the policy of the Cincinnati Club to confine the contracts of its players to a single season, except in rare cases.

Thompson is a rare case. He ranks alongside of two other unusual men on the Cincinnati Club, Frank McCormick, most valuable player of 1941, and Bucky Walters, most valuable player of 1940. Both of these men were signed to two year documents after the 1939 season and they thus gained the distinction of being the first players under the present administration to be offered a contract for two years.

The standing as a pitcher that Thompson has achieved in two major league seasons is remarkable in itself. Here is a young boy, who, in 1938, could not make the grade with the Class AA Syracuse team of the International league, was shunted off to the Class B Columbia team of the South Atlantic League, and who today has a two year contract at an age when most good players are coming up for their first major trial.

At Columbia Thompson was a standout. He exhibited the greatest potentialities of any hurler in the circuit while he won 16 and compiled an earned lost nine and compiled an earned run average of 2.81 runs per nine inning game. The scouts went nutty about him. They told Bill McKechnie he couldn't miss. Bill took all of this with a grain of salt, and reserved his judgement until he could take a look for himself in the training camp.

One good look, in an exhibition game against Brooklyn, in which Whitey Moore and Thompson hurled a no hitter, was enough to indicate the scouts weren't talking through their hats. McKechnie decided that this Class B graduate was ready for the major leagues, and his judgement was vindicated by Gene's first year record of 13 victories and only five defeats and 2.55 earned run average.

This fine record still was not enough to rate Thompson as an established major leaguer, for there was fear of the second year jinx. Too, some pointed to the fact that several of his victories had been won in relief capacities and that he had only worked five complete games. That was all well and true.

"What is a second year jinx?" asked Thompson as he wheeled into high in 1941. "If they want complete games, I'll give them to them." And he did. He hurled 17 of them for the Reds last season, finished the season with a record of 16 victories and nine defeats, and had one two-hitter and three three-hitters to his credit. His won and lost percentage was exactly the same as the one he compiled at Columbia in 1938 to earn his promotion.

There is marked similarity in Gene's 1940 record and the one he compiled at Columbia in other respects, also. He hurled 225 innings last year as against 205 at Columbia. He permitted 198 hits in the Sally League and only 197 in 20 more innings in the National, indicating he is even more effective in the majors than he was in the minors. He was wilder in the National and had fewer strikeouts ,which is where the expected improvement may come. When he does tame those occasional flashes of wildness, he should be able to reach his goal of 20 victories. He didn't miss it much this year. A spike which he suffered in mid-season, during the Battle of Brooklyn, kept him out of action for more than three weeks at a time when he was going his best. It is not unreasonable to say that he would have won four victories in those three weeks if the accident hadn't happened.

One of the Cincinnati rookies, Outfielder Mike Christoff, is said to be a great spring hitter. That's the information on him that comes out of the Coast League, where he played last year.

Frank McCormick hasn't missed a ball game since he took over the first base job for the Reds at the tail end of the 1937 season. In his three regular seasons with the Reds, he has knocked in a total of 361 runs, an average of more than 120 per season.

Bucky Walters' batting average dropped from .325 to .205 in 1940, but he batted in 18 runs last season as against 16 the year before. Bucky wins several games each year with his own hitting. He showed what he can do at bat in the world series, when he slammed a homer in the sixth game.

Bob Logan, veteran rookie, who will try to southpaw his way to a spot on the Reds' pitching staff, led the American Association in complete games last season. He hurled 24 of them. Bob won 18 games for the second division Indianapolis team.

WALNUT LICK

Mrs. May Hughes was calling on Mrs. Flonnie Edrington Wednesday afternoon.

The W. M. S. will have their next meeting the second Wednesday in February at the Concord church. They will meet just in the afternoons while the weather is bad. It is hoped that more can come out next time, as our crowd was small this month, due to the great amount of sickness around here.

There were no services Sunday night, so Rev. and Mrs. Smith left shortly after church Sunday to attend the funeral of a dear friend in Harrison county.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilhoite were out to their farm over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Robinson were calling on James Whitson, Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Greenwell had as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. Atwood Greenwell of Mt. Zion, Miss Ellena Greenwell of Williamstown, and James Whitson of this place.

Rev. and Mrs. G. A. Smith were Saturday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Beach and daughters.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Estell Bingham of Covington, who was laid to rest Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the Mt. Zion cemetery at Mt. Zion, Ky. This scribe extends sympathy to the entire family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hughes and Mrs. Flonnie Edrington were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Webster Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Webster is quite sick again. We hope for her speedy recovery.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Bessie Robinson still remains very ill. Hope to see her out soon. We miss all those good people from church and Sunday school each Sunday.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE INDIVIDUAL'S RESPONSIBILITY REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—Habakkuk 2:15; Genesis 4:9-12; Mark 9:42-48; I Thessalonians 5:22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Abstain from every form of evil.—I Thessalonians 5:22, R. V.

"Responsible for the drunkards of my community? Not me; I am against the use of intoxicating liquors." Such is the answer Christian men and women would probably make if faced with that accusation. But wait! Responsibility means more than just refraining oneself or speaking against "booze" in a church meeting. Before we finish the study of our lesson, we may find ourselves guilty of the charge, and needing to ask forgiveness, and see the need of bringing forth works meet unto repentance. We hear God's Word telling us:

I. Do Not Tempt Your Neighbor (Hab. 2:15).

God is very severe in judgment upon those who tempt others. Of course He condemns the one who gives another a drink of liquor. Nothing could be more despicable than thus to start a man or woman on the way to a drunkard's grave. There can be no question about the guilt of the one who makes the stuff and the one who sells it. But beyond that, those are guilty who share in the profits from such a business, who rent their buildings for the manufacture or sale of liquor, who vote to legalize its sale or support politicians who do such things; in fact, everyone who encourages, condones, or in any way profits, whether directly or indirectly, from "the traffic." Are you still "not guilty"?

II. Do Not Fail Your Brother (Gen. 4:9-12).

Everyone who says, "Am I my brother's keeper?" classes himself with the murderer Cain. Certainly I am my brother's keeper. This is the positive side of the matter. It is not enough that I do not tempt my brother. The question is: "Have I neglected to do anything that I could and should have done to save him?"

That makes it my positive business to eliminate every possible temptation. It means that the Christian is vitally concerned about the taverns, road houses, dance halls, and what not, which entrap and destroy our young people. It is not enough to passively lament their presence; we must actively seek their removal. It can be done, and is being done all over the land.

III. Do Not Offend Children (Mark 9:42).

The Lord holds His followers to a high measure of responsibility regarding the children whose lives they touch, whether they be in their own family, or in the community in which they live.

Children are innocent until their elders make them otherwise. In their innocency they are trustful and ready to learn. Their knowledge of the right way to live is received from their parents and other grown-ups, and (mark it well!) they learn more from what we do than from what we say.

Here is the question each one of us should honestly face right now: "How does my daily walk influence the children who see me?" Let us answer that in the light of verse 42.

IV. Abstain From Evil—Judgment Is Coming (Mark 9:43-48; I Thess. 5:22).

The Christian is called to abstain from "all appearance of evil" or, as the Revised Version puts it, "every form of evil" (I Thess. 5:22). That may call for the sternest kind of self-denial (Mark 9:43-47), but why not? We do not follow a Christ who sought for Himself the way of ease or comfort. He gave Himself in complete and willing sacrifice, going even to the death of Calvary's tree for us. Do we then falter and seek the easy way?

The fact that there is a day of judgment to come is something to remember, but may we not stress the other side of the truth. "The very sternness of our Lord's strictures regarding the importance of self-denial only serves to enhance the value of the privilege we enjoy in being citizens of the kingdom of God. If it is worth the loss of a hand, a foot, or an eye to gain that life, then, in view of the great value we place on these members of our bodies, how great must be our divine privilege. Christianity is not merely a negative religion, but it takes the negative similes to show us the positive glories" (Dr. John W. Bradbury).

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

In talking about the farm problem last week I stated that the economy bloc in Congress hopes to cut materially Federal aid to farmers. They point out that prices are higher than a year ago for many agricultural products. Thus, they argue, the farmers do not need such large subsidies.

As a result of the loss of foreign markets, however, farmers of the U. S. will derive only about 3% of their gross income from exports. This compares with 15 to 20% during the 50-year period from 1880 to 1930 and with 8 to 10% during the last decade.

All through the South, where cotton and tobacco are grown, the Great Plains, where wheat is the principal crop, and even into the Pacific Coast fruit-growing area, the loss of export markets is keenly felt.

The South is the hardest hit. Ordinarily, out of an annual production of 12,000,000 bales of cotton, 6,000,000 bales have been exported. This year, however, expots are running at the rate of only 1,500,000 bales. Although our domestic consumption is up around 2,000,000 bales, the carry-over of American cotton from previous years will be 15,000,000 bales—the greatest in all our history. How can prices go up in the face of this?

Tobacco is in a similar position. Exports have fallen from 450,000,000 pounds to about 180,000,000 pounds. The average price of burley on Kentucky markets has plunged below $14.00 for the first time in recent years. The outlook for higher prices is exceedingly dark.

How about the wheat farmers? The carry-over of old wheat from last summer was the largest in our history. Our exports have dwindled to practically zero. Canada alone will have old crop carry-over of 575,000,000 bushels or more than enough to supply the import demand of the entire world. This is not a very bright picture either.

Last week we presented the bright side; this week, the dark side. But you may rest assured the farmers of the South and West will not be content with a decline in farm aid. They control many votes and are strong in Congress. You may expect a battle over farm subsidies. What will Congress do?

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

Curtains for Windows of Different Sizes

There is a question that comes like a wail, over and over again, in the thousands of letters my readers write me: "How shall I hang my curtains when there are windows of different sizes in the same room or the adjoining room?"

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

This is a puzzler, I realize, but as a general rule the answer is the same and a very simple one. Take a room, for instance, like that illustrated. Here full length curtains are hung with a French heading, from a brass rod, from the top of the window frame, to the floor. The small window near the fireplace is half the width of the others and short. As it is a casement window opening in, one short curtain is used hung from the top of the window frame, and ending at the bottom of the window frame. This keeps the curtains in scale with the windows they frame. If the short window had not been a casement window a pair of short curtains could have been used and tied back, as the longer pairs are tied. The glass curtains are hung from narrow brass rods fastened to the casement window so that when the window is opened the curtains come with it. Also note that the over curtains being hung on rings may be pushed far to each side, when the windows are opened. They are an overdrapery intended for the winter, and should be taken down in the summer to permit the casements to open wide.

Different Curtain Lengths

And since we are speaking of curtaining casement windows, this is a rather formal treatment for them. Curtains made of casement cloth or a heavy cotton fabric with rings sewed along the under side at the top, six inches apart, are often used. These are hung from a brass rod, placed across the top of the window frame, just above it, or in line with it, if it is a metal casement. The length should be to the bottom of the casement. This is a most satisfactory method of curtaining as such curtains may be drawn across the window at night and replace window shades. By making the rod an inch longer than the window opening on each side, the curtains may be pulled to the side to let the casement open freely. Such a treatment is essential with steel frames. Those illustrated are wooden casements, and therefore rods could be attached to the casement frames.

The Group of Small High Windows

The problem is somewhat different when there is a group of three high windows above a sideboard let us say, in the dining room, or above a window seat, in the living room. Both of these window groups may be treated in the same way or they may be different according to the number of windows in the group, and more especially, the height of the windows from the floor. In a dining room above a sideboard, for the sake of decoration, the curtains should be drawn at night, therefore in a group of three windows use three pairs of short curtains. This means that the span of the windows is broken by the line of drapery in five places. If there is a lovely view by day and this is not wished, then make the curtains double so that they each extend across a window and a half and meet in the center when closed at night.

The same arrangement is generally used for a window seat, the curtains ending at the window sill. In some large rooms, however, full length curtains are used which are closed at night, concealing the window seat. Or, again, one pair of full length curtains is used as an ornamental drapery and hung from top of window frame to the floor with a valance or swag between them. Such curtains are not closed at night. In this arrangement opaque material such as heavy silk or casement cloth is used for glass curtains and hung under the valance to the window sill, and drawn at night. Either two double-width pairs or three pairs may be used for three windows.

PLANT FOOD LACK IMPORTANT CAUSE OF CROP LOSSES

CHICAGO.—Profits or losses on crops harvested on Midwestern farms were largely determined by the presence in or absence of important plant foods from the soil, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Millions of dollars have been lost from wheat and oats which lodged because of a lack of phosphoric acid, potash or both of these elements," says the statement. "Millions more were lost from corn that failed to mature properly.

"During the growing season advances all growing crops show easily detected signs of plant starvation. For example, corn which lacks nitrogen fails to thrive and develops streaked, yellowish-tinted leaves. A tell-tale clue of phosphoric acid deficiency is lateness of maturity and poorly formed kernels. When potash is sorely needed, growth slows down, leaves scorch, the corn is susceptible to diseases and parasites.

"Undernourished wheat reveals disabilities including stunted growth where phosphoric acid is lacking, and poorly formed grains and a blighted appearance when potash is needed.

"Legume crops reveal marked evidence of distress when plant food starvation sets in. Alfalfa and clover that need potash develop a spotty, measles-like eruption that spreads over the leaves.

"From the experience of this year's crop, Middle West farmers may determine how the lack of important fertilizing elements spelled crop losses.

"Surest preventive for all diet deficiencies is to have the soil tested to determine just which elements are lacking. County agents or agronomists at state agricultural colleges are equipped to make such tests and provide information concerning the need for nitrogen, phosphoric acid or potash. By using such information intelligently, farmers can replenish exhausted soil resources.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to all those who were so kind during the illness and death of our loved one, Mrs. A. J. Stone. Especially do we thank the neighbors for their kindness, Bro. Smith for his words of comfort, Dr. McCormack and Mr. Hamilton and assistants for their kindness and attention.

We are grateful to those who provided the music, gave flowers and assisted in any way.

Mrs. Caroline Armstrong is quite ill with grip.

We missed one of our faithful Sunday school teachers, Mrs. Thomas Barker, who was absent from her class, Sunday, because of a very severe cold.

This community was very much grieved, Saturday, when they learned the sad news that Mr. Charlie Chance's son was accidentally killed while at work in Cincinnati, Friday evening. Mr. Chance, who was 24 years of age, was a very quiet young man, and very well liked. The wife and father have the sympathy of this community.

We are glad to report the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Martin much improved after a serious illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Giles and children visited with her sister, Miss Emma Yates, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Armstrong spent the day, Sunday, with the latter's sister, Mrs. Ira Jackson and family of Kenton, Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Miller and children of Latonia, spent the day, Sunday, with Mr. and Mrs. Emil Stein.

Mr. and Mrs. John Klein called on their daughter, Mrs. Lybran Richardson and family, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keeney spent Sunday afternoon with her mother, Mrs. J. Stephens, and daughters of Independence.

Several from this community are attending the Farm and Home Convention at Lexington this week. Mrs. George Klein is the delegate from the Staffordsburg club. The next meeting of the club will be February 6th, when Mrs. Inez Beall will be hostess to the group at the home of her niece, Mrs. Hill, 2720 Rosina Ave., Latonia, Ky. All members are urged to be on time. The session is scheduled to convene at 10:30 a. m.

Brown Minter, of Indian Creek in Owsley county, is having a 10-acre field drained.

TIME TO SHUT THE FIRE OFF!

Yep! It's true! Spring is here. Well, it must be, for, according to reports in a local paper, somebody saw a robin. Maybe, the greedy robin, in an endeavor to be "Johnny-on-the-spot" and capture the first poor innocent worm which "peeks" out, has made a grave error in making so early an appearance. We hope he hasn't, however! Anyway, Mrs. Ida O'Leary of Carthage, really saw a robin in her yard, Tuesday. It's a pleasant and encouraging thought, though!

Boone Woman Is Pres. of Federation

Mrs. Sam B. Sleet, Beaver Lick, was elected president of the Blue Grass District of the Federation of Kentucky Homemakers' Club, at the annual meeting, held during the Farm and Home Convention at the University of Kentucky the past week, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent. This is the second year Mrs. Sleet has been awarded this honor.

Twenty-three Boone county women attended the Convention, which was considered one of the most instructive held to date. Those attending, included Mrs. George Kottmyer and Mrs. Henry Kottmyer, Constance; Mrs. Burnam Roberts, Bullittsville; Mrs. Ed Peel, Hebron; Mrs. Geo. Morith, Mrs. Orville Williford, Mrs. Virginia Goodridge, Mrs. Clarence Fossett, Mrs. Harold Conner and Mrs. Ralph Stith, Florence; Mrs. Scott Chambers and Mrs. Rod Hughes, Walton; Mrs. Walter King and Mrs. Walter Renaker, Verona; Mrs. Vernon Pope and Mrs. H. Witham, Mrs. Jack Berkshire, Mrs. Herman Matthews, and Mrs. Max Griedly, Petersburg.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER PASTOR, WEDS FRIDAY

The Advertiser received a report from one of our interested followers that the wedding of Miss Evelyn Whitaker, eldest daughter of a former Methodist minister, Rev. Howard Whitaker, and Mrs. Whitaker, to Mr. Frank L. Lovell of Lexington and Richmond, was solemnized last Friday, at 2:00 p. m., in the parsonage of the First Methodist church in Ashland. Rev. Whitaker performed the ceremony.

Miss Katherine Stumpf of Ashland, and Mrs. Charles Lovell of Lexington, were the only attendants.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held, at which immediate members of both families were present.

DORCAS CLASS HAS ALL-DAY MEETING

The Dorcas class of the Baptist church had an enjoyable time last Thursday, when Mrs. Barnett Franks opened her home to the group, for their all-day meeting.

Those who fellowshipped together were: Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wilson, Mrs. Kate Noel, Mrs. Lulu Vest, Mrs. Grace Jones, Mrs. Susie Norman, Mrs. Mollie Sturgeon, Mrs. Nell Hunt, Mrs. Anna Johnson, Mrs. T. C. 3:00 p. m.—Adjournment.

All who are interested in poultry production, are urged to attend.

Bearcats Snap Losing Streak

The Walton-Verona High basketballers came out of their doldrums, at least partially, Tuesday night and defeated Burlington, a Conference foe, 32 to 22, for their first win since January 10. The locals were leading 17 to 12 at the half. The Cats' passing was not all to the good, and good shots were missed, but maybe this win will serve as a "shot in the arm," and we will again see them play ball as they did earlier in the season.

Truett DeMoisey returned to the wars for 11½ minutes, and was a large factor in the win. He scored 10 points for W.-V., being top man in the scoring column. For the visitors, Huey was the stand-out, scoring 16 points.

The preliminary contest was also won by Walton, 29 to 15. Mayhugh and Groger were the "hot-shots" for the winners. The former tallied 16 points, and the latter 10. Rogers was high man for Burlington, with 7 points.

Last Friday night the Bearcats made a gallant stand against the Newport Wildcats, going down 30 to 22, after a hard-fought battle. At the half the score was knotted at 11-11, and it was not until in the final period that the Wildcats showed any superiority or held a lead of more than two or four points.

In the prelim contest, Mayhugh, Groger, C. Ryan & Co. took the Newport Kittens into camp 43 to 33 in a free-scoring tilt.

Hebron Here Friday

Friday night, Feb. 7, the Bearcats meet another Boone County Conference foe, Hebron, on the home floor. The games will get under way at 7:00 p. m., slow time.

On February 11 the Cats go to Erlanger for a return match with the Juggernauts.

125 Expected at Utopia Conference

One hundred twenty-five Utopia Club members from eleven Northern Kentucky counties are expected to attend the Sixth Annual Utopia Club District Conference to be held at the Hebron High school, on Saturday, February 8th, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

This year's conference is expected to be the largest held to date. A splendid program for both boys and girls attending, has been arranged. Speakers on the program include: N. R. Eliott, landscape and garden specialist; Dr. W. D. Valleau, plant builder and plant disease authority; Professor E. S. Good, head of livestock work at the College; Miss Vivian Curnutt, home economist; specialist, and Col. Carl W. Jones. Miss Dorothy Threlkeld, club

The evening program, following a six o'clock banquet, will be devoted to recreational features. Mr. Carl Jones, older boys' and girls' club specialist, will be in charge. Everyone interested in Utopia Club work, is invited to attend.

KENTUCKY FARM FOR THE BLIND

The Kentucky Farm for the Blind, is an institution for the education and individual training of the blind, located in Jefferson county, a mile and a half south of Middletown on Blankenbaker Road, at Ellingsworth Lane. Here, adults and backward children not attending the State School, are given a home and trained to get the best out of their terrible physical handicap. Would you like to help with this worthy work? If so, you may contribute, solicit, or remember the institution in your will.

WELFARE ASS'N GOAL IS $500

The Community Welfare Association, which was recently organized in Walton, and which started its drive, Monday, for funds and donations of clothing, foods, etc., is greatly pleased and encouraged with the response the citizens of this community have given to their call for aid.

Although their goal of $500 has not, as yet, been reached, the solicitors were surprised and happy over the numerous donations as they received many more than had been anticipated.

The next meeting of the group is scheduled for Friday evening at 7:30, in the office of John Vest. This is an open meeting, and anyone interested is welcome to attend—in fact, the organization is anxious for them to be there.

Anyone having any kind of contribution, whether clothing, canned goods, foods of any description or money, is asked to cooperate with the solicitors and have them in by Friday. It will not be known, definitely, until Friday night, what the results of the solicitors' efforts have been.

In order that those, who may have been reticent about giving money because of the way it is used, may understand, we would like to make clear, that no money is given directly to needy families. The money is banked. All requests for aid are thoroughly investigated, and then the committee purchases the necessary items — whether food, clothing or fuel, or even, medical aid. There is a feeling, very often, and really justified, that when money is turned over to needy families it is too frequently spent in wrong channels. But this can't possibly occur, as the organization has taken steps mentioned before, and so planned their efforts, that all who truly need help will receive it, and those sharing their substance with their less fortunate brothers, are assured it will go where it should.

We hope that every citizen will appreciate his duty as a citizen and as christian fellowmen, and thus will give freely, no matter how small, to this worthy cause, which was inspired in the hearts of a few humble folks, visualizing the need for cooperative action. Your help is needed—are you willing to give, or are you hiding behind some flimsy excuse and refusing to aid?

We need only to remember that all we give into the lives of others, comes back again into our own! The recompense for giving, even the smallest gift, is the joy and peace it brings each individual. If you've never given, try it! You enjoy it, too!

Fish, Game Club Has New Quarters

The Boone County Fish & Game Protective Association, has just completed a new club house, which is located on Woolper Creek, three miles out of Burlington, on the Petersburg road.

The structure, which is 40x20 feet, is equipped with electricity, tables, chairs and a dandy kitchen, and most "homey" of all, an old fashioned fire place, and makes a delightful place for sportsmen and their friends to gather for social times.

Dedication ceremonies, at which Steve Wakefield, Director of the Fish and Game Department of Frankfort is expected to be present, have been arranged for the 13th of February., and will start at 7:00 p. m. The program will include moving pictures and discussions of conservation of animal life, Fins, Furs, and Feathers.

E. M. Johnson, conservation officer, who lives in Walton, and all other members, are anxious to have this meeting one long to be remembered, and are extending a special invitation to farmers.

This meeting should be of particular interest to everyone, as this association is affiliated with the Kentucky League of Sportsmen, which boasts a membership of about 15,000. And so the club is asking everyone to come and enjoy this social time with them. Refreshments will be served.

4-H Clubs to Organize Soon

4-H clubs will be organized in ten communities beginning the week of February 10, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. Interest already shown in the county, indicates a large enrollment this year.

Six projects will be offered agricultural project members: Poultry, dairy, sheep, colt, tobacco and garden projects are those listed. Some work has already been done on the poultry project by members, who are interested in securing chickens under the plan offered by local hatcherymen. Under this plan the club member receives his chickens without cash outlay and returns the amount received from the sale of 50 pounds of broilers on July 1st.

The colt club project will include both yearling and weanling colts. Last year was the first for colt project and it was received with considerable enthusiasm. Some increase in enrollment is expected this year. Both horse and mule colts will be eligible for entry by a club member.

The number of members carrying sheep as a project, has been small in previous years. With the increasing prices of wool and lambs, there will probably be an increase in sheep project members, who will be anxious to start a flock from one or two ewes.

Dates for the first series of meetings will be announced soon.

Former Gallatin Man Dies In Okla.

Wethaden Eska Crouch, son of Noah and Evaline Howard Crouch, was born at Warsaw, Gallatin county, September 5th, 1857 and passed away in a hospital in Oklahoma City, Okla., January 26th, 1941, aged 83 years, 4 months and 21 days.

Funeral services and burial took place in I. O .O.F. cemetery, Norman, Oklahoma, where his son Harry is buried.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Anna B.; one son, Joe, of Kansas City, Mo.; three brothers, Dr. J. H .Crouch of Norman, Okla.; J. E. Crouch of Indianapolis, Indiana; and W. P. Crouch, of Glencoe, Ky.

Mr. Crouch grew to youngmanhood on his father's farm at Dry Creek, and attended common schools and took academic work in nearby towns. His college work was done in Warsaw, under the tutorship of Prof. Lindsay, an uncle of Vachel Lindsay the writer.

When 15 years old, Mr. Crouch was converted and joined the Oakland Baptist church, later moving his membership to the First Baptist church of Tuttle, Okla.

On the 10th of November, 1880, he was united in marriage to his schoolgirl sweetheart, Miss Jenni Castleman of Glencoe, Ky. Mrs. Crouch passed away five years later, leaving three children, Harry, Joe Howard and Sarah Francis. Harry and Sarah Francis also preceded their father in death.

After the death of his wife, Mr. Crouch accepted a position with George P. Fowler Co., of Kansas City, and served as their shipping clerk for four years, in Boston, Mass.

Returning to Gallatin county, he met Miss Anna B. Stewart of Bourbon county, a teacher of the District school, and on

AGED BURLINGTON WOMAN PASSES

Lucy Ann Cowen, aged 82 years, passed away at the residence in Burlington, Monday February 3, of old age. She had been poorly for about a year.

The body was removed to the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home, where it was prepared for burial, and later returned to the residence, where it lay in state until Wednesday.

Funeral services were held from the Burlington Baptist church, of which she was a member, Wednesday, February 5, at 2:00 p. m. Brother J. W. Campbell officiated. Interment was in Burlington cemetery, and was in charge of Chambers & Grubbs, funeral directors.

The deceased was born in Boone county, where she had spent her entire life. Her husband preceded her in death. Surviving are five nephews and a number of other relatives and friends.

BIBLE COURSE FOR GIRL RESERVES

The Girls Reserve group of Walton, which is composed of 29 girls, has just started a new course in Bible study. This course is to extend over a period of eight weeks, and class will convene each Tuesday. Mrs. T. H. Alderson, who is prepared to capably instruct the class, will be the leader.

This course is conducted by the State Y. M. C. A. for boys, and the Kentucky-Tennessee District of the Y. W. C. A. for girls.

A class for boys will be organized in the near future.

INJURES FACE

Mr. Mart Benson received painful injuries to his face, last Wednesday night, when he walked into a partly opened door, striking his face against the sharp edge. He is getting along nicely, now however, and is sure he'll "outgrow" all disfigurements which showed up immediately after the accident. We agree, too, for Mr. Benson's face is almost back to normal.

Casey county poultry raisers have spent spare time getting brooder houses in shape.

W. C. T. U. To Meet On Friday

There will be a meeting of all those women, (of all denominations) who are interested in organizing a Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Walton. It will be held Friday, February 7, at 2:00 p. m., at the home of Mrs. James H. Talley. A strenuous effort is being put forth to re-establish this splendid and needed organization in this community.

What is the W. C. T. U.? It is the only woman's organization which majors in total abstinence for the individual and abolition of the liquor traffic for the nation and the world. It is the only organization in which the basis of membership is the total abstinence pledge and the payment of annual dues.

Women, who are busy in the church and other such activity, say that they do not have time for such work. The reply comes from the W. C. T. U. hand book, "Yes, the voice of the Church (in most denominations) is raised against liquor when the heads of the Church speak, or when the Conference or Synod passes resolutions. But the Church does not major in temperance work. Its business is saving souls."

The women of Walton should be vitally interested in this Christian organization, especially the mothers. Our children are failing victims of the demon liquor traffic by the hundreds. Who knows whose child will be next?

FRUIT SPECIALIST TO ADDRESS GROWERS

W. W. Magill, fruit specialist, College of Agriculture, will address Boone county fruit growers on next Monday, February 10th, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Meetings will be held at 9:30 a. m. at the farm of B. C. Stephens of near Burlington, and at 1:00 p. m., Central Time, at the farm of William Moore of near Hebron.

Mr. Magill will discuss new developments in spraying, fertilizing and general orchard management. He will also discuss the Market Outlook for fruit in 1941. All growers are invited to attend these meetings.

Essence of Democracy

Boy Scouts throughout the country celebrate the 31st anniversary of the movement in America during the week of Feb. 7-13. While the slogan on the poster above emphasizes the fact that "Scouting strengthens and invigorates democracy" all America agrees that Scout membership is in itself the essence of democracy.

Economic Highlights

It is becoming clear that the unlimited aid for England bill is not going through with the blinding speed the Administration hoped for. On the 23rd of January, one Senate leader said he expected a final vote within 60 days, which indicates the way the wind blows. The opponents of the bill are grimly determined to fight it to a finish—and they have picked up a number of adherents who, while they favor sections of the measure, and are as pro-British as anyone else, were stunned by the tremendous powers it gives the President.

Basis of opposition to the bill is pretty well established. First, its opponents seized eagerly on Secretary Stimson's observation that he expected a crises in the war within 60 to 90 days. They pointed out that even if the bill were passed at once, there could be no significant increase in our aid to England in so short a time. Therefore, they said in effect, "Why all the hurry?"

Second, a major point has been made of the apparent fact that the bill would give the head of this government, which is not at war, far greater powers than are possessed by the head of the British government, which is at war. Mr. Churchill is directly accountable to Parliament for every act—under the English system, he is a member of the House of Commons and must submit to interrogation by any other member. He is not elected for a specific term, and could be turned out of office inside 24 hours if the House of Commons, by a simple majority, refused to endorse some measure or policy he advocated.

Third, it is argued that the bill would revolutionize our system of government, by, in effect, taking the power to make war out of the hands of Congress, where it is specifically placed by the Constitution, and giving it to the Executive.

Fourth, some are raising the argument that if England should fall, the arms and materials and other implements of war we would give her could be turned against us—that our troops might have to fight airplanes and guns and warships made in American yards and factories. It is stressed that all gifts and loans to England would be made only under a definite agreement that they would never be turned over to another power, but the bill's opponents don't think such guarantees would be worth much.

Fifth, the fact that the bill as now drawn would enable the President to actually give England all or part of our Navy, if he so decided, is being made a big fighting point. Administration spokesmen, including the President, have said that nothing of that sort is anticipated, and that the question of using American naval vessels to convoy British merchant shipping—something Britain obviously wants—has not been considered. But Administration men, testifying for the bill, have opposed a proposed clause which would not permit the gift or loan of ships to England without specific Congressional approval.

There are arguments on the other side of all these points, and they are well known—the President and those who think the way he does, have been making them for a long time. There seems to be little common ground between the measure's more extreme defenders and opponents. Political partisanship is playing almost no part in the fight. There is little question of the absolute sincerity of leaders of both sides of the controversy.

Best guess at this time is that there is small likelihood of the bill passing without restricting amendments. Also there is less likelihood of its being defeated as a whole. The bill's opponents have said that they will not stoop to the filibuster, but will battle the issue out on its merits. This may be the biggest fight since the proposal to increase the size of the Supreme Court.

"Unprecedented production — small profits." That, in four words, is as good a forecast as any of the industrial future.

A tremendous expansion of production, carrying us far beyond the 1929 level, is of course inevitable when unlimited billions are to be spent for arms. And small profits seem equally inevitable, in the light of government controls, labor costs, high existing taxes and the certain prospect of new and increased taxes.

Unemployment is said to be going down rapidly. The defense drive calls for workers who are unskilled and semi-skilled as well as skilled. In some highly skilled trades, such as machine - tool work, there is a definite shortage of capable men.

Drastic changes in our normal economy are anticipated soon. For instance, don't be surprised if automobile production is cut by a third or more before the year ends. Motor facilities are going to be needed to a constantly increasing extent for arms purposes. That is also true of factories making heavy household equipment—refrigerators, etc.

Increases in the cost of heavy goods are expected. But there is no inflationary trend. The general cost of living index, which deals with the basic necessities, is showing no particular change at the moment.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

The day of miracles may be gone—but American industry is doing the "impossible" these days in its effort to supply defense goods to all those free nations now battling dictators.

Authorities for that statement are none other than William S. Knudsen and John D. Biggers who, through the new OPM, head up this country's defense production.

Knudsen reported a couple of weeks ago that industry already had done the "impossible" but must do more. Now Biggers says that the word "impossible" has been struck from the American manufacturers' vocabulary.

Those statements, of course, are based on fact and not fancy. Many reports reaching Washington tell of new "impossibles" which have been accomplished by surmounting difficulties and problems which in ordinary times would be "impossible."

Some reports already have been repeated in this column. Here are a few more:

Most defense contracts have been placed with fewer than a thousand manufacturers. The reason was that the government did not know where else to go. Neither government nor any other group had facts and figures describing small plants here and there which alone are not big enough to handle a sizeable defense order but which could do part of it.

Government officials wanted information about these small plants but they thought it was "impossible" to get it. So now industry itself is doing the job. Through the National Industrial Council, which is sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers, a nation-wide survey of plant capacities is being made.

When the information is correlated and tabulated, it will be turned over to defense officials in Washington. Then they will know the practical details about thousands of small plants into which defense jobs can be put.

Then there will be even more instances like the soap manufacturer who is loading shells, the typewriter factory that is working on machine guns, and the stove company that is making special bolts.

It usually would be "impossible" for a manufacturer to deliver to a purchaser goods which cost him more than he gets for them. That would mean either bankruptcy, or a new manager. But one manufacturer who got a sizeable order is doing just that.

He expected to get new machines more efficient than these now in use. He was to begin deliveries in April. The new machines, however, won't be finished until March. So the manufacturer is making the goods on old—and less efficient—machines and will start deliveries February 1, more than two months ahead. So far he has had no assurance—not even silent assurance—that the government will pay his higher costs.

Another comparatively small manufacturer has made loans of more than $500,000 to even smaller sub-contractors so they can turn out parts faster. The bank thought the loans were "impossible" and wouldn't make them, so the manufacturer did.

These are but a very few samples of how the "impossible" is being doing these days. Small wonder that Knudsen and Biggers say that word is going the way of the dodo.

"He that is not with me is against me." One must be either for or against the Saviour. It is impossible to remain neutral.

Rev. Cortland Weldon and promising young son, Clifford, were recent pleasant callers.

Sadness came into many hearts at the announcement of the recent passing of Mrs. Ida Lewis, at the residence of her niece, Mrs. Sherman Barberick. She was a noble christian character, and the void she has left cannot easily be filled. Her life of faith and the memory of her kindly, genial spirit will be retained as a precious heritage by those with whom she came in contact. Deepest sympathy is extended to the far away son and other loved ones.

There are roses whose perfume still lingers

OUR DEMOCRACY — by Mat

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

For the past two weeks I have discussed some national farm problems; now we may ask, "what will Congress do for the farmers?"

It seems certain Congress will continue liberal subsidies in one form or another. The pressure on Congress from the farm belt is so tremendous that I do not think the economy bloc will be able to cut the farm subsidies much. And as you and I know, Congressmen and Senators are always looking back home to see what the voters are thinking about; at present the farmers are thinking about subsidies.

Several alternative plans will be presented to Congress. The first will be to continue the present farm program, with its combination of acreage control, marketing quotas, parity payments, and commodity loans. The farmers are fairly well pleased with this plan and I look for it to be continued. It is the easiest thing for Congress to do, especially since it is busy with the defense program and with aid to Britain.

A second likely plan will be to increase the commodity loans and thus maintain farm prices at higher levels. This plan will be fought by the economy bloc which believes the defense program will raise farm prices to high levels. It will likewise mean more taxes or government loans; I believe Congress will steer clear of any increased taxes which cannot be tagged on to the defense program.

A third plan may be to fix prices on farm products, with rigid control of the processors and handlers. The farmers may not like this for it may fix all prices rigidly.

A fourth plan would be to expand the disposal of farm surpluses through the food stamp plan and other measurer.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has come out for commodity loans at 85% of parity. The Budget Bureau recommendation of parity payments would seem to point to Administration support of the present program. It may be a combination of all these plans will be evolved. But one thing is certain; in spite of the war, the farm problem is not going to be forgotten.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY Gordon Wilson, Ph.D. WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Martin Boxes

When Alexander Wilson, our first great ornithologist, rode his horse from Lexington, Kentucky, to New Orleans, Louisana, 1810, nothing impressed him more than the hospitality shown by all sorts of people to the graceful Purple Martin. "The Choctaws and Chicasaws," he says, "cut off all the top branches from a sapling near their cabins, leaving the prongs a foot or two in length, on each of which they hung a gourd, a calabash, properly hollowed out for their convenience. On the banks of the Mississippi the negroes stick up long canes, with the same species of apartment fixed to their tops, in which the Martins regularly breed." One of the redeeming features of the people of our pioneer days is the fact that they loved the Bluebird and the Purple Martin and even made houses for them to attract them around the farmhouse. In thinking back over the thousands of country houses that I have seen, I know of nothing that is more commonly found than some species of martin box. We boys in the long ago often did our first bit of genuine carpentry when we made a martin box and mounted it on a pole, which, by perverseness, nearly always warped and left our house sitting at a rakish angle. Few of us did a very artistic job in this carpentry, but the martins seemed not to know the difference and accepted our invitation to make our farmyards their home. In the mountains and elsewhere I have seen gourds like those Wilson mentions still attracting yearly their full quota of Purple Martins.

And that reminds me of other boyish contraptions that link the present day with times long gone. Nearly everybody has made a windmill and placed it on a barn or on a long pole. I have passed places within recent months where the yard contained a windmill for each of the several boys who lived there. Regardless of their lack of paint and sometimes a lack of balance, the windmills fluttered and turned in the wind as if they had real business to do; the tall windmill on a stock farm, pumping water from the well, could have done no better. What is almost as good to the one who recalls childhood efforts at creation is to see the mere stub of a windmill over a smokehouse or henhouse or stock barn, the mill itself having long ago been blown away. Everyone of us had our windmills to do this very thing, I am sure; it was heart-breaking to take down the wing or tail or whatever it is left when the mill blows off.

Down by the brooks in spring and fall flutter mills still wobble along as in the older times. No other childhood plaything seems more poetic. Long before dams were made, I suspect, boys knew the force and power of water because of their flutter mills. Not to have made one is to have missed a joyous part of being a boy.

Nearly every boy I knew tried his hand at some device for saving labor, usually with lamentable results. There were things that would open the gate when you drove up, that is, they were supposed to open the gate. I recall how I invented a "burr-fighter," with which I whipped the cockleburrs out of my way when I went across the fields in late fall. It was a clumsy mess of wire and probably damaged my clothes more than the burrs would have. I always wanted to invent a bed that would spill me out at the correct time, little realizing that another boy, of my father's generation, had already done this very thing. Rather oddly this boy became in later life our most eminent student of glaciers, John Muir; the invention took shape in this pioneer home in the Wisconsin woods.

Mrs. J. M. Devore is able to be up following a severe illness of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Zimmerman of Louisville were week end guests of Mrs. Nora Davis and family.

Friends of Lee A. Lindsey will be glad to know he is better, having been seriously ill of pneumonia at his home in Lexington.

Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the aged mother, sisters and brothers of Omer and Eura Mae Hon, in their sad bereavement. Mrs. Hon, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Kemper, was born and reared in this vicinity.

To Eura Mae

We paused beside your narrow bed
And gazed on your dear face,
Where time and many sufferings
Could not it's beauty erase.

I recalled our happy childhood days,
When often at our play
Your merry laugh rand out—
You were the gayest of the gay.

We gathered wild flowers by the brook
You took yours home to "Mother,"
Rewarded with a loving smile
That could surpass no other.

And now upon your resting place
With fern and lilite fair
Engraved with one word "Mother"
A wreath is laid with care.

'Tis all that she could give you
Co-mingled with her love,
That traveled with you all through life
And followed you above.

It is not for us to understand
Or measure out what seems the best
But our Saviour's love is with us all
And we feel that you are at rest.

CONCORD

The sick of this community are improving, we are glad to say.

Some from Concord attended the funeral of Mr. Lucian Beach at Mt. Zion. A large crowd was present at the last rites. Brother Abernathy preached the funeral sermon. The family has our sympathy.

The W. M. S. will meet at the church, the 2nd Wednesday afternoon. All are urged to be present.

Mrs. Lena Speagle is still in California, visiting her son Harold. She writes of enjoying her visit very much.

Mrs. Charles Stafford of Latonia spent Sunday with her father, A. J. Stone, at Verona, it being his 75th birthday.

Mrs. Sallie Whitson is visiting in Cincinnati for a week. We missed her from Sunday school.

Preaching at Concord Sunday and Sunday night. A welcome is extended to every one.

GROWING UP SIGNS

One of the joys of parenthood is watching and marveling at the baby's development from day to day. There are his first smile—his first word—and his first strained food to celebrate. Then comes the day his first tooth is discovered and when he gets a few more teeth you make an occasion of his graduation to the almost-grown-up stage where he is given chopped foods.

Certain of these gala days bring new responsibilities to the mother, of course. Introducing the new strained cereals, fruits and vegetables is a task requiring particular care because this is the baby's first experience with them. Since they are so important to his growth and later health, one must make an effort to teach him to enjoy their flavors. Also, his introduction to the chopped foods which are intermediate between his strained foods and the family fare, must be carefully planned so it is connected in his mind with a pleasant situation for it is at this time he learns to chew.

Necessary considerations in introducing these new foods to the baby are fine quality and flavor. Also, since you depend on the strained and chopped foods to provide the baby with vitamins and minerals that build a strong body and help keep him healthy, they must be foods prepared with extra care. For these reasons, more and more doctors are recommending the use of the prepared strained and chopped foods which come in cans and need only to be heated before serving.

Though one can get these foods ready for the child with the usual home kitchen equipment, the special equipment which prepares the food assures the retention of minerals that are precious, and the absence of air in the process preserves the vitamins to the greatest extent possible. Further proof of the extra value of these strained and chopped foods is that they are made from products harvested at their most perfect state of development immediately upon their removal from the fields. This assures delicious freshness of flavor and thus helps the baby enjoy his first fruits and vegetables the more.

The age at which the child should be given either the strained or the chopped foods is a question which the doctor in charge should decide. Some babies can take small amounts of any of the strained foods at four months, while others might be sensitive to them. In the case of the chopped foods, the tooth development and the aptitude of the child in his attempts to chew may have something to do with the time he may be served them. The starting age for chopped foods will usually vary between 12 and 18 months, depending upon the doctor's advice.

Both are given gradually at first. The strained food is diluted with water or milk so the change from the liquid diet will not be too abrupt, then the proportion of liquid is decreased by degrees. The baby may start with a teaspoon of the strained food given at one of the feeding times during the day, then this amount should be increased until he gets a full 4½-ounce tin per day.

One may start feeding the chopped food by mixing a small amount of it with the strained food of similar flavor until he becomes accustomed to the feel of the coarser particles. After that the proportion of the chopped food is gradually increased. The chopped foods come in large cans, holding 6½ ounces, because by the time the baby is getting these he is eating a greater quantity at one time.

Fortunately, both the prepared strained and prepared chopped foods offer an excellent variety to the baby. There are 14 different kinds of strained foods—2 soups, 8 strained vegetables, one strained cereal and 3 strained fruits. Among the chopped foods are a lamb and liver combination, a cereal, vegetable and chicken combination, 4 creamed vegetables, 2 chopped vegetables without the cream sauce and one mixture of chopped vegetables besides 3 fruit desserts. Thus you have ample opportunity to teach a child to like a great variety of delicious foods which are specially good for him with the result that you have few feeding problems as he grows up.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

"Imbued with the Spirit of Christ," is the topic of the devotional program to be presented by the Baptist Young People's Union, Sunday evening at 6:00 p.

AIM: That Each one May Have the Spirit of Christ in ALL of His Life.

Group captain in charge will be Geraldine Elliott.

Meditation:

The "world has it all wrong when it says, "Be good and be lonesome." Christians are the happiest people and their pleasures leave no "dark brown taste on the morning after." Piety pays here and now, and piles up a big bank account for the hereafter.

A Good Investment—is the time spent in God's House.

HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

Ideas for Here and There About the House

Last week we talked of "taking stock" of what we have and what we might do about it. Here's an idea (photo below) about an unusual front door bell if you like to have something a little different. And do use a pair of green bay trees in green wooden tubs on either side of the front door. And this all leads to the fact that some of you have enclosed porches which, if not heated, you can't use perhaps in our colder climates at this season, but you can make them attractive places to look at without much cost.

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

In an enclosed corner, or an open terrace, use two conical shaped evergreens of whatever sort seems to fit, with or without a garden figure between them, and if temperature permits, or as the season advances, refresh your soul by placing half a dozen tulip plants against the wall. Green plants or ivy standards are good with them, and the bay tree at the door gives a terminal. In front of a window, on the outside, place your nicest garden bench and if the terrace is sunny, a row of tulips, if not, then ivy. Again bank the corner with evergreens—one tall and one short tree. And by the way, if you are interested in nice copper leader heads note the attractive one used on this outside terrace. In a verdigris finish (which good copper turns with age) it's good to look at as well as useful.

Beauty Outdoors by Planning

Decorating the Wall

Many of the small new houses being built all over the country have a small terrace at the front door and a good sized living room as you enter, with the stairway going up at the side, or even at one end of the wall, opposite the doorway; in either case, leaving a large wall space. In many cases a big sofa is put against it and rightly so. But what to put over it is the puzzle. There are a number of things to do—one good large picture may be used. One medium sized picture with a pair of wall brackets on each side of it holding small ivy plants, or a single ornament, is another suggestion, or last, but not least, a group of pictures may be used. Many of us have four or six pictures of some one subject we like. They may be different sizes. Have them framed the same size, which can be done with different sized mats, and hang them in a row of four, if of good height, or in two rows of three, one above the other. Or perhaps you have some favorite photographs, not of people but of your sail boat, or camp, which are decorative. If so, in a very narrow gold or colored frame, with a mat, they may make an interesting row of pictures, not to mention that they will be a conversation group, as all your friends will want to know about them. There are endless subjects you could use, and you could change them in a year or two, for a new set. And speaking of conversation, if the sofa is on this long wall, be sure to put a small table with a lamp and an easy chair near it for the sake of conversation, as it's "livableness" in a house that just naturally makes you want to linger in it.

How true it is that often blinded eyes
See not the anguish of a breaking heart—
That ears, grown dull to voices of the past,
Hear not the pleas which still come, sighingly!
Should we but speak, when silence brings but pain,
What well we know are words to certain bring Responsive warmth, and death of bitterness,
Then soon would yearning lips know—Love again!

SPARE THE BIRDS; THEY ARE THE FARMER'S FRIEND

(By James J. Gilpin)

Announcement was made today by S. A. Wakefield, Director o fthe Division of Game and Fish, of the appointment of Burt L. Monroe as state ornithologist for the Division.

Wakefield, in his announcement, stated that one of the chief duties of the ornithologist will be to assist in the education of the public to the value of the protection of our Song and Insectivorous birds in Kentucky. It is one of the duties of the Division of Game and Fish to protect the song and insectivorous birds as well as the game birds and this work is being carried on throughout the state by the Conservation Officers, both by enforcement of the laws and by education of the public.

"The song and insectivorous birds have been gradually decreasing in Kentucky during the past several years," Wakefield pointed out, "and unless the sportsmen and farmers cooperate in protecting them, they will continue to decrease even more rapidly in the future. Not only are these birds beautiful to look at and pleasant to listen to, but they are also of great value to the farmers in helping to protect the crops from destructive insect life, which can hardly be controlled in any other way. Nature placed the wild feathered friends here as a check on insect life and once they are destroyed then the insects will completely destroy the crops, orchards, grasses and all other vegetation."

In concluding his statement, Wakefield warned all persons of the penalties which can be imposed for killing the song and insectivorous birds. The only birds NOT PROTECTED BY LAW are the Cooper's hawk, sharp-skinned hawk, the crow, the starling, the English sparrow and the great horned owl.

Mrs. R. B. Hancock, Green county, has been getting 40 eggs per month from her flock of 57 hens.

FOR THE HUNGRY MAN

Here is a robust dish which will please your husband when he comes home tired and hungry — Brown Chops with Oven-Baked Beans. The tangy tomato sauce cooks into the pork chops to give them extra flavor and succulence as it bubbles in the oven. You can use the four different kinds of oven-baked beans in similar combination with other meats as well—sausages, hamburgers and veal chops.

Brown Chops with Oven-Baked Beans

Fry until nicely browned and about done—
4 to 6 pork chops.
Pour over chops—
1 medium (18-oz.) can oven-baked beans, vegetarian-style.
Add, mixing lightly—
1 teaspoon sugar
⅓ cup tomato ketchup.
Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 to 30 minutes.

SUPPER SUSTENANCE

Main dishes which can be prepared quickly are very much in demand in the household where the lighter meal of the day is served in the evening, and such prepared foods as cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese help you have tempting variety in these suppers. The spaghetti may be merely heated to make a meal with the help of a vegetablo and rolls, or you may wish to make a more substantial dish of it by adding meat as in the following recipe:

Combination Meat and Spaghetti Platter

Fry together in skillet with fat—
½ pound fresh sausage
½ pound ground beef.
Season with—
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper.
Add—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. Keep covered while heating, stirring as little as possible. Turn out on platter with meat on top and just before serving sprinkle with Grated sharp cheese.
Serves four.

CHILDREN LOVE TO COOK

Children are thrilled when you give them an opportunity to do a little cooking. They can spend many happy hours in the kitchen learning to prepare simple dishes. If you select recipes carefully and make sure they are written clearly, you find you do not need to give much help to these beginning chefs. The following recipe using prepared macaroni in cream sauce with cheese is one that gives the children experience in using the oven, and the delicate combination of flavors is particularly appealing to them. They would have great fun inviting their friends over to a meal at which they served this dish:

Macaroni and Tuna Scallop

Drain oil from—
1 small (7-oz.) can tuna fish. Separate into flakes and place half of the fish in the bottom of a small casserole.
Top with half of—
1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.
Repeat layers, then sprinkle over all—
Crumbled potato chips.
Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) about 25 minutes or until heated through and bubbling. Serves four to five. One cup finely diced or ground cooked meat may be substituted for the tuna fish.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

HAWK IN THE WIND

by HELEN TOPPING MILLER

Copyright, 1938, by H. Appleton Chidsey Co., Inc.

CHAPTER XIII—Virgie refuses to sell her property and Withers vows he will run her out of business. Virgie decides that the mill is really worth fighting for and she resolves to fight to the utmost to save it from Withers.

CHAPTER XIV — Virgie Morgan's troubles at the mill are increased as the men report additional sabotage to the slowing up production. She takes Branford Wills into her confidence and explains that she believes Wallace Withers to be at the source of all her troubles. She shows Wills a map of timber land belonging to Tom Pruitt which she says Withers is trying to obtain to use as his supply of pulpwood for the new mill it is reported he plans to build. Wills looks at the map and, being familiar with the area because of his work with the government survey party which worked in the district, says that he would like to go and check over the property.

"I said you were going!" she stated grimly. "Who else can I trust? This is more important than your silly personal prejudices."

Marian stood stormily, staring out a dark window.

"How do you know it is important? Because he says so! Oh, Mother—can't you see that all this Wallace Withers business is just a coincidence? Wallace Withers heard about the trouble in the mill and he thought it was a good time to jump in and try to bluff and scare you. The Spains and the Andersons and Billy didn't leave because of Wallace Withers—I'll never believe that. They didn't want to work under Wills and they resented his Sherlocking around the mill. You won't believe me—but Lucy thinks the same as I—and so does Stanley Daniels."

"So—you've all got your heads together and decided that I'm a senile old fool, eh?"

"Mother, I didn't say that. Please—"

"I don't ask much from you. Mighty little. I'm not asking now—I'm telling you. You'd better start at seven. Andrew will have the car ready."

Marian sighed. "I'm not trying to be tiresome, Mother. I want to help. If only you would see—"

"I've seen enough and heard enough. I'm tired. I've worked fourteen hours today and had trouble enough. Tomorrow you'll drive the car over to Hazel Fork—and I want to hear no more about it."

Marian set her chin. "Did it ever occur to you, Mother, that I might have something to say about the management of the mill? I'm a stockholder. I own as much stock as you. My father left it to me."

"I suppose," drawled Virgie, scornfully, "you'd like to have all the pulp dyed lavender!"

"There's this about it, Mother. If Tom voted with me—you wouldn't be keeping Branford Wills on to ruin our mill!"

Virgie stood tall. Her face had turned stony and white as death.

"And I suppose if I don't run things to suit you, you'll sell the mill to Wallace Withers—you and Tom?"

"I really think I have some rights, Mother."

"You have. It will be a relief to me, too, if you'll exercise them. You might vote to discharge me and hire somebody else to get out pulp. That would be a help. I'm worn to the bone and I could use some rest. You could also figure out where the pay-rolls are coming from and how that car of chemicals, with bill of lading attached, is going to be unloaded and paid for. I'd like a day in bed—and I could go to the movies. I've only seen a couple of shows since David died. Maybe I'll join the Little Theatre. Could they use a fat old woman with a more or less bass voice and broken-down arches?"

"Mother — you know I never meant—"

"No—you didn't mean that kind of authority. None of you ever do—the young, brash things who want to run the world! You want to give orders in an arrogant tone—but when it comes to getting out in the frosty woods at five o'clock in the morning or up on a hot slope in the middle of May, when there's a hundred acres of fire rolling down into your timber—no, you never mean things like that. You haven't linked up yet the old fundamental that along with authority goes a devilish lot of bone-grinding work. But maybe you're going to discard that, with all the rest of the old-fashioned fundamentals?"

Marian looked small and wan.

"I'm sorry, Mother. I'll go tomorrow. I'll be ready at seven. But —may I go to the Little Theatre meeting now?"

"Baby—" Virgie faltered. She was imperious no more. She was a tired woman, with whitening temples. "If I have to fight you, too—"

Marian gave a little, strangled sob. "I'm horrible," she choked, "to talk like that to you—"

They clasped each other tight. And over her child's shoulder Virgie looked up at the pictured face of David Morgan, and her deep courage returned.

CHAPTER XV

The play was already being read when Stanley Daniels walked into the meeting of the Little Theatre group.

Lucy had begun it in her frail, sweet voice, but very promptly Marian Morgan had objected

"Let Sally read, Lucy. We can't hear half that you say."

Lucy colored and stammered, smiling her nervous smile, handing over the book.

"I wouldn't be any good on the stage, would I?" She tried to laugh. "I try to make my voice bigger but it just won't be. Begin that scene again, Mrs. Gallup."

Sally read dramatically, "'Muriel'—Muriel's the wife, isn't she? No she's the polo player's wife. Where was I? Oh, yes—'Muriel: And what if I told you that I hated you, Boyd?'"

"You." Marian interrupted, "could do Muriel, Sally. Your voice suits that part."

"Where was I? 'Boyd lights a cigarette'—who'll be Boyd?"

"Maybe Bill would."

"He wouldn't. If we talked him into it, just about the time the show was ready to go on, a wire would blow down or a turbine go wrong or something. Oh, here's Stanley. Hello, Stanley—listen to this part and see if you'd like to do it."

"But — there are several other plays," Lucy piped feebly. "They sent six on approval. You might like some of the others better."

"Go on, Sally," Marian prodded. "We'll never get through at this rate."

Lucy held her breath while Stanley Daniels took off his coat. She had maneuvered an empty chair and she glowed happily when he crossed the room and sat beside her.

"I don't like this play so much," she whispered. "I wish they'd read some of the others."

Sally's voice rose and fell dramatically. Lucy sank into a happy numbness. She was very tired, and she was unimportant to this group and knew it, and she did not greatly care so long as Daniels was near. She wondered if he would walk home with her, and nursed a jerk of panic for fear he wouldn't. They had so much to talk over—so much had happened at the mill—and here the small cold uncertainty that had tormented Lucy for days intruded again.

Had Daniels been a little odd at the mill—a trifle on the defensive? She hated harboring this uneasiness, but it would not down.

"I'm an awful fool!" Lucy scorned herself.

She made herself stop thinking about it, made herself stop looking at the backs of his hands, lean and slender and stained with chemicals. His cuffs were very clean. He was always clean, close-shaven, jaunty. She tried to listen to the play, but it was stupid and too sophisticated for a village audience, she decided.

Sally read gaily on. "Oh, listen—I love this! Muriel says, 'Why do we seem always to fall in love with the wrong people? Why does love go blundering through the world, Greg? Nothing else blunders—not death nor trouble—they go straight to the mark—but love gets itself lost—finds itself in strange places where it was never meant to be.' I think that's a gorgeous line. Why don't we just decide on this play and send the others back?"

"It's so talky," Marian argued. "Muriel is a good part but that Pam—she's washy, I think. Nobody could make Pam appealing."

"You could. Especially in this scene with Greg."

"That weepy thing? You know I can't weep. And Pam is always surrendering. Maybe English women surrender so gracefully—but I couldn't. And we haven't anyone to play Greg."

"Why not ask that new man? He's grand looking."

"He wouldn't be interested," Marian said, aloofly.

"You mean," Lucy was thinking, "you wouldn't be interested in having him."

The meeting ended at nine, after some squabbling, with no decision arrived at.

"I must go," Sally said. "Bill's playing pool—he always loses and he'll get bored and mad after an hour of it. And we have such a ghastly long way to go."

Lucy was nervous as she put the plays back into the envelope. Stanley Daniels helped her on with her coat, but he said nothing about walking home. Instead, he crossed the room and began talking to the others. Lucy's heart went down with a sick thump, though she made an effort at being gay as they all went down the stairs together. At the bottom she gave a little shiver and exclaimed, "Br-r-r! Cold. I'm glad I haven't far to go."

But Stanley Daniels had already hurried away, with a casual good night.

Lucy walked home rapidly along the dark little street. She had walked it all her life, she knew every bush, every post, every rut in the cinder path, windows were lighted and people up and about, but she quickened her walk into a run. But this was not from fear. It was not fear that made her snatch the front door open, throw her hat into a chair, and rush to her own room. She had to get there before misery overwhelmed her.

Her purse fell on the floor as she flung herself on the bed. Tears ran down and soaked the pillow, and her thin shoulders shook. Nothing was any use! He didn't care—and who could blame him? This awful house—her awful clothes—her colorless personality. Even her voice was pale and uninteresting. He was sick of her—she had flung herself at him—oh, she had! No use denying it. A ragged sob tore past her lips.

"What's the matter with you?" Her mother in her faded outing nightgown and curlers was at the door.

Lucy burrowed deeper into the pillow.

"Nothing's the matter!" she wailed. "Everything's the matter! Go away! Oh, for heaven's sake, go away!"

Stanley Daniels walked rapidly. He was definitely worried. He had returned to his room at Mrs. Gill's, after the tense, upset day at the mill, to find a note on the hall table. Mrs. Gill drew his attention to it eagerly.

"He left it here about an hour ago. He said he'd come back. He said he wanted to see you about seven-thirty."

Daniels tore the cheap gray envelope open. A defensive, apprehensive anger made his face burn as he read the few lines.

"When he comes I won't be here. Tell him I had to go to a meeting. An important meeting."

"Maybe you better write a note," worried the landlady. "Maybe I'll get it wrong." She did not like offending people—not when she owned money on a note.

"No, I won't write any note. Just tell him that I had another engagement."

But as he hurried along the frozen street he had a feeling that things impended. It did not surprise him when he walked into his own room to find Wallace Withers sitting there in the one comfortable chair.

"Well, I waited, young feller," Wallace said. "I sent you word two or three times to come and see me, but you didn't take the trouble—so I came to see you."

"So I see." Daniels strove for nonchalance. "I've been busy. I intended coming but—" he hung up his overcoat carefully. "Was there something you wanted to see me about?"

Wallace Withers squared himself and fixed his hands in a pontifical gesture.

"Things have happened — you might say all that development I was talking to you about is about to come to a climax. The men who are in with me are ready to take—definite steps. We figure we're ready for a little co-operation now from you." It was spoken pompously. Obviously, Daniels decided, the speech had been rehearsed.

"And how am I supposed to co-operate?"

Daniels' lips drew straight. His eyes moved away, grew guarded.

"And how am I supposed to co-operate?"

Wallace Withers liked an effect. He waited a moment, put on an expression of suave importance, spread his fingers on the backs of his hands.

"I am about ready to start some—extensive operations. Lumber—and pulp. From what I've heard from you I figured you might be ready to come along in with me. I expect to buy the Morgan mill. If Virgie holds out—and she's a hard-headed woman—we'll build a mill of our own, but I've got an idea that won't be necessary. And I'm counting on you."

Uncertainty, fear even, was cold in Stanley Daniels' veins, but he gave no sign.

"So—that's what you had in your mind? I wasn't impressed at first. I thought it was all—well, a lot of windy talk. But you had it all planned out."

Withers' lips folded and unfolded like the lips of a turtle.

"I don't waste time on windy talk," he said. "Not on young squirts like you. I talked to you because I had something for you to do—and you did it!"

Stanley Daniels sprang up. "I did nothing! I'm not in this. I'm not interested."

"Virgie," drawled the old man, "might figure different. And you better be interested. It means a future for you—or no future at all, you might say. I mean to go a long ways in this business—I've got money in back of me and I'm not going to do any two-penny job of it. If you want to come along—all right. If you don't—"

"Then what?" Daniels' face was stiff and colorless.

Wallace Withers grinned and it was not a pleasant grin.

"Way I look at it—if you don't come in with me, there won't be any place for you to go."

"She won't sell."

"She'll sell—or quit! Even if she don't sell—you won't have a job any more!"

"So—that's the racket! Either I go in with you—wreck what I'm doing—or you wreck me? That's a threat, is it?"

"I don't aim to use words like that. I'm just giving you the best advice I know. And I'm making you a pretty good offer."

"An offer of what? A business that isn't established — a pipe-dream."

"You might find out it was a pretty strong pipe. You fellers," he waxed oratorical, "you young men think you know everything. That's your trouble. You don't give any man past forty credit for having any sense."

"I'll give you credit for plenty of sense—crook sense! I might have known what you were up to! You tricked me—got information out of me and now—"

"And now you're sort of squirming, ain't you, boy? Well, you needn't squirm. Not if you keep your head and look out for number one. I don't figure to talk—not to anybody. Of course, I could go to Virgie Morgan and tell her a mighty interestin' story. But that won't be needful, if you keep your head—and anyway, I look for Virgie to be ready to listen to reason by another week."

"Look here, if you think I'm going to—"

Withers ran his blunt, cruel-looking fingers through his hair.

"I'm not going to argue with you," he said. "And if you think you can make me mad, you ain't getting anywhere with it. It's been tried before. All you've got to do is quit your job by noon Saturday. Tell Virgie you've got a better offer—tell her anything you please—but you're going to quit."

"And what if I don't?" Daniels was defiant.

Withers shook down his too-short sleeves, picked up his hat.

"You will," he said dryly.

He tramped down the stairs and Stanley Daniels heard the door slam.

Daniels stood still for a long minute, lit a cigarette and let it go out, then snatched up his hat. The air of the room was suddenly stifling. He pounded down the stairs.

In the parlor, with the asparagus ferns, the everlasting rummy game went on. Three salesmen were playing, slapping down cards, laughing loudly. The fourth player was Branford Wills.

Daniels stared, swore, went out quickly. So—he was spying was he—the heel, the interloper! A surge of fury burned through Daniels' body, then chilled, leaving him with a weight of cold nausea at the pit of his stomach. He found himself thinking of Lucy. Of her gentle eyes and her mothering ways and her loyalty. Suddenly he felt young and lonely and afraid.

WITH THE REDS

About a year ago Mike McCormick was just another aspiring young outfielder on the roster of the Cincinnati Reds. The name McCormick, magic to the rabid baseball fans of Cincinnati, caused some attention to be shifted in his direction, but aside from that, very little was written and said about him.

The situation has changed greatly in a year. Today Mike is a fixture in the outfield of the Cincinnati Reds, champions of the world, and is regarded as one of the outstanding young men to enter the majors during the 1940 season.

Mike started the season as the Reds' leftfielder, was benched because of light hitting, then turned right around and won the centerfield job from Harry Craft. The process of winning the centerfield post was accomplished by some heavy clubbing during the last half of the season that raised his mark from an anaemic .245 to a healthy .300. Mike pelted at a .350 pace during the last month of the season, and continued his red hot pace during the world series when he averaged .310.

Bill McKechnie is strong for the 23-year-old coast boy, because of his aggressiveness. He plays to win. There's no fooling with him. He gives everything he's got out there on the ball field and he has the competitive spirit that helps him to do his best in times of stress. He seems to be a better hitter when the tying or winning run is on base, or when a crucial ball game is being played.

Though a great reputation did not precede McCormick to the Reds, there were quite a number of people not far from here who predicted he had a great chance to make the grade in the National League. These people were mostly from the vicinity of Indianapolis, where Mike played during these two seasons were particularly enthusiastic about the chances of their favorite.

Even after McCormick's first year at Indianapolis, when he batted only .250, he was being touted as a future big time star, to which major leaguers turned a deaf ear and responded with, "Must be a nice boy, but another one of those good field, no hit guys." He exploded the no hit theory in 1939, when he raised his average to .318 and was selected by the Reds under the terms of the working agreement the club had with Indianapolis.

As things turned out, this was a fortunate selection. Here is a boy who won't be 24 years of age until May 6 with a full season of successful major league competition under his belt, and whose potentialities are terrific. There is no player who has greater physical qualifications than McCormick. He's a 6-foot, 200-pounder, who can run like the devil, and who has a great throwing arm. In school he set a northern California record for the 100-yard dash. He covered distance in 9.9.

Elmer Riddle, young Cincinnati pitcher, held all opponents to an average of 1.85 earned runs per nine innings last year. He pitched 34 innings and allowed seven earned runs.

Mel Ott hit a home run with two on in the ninth inning to defeat Gene Thompson the first time he ever worked in the Polo Grounds early in 1938. Since that time, the Giants haven't beaten Gene. Last year Thompson decisioned the Giants five times in five starts.

Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer, Cincinnati's ace pitching team, each defeated the second place team, Brooklyn, four times last year.

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!
Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.
After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.
Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.
THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 9

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

THE CHRISTIAN'S ATTITUDE TOWARD POSSESSIONS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 16:10-15, 19-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye cannot serve God and mammon.—Luke 16:13.

"In the service" is an expression much used today. Every community has young men in the service of their country. But they are not the only "service men," for the fact is that every man and woman serves under some authority. Our lesson today reminds us that our attitude toward our possessions determines both character and destiny. We decide whether they shall rule us or we shall rule them.

I. Who Is Your Master—God or Gold? You Decide! (vv. 10-15).

The decision here is of the "either —or" variety. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon" (which means "riches").

Money itself is neither good nor bad. It is the use to which it is put that determines whether it is to bless or to destroy. Rightly gained and rightly used, money is an honor to the man who has it, and will, through him, become a means of blessing. On the other hand, money which controls a man will blast his own soul and those of others round him.

Who decides which it shall be? You—and you alone. Here we come to the central truth of the matter. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much" (v. 10). We generally read that as though it said, "He that is now faithful in a little will later have an opportunity to be faithful in much." That may be true, but what Jesus said here was that he "is faithful in much."

The point is that the man who is faithful in the much shows that life attitude by being faithful in the little. That is, only the man who is right in the great matter of his relationship with God will be the ruler over his possessions for the glory of God and the good of his fellow man.

Someone may say, "I don't believe that." Well, you are in bad company (see vv. 14, 15). The Pharisees, who loved money, who were self-righteous, and whose attitude was an abomination in the sight of God, derided the words of Jesus.

If you don't like that kind of companions, I invite you to come over on God's side.

II. Where Will You Spend Eternity? Your Life Decides (vv. 19-23).

Our life beyond the grave is determined by our life on this side of death. Yes, we know that eternal life is a gift of God received by faith in Christ as Saviour, quite apart from our own works or our merit. But let us not forget that this means far more than uttering a few words of profession or going through a formula.

The man who really turns to Christ in saving faith becomes a new creature; he is born again (I Pet. 1:23). That means that he walks "in newness of life" (Rom. 6:4). And thus his life in this world determines both by decision for Christ and daily living for Him that he will, like Lazarus, be received into eternal blessedness.

Sad to say, the opposite is also true. Living as the rich man did, for self, will bring judgment in the world to come. There is no indication that he was especially wicked, but only that he loved his money, revelled in the flamboyant display of his wealth (v. 19), and had no thought for others (v. 21). Here again, the point is that these outward deeds were the expression of a heart attitude against God.

Death came to both of these men. It will come to all of us, unless the Lord returns to take us to Himself. It is not a pleasant matter to think of death, but only the unintelligent will fail to recognize the coming of that day. When it comes, it may be too late to make any real life decisions. Now is the acceptable time. Today is the day of salvation.

The verses immediately following our lesson in chapter 16 indicate that the decision of men concerning their relationship to God is not dependent on the miraculous, but on moral and spiritual truth. The man who says he would believe if he could only see God perform a miracle is only evading the issue. Verse 31 says that the man who rejects God's Word does so because he wants to, not because he needs to be convinced by a miracle.

We Sleep to Wake

One who never turned his back, but marched breast forward,
Never doubted coulds would break;
Never dreamed, though right were worsted, wrong would triumph;
Held we fall to rise, are baffled to fight better.
Sleep to wake.
—Robert Browning

Vegetable Growers to Meet With Extension Specialist

Mr. John S. Gardner, extension specialist from the College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky., will meet with vegetable growers in the county. Two meetings are scheduled.

Crescent Springs Community

Vegetable growers in the Crescent Springs community will meet at the Crescent Springs Fire House, 1:30 p. m., Eastern Standard time, Wednesday, February 5, 1941.

Independence Community

The meeting for the vegetable growers in the Independence section will meet at the Independence Court House, 1:30 p. m., Eastern Standard time Thursday, February 6, 1941.

Vegetable Growing Problems Studied

Vegetable growers in the county will meet to study plant bed management, plant disease control, and insect pests, in potatoes, tomatoes, beans and other vegetable crops. Cultural practices and new varieties will be discussed by the growers at the meeting.

All vegetable growers are invited to attend and take part in the study of their vegetable growing problems.

Fruit Growers To Meet February 11

Kenton County Fruit Growers will meet Tuesday, February 11th in the Oak Ridge section and also in the Crescent Springs section. W. W. Magill, extension horticulturist, will meet with the growers in both sections. The Oak Ridge meeting will be at the farm of John P. Schumacher at 10:00 a. m., and the Crescent Springs meeting will be at 1:30 p. m.

Poultry Pointers For February

1. Gather eggs often and prevent them from becoming soiled, chilled or broken.

2. Place the eggs, little end down, in a regular egg case. Cases holding 15 or 30 dozen eggs can be bought for a few cents.

3. Hatching eggs should be kept in a room as near 50 to 60 degrees Farenheit as possible; temperature as low as freezing or as high as 68 degrees F. injures them.

4. Turn the eggs daily by tilting the egg case from end to end.

5. Select good eggs for hatching by using those that are (a) fresh, (b)egg-shaped, (c) 24 to 26 ounces per dozen, (d) clean, (e) string in shell texture, and (f) free from tint in white-egg breeds.

Chick Problems to Consider

1. If you do not have a good pasture for your next summer's pullets, seed a field this month.

2. If you need a new brooder house build it now.

3. Clean the brooder house.

4. Build or buy a brooder, or make any necessary repairs on the old ones. Most brooder houses should be made larger if a brick brooder is to be used.

5. Did you fail to order chicks last month? If so, place your order now.

6. Eggs that are to be hatched at home or custom hatched should be set this month.

7. Growing chicks need different sizes of feeders. Make or buy them and be ready when they are needed.

8. The season's supply of fuel for your brooder should be provided now.

WALNUT LICK

William Phipps of Covington, and Leslie Schmidt of this place, attended the Pennington sale at Union, Saturday.

The W. M. S. will meet the 12th of February, just in the afternoon, at the church. Let everyone who can be present. We miss you when you are not there, and you miss those good meetings when you stay away.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Bingham were calling on her parents, Sunday afternoon.

Those who have been on the sick list are on their way to recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvy Hughes were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Edrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Greenwell and James Whitson attended the funeral of Lucian Beach at Mt. Zion, Sunday afternoon. I extend sympathy to the brothers and sister, in the loss of a dear brother, as he was a relative of this scribe, also.

Mrs. Vevie Webster was calling on Mrs .Lula Plunkett Wednesday afternoon .Mrs. Plunkett has had the measles.

Tevis Thomas of Verona attended Sunday school at Concord Sunday ,and was calling on Mr. and Mrs. Russell Webster and family for dinner.

Mrs. Flonnie Edrington was calling on Mrs. Albert Rhodes, Sr., Saturday afternoon.

Scouts to Hear President

Besides all the Boy Scouts in the country—a membership of 1,500,000 right now—all America will have an opportunity to hear President Roosevelt, Honorary President; Walter W. Head (right), President, and Dr. James E. West (left), Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, mark the 31st anniversary of the Movement in the United States, over the NBC (Red), CBS and MBS networks, and many local stations not affiliated with the networks, on Saturday, February 8, at 7:30 p. m., EST; 6:30 CST; 5:30 MST and 4:30 PST.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

The Bell Tolls!

The bell peals, the liquor traffic says, for what alcoholic beverages have done to this nation since such narcotic drinks were returned to the public market place by repeal in 1933!

The bell tolls, the social and religious leader says, for what liquor has done and is doing in multiplying the human and economic miseries which always are the dregs in each drinker's cup!

The bell clangs an alarm to the nation, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union says, to stop what liquor is doing, to return to a sane, sober concept of life, instead of giving in on all fronts to human weakness and commercial greed!

Every American who is mentally awake knows that the nation faces serious problems resulting from the sale and use of alcoholic beverages.

1941's Saloon

Leaders of the liquor traffic advise their saloonkeepers to "curb excesses" or an aroused public will prohibit their trade.

Leaders of the temperance forces say these "excesses" and their bad effects spring from the "narcotic which the liquor traffic peddles."

Apologists for liquor point to taxes paid, jobs furnished, and grain bought by the alcoholic beverage industry.

Crusaders of the temperance forces say to look behind these claims and see the huge costs of liquor - inspired delinquency and crime, of wasted lives and opportunities, of actual economic losses.

In trying to evaluate this problem and to think through to a conclusion, the average citizen has run up against a mass of propaganda but a minimum of cold, hard facts.

If the American public has the facts, no one need worry about the public's final decision on any problem of great social importance. But, the public must have the facts, enlarged only by sound, logical conclusions which those facts and mankind's history will support.

One Result

The W.C.T.U. believes the facts point the way to personal abstinence for the individual and prohibition for the traffic. It has made available its 66-year collection of the findings of science on "What alcohol is and what it does" for presentation to the public in cooperation with this and other newspapers.

Given these basic, uncolored facts it will be up to the public to reach its own decision as to what is to be done.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Nannie Hemingway, who passed away February 8, 1939.

Mother was tired and weary,
Weary from toil and pain,
She put by her work and rocker,
As she will not need them again.

Her way into God's mansion she's earned,
Never to sigh, or weep.
After long years with life's struggles,
Mother has fallen asleep.
Sadly missed by her children.
Written by her daughter,
REBA HENDERSON.

Even an invitation to a social drink, may awaken the appetite of a man and lead him eventually to the life of a drunkard.

Miss Hazel Hon, who attends business school at Covington, spent the week end at her home here.

Miss Victoria Rider spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Ethel Noel.

Jim Wallace and family moved last week, from Boone county to the farm of Eddie Mountjoy. We welcome these good people to our neighborhood.

Charlie Carlton has returned to his home in Covington, after spending several days here with Alva Hon and family.

Mrs. Thelma Wallace and daughter Eula Mae, and Mr. and Mrs. Elfrie Henderson have been suffering with colds.

Fonso Arrasmith and wife were business visitors at Warsaw Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Lona Spencer and daughter are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Noel, while her husband is in the city seeking employment.

Miss Dorothy Hon and brother Robert spent Friday and Saturday in Covington, visiting relatives.

Leonard Hon called on Elfrie Henderson, Saturday.

FORMER GALLATIN MAN DIES IN OKLA.

February 11th, 1890, they were married.

In 1900 the Crouch family moved to Woods county, Okla. Desiring to be near the University, they moved to the little town of Dibble, where Mr. Crouch engaged in the mercantile business, the boys farmed and Mrs. Crouch looked after establishment of schools for white children.

It was here that Harry, after attending the University of Oklahoma for two years, passed away. His death was such as to cause the family to make another move, and after trying several location, finally settled, in 1905, in the then new town of Tuttle. Here they have lent their influence for good. No man has ever lived in that vicinity who was more respected than Mr. Crouch.

He did his civic duty by serving five years in justice courts and from that is know as "Judge" Crouch, by old-timers. After his son's death he was never happy unless on the move. He was with Internation Harvester Company many years, under supervision of N. W. Nelson, a former Warsaw friend.

Mr. Crouch's last work was for a St. Louis firm. At 80 years of age he drove a car, and only two years ago was willing to give up, and said that he was ready to quit.

Only last year Mr. and Mrs. Crouch celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, but from that time the deceased had been in failing health. He was bedfast since March 18th.

Mr. Crouch was a devout christian, was prepared and ready to go. He and Mrs. Crouch had befriended many. During their residence in Tuttle, they have aided 18 boys and girls in obtaining high school educations. The appreciation, love and respect which these friends and many, many others bore Mr. Crouch, and Mrs. Crouch, was displayed in the acts of kindness and sympathy extended before and after Mr. Crouch's passing. His pleasant disposition, and love of his fellowmen, which prompted his benevolent acts, will be missed by all who knew and loved him.

The deceased never forgot his old "home town", and delighted in recalling experiences of his boyhood and young manhood. He often reminded his family that he was one of the first subscribers to the Warsaw Independent.

Rev. J. A. Ratliff, a close friend, and one who had know the family from the day they went to Dibble in the Chicasaw country, conducted the last rites. The only other relatives, besides Mrs. Crouch and his son Joe, who attended the services, were Dr. Crouch and daughter Reva.

RABBIT HASH

Bert Smith lost a valuable horse, Friday.

Mrs. Gene Wingate is sick with the grippe.

Mrs. John Stephens of East Bend was the Saturday guest of Mrs. Minnette Stephens.

Bobby Thurman, who has been visiting his parents, near Patriot, returned last week and is now working for Laid Stephens, who has been very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Smith moved last week from near Gunpowder Bridge to the August Trapp farm just vacated by Orville Hodges, who moved to Indiana.

Raymond Ashcraft and family and Charlie Trapp drove to Jonesville, Grant county, where they spent the day with Mr. Ashcraft's uncle, Mr. Joel Jamieson, who is 84 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Blufe Clore entertained Sunday at dinner, Mrs. Mattie Hodges, Mrs. Minnette Stephens and Albert Clore.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Black and daughter Velma Lee, Ray Smith and Ryle Isaacs spent Tuesday in Burlington.

Lewis Stephens and wife of Covington spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Stephens.

Mrs. Hazel Lee Williamson and children, who were spending a week with her parents, the C. W. Craigs, was called home last Saturday, on account of the serious illness of her father-in-law, Mr. J. L. Williamson, who is very low with a cancer.

Dr. George Hansell, who died suddenly Friday night of a heart attack, at his home in Rising Sun, Ind., will be sadly missed and mourned by his many friends in this community. He was one of the very few doctors, who never failed to respond to calls from patients on this side of the river.

Reuben Kirtley and wife of Lower East Bend, entertained the Baptist Sunday School with a social, at their home Thursday night, it being the men's turn to entertain and serve the lunch.

Walton Literary Club Entertained

The Walton Woman's Literary Club was delightfully entertained for its February meeting in the home of Mrs. J. R. Conrad.

This season the Club is on an imaginary cruise to Latin America, for a study of the peoples of that section of the universe. At this particular time the interest was focused on Colombia, Eudador and Chile, the study being — Churches and Cathedrals; Art Treasures, Literary Bits and Education.

Following a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. A. H. Gaines, the program was guided by Mrs. Olivia Wills.

There were nineteen members and a number of visitors present including three sisters of the hostess, Mrs. Lena Steers, Mrs. Augusta Carlton and Miss Elizabeth Bracht, all of Williamstown. Others present were Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. John L. Vet, Mrs. Mable Stansifer, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. Nell Blankenbeker, Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Robert Moore, Mrs. Pearl Johnson, Mrs. J. H. Talley, Mrs. John C. Bedinger, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. W. W. Rouse Mrs. Jane Johnson, Mrs. A. H. Gaines, Mrs. D. H. Vest, Mrs. Olivia Wills, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Burdetta Powers, Mrs. Lorena Myers, Mrs. B. H. Franks, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. Sam B. Sleet and the hostess.

FISH, GAME CLUB TO HAVE OPENING

The Boone County Fish and Game Protective Ass'n. will formally open its new club house on Thursday evening, Feb. 13. The club is located on Woolper Creek, 3 miles from Burlington on the Petersburg road.

At this opening, the club will be hosts to those who contributed to this worthwhile project. Invitations have been sent out, and no one will be admitted, except those presenting these cards.

Through a misunderstanding, it was stated in these columns last week that the public was invited to the opening. This, however, is not the case, and we are sorry we were misinformed.

VERONA HOMEMAKERS MEET

Eleven members and one visitor of the Verona Homemakers met at the home of Maude Wilson on February 7. Roll called—Some desired change to be made at house cleaning time.

Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, our leader, being sick couldn't be there.

Had very interesting meeting, Mrs. Ura Roberts having Kitchen Quiz.

Mrs. Sara King talked on beautification, Mrs. Relda Powers gave talk on Home Garden Program.

Both Mrs. Sara King and Mrs. Grace Renaker gave an excellent report on the Farm and Home Convention they attended at Lexington, Ky.

Next meeting March 7th will be at the home of Mrs. Pearl Lamn.

Roll call answered with Household Hints.

Main project —Rug making.

Leaders training class for rug making March 4th.

COVINGTON SOCIAL SECURITY OFFICE TO BE MOVED

Removal of the Covington field office of the Social Security Board from the Old Post Office to the basement of the New Post Office will take place over the week-end of February 15 and 16.

This announcement was made today by Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Covington office, which serves the counties of Kenton, Campbell, Boone, Bracken, Pendleton, Grant, Gallatin and Carroll.

"In our new and larger quarters we shall continue to handle the account number, claims and other work of the Bureau of Old Age and Survivors Insurance in Northern Kentucky," Mr. Decker said.

FIDELIS CLASS TO MEET THURSDAY

The Fidelis class of the Walton Baptist Sunday School will hold their regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening, Feb. 13, at 7 o'clock in the home of Mrs. R. E. Brugh.

Utopia Conference A Huge Success

The Sixth Utopia Club District Conference which was held February 8th at the Hebron High School was a grand success despite the cold weather. Most counties were well represented and Grant County will act as host for the Conference in 1942.

Mr. N. R. Elliott, landscape specialist, gave a most interesting talk on beautifying the home grounds to both boys and girls. Miss Curnutt, home economist, used actual examples when she discussed with the girls the right and wrong way of room cobination. Miss Threlkeld, club specialist, gave the girls an enlightening talk on future projects and their help to Utopia Club members. The speakers for the boys' program were Dr. W. D. Valleau, plant pathologist, who discussed genetics of corn breeding and Professor E. S. Good, professor of animal husbandry, who gave interesting highlights of the livestock and feeding outlook of Kentucky.

A delicious banquet dinner was served by the Hebron P.-T. A., after which Mr. Carl M. Jones, club specialist, recognized charter members, county agents and the speakers. He also led the group in singing and folk games. The District Conference has again proved to be one of the most eventful days of the year.

RED CROSS NURSE INSPECTS CHILDREN

The Red Cross Nurse has been busy during January inspecting school children, who are to take part in the county wide Blue Ribbon Program. This program was suggested by the Red Cross, and it was left up to the individual school whether or not they went into it. This entails considerable work for teachers, as well as the Red Cross County Health Nurse. Practically all the schools in the county have gone into this.

All school authorities have been most cooperative, and this is highly appreciated by the Red Cross and many parents, who have expressed themselves.

RECOVERING FROM PNEUMONIA

We are glad to report that Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Stahl, of Kensington, are recovering from a severe case of pneumonia, Mr. Stahl being taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital last week, while Mrs. Stahl is being nursed by Mrs. Olive Finnell, who has done a marvelous job of nursing Mrs. Stahl back to health. Orchids to Dr. Ryle and Mrs. Finnell for their winning fight.

Carpenters School To Be Held Feb. 28

A county one day carpenters' school will be held at Burlington February 28th, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. All carpenters are invited to attend.

The purpose of the school is to discuss model farm building plans that have proven most profitable under Kentucky conditions. Blue print plans from the Engineering Department of the College of Agriculture will be available at this time. Mr. Jesse Brooks, Agricultural Engineer of the College, will lead the discussion.

The farmer usually secures the advice and service of his local carpenter before building new barns, poultry houses, etc. The local carpenter often does not fully understand the blue print plans the farmer has secured from the College and as a result may fail to construct the building as desired. The school will offer an opportunity for local carpenters to learn the details of these plans.

DANCE AT SIMON KENTON FRIDAY NITE

The Home Economics girls and the band of Simon Kenton High School are sponsoring an informal dance after the basketball game Friday night, February 14. A six-piece orchestra will furnish the music from 10 to 12 p. m. and the theme of the dance will be in keeping with Valentine's Day. The admission will be 15c per person or 25c per couple. We shall be glad for you to come to this dance, for we believe you will have a good time. And since this dance is to be after a basketball game, we can come wearing sport clothes. It will not be necessary to buy tickets in advance, but may we see you Friday night?

Bearcats Maintain Conference Lead

The W.-V. High Bearcats held to their slight edge in the Boone County Conference race by defeating the Hebron Cardinals on Friday evening at the local basketballery, 40 to 23. The Cats led throughout the contest, being in front 20 to 8 at the half. It was only in the final quarter, when Coach Shields was substituting freely, that the Cardinals were able to score with any degree of accuracy. The visitors registered 14 points in this period.

Welsh led the Walton attack with 10 points, and Pennington was next in line with 9 tallies. Beacon was tops for Hebron, with 5 points.

Except for missing a number of "bunny" shots, the Bearcats played a first class brand of ball, and it is our hope their play continues in this vein.

In the preliminary set-to, the Walton reserves lost their second game of the season, bowing to the Hebron reserves the score being 25 to 16. The half-time score was 16-4 in favor of the winners. Led by Getker, who rung up 12 points, the visitors led throughout the game. Mayhugh, with 7 points, was high man for the losers.

Tuesday night the Bearcats tackled the Lloyd Juggernauts on the Erlanger floor, and after some anxious moments in the first half, came back brilliantly in the final periods to wrest a 34-31 decision from their tenacious opponents.

The score at the end of each period was as fololws: First quarter, 8-7, Walton-Verona; half, 22-12, Erlanger; third quarter, 27-21, Erlanger, and at the finish, 34-31 W.-V.

Ammon and Perkins, Erlanger, were top scorers of the evening, dividing 21 points. Bearcat scoring was pretty well divided, with Simpson, DeMoisey, Welsh and Pennington totaling 31 points. Simpson was high with 9.

The W.-V. second team coasted to a 19-13 win in the opener. They led 8-7 at the half. Welsh and Mayhugh tallied 6 points each for the winners.

Bearcat opposition continues to be tough, Friday night they go to Beechwood, to face a team that has been going great guns of late, except for a sound walloping administered by Newport on Tuesday evening.

Hamilton Here Feb. 18

On Tuesday night of next week the Boone County - Conference race will be decided. That evening the Hamilton Farmers come to Walton and will tangle with the Bearcats. Each team has lost one Conference tilt, and the winner of Tuesday's game will undoubtedly win the crown. You'll be on hand, won't you?

DR. TAIT ON VACATION

Dr. W. E. Tait, O. D., of Covington, accompanied by Mrs. Tait, is leaving Sunday for a two weeks' vacation in Florida. They expect to visit many places of interest.

Boone Co. Author To Speak at Hebron

Many of you who have read "Let the Earth Speak," by Ann Steward, will be glad to know that she will speak February 22 at three o'clock E. S. T., at the Hebron School Library. All who are interested are cordially urged to come and meet Mrs. Steward at a tea at this time given for the benefit of the library.

Many Boone County people have enjoyed reading in Mrs. Steward's novel, descriptions of certain local spots and will look forward to hearing the author discuss her novel.

Mrs. Steward has spoken before various college and club groups and we are grateful that she has consented to speak in our community.

"Let the Earth Speak" is a best seller and has had some very fine reviews in various papers all over the country.

A free will offering will be taken for the library.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

"Sharing Christ's Attitude Toward Lost People" is the topic of Christian Living and Christian Service program for Sunday, Feb. 16th, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

AIM: To Lead Us to Seek the Lost for Christ and to Share His Attitude Toward All Others.

Group captain in charge — Harold Soden.

Meditation.

Let not one imagine that intimate fellowship with God will lesson our joy in life. Surrender to Christ does not mean losing everything; it means adding Christ and gaining everything. We never know the highest joy until we fall in love with our Heavenly Father.

(We need YOU. YOU need us. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

LIVESTOCK OUTLOOK MEETING FEB. 19

A county livestock marketing meeting will be held at Burlington on next Wednesday, February 19th at 1:00 p. m., according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Mr. G. P. Summers, field agent in marketing, College of Agriculture, will present charts showing trends and prospects of livestock marketing and marketing prices for 1941 and 1942.

The Producers Cooperative Livestock Commission Association is cooperating in the meeting and will present refund checks on commissions received during the past year. All livestock producers are urged to attend this meeting.

Mattress Applications Filed Immediately

Those families eligible for mattress and comforter material under the Kentucky Rural Mattress program should file their applications immediately, according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, Home Demonstration Agent.

February 10th was set as the final date for receiving applications but late applications will be accepted if received immediately. One hundred twenty-eight applications have been received to date. Boone County should have families eligible for around 1,000 mattresses.

Comfort material is also available to those securing mattresses. Applications for mattresses should be filed at the County Office immediately.

The only cost for mattresses and comforts is $1.00 for needles, twine, tufs, etc. Those who cooperate in the program are assisting the Southern cotton farmer in useful disposition of surplus cotton material.

BUFORD L. ALLEN PASSES FEB. 6

Buford L. Allen, 61, Cowie Avenue, Erlanger, an employe of the Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati, for the past 35 years, died early last Thursday at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, after a short illness.

He had been a resident of Erlanger for the past 34 years, and was a charter member of the Cincinnati Chapter, National Fraternal Society of the Deaf. He was a graduate of the Kentucky School for the Deaf, Danville. The society held services Friday at 8 p. m. at the funeral home.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louise Allen; a son, B. Layton Allen; two daughters, Mrs. Howard Crush and Miss Edith Allen and five grandchildren.

Services were conducted Saturday at 3 p. m. at the Taliaferro funeral home, Erlanger. Burial was in Big Bone Cemetery.

YOUNG WOMEN'S AUXILIARY MEETS

The members of the Grace McBride Young Woman's Auxiliary of the Walton Baptist church were entertained at the home of Martha Brown for their regular February meeting. Those in attendance were Miss Geraldine Elliott, Miss Mabel Cook, Miss Minnie Brooks, Miss Mary Margaret Fields and Mrs. Bryan Rector.

Following the meeting a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess and her mother, Mrs. Wm. Ryle.

RYLAND HOMEMAKERS MEET

Ryland Homemakers were pleasantly entertained Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Oliver Gee, in Ft. Mitchell.

Mrs. Wm. Dickman, club president, presided over the meeting which was opened by the group singing "America."

The roll call was responded to with each member giving one health habit. The reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. Oliver Gee, followed.

Plans were completed for the club to hold a rummage sale, the proceeds to go into the club treasury.

This rummage sale is to be held Feb .24, 25 and 26 at 336 Scott St. in Covington.

Miss Zelma Byerly gave a report of the Advisory Council Session of the Farm and Home Convention held in Lexington last week.

Then Mrs. Edward Hauser, who was the delegate from Ryland Club to the Farm and Home Convention, gave a very interesting account of the lectures, style show, luncheon and other activities of the meeting.

The main theme of the whole convention could be summed up in these words of advice to the women of America: First in order that the National Defense Program may be carried out successfully, workers must have good health, so become an efficient dietitian and feed the family correctly. Second, Work for the Red Cross if it is possible.

After a delightful luncheon served by Mrs. Gee, a lesson on how to make a button-hole, sew on a button, sew on snaps and hooks and eyes was given by Mrs. J. C. Brown and Mrs. Harry Rubber.

The following members enjoyed the day: Mrs. Wm. Dickman, Mrs. Clarence Armstrong, Mrs. John Murchison, Mrs. Wm. Damon, Mrs. Harry Caldwell, Mrs. Edward Hauser, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, Mrs. W. B. LeFaster, Mrs. Alfred Rich, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Wm. Mendelhall, Mrs. Oliver Gee, Miss Zelma Byerly, Home Demonstration Agent.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Caldwell at Visalia.

Five Jackson county farmers will use electric brooders and seven others will light their poultry houses this season.

Soils Leaders To Meet On Feb. 18

Boone County Soils Improvement leaders will meet at Burlington Tuesday afternoon, February 18th, at 1:00 p. m. to discuss plans for carrying out a more effective soil improvement program for the county during 1941, according to H. H. Forkner, the County Agent.

This past year goals for use of 6,000 tons of agricultural limestone and 1,000,000 pounds of phosphate were set up. Both goals were exceeded by approximately 50 per cent, breaking an all time record for use of these fertilizers. All who are interested in helping plan the improvement program are invited to attend. Mr. Wm. Johnstone, field agent in soils and crops work from the College, will assist in the meeting.

Several Daviess county farmers have added registered beef cattle to their herds.

Approximately 100 farmers and 4-H club boys in Knott county grew locust seedlings last year.

Pontiac Dealer

Dave Castleman

Dave Castleman, of the Castleman Motor Car Co., has been awarded the Pontiac franchise. The firm now is showing the complete line in the newly-renovated quarters at 1722 Madison avenue, Covington.

Mr. Castleman also operates the Pontiac agency at 200 Dixie Highway, Erlanger. Both sites have used car lots adjoining the new car showrooms. The Covington plant will feature repairs of all late model General Motors cars. Mr. Castleman is entering his 16th year in the automotive field.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE ON AIR

For the first time in history the rural people of Kentucky will have an opportunity to hear monthly reports from their State Department of Agriculture at Frankfort, Kentucky, over radio station WHAS.

These programs will be broadcast from 1 to 1:15 p. m., C. S. T. on the following Saturdays: March 1st and March 29th, April 26th, May 24th and June 21st.

The program will present various phases of the State Department of Agriculture's work, such as: Inspection of scales, live stock markets, tobacco markets; news reports; work of Marketing Division; accomplishments of cooperative marketing associations; summaries of agricultural legislation; discussion of Dog Law and helpful information from the State Veterinarian.

SALE WELL ATTENDED

The public sale at the Hon farm near Beaver, held Tuesday, was attended by the largest crowd at any public sale in this territory for a long time.

Cars from Carroll, Gallatin, Grant, Pendleton, Campbell, Kenton and Boone counties were seen among the crowd. About 1,800 were in attendance. Everything offered for sale brought good prices.

Economic Highlights

Practically all of the men who have testified in favor of the President's lease-lend bill have offered the opinion that a crisis in the war will occur within the next three months—and that it will probably take the form of an all-out Nazi blow against England, beginning with air raids of unprecedented intensity and winding up with the long anticipated attempt at invasion. Secretary of Navy Knox for example, testified that, according to his information, the German strategists were now watching the long range weather reports, and waiting for a time when an extended period of good weather can be anticipated.

There are many good reasons for believing that Germany will make her great effort before many more moons wax and wane. Primary reason is the obvious one that Hitler has a far better chance of winning if he makes his gamble before this country can send materials abroad in significant amounts.

Second, Hitler, many think, must move before Italy collapses entirely. She has become a drain on the Reich, instead of an asset. Her reverses in Africa have almost reached the comic opera stage.

Third, according to some experts, English and American warplane production is now catching up with Germany. But it will be a long time before Britain can obtain enough ships to equal the strength of the sky fleet commanded by Marshal Goering. So it is logical for Germany to make her bid for victory while she has a decisive edge in the skies.

Fourth, there are reports, which cannot be substantiated in the light of the rigorous German censorship, to the effect that the morale inside Hitler's Reich is slipping. Hitler promised victory before 1940 ended, and now seems farther from it than when the war began. There have been no signal German successes of late.

Evidence of a more material nature is also available. For the most part, the Luftwaffe has lately been bombing industrial centers, and has done less indiscriminate bombing of cities. It now seems to be trying to knock out important British factories, rather than to break the people's morale—an endeavor which completely failed. And air observers have seen frenzied activity along the German-occupied coast of the Continent, and in the ports which Hitler must use as the starting points for invasion.

It is obvious where the U. S. enters this picture. If England is to be really helped, there must be a tremendous speed-up in our shipments of war materials. And, despite claims of Administration spokesmen to the contrary, the feeling persists that it will not be long before we are convoying British shipping. Germany's greatest damage to England has been in sinking merchant ships and, equally serious from the British point of view, destroying or disabling numbers of the convoying destroyers.

Hitler himself has said that any American ship—merchant or naval—which is put to the service of England in European waters will be sunk. There can be no question but what use of our navy for convoy purposes will be an act of war, complete and unmistakable. Yet Germany has shown no desire to formally break relations with us. Hitler has taken a great deal and done little in retaliation.

Fear of the American navy is considered by many experts to be the answer to that. Furthermore, Hitler's record shows that he never increases opposition if he can avoid it.

In the meantime, debate on the lease-lend bill swings into high gear. Few members of the Congress are opposed to all-out aid to England—the opposition to the current bill is principally based on the belief that it delegates dictatorial powers to the Executive, and that England can be helped to the limit without doing that. There is the real issue underlying the fight.

Some progress is being made toward rearmament—but we are still a mighty long distance from our goal. Newsweek recently surveyed the picture. According to it, on January 1 we had 4,000 army planes—goal is 37000. We had 2,590 navy planes—goal is 16.000. We had 1.000 tanks and combat cars—goal is 6.500. We had 600,000 soldiers—goal is 1.500.000. A good many of the planes, as army men have testified, are trainers or are obsolete. And a large proportion of the soldiers are new conscripts with a year to go before they will be versed in the military arts.

So far, of course, the defense program has been largely in the tooling and plant expansion stage. And it will remain in that stage for some time to come, in the opinion of production men. Most of what we are producing now is going abroad. There is no expectation of building our own military establishment to formidable dimensions in less than a year. The navy program will require five years.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

In the view of many sober Washington thinkers, there isn't going to b any defense to speak of unless some of those who produce it start acting like they talk.

The question unfortunately is not put together as a whole in the newspapers so the people can see it. They have to piece many items together to see the whole picture.

It is: Are labor, disputes, strikes slowdowns, boycotts and the like, going to be allowed to continue impeding production?

President Green of the AFL has reported publicly that his organization has "enlisted for the duration of the emergency." Yet in a speech before unionized government employees, he said that Uncle Sam is anything but a model employer and that government workers should get better treatment.

Many, of course, will agree with him. But they will add that the way to get better treatment for government employees is to do it privately instead of stirring them up to think they are being mistreated.

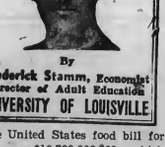
Both Green and Phil Murray, new CIO president, have promised that labor interruptions of production will be held to a minimum. Yet on a single day, production of defense goods was at a standstill because of strikes, walkouts, etc., in private and Navy shipyards, freight car, generator, tank and steel plants.

In one plant it even took a special appeal from a priest before picketing employees would let through their picket line a big generator which had been completed for a powder producing factory. And military experts say the powder shortage is serious.

Most everybody will agree that not only is this no time for unnecessary strikes, but that unity and cooperation is necessary, and bickering and backbiting should be forgotten.

For example, when Phil Murray and Walter Reuther made public their plan for producing airplanes in the automobile industry, that industry made no public criticism of the proposal although in many respects it was obviously unsound. They simply left their plan in the hands of government officials.

Yet when industry began making a census of itself to find unused productive facilities which could be turned to defense work, Murray flew off the handle. He protested to William Knudsen and John Biggers, of the new OPM.



Murray went so far as to say the National Association of Manufacturers, which is making the survey through state associations, was trying to break down labor standards in the name of national defense. He failed to make any reference to a statement by the chairman of the NAM Employment Relations Committee that so logn as there were millions unemployed, plant managers were in no position to complain about 40-hour week limitations. He did not even give the NAM credit for attempting to act in good faith.

At the same time Murray, who has promised to hold down strike interruptions, is training more than 100 more men to go into the field and stimulate unionization. His objective is contracts which will refuse employment to any—even needed defense workers—who do not belong to his union.

These tactics may last for a while—but there is growing feeling in Congress that talk and actions had better conform.

An apology: Washington Snapshots owes an apology to its readers. Last week it reported that a new bill by Rep. Cannon of Missouri, H. R. 64, would apply wage-hour law requirements to even more small daily and weekly newspapers. The exact reverse is true. The bill would ease the burdens now imposed upon papers with circulations between 3,000 and 5,000. Readers should be thankful that Snapshots was wrong. Sorry!

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The United States food bill for 1940 was $10,700,000,000 which represented an increase of more than $450,000,000 over the sales of 1939. The forecast for 1941 is continued heavy consumption of foodstuffs with January sales running above January sales of last year. These figures spell good times for the grocery merchants all over this country.

Although retail food prices are higher than a year ago, and we have to expect this, it is unlikely we will have runaway prices as in the last war. In the last war this country was busy sending foodstuffs abroad. Not only did we feed the American soldiers in Europe but we also fed the military and civilian population of Great Britain, France and Belgium. The result was a scarcity of foodstuffs, a tremendous increase in prices, "meatless" days, rationing of sugar, and other food conservation measures.

Today American farmers are producing more food than Americans can eat. Also our food exports, compared to our supplies, are negligible. As a result we have large surpluses of wheat, corn and other foodstuffs. So even though we are enjoying greater employment and higher wages, we may expect no huge increases in prices or any food shortage.

All this does not mean prices will not go up some. Increased raw material costs, higher tax and wages and higher rents will all contribute some to slightly higher food prices. But I do not believe we will experience another 1917 and 1918.

CHESTNUTS

Here is a passing institution indeed. It is autumn while I am writing this, just after the first good frost. The colors are blazing on the hills, acorns are dropping, there are hickory nuts and to spare. But where are the chestnuts? In many ways they were the most distinctive nuts of our childhood, for our schoolhouse stood in a huge wooded area, stretching miles and miles away. On many of the rugged wooded hills the chestnut tree grew and bore its nuts. The squirrels and we knew where they were; no fall went by without our accumulating even more than we could eat daily. The worms liked them too, but we had plenty besides. Chestnut hunts were actual events each fall. We roasted chestnuts in the ashes on cold fall nights. The chestnut timber made wood that sparkled and popped on our hearths the long straight poles were used in much of our building; chestnut lumber, sawed and planed, made beautiful ceiling for our houses. And when the telephone came, it was chestnut poles that we cut and planted to carry the now magic wire that connected us to the big outside world.

And then came tragedy. A blight attacked the tree, as everybody knows. For years there was some resistance, but now the fight seems over, with the invisible blight as the victor. On mountain sides there are millions of dead chestnuts, showing what a deal of food is no longer available for the squirrels and the birds and the chipmunks. Many a favorite old tree that we left in our wasteful war on timber has borne its last crop of nuts and stands gaunt and dead or else has long ago been reduced to firewood. The next generation will never know what we mean when we tell about chestnut hunts and stamping chestnut burrs. They will probably think their parents are cheerful liars and wonder whether our chestnuts were ever any more real than "fairies and goblins and elves and squidgicumsquees that swaller theirselves."

When anything happens that we can possibly blame some one for, we are really happy; we can abuse him with pleasure and thereby ease our minds. This is not true with the chestnut although, for man in his wastefulness has not done this, even though he has often done untold damage to nature: witness the passing of the Great Auk, the Passenger Pigeon, the Heath Hen and the Carolina Paroquet. But a disease, as yet beyond the control of man, has done the work. I had hoped that some of the chestnuts would escape by being hardy and would repeople the whole chestnut world, but such is not to be. The few surviving ones remind me of the trees that grew from the grave of a man on his way to fight at Troy in Homer's epic: when they got tall enough to see Troy they died back to the ground. I still hope that our national government can import some hardy variety from some other country, so that people will again know the joys of chestnut hunts, the sight of ripe burrs opening after a heavy frost and dropping down their treasures.

A soils, crops and beef cattle tour will be held in Christian county in June.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Defend Our Defenders!

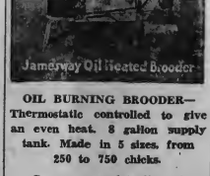
Demon rum is a fifth columnist who can rot the heart of a nation's moral and physical rearmament, leaving it weakened when the need for strength is greatest!

These words aren't just idle speech-making, but are the considered verdict of many scientific, religious, and social service leaders who by a lifetime of study know the human and economic costs resulting from widespread use of a narcotic drink.

During the World War sale of all alcoholic beverages was forbidden on military property, certain vice conditions were forbidden in camp areas, and sale of alcoholic beverages to those in military uniforms was forbidden.

As the present defense effort gained momentum Demon Rum was back in the army in the guise of 3.2 beer. He also was permitted in many naval stations in the same disguise, although all alcoholic beverages are prohibited aboard ship.

Recalling the historic connections between liquor and social vice, national welfare groups, led by the W.C.T.U. have opened a movement designed to dry up and clean up military camps and camp areas.



Sweep It Out

Because of the immediate demand for helping the conscript army and the military effort, their program not only seeks elimination of beer from camps but cleansing of the surrounding communities from liquor and commercial vice, not particularly as a social reform now but as a plain common sense effort for national defense.

Faced by a powerful, vocal liquor traffic and by a public inertia in moral matters which brought repeal, these social welfare leaders face a tremendous job—but they are going ahead with it!

Mrs .Denver Binder and children, Marjorie, Warren and Randall, spent Sunday afternoon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Rapp, who had also as guests Leslie Stephens, Katheryn and Donald Kenney, Mrs. Bessie Schnider and a friend.

Mrs. W. E. Hanna spent a few days with her son, W. H. Hanna, and family of Latonia, and on Sunday she visited her sister, Mrs. Clarence Ervin, of Hamilton. She reports finding Mrs. Ervin cheerful and able to go all over the house in her wheel chair.

Those from our club who attended the farm and home convention at Lexington last week were Mrs. Geo. Klein, who was the elected deligate and Mrs. L. J. Rapp, Mrs. Blanche Rich, Mrs. J. A. Kinney and Miss Kathryn Kenney, who were there for part time. Others from the community who enjoyed the sessions for part of the time were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maddox, C. A. Ballinger, L. J. Rapp and Emil Stein.

The folk who were ill are all improved.

Mrs. Chas. Lancaster and son have gone to join Mr. Lancaster, who is employed in Louisville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Elmore and son, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Adams, Mrs. J. A. Kinney and Miss Emilie Keeney attended the funeral of Miss Ethel Baker at Alexandria on Sunday afternoon.

Misses Bessie and Stella Losey spent Saturday afternoon with their sister, Mrs. Hershel Souder, and little son Robert of Covington.

Miss Helen Richardson made a surprise visit to Misses Hope and Ruth Kenney in Lexington on Friday night.

that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

HAWK IN THE WIND

by HELEN TOPPING MILLER

Copyright 1938 by D. Appleton-Century Co. Inc. WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER XV—Meantime Stanley Daniels is having his private troubles with Wallace Withers. Withers informs him that he should resign his position as chemist at the mill, thus causing Virgie Morgan additional trouble. Daniels is afraid to refuse the command given him by Withers because he knows that Withers could make things difficult for him

CHAPTER XVI

Branford Wills stared at the car that waited in front of the Clark gate.

"So—you came!" he said.

Marian Morgan snapped the gear in place.

"Yes, I came. But don't let your ego expand. I'm not doing it for you. I'm doing it for my mother."

He climbed in, pulling his hat down over his eyes.

"I want to see some timber formerly belonging to Tom Pruitt, on Hazel Fork," he said.

"I suppose you know," she kept her eyes away and her chin up, "that the roads are likely to be bad over that way? We may get stuck."

"I'll look over the area on foot. I have some corners to check."

"All part of the great mystery!" She was scornful.

They drove in silence.

Mountain men in clean shirts, bound for the village store, walked the roads, indifferent to the raw chill. Marian spoke to each, knew all their names.

"Do you know personally every man in this end of the state?" he asked.

"I was born here. Most of these people sell pulp wood to mother. When my father was buried four thousand people came to the funeral."

There was, Wills thought, something fine and feudal and tremendous in that. Something that went back, as the traditions of these people went back, to the old countries none of them had ever seen, but which had stamped upon them, as the mark of all life is stamped upon the cell, the magnificent, aloof pride of tall Celts of the Wicklow and the Carrantual; of Highlanders from the shadow of Ben Nevis. Something of the old countries, in the way these men put their feet down, in the half hold, half feral glint in their eyes.

In Marian Morgan this defiant, separate thing was fined down to the cameo cut of her profile, the audacious tilt of her chin. The smoke of old peat fires was in the husk of her voice, there was something valiant about her that was like the ring of hunting hugies under Grampian cliffs, something of the resolute courage of men who had faced a new land from the ice-coated prows of sailing ships.

They passed the power lake and Wills remembered it. They stopped at the Gallup house.

Sally was reading the paper in pajamas. She opened the door only a chink.

"Heavens, you're early! Don't bring him in yet. Good gracious, Marian—I thought—"

"Don't think. I'm not bringing him in. I'm taking him across the ridge. Mother's orders. I want a bucket. Even as cold as it is, this car will heat on the grades."

"How heavenly—then you can sit back and look at all the pretty mountains while it cools."

"Don't be an utter idiot! Lend me a bucket. And we'll have to postpone the plays. I don't know the intent of this expedition, but mother thinks it's important."

"Marian, I don't own a bucket—only a terrible old huge thing Elvira uses to scrub. Could you use a stewpan?"

The road around the slope of the ridge was rutted and narrow, but from its twisting height Wills saw below him the tangled country through which on that last day he had stumbled, agonizingly, to Virgie Morgan's door. With a mapmaker's eye he plotted the route, saw where he had turned from the high road, and beyond that the fire-scalded wilderness, grown head high with rhododendron and tangling vines, where through a night of sleet he had wandered.

He had drawn a dozen maps of this region, he had plotted it from aerial photographs, and every line of these was engraved on his mind. There were the tremendous summits to the north and west, there was this ridge, sloping southward and eastward, where Hazel Fork went splashing down to meet the river. It all had form, it fitted in with the thought that had entered his mind when he studied the little map in Virgie Morgan's desk. So many of the surveys had been haphazard, so much had been done that had to be done again.

"Stop here a minute," he said, "just here. I'll walk a little way." He unfolded the map again. He had drawn it, sitting up most of the night, drawn it from sketchy bits in the note-book that remained in his pocket. All his material had gone on to Washington, but he felt that he had enough.

Slowly he walked, studying the terrain below. Above, on the narrow road, where first Virgie Morgan had seen the two men in the black car, Marian sat now, behind the wheel, looking small and lonely. For an hour, he scouted the crest, and the sun climbed higher. Icicles melted on the southern slopes and the faces of the crags began to drip. Down the gullies little streams ran clear, finding their way through a lacy network of ice. On a muddy bank, where he leaped across, was a deer track, lately made, clean-printed and plain.

He returned to the car and Marian sighed patiently, as she set the motor going again.

"Now where?"

"Can we get down under—down there where the big trees are?"

"We'll have to go far around. Some of it will be rough. But I know the way. I used to come in here with Tom."

She fell silent, as they followed the rough woods track, thinking of Tom. Just down there he must have hidden, those two days—and below, through the cathedral trees, ran the abandoned road where Cragg and the others had come in. A heavy pain hothered her when she thought that Tom prohably would never see his heloved trees again. Never see the hills again, perhaps—or the shahby old mill that he had loved—never hear again the crow's shrill defiance or the answering insolence of the mountain raven.

It was noon when they reached the lower slope of the ridge, and the sun had warmed and gilded the rocks with a false promise of spring.

"Look here, you must be starved," Wills exclaimed suddenly. "Is there any place near where we can get some sandwiches, or something?"

"Lossie made sandwiches. They're back here and there's some coffee."

"Saved! I was a chump not to think of it myself."

The coffee was not hot.

"Would the lady who owns the stewpan mind if we blacken the hottom of it?" Wills asked. "I can make a fire."

"Lossie can scour it."

If only things were different, Marian thought wistfully, what fun this would be! If only he were not so arrogant and so cold—if only she did not detest him. Wills built a small fire, expertly, hetween two up-ended racks. Then he thrust a stick into a crevice and hung a white handkerchief on it.

"Truce!" he announced. "The war is temporarily suspended while the comhatants are fed."

"Only one cup," said Marian. "So—what do we do?"

"Pour your half back into the bottle. Then you drink from the cup and I imhihe from the stewpan."

"It's hot."

"In camps where I've dined we used empty bean cans. Gives a rich pork-and-catsup flavor to the hrew."

A winter sparrow came and teetered on a sumac bough, making small inquiry as to whether any crumbs would remain. The sun lay ardently on the face of the rock and Marian held her palms to it, catching the warmth in cupped, pink fingers.

Her head was cocked like the hird's, her eyes were cool and remote. Wills looked at her and his heart gave a savage, hurting clutch. His spine straightened and a grim line hardened around his mouth. He was not defeated. Now she was as far from him as the moon—but when a man had caught a precious dream in his heart it was not easy to let it go. Today she was the daughter of the Morgan mills—and he was an employee in corduroy pants. Tomorrow—he clamped his teeth and flung a challenge to tomorrow. And suddenly he cleared his throat roughly.

Intolerable—to sit here in a forest silence with her disdain, with her eyes on him in cool indifference.

He flung the crust to the waiting sparrow, stood up.

"You needn't speak," he said, hoarsely. "I know how you feel—how you despise me. But I'm going to tell you this—if I never say another word to you as long as we live. I fell in love with you—the first time I ever saw you. I—haven't changed. I realize who you are—and who I am—just a tramp that your mother rescued from a mountain thicket! I know what you've been thinking. It doesn't change. Nothing will change me—ever. And—I'm not giving up."

She stood up, slowly, let her eyes come up slowly. There was an odd little beating at the hase of her throat, and for an instant her eyelids trembled mistily.

Then she gave a choky little sound.

"I'm going home," she said and turned and ran without looking back.

The car door slammed. The motor roared and she tore down the rutty track, jolting and bouncing for a hundred yards. Wills sat still on the rock, turning a cigarette slowly round and round in his fingers.

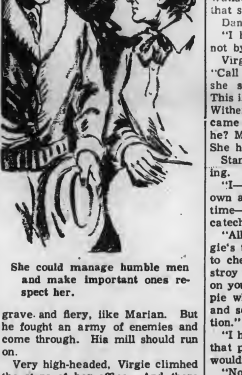
Then as suddenly as she had started, Marian stopped the car, backed it slowly.

"Get in," she ordered.

He gathered up the stewpan and the thermos hottle.

"Get in—and don't talk to me," she repeated, huskily keeping her eyes straight ahead.

Her profile was as unyielding as the line of the distant mountains. She was David Morgan's daughter—and she was finding it hard to surrender.



All the way back to the mill she kept her eyes grimly on the road. Wills sat silent, but his heart was leaping wildly, and a little smile twisted the corner of his mouth.

She was huilt, fine and gallant and loyal, as a silver sword. She was cut from a golden width of the fabric of dream. For a dream like that a man could wait a lifetime—joyfully!

Virgie went to the mill that Saturday morning, with her face set like the face on a monument.

She had argued with herself through long hours of darkness. Why was she heing such a fool, being thrown into a tense panic by Wallace Withers? She could mill pulp and she could sell it; she had proved that. She could horrow money and pay it hack. She could manage humhle men and make important ones respect her. Even if Wallace tought up her notes, she could pay. She had kept her credit good. The mill would run on.

David would have laughed at Wallace Withers—or smiled his dry, one-sided smile, for David had seldom laughed. He had been intent and grave and fiery, like Marian. But he fought an army of enemies and come through. His mill should run on.

She could manage humble men and make important ones respect her.

Very high-headed, Virgie climhed the steps of her office. And there Lucy Fields looked at her with a tragic face.

"The West Virginia people have canceled," she said.

"What?"

"The West Virginia order—they canceled by wire this morning."

"But — their stuff is already milled! It's practically ready to go. What reason did they give?"

"None at all. It was a very short message. They canceled." Lucy was wan-faced. Her fingers were uncertain as she opened a tradepsper and indicated a paragraph. "I just saw this. Do you think it could have had anything to do with it?"

Virgie scanned the column. The paragraph Lucy pointed out, was headed, "MORGAN PEOPLE IN TROUBLE." The Morgan mills, so the type stated, were experiencing serious labor trouble, the outgrowth of a shooting affair on the property of the company. Mr. Gordon Cragg, prominent financier and timher magnate, so the story ran, had been shot and dangerously wounded by Thomas Pruitt, superintendent of the Morgan plant.

"Somehody ought to show this to Tom," Virgie commented flatly. "I don't suppose anybody ever called him Thomas in his life."

"But we depended on that West Virginia order," Lucy worried. "They've never canceled before—I just looked through the files. They've been huying from us for eighteen years. We depend on that order for the tax money."

"I'll have to go up there, I suppose—and argue with them," Virgie said patiently. "Payne and Hooper and Withers, et al., are getting in some fancy underground work."

"How can you go—with Tom's trial starting Monday?"

"Young Daniels will have to go." Virgie sat erect again. At least here was something that could be done. Something definite and on the offensive. "Go get him, Lucy."

While Lucy was gone across the yard, Virgie thumbed the mail over swiftly, scarcely seeing the type that her eye ran over. On Monday Tom would go on trial before a jury.

"And any sentence will kill him—so it would be kinder to hang him and be done with it," she had answered that.

What troubled her most was her own ineffectiveness. She had been fiercely boastful, she had defied the world, as the Irish are so prone to do; she had talked widely and magnificently about saving Tom—of saving the mill and being undismayed by Wallace Withers, and now every recurring blow left her more help less, more inarticulate, futile, pathetic.

It was a sickening spectacle for a proud woman to contemplate. It was worse for an honest woman who could not bring herself to stoop to alibis. Up to now, she had been able to do nothing to stem this tide of disaster. Somehow, of course, Payne and Hooper and Wallace Withers were behind this newest catastrophe. She gave Wallace credit—he was overlooking nothing.

Lucy came back, followed by Stanley Daniels.

Virgie regarded her chemist, her mouth drawn severely straight.

"For a working man," she said, "you're very elegant, this morning!"

Daniels wore his good clothes, a clean shirt, a jaunty tie. He was a trifle pale, but he faced her coolly.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Morgan," he said. "But—I'm not working today. I was checking over the laboratory. I am resigning my position with you—today!"

Virgie let the old octagonal clock tick off a measured minute, while she looked him up and down. Lucy stood like a statue, white as death, motionless, hardly breathing.

"So—they got you, too, did they?" Virgie said, presently.

Daniels flushed, then the blood drained out of his face.

"My—decision has not been influenced by anyone," he said, stiffly. "I have felt—for some time—that I did not have your confidence, Mrs. Morgan. Chemistry is a responsibility—a serious responsibility. I—feel that I don't wish to assume that responsibility any longer in a plant where I'm not—trusted."

"Who distrusts you?" Virgie countered, her eyes as frigid as his.

He was manifestly uncomfortable. Lucy drew a little strangling hreath, her hands at her throat.

"You — were very plainly suspicious of me, Mrs. Morgan—when we lost that pulp. And your attitude yesterday—and before that—"

"How much," Virgie cut in, "did Wallace Withers pay you to make that speech?"

Daniels glared, affrontedly.

"I have not been paid—certainly not by Mr. Withers!"

Virgie reached for the telephone. "Call Julia Gill for me, Mildred," she said into it evenly. "Julia? This is Virgie Morgan. Was Wallace Withers in town last night? Oh, he came there to see Mr. Daniels, did he? Much obliged. No—that's all." She hung up.

Stanley Daniels' eyes were blazing.

"I—think I have a right to—my own affairs," he said, "on my own time—without being spied on—or catechized!"

"All the right in the world." Virgie's tone was wooden. "The right to cheat and do sahotage—and destroy the people who have depended on you! The right to disappoint people who look for something decent and square in this younger generation."

"I haven't cheated! I didn't touch that pulp—oh, what's the use? You wouldn't believe me anyway!"

"No," Virgie was patient, "probably I wouldn't. I'm just a stupid old woman. I helieve what I see—and what I hear. I see you deserting me—and I hear that you've heen in communication with the man who brags that he's going to ruin me. I add up two and two in my naive, outmoded way—and I get a plain answer. Now—I'll tell you something, Daniels. I did suspect you—at first.

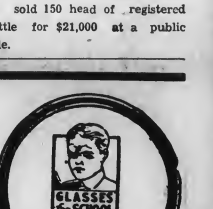
Proper Care Will Ward Off Strep Throat

THANKS to sulfanilimide, streptococcus sore throat, one of the most common diseases, has been conquered. People still suffer from it; its cure is often disagreeable and trying; but it is rarely a killer now.

Sulfanilimide is a drug which was first successfully used against the disease a few years ago when President Roosevelt's son John was stricken by streptococcus infection of the throat. Its discovery, according to Maxine Davis whose article on "Strep Throat" appears in the February issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine, resulted while a group of scientists at Johns Hopkins were studying a drug, said to combat the disease, which they had brought from England.

This is the time of year when the danger of the dreaded throat disease is greatest. It gets you when you least expect it and when you come down with a strep throat you are really sick. You suddenly feel ill and your temperature hits between 102 and 104.

When you feel like this never wait to see if you will feel better tomorrow, advises Miss Davis. Instead, Miss Davis tells her readers, to call a doctor, for it is most important that he make a diagnosis at once.



It is important, Miss Davis writes; "that we know about it, for sometime or other most of us get sore throats. The threat is always with us, because our mouths and throats are invariably full of germs, including streptococci. So long as we have a stout defense in general health and immunity we are all right. Let us get run down, or be subject to a mass attack of the bacteria so numerous that they can storm our protective white blood cells, then we get a sore throat."

Streptococcus sore throats, she says, occurs in isolated cases or in epidemic form.

In warding off the dreaded streptococci germ, Miss Davis has listed the following suggestions:

Take care of your teeth and gums, for they are the first source of infection; have your tonsils and adenoids removed if they are infected; take care of sinus trouble; take care of yourself generally; try vitamin A if you are inclined to catch cold easily; don't get your feet wet; don't get chilled; get as much exercise and sleep as you can.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati—The time is nearing for the Cincinnati Reds, baseball champions of the world, to assemble at their spring training base at Tampa, Florida, to condition for the coming National League season, and — they hope —world series.

Bill McKechhnie's training routine will be similar to the procedure he used in previous years. He starts right out by letting the pitchers throw curves the first day of practice although, of course he insists they throw everything easily until their arms become sufficiently toughened to stand the strain of hard throwing. He doesn't believe in letting the hurlers strengthen the set of muscles used in throwing fast balls, then start all over again a week or so later to start work on the muscles that are used when curve balls are thrown.

He advocates plenty of running, stresses fundamentals and, in short, operates on a common sense policy that plain hard work is the best way to get in good playing condition.

Contrary to what you might think, conditioning a ball club is not the hardest thing a manager faces during the spring training season. It is the selection of material, the determination of the players to retain or release. This is particularly difficult in the cases of the new men, because with the oldsters who have been in the league, he usually is familiar with their ability and a spring training flash will not sway him too much.

Frank McCormick is one of the poorest spring training hitters on the ball club and the most effective during the season. Now, do you think McCormick's impression in the spring worries McKechnie? Not at all. However, Frank has the background that others, particularly rookies, do not have, so it is Bill's job to try to determine if any particular aspirant is just a spring training flash, or a Frank McCormick type, or just what are his possibilities of helping the ball club.

It takes a trained eye of visualize that a player who is not doing too well in spring training has great possibilities, or to correctly see that a spring flash has some drawbacks that might make him one of summer's wilted roses.

The Reds are taking a number of new men to their training camp this year. Some of them who have been given the go by in advance notices about the ball club have announced their intentions of sticking with the ball club. This is particularly true of the outfielders, for there are four rookies who have announced they are going to stick with the champs. These four are: Albert (Dutch) Mele, from Birmingham; Mike Christoff, from Oakland; Mike Dejan, purchased from Chattanooga during the season, brought up for a short trial and then optioned to Birmingham; and Kermit Lewis, from Albany, the Eastern League's leading batter.

Five of the Red's outfielders, Ripple, Goodman, Mike McCormick, Gleeson and Craft are fairly sure of remaining on the squad, so all any one of the rookies has to do is to beat out one of the above quintet, or convince McKechnie that the Reds should carry six gardeners .This is a tough target at which to shoot, but they can point to Mike McCormick, who a year ago was in their fix, and who today is regarded as the regular centerfielder. They can say in chorus, "Nobody gave Mike a chance to stick last year and he wound up a regular. It can happen to any one of us."

The outfield presents McKechnie's toughest selection problem but there are others in the infield and pitching staff. It's all one big problem, particularly when there is a world's championship to defend.

The Brooklyn Dodgers seem to be Bucky Walters' meat. He has defeated them 11 times in the past two seasons.

When the Reds defeated the Giants 15 times last season, it marked the greatest number of victories for a Cincinnati team over New York since the National League was formed. Since 1890, the Reds have been more successful against the Dodgers than against any other club ,though. Their lifetime record against the Flatbush Flock is 557 victories, against 464 defeats. In 1926 the Reds defeated the Dodgers 18 times. Last year they won over them 14 times.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Improved Uniform International

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 16

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS TEACHES FORGIVENESS AND GRATITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 17:1-4, 11-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Did you ever hear of "vinegar saints"? They are the Christian folk who are "preserved" (as Paul prayed in 1 Thess. 5:23), but are apparently pickled instead of sweetened. Every housewife knows that things may be preserved with sugar or with vinegar.

God never intended it to be that way. All through His Word there are admonitions and encouragements to gracious and considerate living. Every Christian is under orders to "grow in grace" as well as in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ (II Pet. 3:18). This lesson stresses two leading Christian graces.

I. Forgiveness—Not Always Easy, but Always Possible (vv. 1-4).

The Bible is ever realistic in its approach to life. God knows that Christians must live in just our kind of world; in fact, your kind of world, and makes provision for it.

Offenses cannot be avoided. There will always be occasions for stumbling. No matter how closely we may guard our children, they will face temptations. Let us prepare them to meet them with the power of Christ, and let us be so prepared ourselves.

The fact that offenses must come does not excuse the one who creates the cause of stumbling. Someone is responsible for every such occasion for offense, and the woe of God is pronounced upon him.

What shall I do about the one who thus tempts me and others? Just grieve over it and look the other way? No indeed. "Rebuke him," says God's Word. Let us do it! If he does not repent, there is no occasion for forgiveness. To do so would only encourage him in his sin.

If he repents, or even says he repents, we are to forgive, not just once, but over and over again (v. 4). That's not easy for any of us, but it is possible if we, like the disciples (see v. 5), ask God to "increase our faith," and use it as Jesus directs in verse 6.

II. Gratitude—the Almost Forgotten Christian Grace (vv. 11-19).

Nine men wonderfully healed of the dreadful disease of leprosy, and only one said, "Thank you," to Jesus, "and he was a Samaritan," an outsider or stranger. One wonders whether in our own day of professed enlightenment and culture the average of those who express their gratitude would even reach one-tenth.

"Gratitude is as scarce as friendship." Many there are who profess to be Christians who never offer praise to God for the provision of their daily food, let alone for all other temporal and spiritual blessings. The kindness of friends is taken for granted. The thoughtfulness of others is accepted without comment.

Have you told your minister that you appreciate his sermons and his ministry in the community? Does your Sunday School teacher know that you have received help and blessing in the class? Does the editor of this paper know that you enjoy and appreciate this column? If you do, why not encourage him by calling him on the telephone or writing him a note to tell him so?

Young people, have you ever said a real heart-felt "thank you" to your father or mother for all they have done for you? Perhaps some older sister or brother or school teacher or neighbor would be greatly heartened by such a word from you.

Someone may say, "I am grateful, but I am not the type that talks about it." One wonders whether Henry Van Dyke was not right when he said, "A dumb love is accepted only from the lower animals." A dog will show his thankfulness by wagging his tail, but a man has a tongue with which to say kind and tender words of appreciation to both God and man.

Most important of all, let us bear in mind that God awaits our words of praise. Christ valued the words of gratitude of this man and missed them from the nine others. When He was in Simon's home (Luke 7: 44-46), He gently rebuked His host for failing to show him the ordinary courtesies of the household.

Appreciate Beauty

Never lose an opportunity of seeing anything beautiful—welcome it in every fair face, every fair sky, every fair flower and thank Him for it who is the fountain of all lovelliness; and drink it simply and earnestly with all your eyes; it is a charmed draught, a cup of blessing. —Kingsley.

Bible Is Valuable Guide

I have read it (the Bible) through many times; I now make a practice of going through it once a year; it is a book of all others for lawyers as well as diviner, and I pity the man who cannot find in it a rich supply of thought and rule for conduct.—Daniel Webster.

Pruning And Training Grape Varieties

The College of Agriculture Extension Circular No. 209 entitled "Grapes for the Home," states that the best time for pruning grapes is the early spring. Winter killing is common, which makes it desirable to prune after severe cold weather is past. Pruning should not be done while the wood is frozen, because frozen canes are brittle and much damage may be done if handled in that condition. Bleeding occurs if late spring pruning is done. Grape growers prefer to prune before bleeding is excessive, but there is no evidence to show that bleeding is harmful.

The spray schedule and other timely information is contained in this circular. Copies of this circular may be obtained from your County Agent, or the Experiment Station in Lexington, Ky.

Lambing Time

The experiment Station has a timely Circular Number 346, entitled "Lambing Time," which gives complete information on feed and care of the ewe and also information on lambing, attention to the young lamb and lamb feeding recommendations.

Music Enjoyment Is For All Of Us

YOU don't have to know music to enjoy it.

If you are at all sensitive to the lift of art you can enjoy music regardless whether you can distinguish a "ritornello" from a "recapitulation", according to George Marek in his article titled, "Sidling Up to Music" which appears in Good Housekeeping's February issue.

Marek writes, that music "is an enjoyment in many ways easier to obtain and more lasting than the enjoyment of other arts. It is easier to obtain and more lasting because music requires no special knowledge of backgrounds or history or customs and because most of it can be heard by phonograph. It is more lasting because great music not only permits but requires repetition; the familiar becomes the favorite".

In the initial approach to music, Marek suggests, that one skip program notes and commentators in favor of just plain "listening".

Cooperation Shown Welfare Association

The Board of Directors and co-workers of the Community Welfare Association wishes to thank each person who has had any part in the success of its work until now, and urge the same cooperative spirit to continue in the future. The finest possible feeling has been manifested. The community is almost solid in its interest and appreciation of the efforts that are being put forth for the good of everyone.

We urge the people of Walton to send appeals to some member of the board in order that the case may be thoroughly investigated, and if possible help of more value than temporary assistance, be given.

It must be kept in mind that charity is given on the basis of the need and willingness to work. No community can support families that are not willing to help themselves. Also all written requests for help or investigations must be signed by the writer or it will not be considered.

There will be a meeting of the workers and interested citizens in the office of Mr. John L. Vest on Thursday night of this week at 7:00 o'clock. We hope this can be the final check-up on the canvas for money.—Committee.

The deceased was a member of the Florence Baptist church and the Florence Homemakers Club.

Surviving are her husband, Charles Corbin; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stephens, of Florence, and a sister, Mrs. Lee Craddock, of Hebron. Burial was in the Florence cemetery.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

"Chinese Christians Are Faithful Unto Death" is the topic of the missionary program for Sunday evening, February 23rd, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

AIM: To capture such a true picture of the loyalty of the Chinese Christians to Christ that we shall be deeply challenged to project our own loyalty to Christ into our present social order and moral situations; and furthermore that we shall admire, appreciate and feel a closer bond of followship with the Chinese as we join with them in extending Christ's witness in China.

Group Captain in charge—Geraldine Elliott.

Meditation—

Poultrymen Discuss Program For 1941

Boone county poultrymen attending the annual poultry school at Burlington on February 11th, heard the poultry outlook discussed as much brighter than during the past two years. Prospects are for not much change in feed prices and a better demand for both the poultry and eggs.

James Humphrey and Wm. Insko, of the College of Agriculture poultry departmen t and local poultrymen led discussions on the program. Plans were made for stressing poultry as an important part in the Live at Home Program. A minimum requirement of five laying pullets per member of family was set as a goal. Fifteen early hatched baby chicks ordinarily will be required to produce this number of pullets.

Plans were made for cooperation in the Homemakers' Live at Home poultry program, the holding of a marketing tour in May, a summer tour to visit Indiana and Ohio demonstration flocks, electric brooding and lean chick brooding demonstrations, producing higher quality market eggs, 4-H poultry club work and use of chicks from disease free flocks.

The 1941 poultry plans committee elected include Grant Maddox, Lucy Lee Grant and Mrs. C. H. Sullivan.

LAND USE PLANNING SHOWS COMMUNITY CENTERS

The preliminary Land Use Survey recently started in the county shows nine community centers and 21 neighborhood centers, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The preliminary survey was made by Richard M. Sandefur Assistant County Agent.

The Land Use Survey program is being made as a part of the county State and National program as a basis for study for solving major local problems that pertain directly to the land. Plans are to have local community and neighborhood committees to study solutions to local land use problems.

Temporary committees will be appointed in the near future to review information on land uses and to make recommendations. Permanent committees will be elected after the program becomes more fully developed.

SERVICES AT BEAVER CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Services will be conducted at the Beaver Christian Church next Sunday afternoon at 2:15. Rev. T. H. Alderson will preach .The Lord's Supper will be observed. The public is cordially invited to attend.

A campaign has been launched in Fulton county for three things: better sheep, more careful feeding, management for profit.

Fruit Outlook Good; Price Outlook Bad

Boone county fruit growers heard W. W. Magill, orchard specialist, outline the fruit crop prospects so far for 1941 as one of the best on record. He further warned growers that many things could affect the crop between now and harvest time and that the price outlook at present was very bad.

Mr. Magill attributed the poor price outlook to the war situation. He stated that the war had cut off the ten million bushel export market this country had been enjoying.

Recommended spray schedules and good orchard management were recommended to growers at these practices always pay. Plans were made for the holding of a summer tour in July or August to near by orchards or other cut of county orchards to study new practices.

INDEPENDENCE HOMEMAKERS MEET

The February meeting of the Independence Homemakers was held on Thursday, the 13th, at the home of Miss Emily Leslie, 14 Holmesdale Court, Covington, in in all day session.

Mrs. J. C. Reynolds was in charge of the program and gave a report on the Farm and Home Convention held recently at the University of Kentucky, Lexington. Mrs. Reynolds also gave a synopsis of the talks, which was very interesting. They were, "Importance of Health," "The Parts Vitamins and Women Play in the Defense Program," "Influence in the Home," "The Planning of Fruits and Vegetables on the Farm and Lot for Canning," "Civic Problems," "Closer Relations to South America and Other Countries, and to learn and speak Spanish and French and other Languages," "Style Trends and Uses of Cotton" and "Buying Sensibly."

Mrs. Wm. Summey gave the lesson on "Howe to Make Button Holes, and How to Sew on Hooks and Eyes, and Clasps."

Miss Zelma Byerly ,Demonstration Agent, led the discussion on better English.

Mrs. O. T. Tapps spoke on "Planting of Spring flowers and when to sow grass seed." Mrs. Foster Armstrong had charge of the program on "Vitamin B-1."

Mrs. Wm. House, recreational leader, was auctioneer for the day, selling farm products, linens and home baked cakes, which afforded much entertainment.

Members present were Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, Mrs. Foster Armstrong, Mrs. William Summey, Mrs. O. T. Tapp, Mrs. C. J. Meese, Mrs. Wm. House, Mrs. R. F. Giles, Mrs. Shanklin, Mrs. G. H. Houston, Miss Zelma Byerly, Mrs. Willis Garner, Miss Patsy Ann D oll, Master Lee Giles, Mrs. J. Meltner and Miss Emily Leslie.

Hamilton Farmers Trip Bearcats 24-20

The Hamilton Farmers all but clinched the Boone County Conference crown Tuesday evening, on the Walton floor, by defeating the Bearcats 24 to 20 in a keenly contested battle, before the largest crowd of the season, at the local hardwood.

The game was close throughout, the scores at the close of each period being as follows: First quarter, 6-5 Walton-Verona; half, 8-7 Hamilton; third quarter, 16-15 Hamilton, and the final count, 24-20 in favor of the Farmers. Williamson was a tower of strength for the victors, hanging up 15 points, and in general playing a first rate brand of ball. Bearcat scoring was more evenly divided, with Pennington leading the way with 7 markers.

The Farmers are a fast, hard fighting group of boys, and will not little, be a worry to opposing coaches in the coming District tournament, to be held in the Walton-Verona gym.

The Bearcats, as the score indicates, were not outclassed, but their inability to work the ball in under the basket and then missing many of their shots, when they did get the pill in close, led to their downfall.

The second team contest was a bit more enjoyable, from a Walton point of view, as the W.-V. reserves were the winners 21 :o 18. Mayhugh was the leading scorer for the locals, accounting for 11 points. Kite ran wild for Hamilton and registered 15 of his team's 18 tallies.

Cats Close Season With Games Against Simon Kenton & Florence

Two more games remain on the Bearcat schedule, and both are to be played on the home floor. On Friday evening of this week, they will be hosts to the Simon Kenton Pioneers, and on Tuesday, of next week, will draw the curtain with the Florence Knights furnishing the opposition. The latter will be a Conference tilt.

M. L. Sturgeon Passes Feb. 12

M. L. Sturgeon, 74, of the Mudlick community, two miles west of Walton, passed away February 12 from cerebral hemorrhage. He had been in ill health for a year.

Mr. Sturgeon, a well known farmer, was born in Grant county, and was a member of the Presbyterian church. He had resided near here for more than 20 years.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. Russell Cross, pastor, from the Lebanon Presbyterian church, on Friday, Feb. 14, with interment following in the church cemetery.

Besides his widow, the deceased is survived by one son, Clarence Sturgeon; two grandchildren; one great-grandchild; many other relatives and a host of friends.

Chambers and Grubbs, Walton, had charge if the funeral arrangements.

HAPPY HELPERS CLASS MEETS AT CHURCH

The monthly social, business and devotional meeting of the Happy Helpers Class of the Methodist Church, was held in the dining room of the church. Those enjoying this meeting were Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Talley, Rev. D. E. Bedinger, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lancaster and son Bobbie, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Pruett, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Meyers, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stephenson, Mrs. Nancy Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wallace, Mrs. Lavonia Northcutt and son Delbert ,Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall and daughter, Maryanna, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Joe Stephenson and Beverly Jean Pruett.

Soybean oil meal is being used for beef cattle by Bath county farmers.

A 10 cent per dozen premium for eggs over the market price is being received by Johnson county farmers with blood-tested flocks.

VERONA 4-H CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The 4-H Club of Verona, called the Willing Workers, held its first meeting Feb. 17, at the Verona school. An election of officers was held, and those chosen are as follows;

President, Vernon Myers: vice president, Anna Sturgeon; secretary, Mary Chipman; sergeant at arms, Cecil Dean; cheer leader, Virginia Rose Clemons; reporter, David King.

We have not chosen our community or adult eladers. We hope to do so at our next meeting. Mr. Drake conducted our meeting as Miss Gilllaspie is ill. We have two new members. There are 21 members altogether and we hope this will be a prosperous year for all.

David King, Reporter

Aged Verona Woman Dies

Mrs. Everett Baker ,78, passed away February 9 at her home on Verona, Route 1, from infirmities of old age, after an illness of five weeks. She was born at Beaver Lick and was a member of the Beaver Baptist church.

Funeral services were conducted from the South Fork Christian church on Wednesday ,Feb. 12, at 2:00 p. m., the Rev. Roy Johnson officiating. Burial was in the Hance cemetery.

The deceased is survived by her husband, Everett Baker; two sons, Charles and Harry Baker, of Verona, R-1; a brother, Sam Johnson, of Oregonia, Ohio; three grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

J. L. Hamilton & Son, of Verona, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

33rd District Basketball Tourney To Be Played Here On March 5, 6, 7, 8

The 33rd District Basketball Tournament will be played in the gymnasium of the Walton-Verona High School on March 5, 6, 7 and 8. All games are to be played in the evening, starting at 7:00, Central Standard Time. There will be three games Wednesday night, three games Thursday night, two contests Friday night, and two tilts the final evening, Saturday.

Schools to be represented are Burlington, Florence, Hamilton, Hebron, New Haven and Walton-Verona. The second teams, in addition to the first-stringers, of these schools, will see action in this meet.

Admission prices for each of the four sessions are to be 35 cents for adults, and 20 cents for school children.

Two well known Cincinnati officials, Colwell and Ernst, will handle the refereeing assignments.

The winners and runners-up in the first team division will represent Boone county in the Regional tournament.

The trophies to be given are on display in a window of the Dixie State Bank. The winners and runners-up in each division will receive these awards.

This is expected to be a riproaring tourney, with any one of the teams capable to "coming through" to win the glory. The Conference leaders, Hamilton's Farmers, must be considered as favorites, but "anything can happen" in a basketball tournament, and sometimes does.

Rotarians Are To Sponsor Boy Scouts

Boy Scout Troop is being reorganized in Walton, under the sponsorship of the Walton Rotary Club.

The Scout headquarters have been provided by John L. Vest, donating the use of the room over the Community Public Service Co. (next to the new post office), and Powers Conrad, of the Conrad Hardware, donating the use of the stove. This room can be made very attractive and comfortable by the co-operation of the Boy Scouts and their friends.

All parents and friends of boys, of ages from 12 to 16, are urged to encourage the boys to join this group, where they will learn many ways to be helpful to others as well as themselves.

The next meeting will be Monday nig ht at 6:30. After this meeting registration will be closed for sixty days. Don't fail to attend Monday night, Feb. 24.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY TO HOLD MEETING THURSDAY

The Missionary Society of the Walton Baptist Church will hold their all day meetjng Thursday at the home o fMrs .T. C. Mason, South Main St., beginning at 10:30, with Mrs. Fisher in charge of the business.

A covered dish dinner will be served at the noon hour.

Mrs. Grace Jones is the leader of the program, to begin at 1:30. An interesting program and social time is expected, so remember the time and place.

AGED GRANT COUNTY MAN DIES FEB. 13TH

Edward Jones, age 76 years, 11 months and 16 days, passed away at his home on the Baton Rouge Pike near Williamstown, Ky., on Thursday ,Feb. 13, at 12:30 a. m. Mr. Jones was a highly respected citizen and a very successful farmer.

He was married to Louisa Northcutt on April 7, 1882, and to this union was born seven children, five having died when very young. His wife passed away a number of years ago.

He leaves one son, Len Jones, of Williamstown; one daughter, Mrs. Lynn McClanahan, of Grant county; 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren, and one brother, Willie Jones, of Oklahoma, and a number of friends.

Services were conducted from the Pleasant Ridge Baptist Church Saturday at 10:30 a. m. by Rev. G. C. Mullins. Burial followed in the church cemetery .The grandsons acted as pallbearers and the granddaughters as flower bearers, Coates & Stewart, Williamstown Funeral Directors, were in charge.

MISSIONARY CIRCLE NO. 2 HAS DELIGHTFUL MEETING

The Missionary Circle No. 2, of the Walton Methodist Church, met Tuesday afternoon with their president, Mrs. C. O. Carlisle, at her home. Those who enjoyed this helpful meeting, under the leadership of Mrs. J. H. Talley, were: Mrs. Mary Piner, Mrs. Mildred Jones and son Dennie, Mrs. Mary Stephenson, Mrs. Lucile Hudson, Mrs. W. F. Coop, Mrs. Bertha Lancaster, Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. Maud Hall and Miss Emma Jane Miller.

At the close of the program delicious refreshments were served, and a social time enjoyed.

Mrs. Walter Coop will entertain Circle No. 2 for the March meeting.

Economic Highlights

Somewhere in the mind of every American citizen lurks this grim and disquieting question: "Will the United States enter the war?"

About every writer and speaker in the country has been attempting to satisfactorily answer that question for some time. You can find irresistibly logical arguments which make our entry into conflict seem inevitable as death and taxes—and you can find equally logical arguments which attempt to prove we are in small danger of being drawn in. And, as the debate rages on, a good many Americans who make no pretense of being experts find themselves sinking deeper into confusion.

The standard polls still indicate that the American people are opposed to war, even as they favor aid to England with "all steps short of war." And at the same time, the American people, going by the same polls, are convinced that if England falls we may be next on Hitler's list of victims.

The arguments that support the theory that we cannot long keep out of war are obvious enough. We have dropped all pretense of neutrality — we are simply non-belligerents, committed to the hilt on England's side. We have damned the dictators in unequivocal terms. The leaders of both the political parties, the President and Mr. Willkie, are aggressively pro-British and anti-Nazi. And we are about to embark on a new policy which will give England and her allies our utmost moral and material support — a policy which Hitler, if he is seeking a fight with this country, could logically construe as a declaration of war in effect.

On the other side of the fence, the arguments have not been so well publicized. In a recent issue, the United States News summed up five principal reasons for believing that this country is not going to war.

First, says the News, the United States can aid Britain more by not fighting than by fighting. Britain, in other words, needs supplies, not men. If we entered the war it would be impossible to send much abroad, as our own under-supplied military establishments would need all our factories could produce.

Second, the U. S. can help her own defense more by staying out of the war. The arms we send to England may be lost, but we won't lose men so long as we remain a non-belligerent. And we will find out if our arms and planes are adequate for modern war. England, in other words, will be the proving ground for the products of our factories.

Third, through the lend-lease policy, the U. S. can exert its major effort in the war. Actually taking up arms against the Axis would not permit us to do more.

Fourth, the fact that all aid for England policy apparently has the support of a nation which is also committed to maintaining peace, is construed in Administration circles as proof of the fact that its plans and actions are sound.

Fifth, according to his intimates, the President really hates war, meant what he said during the campaign, and will do everything possible to prevent war. He believes that his policy offers the surest road to peace, and in that he is backed by large numbers of his political opponents.

All of this does not take into consideration the fact that the Axis might make war on us, thus plunging us into the conflict whether we want to fight or not. Military and political experts, for the most part, don't think that is likely at this time. They point out that Hitler doesn't make a particular point of "saving face." As he has said himself, he will not be badgered into taking steps he believes dangerous. The experts argue that Hitler will not wage war against us until and unless it suits his time-table. And it is obvious that he has enough troubles on his hands now without asking for more.

Time, which heals all wounds and solves all arguments, will prove the soundness or weakness of these various contentions. In the meantime, there are many thoughtful observers who feel that we will be in war before the year ends—perhaps within six months. Joe Martin, the Republican leader in the House, is said to feel that. All the people can do now is wait and see.

Removal of the "moral embargo" against shipment of airplanes to Russia was purely a diplomatic move. Russia is as air-tight a dictatorship as Germany or Italy, and has played ball with Hitler. But the British and U. S. governments still hope that Russia may yet be weaned away from the Axis. Lifting the embargo was obviously designed to drive the wedge between Hitler and Stalin.

Fear has been expressed that Russia will buy planes here and send them to Germany. That fear is largely groundless, in that British and U. S. Army back orders will keep our factories busy indefinitely. They won't be able to take on new business.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

American industry, in its day-to-day defense production, is making poor prophets out of all the writers who have contended that "you will never make a satin purse out of a sow's ear."

So far as modern researchers know, James Howell, in 1659, was the first man to put that phrase into writing. Now, 300 years later, Washington hears daily of new industrial accomplishments for defense which make transformation of a sow's ear into silk look like child's play.

The handicaps in many instances are tremendous—but since the government is setting the policy and needs weapons and machines for defense, industry is producing them.

To the layman, this production might seem a simple job. But facts talked privately in Washington show that it is far from simple. Here is one especially interesting illustration:

When drafting men for military service was under consideration, some government officials favored deferring watchmakers because they would be useful in making the fuses which explode shells and bombs. But now these fuses are being produced. And men who regularly work on women's minute modern wrist watches are too clumsy for fuse making.

Watchmakers just didn't have the required skill. So the fuse producers turned to women who are needleworkers, doing embroidery, crocheting, and other fine handwork. The result is perfect fuses.

It sounds surprising to change embroiderers into fuse makers. But other similar transfers are just as surprising.

For example, War Department officers originally planned for an army of only 400,000 men. But now they are planning for 4,000,000. Consequently, they need more of everything to arm, feed, clothe, and care for these 4,000,000 men.

Mosquito netting is important, with many training camps being located near water, to keep soldiers from getting malaria and other diseases, possibly even yellow fever. But existing mosquito netting makers couldn't supply the necessary quantities.

So now some of the leading producers of women's lingerie are making mosquito netting.

There are many other such samples. One factory, which made machines for tobacco plants, now is producing Diesel engine parts; dyes and tools are being produced in a button plant; a maker of laundry machines is turning out machines which will bore and rifle gun barrels.

The willingness of these manufacturers to do even more is making a definite impression in Washington. One man who processes fish oil says his four fishing steamers were available for use as mine sweepers if the government needs them; a chemical company owner offers to go out of that business and let his plant be used for something else if the government wishes; a creamery plant owner suggests that his facilities might be converted into chemical production.

While all these things are being done BY industry, Washington is watching closely what is done TO industry. Strikes, of course, continue to hamper production in important fields. And labor unionists in many cases are slowing down rather than speeding up production. Here is an authenticated report of such a case:

One defense manufacturer employed a new worker who was ambitious and energetic. The first week this man turned out 1,100 of a particular article. A union leader asked him: "Are you trying to show up the rest of us? You'd better cut down that production rate." So the next week, the new man's production dropped to 600—it was either that or lose his job.

Slow-down is just as bad as actual striking. That's why Congress is getting interested in the matter.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The cash outlay of over $570,000,000 by the government in January for defense alone indicates considerable progress in arming; it indicates that industries' wheels are whirring at last to grind out guns, airplanes, ships, army and navy bases and cantonments. The full effect of this program is still to be felt for the cash outgo may soon reach the tremendous total of $800,000,000 a month and stay there for some time. This should generate secondary demands for consumers goods (clothing, food, radios, automobiles) of immense scope.

What does all this mean to the business man, the employee and the consumer?

The sudden impact of these orders should keep the rate of industrial production at the present high level the rest of this year. But the outlook for large industrial profits is none too bright owing to rising taxes and increased labor costs and the pressure to hold down all industrial prices. Likewise the outlook for increased corporation dividends is far from rosy. The government is taking a large share of the profits in the form of income taxes and corporations are hesitant to pay out the remainder for the future is entirely too uncertain. Thus they desire to retain profits in their surplus accounts. So don't look for huge dividends.

The outlook for labor is excellent. High industrial production means steady work and higher wages. But labor must expect to pay higher prices for the goods it purchases.

The farm income for this year will be larger than it was in 1940 due to increased demand for foodstuffs from the industrial centers. But again the famer will have to pay more for what he buys.

The prospect for the small merchant is the brightest of all. Industrial workers will spend billions of dollars in their stores. Their profits will be the highest proportionately, for their taxes, rents, wages and other costs will not rise as rapidly as that of the large business man and the industrialist. Small business should have a banner year.

But, remember, the calculations of every business man, large or small, and of every worker and farmer must be on the basis of a continuing war. When war stops, business changes will begin.

A reserve treasury of $861 was carried into 1941 by the Marion county sheep protective organization.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY Gordon Wilson Ph.D.
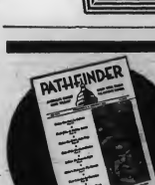
WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Folk Art

By degrees the mass of people, educated and uneducated, are beginning to realize that basically the folk are artistic. We have long known that primitive peoples like the Indians can do marvelous things with their hands, but the strangeness of their artistry has attracted us more often than the intrinsic value of their works. A generation or so ago a few people discovered, almost by accident, that the Southern Negro is basically a musician. For a long time it was regarded as queer for any one to see beauty in music such as the farm hands made; long since I have been grown-up it was unthinkable for a group of Negro singers to appear before a white audience. When even great white singers included "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," or "Steal Away to Jesus" in their repertory, I have heard very adverse criticism. Slowly the doubters have been silenced. Probably no part of the country now appreciates Negro spirituals more than does the South.

Only lately have even the best of us recognized the artistry present in many of the activities of the simpler ones of our own race. It has taken us a long time to get over the prejudices engendered by caste systems. Now folk things are quite the rage; I hope that much of this enthusiasm is genuine and not merely a passing fad.

Travelers along our highways have no difficulty in seeing that folk industries now have their inning. Basketry, which has continued without interruption since prehistoric time, is now attracting attention because of its expression of beauty; many a basket bought from an Indian village is no more artistic than those made in our own white homes. Quilts, rugs, counterpanes, too, are attracting attention because of their basic artistry. Country hams and other meats cured by rural artists who do not realize that they are really so are becoming known everywhere.



There is always a danger that the very popularity of anything will endanger its value. If these folk artists stick to their knitting literally, and are not warped out of their own orbits (mixing figures intentionally), all be well. When and if exploiters from the outside dabble with folk things, nothing but cheapness results. When folk musicians are paraded too much before the camera or before the microphone, they are likely to become conscious of themselves and try to do what the comedians or music hall people do. A yodeling cowboy may be very artless and engaging; the same cowboy, with an eagerness to shine on Broadway, may easily degenerate into just another cheap performer. Drugstore cowboys or parlor soldiers are no more pitiful than sophisticated folk artists. I can think of nothing more ridiculous in our national annals than Davy Crockett who was a first class Indian fighter, pioneer, and bear hunter, turning politician and imagining that he was putting one over on the sophisticated and thick-skinned Washington politicians. It is to the eternal credit of Abraham Lincoln that he abandoned the arts of the frontier politician when he faced great issues. Those who came to Cooper Union, in New York, to see a second Davy Crockett found instead one of the profound thinkers of the time; the folk background did not hurt Lincoln, but on that night in 1860 he was a scholar speaking to a thinking people. High jinks would have been out of the question. Too many of our politicians have capitalized on this very thing, just as many of our folk artists right now are in danger of losing the very qualities for which they are deservedly famous. Exploitation of folk art by boosters will do more than anything else to reduce it itself to a deadening standardization.

BRACHT STATION

(Crowded out last week.)

Our Lord, our God.—He openeth the minds and hearts of all.

He hath done all things well. He maketh both the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak.— Mark 7:37.

Well, here we are again, with our brief pencil and pen, scanning the pages of our little note book trying to give you the news, tidbits, and happening events, of whom, where and when.

Mrs. E. Huff and daughter Miss Janet spent several days in Cincinnati last week, shopping and visiting friends and relatives.

Miss Wanda Bales, of Covington, spent Sunday with her parents of this place.

A. Feirroct, of Ludlow, spent Monday with the folks on his farm at this place.

Mr. Chester Farmer and wife, of Covington, spent Sunday with E. F. Bales and wife, occupants of Maple Lawn Farm.

E. Huff spent several days this week down in Casey county looking after the interests of his farm down in that vicinity, sowing grass seed, etc.

Several from around here attended the sale of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Hon, deceased, Tuesday, and report that everything sold well.

Sam Murphy butchered a nice fat hog one day last week and is now enjoying delicious and juicy spareribs and good old country sausage. (Yum, yum!)

Three events of February to be remembered: Valentine's day, Birthday of Abraham Lincoln and birthday of George Washington.

Our two heroes, brave and true
Wave aloft our banners, bright
Our own red, white and blue
Honor we today the men
To whom much praise is due.
Hurrah! Hurrah! let our banners wave
For Lincoln and Washington so brave!
Sing a song of them, and celebrate their birth,
Children all should know their names
Their greatness and their worth.
For well did they love this land of ours,
The fairest on the earth,
So let us sing praises of Lincoln and Washington,
Our brave and honest heroes.

Valentine's Day

Does not the 14th day of February always take us back to the time when we were young. Valentine boxes in the school room, an unusual tingle of expectation waiting for the mail. Heart shaped cookies and candy boxes, most of us grew up enjoying a tradition we thought of as a memorial to the kindly Saint Valentine, a Christian martyr who died on February 14 at the hands of the Roman Emperor Claudius. Later historians, however, declare that "Valentine Day" is really a survival of an ancient Roman festival, celebrated the middle of February, and has been so named by later Christian generations, because of its coincidence with the good saint's departure from this life. But no matter how we regard the origin of this special day, it is still fun and still has happy observances connected with it.

Here are some daily thoughts for us — Let us live as Abraham Lincoln. To pluck a thistle and plant a rose, wherever we think it will grow.

And as George Washington who kept his little hatchet bright and never told a lie.

And to be close observers of ourselves and Five things observe with care
Of whom we speak,
To whom we speak,
How, when, and where.

Snacks for Husbands

Many husbands will testify that whenever a snack is in order nothing could please them more than a plate of cookies served with a large pitcher of milk. And if the cookies are homemade ones the "piecemealing" is an even more enjoyable interlude in a quiet evening at home.

A goodly selection of cooky recipes and a bit of time set aside perhaps once a week for baking them does the trick. Below are two grand new cooky suggestions to please a hungry husband—made crisp and extra nutritious with rice flakes.

Rice Flakes Butter Cookies

Sift twice—
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour.
Cream—
1 cup butter.
Add gradually, creaming thoroughly—
¾ cup brown sugar.
Add, mixing well—
1 egg yolk, well beaten
then add the flour.
Shape into round balls, then roll in—
Rice flakes, crushed.
Press flat on ungreased cooky sheet.
Place in center of each—
Whole almond or pecan.
Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 5 to 6 minutes.

Rice Flakes Lace Cookies

Cream—
3 tablespoons peanut butter.
Add gradually, creaming thoroughly—
1 cup sugar.
Beat—
2 eggs
until thick and lemon colored, then add
1 teaspoon almond extract.
Fold egg yolks into the sugar mixture.
Add, mixing well—
2½ cups rice flakes
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped nuts.

Drop by level teaspoons onto a well greased cooky sheet. Bake in a hot oven (400° F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Remove immediately from cooky sheet, lifting carefully with a spatula. These cookies are very fragile and if allowed to cool on the cooky sheet they harden and crumble.

Return Engagement

"The same meat, second time" is a real challenge to an economical homemaker. This leftover has to be given the benefit of a bit of remodeling, of course. Or, better yet, make it over into a completely new dish. For example, when you have some roast pork remaining, you'll find your family is enthusiastic about its return engagement when it comes to the table combined with flavorsome cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce as in the following recipe.

Roast Pork with Spaghetti

Melt in skillet—
4 tablespoons butter.
Cook in butter until tender—
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 medium onion, minced.
Add—
1½ cups diced cooked pork.
Sprinkle with—
1 tablespoon flour.
Allow to brown, then add—
½ cup milk or water.
Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.
Add—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.
Cook until spaghetti is thoroughly heated. Turn into serving dish and sprinkle with grated American cheese. Serves 6.

MORGANSVILLE

"Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

Turn your sorrows outward into currents of sympathy and deeds of kindness, and they will become a stream of blessing. Always we can find some one to whom we can be kind and in so doing our own heartaches are lessened.

"They are not dead who live in hearts they leave behind in those whom they have blest. They live a life again."

A shadow of sorrow was cast upon a wide circle at the announcement of the recent passing of Mrs. Fannie McClure, beloved mother of Mrs. Clyde Stephens, at the residence of her devoted granddaughter, Mrs. Earl Foreman.

She had attained the age of 82 years, and infirmities incident to advanced age were primarily the cause of her death.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. Barnes, born in Jackson Co., Missouri, on August 17, 1858, and in young womanhood was united in marriage to W. H. McClure, December 27, 1883, who preceded her in death 49 years. A daughter and son came to gladden their home, but in childhood days their little son was called to the better land. Besides the daughter, Mrs. Clyde Stephens, of Reading, Mich., she is survived by seven grandchildren: Mrs. Earl Foreman and Mrs. Oren Reed, Coldwater, Mich.; Wayne, Lula Mae and Miss Lucy Jean Stephens, Weston, Ohio; Jessie and Betty Stephens, of Reading, Mich; seven great-grandchildren, and two nieces, Mrs. Cecilia Cox, of Oklahoma, and Miss Edna Barnes, Brooklyn, New York, to whom deepest sympathy is extended. For many years Mrs. McClure was prominently identified with the activities of the Presbyterian church. Like the afterglow of the sunset the warmth and radiance of her pleasing personality shall long linger in many hearts. She was a former resident of Crittenden, and having lived in Grant Co. for a number of years, she was well and favorably known throughout that section.

Rev. Will A. Wolfe, a prominent Christian minister of Weston, Ohio, officiated at the last sad rites, followed by interment in the cemetery at Coldwater, Mich., awaiting the dawn without a sunset.

"Not dead — just born beyond the shadows into the full, clear light. Forever done with mist and tempest, where all is calm and bright."

BEAVER LICK

(Crowded out last week.)

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kite moved to Cincinnati, where Mr. Kite has employment.

Miss Anna Belle Godbey was able to return to school Monday after having had measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sleet moved Monday from the Thompson farm to A. A. Roter's house in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. William Souder, of Cincinnati, were here for the week-end with their parents, Rev. and Mrs. S. B. Godbey.

News was received here Monday that Mrs. Everett Baker had passed away at her home in Gallatin county Sunday night. Mrs. Baker has many friends here who mourn her passing.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Jones visited Mrs. Jones' mother, Mrs. Stone, at her home in Louisville Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Moore, of near Verona, were calling on friends here on Monday. They proudly announce that they have a new granddaughter, who arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pottinger (Helen Moore), on Friday of last week.

The many friends of Ed Black are glad to see him back on the milk truck after an operation for appendicitis. His son "Pete," however, did a good job "pinch-hitting" for him.

Corporal John Robert Ballard, of Ft. Knox, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Jimmy Carver, and Mr. Carver at their home near New Haven.

A 1-acre plot of orchard grass will be grown by 25 Perry county farmers on each of their farms.

SOCIAL SECURITY

A plea to welfare agencies to stop the practice of stamping their names on the social security cards of applicants for assistance was voiced recently.

This plea came from Frank B. Decker, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board field office in Covington, after officials of the Federal agency in Washington had made a similar request. Explaining the reason for his statement Mr. Decker said:

"It has been found that some employers will not hire men who present social security cards which bear the imprint of rubber stamps naming welfare organizations which have helped these workers in times of stress. Some welfare organizations have stamped the social security cards of workers to prevent 'repeaters.'.

"It is the feeling of the Social Security Board that this practice may be considered as an evidence of poverty of the person bearing the card. Some employers object to hiring such workers, hence our request to the welfare organizations. Any man who has a social security card which has been stamped in this manner may obtain a new card, without charge, by applying at our office in the Post Office Building in Covington," Mr. Decker added.

JAMESWAY

YOUR CHICKS NEED A JAMESWAY FEEDER

Chicks find it easy to get at their feed in a Jamesway Baby Chick Feeder. The top edges of these feeders are inbent to save feed. Chicks can't bill or scratch their feed out of a Jamesway. An easy turning Z type reel top prevents chicks from roosting on the feeder. This reel is adjustable to accommodate large or small chicks.

Made from high grade copper bearing galvanized sheets, Jamesway chick feeders are durable, easy to clean, and sanitary. Your chicks need a Jamesway feeder and you have a wide range of types to choose from. The Z type reel top feeder shown above comes in 4 lengths from 10" to 36" and in capacities of from 1 quart to 4 quarts. Other Jamesway chick feeders come in rod top and 4 blade reel top with a similar range of sizes and capacities, all sturdily constructed and attractively finished.

Come in and see these feeders before you buy. We have a complete line of Jamesway Baby Chick Equipment including the Jamesway Oil Burning Brooder Stove—the world's best and fastest selling brooder.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER XVI—Marian and Branford make the trip together to the timber owned by Tom Pruitt and a survey of the area is quickly completed by Wills. During the course of the day Branford tells Marian of his love for her but she will not commit herself as to her feelings for him. At the mill, still more trouble piles up for Virgie as an important paper order is cancelled and Stanley Daniels informs her he is quitting. Virgie sends Lucy to his laboratory to check out his supplies and equipment. Lucy rises to the occasion and locks Daniels in the lab, hoping that he will come to his senses and resist Withers' attempt to blackmail him.

CHAPTER XVII

The lawyer who came at noon, with Wallace Withers, was a suave stranger.

He was, so he stated, from Baltimore. He represented the Messrs. Payne, Cragg, and Hooper.

"And Withers," added Virgie.

"I do not represent Mr. Withers. I am not connected with the local enterprises of my clients, Mrs. Morgan. I am retained to prosecute a suit for damages for Mr. Cragg against your—superintendent, I believe—Mr. Thomas Pruitt."

"You didn't overlook anything, did you?" drawled Virgie.

"It is the function of an efficient attorney to overlook nothing. Very wisely, we think, Mr. Pruitt accepted our advice—which was to settle out of court. With more serious action pending it would be unfortunate for him to be involved also in civil matters, to which he could not give his attention. So he decided to make suitable settlement with my client, Mr. Cragg, and I have here"—he unfolded a paper—"an order upon you, Mrs. Morgan, to deliver to me fifty shares of stock in the Morgan mills—the property of Mr. Pruitt."

"You tricked him—a helpless old man—in prison!"

Virgie sprang up.

"It's a trick! Tom wouldn't sign away his stock in the mill. He didn't know what he was signing. He told me so. You tricked him—a helpless old man—in prison!"

"I assure you, Mrs. Morgan, that every document was carefully read to Mr. Pruitt."

"What of it? He wouldn't understand. He was scared and numb—you can scare Tom to death with a legal paper. You tricked him! He would have killed all of you before he'd give up his stock in this mill!"

"I can believe that. Mr. Pruitt's mania for homicide must be embarrassing to you. But—we do not trick people, Mrs. Morgan. We find it unnecessary." The oily voice ran like horrid fingers over her. "So, if you will read this order, please? You will notice that you are directed by Mr. Pruitt, as the custodian of his stocks and property, to deliver to me fifty shares of Morgan mill stock, to the amount of fifty thousand dollars par value—"

"I won't deliver it. I'll fight you through every court in this country first!"

"Of course, you understand that that attitude is quite futile. We can compel you to deliver the stock, Mrs. Morgan. We can bring an officer here with a writ—"

"Bring a dozen officers—if you can find one who'll serve a writ against me!"

"You exaggerate your importance and your invulnerability, I fear. The stock will be taken to Mr. Pruitt for signature to transfer—"

"Transfer to whom?"

"Mr. Withers has contracted to purchase it, I understand."

"I thought so."

"Look here, Virgie, you're wasting your breath," Wallace put in. "This is all settled. You can't do a thing about it."

"I'll see about that."

"I reckon we'll have to fetch a constable." Wallace mustered pious patience with an obdurate woman. "She's hard-headed. Talk won't be any use. She keeps it in that safe—"

"How do you know where I keep it?" Virgie flashed at him. "I suppose you've got some more spies on my pay-roll? Your Mr. Daniels has done pretty well. I suppose you set those fires yourself?"

"You are being very unreasonable, Mrs. Morgan," soothed the lawyer. "We are being very lenient with Mr. Pruitt. My client has been permanently injured without justification or excuse—"

"You might as well hush," declared Withers patiently. "Come along and we'll fetch somebody she will listen to."

The door banged behind them. Virgie stood still in the middle of the room, still shaking with white rage.

"The thieves!" she muttered.

They would be back presently, with some country constable, who would turn red when she looked at him, but who would drag from an unsavory pocket a paper with the seal of a magistrate upon it, and compel her to open the safe.

A sudden thought came to her. Swiftly she bent and twirled the combination of the safe. The heavy door moved open slowly, and she flung it back and unlocked the inner compartment. Flat, taped bundles of paper slid out into her hand. She sat on the floor, turning them over rapidly. All the papers on the Hazel Fork property—she knew those well, she had had them out the day before with Wills. Her own stock in the mill tied in an envelope —she counted the shares. All there. But—that was all!

Twice she turned over the entire contents of the compartment. Then in a panic flurry she pulled everything out—old ledgers, old bills, contracts, and leases. Papers that David had filed, papers she herself had put carefully away; tax receipts, deeds to timber lands, insurance policies, she unfolded each, shook it, opened and shook every book, searched frantically.

Tom's stock—and Marian's—was gone!

But—how—who—

No one but Lucy knew the combination. Lucy and Tom. And Tom was locked in jail.

She was still sitting there, shaking out papers, staring at the empty spaces in the safe when the door opened. She started, then saw that it was Marian who stood there.

"Mother! What has happened?" Marian exclaimed.

Virgie tied a tape with cold fingers. "We've been robbed," she said.

"A lawyer came—Wallace was with him. They tricked Tom into signing away his stock last night. They're coming back with an officer to make me give it up. And—it isn't here! It's gone. And your stock—the stock your father left for you—is gone, too!"

Marian closed the door, slid the bolt.

"Mother—get up—and sit down here. You're white as a sheet. You're shaking all over."

"I can't sit down. They'll be here any minute. They won't believe me. Some fool took it, I suppose—some of the sneaks who've been working for Wallace. It couldn't be Lucy—"

"Oh, no—not Lucy—"

"She knows enough to know that the stock's useless until it's signed over. But—nobody else knew the combination."

"Tom knew it. And—I know it."

"You?"

"Tom wrote it down for me. Mother—sit here and let me bring you some cold water. The stock isn't gone, Mother. It's safe. I took it."

Virgie sank limply into the old chair that had been David's.

"You took it?"

"I took it over to the court-house. To be registered. Tom signed it over to me—a week ago. It's mine. He couldn't give it to anyone else—because he has already signed it over to me. He was going to leave it to me—in his will. He told me so. And I saw the will. He left it here with Lucy that day—when he went up to Hazel Fork. Tom wanted me to have it. So—the last time I went to the jail, he was worrying about it. And—I wanted that stock, Mother—I'm ashamed to tell you why I wanted it. I wanted to control the mill. I wanted to make you fire Branford Wills—and now—I'm ashamed! But—the stock is safe. They can't touch it."

Virgie's hands fell limply. "Pick up that mess," she muttered, sagging back in her chair. "I give up."

"Here—drink this—"

"I'm all right. It's just—too much has been happening behind my back. Even you—"

"I told you I was ashamed. But anyway, we saved Tom's stock. Maybe we can beat them yet."

Virgie looked numbly at her child. David's child—with her finely cut profile, her dark eyes and resolute mouth. Gallant and splendid—and indomitable. Like David.

"So—you own the mill!" she said.

"Are you angry, Mother?"

"I don't know. It was a shrewd thing to do. Your father would have thought of it. I—seem not to think of things—soon enough."

"You're wonderful, Mother. I don't want to run the mill. I couldn't. I'm not wise enough or strong enough."

"I seem not to be wise, either. Lock the safe, Baby—those men will be back."

"They're coming now. It looks like an army."

No one noticed Lucy, coming in at the back door, because so many people were entering by the front way.

Lucy's eyes were blazing and a little wild. Her chin had a dogged angle, and scarlet coins burned in her cheeks. She looked younger, lighter, aglow with a sort of fantastic triumph, almost defiant. She pulled out her chair, then waited as the odd procession filed in.

(Concluded next week.)

Real Liberty!

You can do almost anything you want to under the American conception of personal liberty—just as long as your actions do not hurt others, or you don't step on their toes!

In other words, and despite the liquor traffic's misrepresentations during the campaign for repeal, the American ideal of liberty gives you no right to get tanked up, climb into a car, and risk not only your own life, or those of your passengers, but the lives—and property—of other citizens.

It gives you no right to anesthetize yourself with liquor until you perpetrate moral or physical crime, nor to dissipate the money necessary to the lives of others, nor to wreck your own life to the point where other citizens have to pay their money to support you or to hospitalize you, according to the W. C. T. U.

There is a rising clamor throughout the nation against the highway deaths which result from driver or pedestrian drinking. The call is to "keep liquor out of the man, or keep man out of the automobile."

The National Safety Council, disinterested authority, estimates that one of every four fatal highway accidents during 1940 involved a driver or a pedestrian reported to have been drinking. The Council believes that this ratio may even underestimate the true situation!

Students of the situation stress the indication that the so-called moderate drinker is the danger on the highway; that the actual drunk is less likely to try to drive.

A majority of Americans are sane, sober folk and they now are demanding their own rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—all of which can be wiped out in a flash by the action of an alcoholic, social misfit!

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati—The Reds are packed with pitching power, and they don't have to depend too much on question marks. However, Bill McKechnie is preparing for any eventuality, so he will give considerable of his time to the mound corps' most fluctuating commodity—Johnny Vander Meer.

Last year, with only very limited aid from Vander Meer, who spent most of the season on option at Indianapolis, the Reds had by far the best mound corps in the majors. Their plans are made without him as the bulwark, but a fellow with his ability can come through at any time and become his old effective self, a result that would weld the pitching staff into a still more solid unit, and make it practically an impregnable line of defense.

The gamble the Reds are taking on Vander Meer is an ideal sort of an arrangement for a ball club. If he doesn't deliver, they're still okay. And if he does, wow!

Just what are the chances of Vander Meer finding himself in 1941? Anybody who saw him pitch at Indianapolis last year will tell you they are very, very good. And, these backers of his can also point to his performance after he rejoined the Reds near the close of the season. It was he who hurled 12 innings of the game in which the Reds clinched their second consecutive National League pennant. He was credited with the victory, one of the three he gained during his month back in Cincinnati harness.

Johnny made five starts with the Reds during the month of September. He won three and lost one, hurled two complete games, which he won, and also received credit for the above mentioned pennant clincher, in which he worked 12 magnificent frames. As impressive as his effectiveness in those three winning games was the manner in which he went about his work. Apparently he had regained the confidence which left him during his unsuccessful periods in 1939 and the early part of 1940.

Confidence is the thing. Give him his 1938 feeling of assurance and there is no doubt but what Johnny would immediately return to the place in the baseball sun he vacated in 1939. Jewel Ens, who managed Johnny at Indianapolis, and who is now one of McKechnie's coaches, is sure that all Johnny needs to become, say, a 15 game winner, is to have the feeling that he can do it. He has as much stuff as he ever had, thinks Ens, and, as proof, he points to his fine work at Indianapolis. There, among other things, he established a new record for average strikeouts per nine inning game.

The way Ens puts it is very logical. "If Johnny can't do it, where are you going to look for pitchers?" asks Ens. "When you look at a pitching possibility, you study his fast ball, his curve, try and determine if he has a good heart, and then go into the matter of his habits. Johnny has everything, including perfect habits. A fast ball, a curve, or a good heart cannot be acquired. They're born in a fellow. Confidence can be acquired. The only thing that Johnny needs is something he can get. That's why I feel it's only a question of time until he finds himself again."

Cincinnati and Detroit, 1940 world series participants, will meet five times in pre-season exhibition games. They're scheduled at Tampa, Fla., on March 18, at Lakeland, Fla., on March 22, at Dayton, Ohio, on April 11, and at Cincinnati on April 12 and 13.

Probably the most colorful character on the Reds is Witt Guise, southpaw knuckle ball hurler, who hails from Magazine, Ark. Guise, a 31-year-old rookie, hadn't pitched a daylight game in years prior to the time he joined the Reds last summer. "Don't know how the sun will affect me," he said on reporting.

• • • •

Since breaking into professional baseball in 1935, Joe Beggs, relief expert of the Cincinnati Reds, has walked a total of only 269 men, an average of slightly less than 45 per season. This control is what helps make him so effective as a relief man.

• • • •

One thing in favor of Dutch Mele, rookie Cincinnati outfielder, is that he can play an acceptable game at first base. This versatility might help him stick with the champs.

• • • •

Eddie Joose, Redleg shortstop, is the greatest eater pound for pound, in the National League. He weighs only 162, but from the way he devours the groceries, you'd think he was a 200 pounder.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

JESUS CALLS TO PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Lord, teach us to pray.—Luke 11:1.

Imitations may be so clever as to cause us to marvel, but to the one who knows the real thing, they are "just imitations." Particularly is that true in the realm of the spiritual. Make-believe faith in God fools only the hypocrite and those who know as little as he does of real Christianity.

Prayer is undoubtedly the greatest privilege of the Christian, putting him and his life in touch with the omnipotence of God. But it must be real prayer, not just some formal exercise which masquerades under the name of prayer. We combine the two parables of our lesson to contrast prevailing prayer and powerless prayer.

I. Prevailing Prayer.

The prayer which really lays hold upon God and brings results must be the expression of a life of prayer. It is no occasional effort brought about by a great need or a deep sorrow. We must pray.

1. Without Ceasing (v. 1). Jesus had just been talking of the trying days which were to come (Luke 17:26-30). To stand fast for Christ in a day when almost all the influences are against such faith, a man needs real prayer or he will surely faint.

To pray constantly is not necessarily to be saying the words of prayer, but is the outreach of the life toward God, the setting of our minds on things above. That we can and may do at all times and in all places.

2. With Assurance (vv. 2-9). If an unjust judge will respond just to escape the constant plea of a widow, we may rest assured that God, who is just and looks upon His people in loving-kindness, will not fail to respond to their plea. He says, "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not" (Jer. 33:3).

3. In Humility (vv. 13, 14). We come to God, not to demand, but to humbly plead the blood of Jesus Christ. That was what the publican did. When he said, "Lord, be merciful," he used the word "propitiated," which refers to the mercy seat on which the blood was sprinkled as a propitiation for sin (see Exod. 25:17, 18, 21; Heb. 9:5; Lev. 16:5). Such a plea brought salvation to the repentant sinner.

II. Powerless Prayer.

We use the word prayer here in the broad sense, for strictly speaking there is no such thing as prayer without power. Men call it prayer, but it accomplishes nothing because it is offered

1. In Self-sufficiency (vv. 9, 11). Those who trust "in themselves" will naturally do what the Pharisee did; he "prayed with himself." "He had an intellectual conviction, but that does not make a contact with God. Hell is full of intellectual conviction. God? Oh, yes. But he was so occupied with himself he could not get away from himself" (Morgan).

2. With Boastful Pride (vv. 9, 11, 12). Despising others, the Pharisee boasted of his own fine character and good works. "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble" (James 4:6). It is proper that a man should live uprightly, but if it only makes him self-righteous it becomes a barrier between him and God (Luke 18:14).

3. For the Sake of Publicity (v. 11, cf. v. 13). While the publican hung his head and stood afar off to offer his prayer, the Pharisee apparently took a prominent place and spoke with a loud voice. Jesus described that kind of prayers in Matthew 6:5 as just putting on a publicity-"stunt." When men had seen them pray, the transaction was finished. They had not been in touch with God at all.

The result of the two prayers is so well described by Dr. J. Campbell Morgan that we quote his words:

"Two men at prayer. One, eloquently, in phrases circling round his own personality with which he was pre-eminently pleased. The other, hating his sin, and grasping out after the infinite and tender compassion of God to operate for him. . . . The man who justified himself remained unjustified. The man who sought the compassion of God went back to his house justified."

There Is Another Life

I cannot believe, and cannot be brought to believe, that the purpose of our creation is fulfilled by our short existence here. To me the existence of another world is a necessary supplement of this, to adjust its inequalities, and imbue it with moral significance.—Thurlow Weed.

Important Factors In Chick Management

1. Operate the brooder a sufficient length of time before the chicks are placed in it to be sure it is working properly.

2. Secure chicks from reliable sources. Hatcherymen or breeders who test the supply flocks and remove the reactors from them, should supply good livable chicks.

3. For best fall and winter production, start chicks of the general purpose breeds in March. Leghorns can be started about a month later.

4. Provide ample feed and water space. Allow at least one inch of feeder space per chick. A one-quart water jar for each 50 chicks should be provided.

5. Place the feed and water before the chicks when they are put in the brooder house. Keep a good supply of both before the chicks at all times.

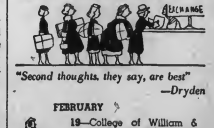
6. Use plenty of litter. Clean as often as necessary to keep the house dry. A damp floor is an unhealthy for chicks.

7. Destroy any chicks which appear unhealthy. Don't wait for them to die.

8. A sun porch is a necessary piece of equipment when the brooder house is located on ground used by poultry the previous two years.

4-H Club Work

According to report of Maurice Williams, Assistant Co. Agent



4-H Clubs have been organized in 11 schools in Kenton County. The schools having organized 4H Clubs for 1941 are Piner, Visalia, Simon Kenton, Independence, Forest Hills, Bromley, Crescent Springs, Dixie Heights, Elsmere, Locust Street and Lloyd. Two community club groups have been organized, one in Erlanger and the second in Lakeside, South Fort Mitchell.

The projects offered to club members this year are: Dairy calf, swine, poultry, beef calf, garden, tobacco, corn, tomato, rabbit and woodwork. Any boy or girl in Kenton County between the ages of 10 and 21 is eligible for 4-H Club work. Information concerning 4-H Club work may be obtained at the county agent's office.

Livestock Producers Study Outlook For 1941

Fifty-two livestock producers attended the Livestock Outlook meeting held at the Independence Court house at 7:30 p. m., Feb. 11. Mr. G. P. Summers, Marketing Specialist from the College of Agriculture, Lexington, explained the livestock outlook for 1941 by means of charts. E. A. Schurter from the Calf Department, and Gilbert Stevens from the Cattle Department of the Producers Cooperative Commission Association, Cincinnati, explained the services offered by the Association to livestock producers in the county. Mr. J. C. Bedinger from Walton, director for Northern Kentucky district, told the producers of the work of the Association and made announcement about the annual meeting of the Association at the Netherland Plaza Hotel Thursday, February 20. A large delegation of Kenton County livestock producers are expected to attend the meeting. Refund dividend checks were distributed at the close of the meeting.

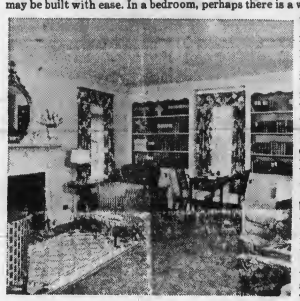
HOW TO BE YOUR OWN DECORATOR

By
Helen Koues
Director, Good Housekeeping Studio

A Place To Put Your Books



People who love books accumulate them very fast, and what to do with them becomes a definite problem. If you can afford a little building, or perhaps can do it yourself, consider placing book shelves with cupboards under them at the end of a room with a window between, as suggested in this photograph. Or, if the plan of your house puts a door in a central wall, then let the bookcases be on either side of the doorway, perhaps carrying the shelves over the top of the door. A single bookcase can be built for about $30.00, including labor, so you could save your pennies for it.

HELEN KOUES
Director of Good Housekeeping Studio

An attractive decorating note is to paint the backboard and sides, the color which is used in the draperies in the room or possibly one of the accent colors in the room. For instance, if you are fond of blue and there is blue in your draperies, paint the inside of the bookcases blue, having the outside painted to match the woodwork in the room. Metal strips can be bought to place at the sides so that the wood shelves may be made adjustable to suit the height of your books. Or, again, instead of the closed cupboards (which are a great convenience as they hold games, cards, as well as book files), this space may be left open to take large books which are often a problem as they are usually too wide to be placed flat on the shelves.

You will find there are many other places in the house where shelves may be built with ease. In a bedroom, perhaps there is a wall space between a window and the main wall of the room where you could place them. In fact, in any space where you have eight to ten inches for a shelf, which runs from above a radiator, or from the floor to the ceiling, you can make satisfactory bookcases. In bedrooms where there is an alcove, shelves may be built on either side of it.

Book shelves can be built economically on either side of a window.

In the bedroom of two sisters, twin beds were placed, not together, but against each side wall, with a window between them, where a table desk was set. As they each had books, a single shelf was built, running parallel with the length of the bed, some few feet above it. Also, instead of beginning right at the head of the bed, the shelf was placed two feet down and ran for four feet. As these shelves were on each side of the room, above the beds, they gave a symmetry to the room and gave the girls each a four foot shelf for their favorite books.

VALUE OF AN INDUSTRY

You may be surprised at what it means to a community to have an industry that employs 150 persons—

A plant investment of at least $100,000 . . . annual payroll of $200,000; support of 1,000 people; support of one dozen stores; a 10-room schoolhouse; $60,000 annually for transportation; a new market for the farm products from 8,000 acres of land; an annual expenditure in trade of at least $1,000,000; an increased taxable valuation of at least $1,000,000.

Multiply these benefits 100 times, and you have an idea of what Kentucky's brewing industry—which employs 15,000 persons—means to this state.

The purpose of the Kentucky Brewers & Beer Distributors Committee is to help preserve beer's benefits for Kentuckians, by cooperating with law enforcement authorities to keep beer retailing as wholesome as the beverage itself.

Layman's Day is to be observed in the Walton Methodist Church Sunday morning, Feb. 23, with a guest speaker bringing the message. We are expecting our District Lay Leader, Mr. Fred Brettschneider, of Covington, to be our speaker. We can not overemphasize the importance of all our people being present for this service. We are planning special music. Please let everyone make a special effort to be present.

Another feature of next week which is Layman's Week in our church, is Stewardship meeting at 2:00 p. m. at the Trinity Church in Covington. Dr. J. W. Workman of Chicago will be in charge. At 5:15 the Methodist Union of Northern Kentucky will sponsor a Layman's banquet at the same place. Judge Osso Stanley of the Court of Appeals of Kentucky will be the speaker. Dr. Workman will close the meeting with a talk and forum. This is a fine meeting for our laity. Let Walton be well represented.

Pairings Made For District Tournament

Monday evening of this week at the Walton-Verona High School, pairings were made for the coming 33rd District Basketball tournament, to be staged here on March 5, 6, 7 and 8.

Results of the drawings showed that the Hamilton Farmers and W.-V. Bearcats were in opposite brackets, and each drew a bye in the first round. Among the reserve teams, Burlington and Florence have byes in round one.

The program for the four nights is as follows:

Wednesday — 7 p. m., Hebron vs. Walton-Verona, and at 8 p. m. Hamilton vs. New Haven. These are both "B" team games. At 9 p. m. the first teams of Hebron and Burlington clash.

Thursday — 7 p. m., Burlington vs. winner Hebron-W.-V. game, and at 8 p .m. Florence vs. winner Hamilton-New Haven contest. Both are "B" contests. New Haven and Florence "A" teams will meet at 9 p. m.

Friday night there are to be two "A" games. Hamilton meets the Hebron-Burlington winner at 7:30, and at 8:30 Walton-Verona will play the winner of the New Haven-Florence tilt.

The finals will be played Saturday evening. The two remaining second teams will meet at 7:30 and the first stringers will clash at 8:30. All times given are Central Standard.

It looks like a great meet, so plan now to attend. Admission for adults will be 35c and 20c for school children.

MORE MATTRESSES AVAILABLE APPLICANTS

Farm and town families cooperating in the Kentucky Rural Mattress Program are eligible for more mattresses under a new ruling, according to H. R. Forkner County Agent. A family of three are now eligible to receive two mattresses and a family of five three mattresses. Materials for making comforters are also available.

One hundred sixty-six mattresses have been ordered under the program to date. Eligible persons who have not already applied should file their applications immediately.

490 FARMERS NOT SIGNED IN A. C. P.

Four hundred ninety out of 1,380 eligible farmers have not been signed up for benefits under the 1940-41 program to date, according to John E. Crigler, Secretary of the Association. April 15th has been set as the last date farmers may sign up to receive benefits under this year's Agricultural Conservation Program. June 30th is the closing date for earning soil building practices.

Farmers are beginning to order large quantities of agricultural limestone and phosphate in preparation for spring seeding. 964 tons of limestone and 738,000 lbs. of phosphate have been ordered to date. Present indications are there will be a shortage in April of both limestone and phosphate. Farmers expecting to use these important soil building fertilizers should file their orders at the county office now. Both limestone and phosphate are supplied as Grant of Aid with out cash outlay under the A. C. Program.

Founders Day Observed By Walton P.-T. A.

A very appropriate radio program and devotional was given by the pupils of Miss Scott last Friday at the regular meeting of the Walton P.-T. A.

The history of the founding of the P.-T. A., its purposes and projects, were given by Mrs. Lula Huey.

At the business meeting the following committee chairwomen were named to help the lunch room committee at the coming Basket Ball Tournament:

Pop corn—Mabel Maddox and Mrs. Coop.

Ice cream—Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Campbell.

Candy—Mrs. Huey.

Coca-Cola—Mrs. Mabel Webster.

Sandwiches — Mrs. Osborn and Mrs. Pruett.

At the close of the meeting tea was served by the Founders' Day committee, Miss Scott, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Maddox.

More parents need to attend these meetings.

Chairman, Mrs. C. Pruett

Owen Man Fatally Injured In Crash

Floyd Howell, 35, of Owen county, was fatally injured last Saturday morning when a truck and auto crashed head-on on U. S. Highway 25, just South of Walton.

According to reports, Howell sustained a fractured skull, leg fractures and body injuries. Walter Baker, 54, also of Owen county, a companion in the truck, was also injured, but not seriously. He suffered a jaw fracture and body injuries. After receiving first aid at the office of Dr. R. E. Ryle, Walton, both men were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, in the ambulance of J. L .Hamilton & Son.

The driver of the car, according to police, was William Penn, colored, of Cincinnati, who was uninjured. He was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

On Monday, Penn was arraigned in Kenton County Court, and a manslaughter charge against him was continued until March 1. His bond was set at $5,000.

The car was going South, the truck North, and both vehicles were completely demolished.

THE 1941 LIBRARY ESSAY CONTEST

The Library Extension Division and the Kentucky Citizens' Library League are again sponsoring an essay contest for students enrolled in grades 7-12 in Kentucky schools, private or public. The theme is "Why Kentucky Needs State and Federal Aid for Libraries." Contest dates are Feb. 24 to April 24, and over $200 in cash and book prizes will be awarded. Essays are not to contain more than 500 words.

For additional information write to Lena B. Nofcier, Library Extension Division, Frankfort, Ky.

A spring lamb show is planned in Allen county, where service clubs are launching a joint campaign for it.

WELFARE ASSOCIATION TO MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

The meeting of the welfare association was postponed from last Thursday to Friday, Feb. 28. This is a very important meeting and it is hoped that there will be a hundred per cent attendance and complete reports can be made. There are some other very important matters that need the attention of the entire group. Let us meet promptly at 7:00 p. m. in the office of Mr. John L. Vest. Please do not wait for further reminder.—Committee.

COLORED HOMEMAKERS ORGANIZED

The colored Homemakers Club of Walton, which was organized recently with the aid of Mrs. R. P. Hughes and Mrs. W. W. Rouse, members of the white organization, held its first meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 11, at the home of Mrs. Elmer Ross. The president, Mrs. Estill Sleet, conducted the meeting and Mrs. Geo. Crutchfield had charge of the program. Mrs. R. P. Hughes gave the lesson on "How to Make Mats."

In addition to Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Rouse, those present were Mrs. Estill Sleet, Miss Lola Sleet, Mrs. Robert Sleet, Miss Glenna Sleet, Miss Mattie P. Sleet, Miss Myrtle Baker, Mrs. Walter Sleet, Mrs. Herbert Baker, Mrs. Raymond Dunson, Mrs. Clint Riley, Mrs. Elsa Riley, Mrs. George Crutchfield, Mrs. Pearl Murray, Mrs. Earl Porterfield, Mrs. John Porterfield, Miss Martha Johnson, Mrs. Lucy Johnson, Mrs. James Riddell, Miss Anna Pearl Ross, Mrs. James Ingram, Mrs. Mattie Howlett, Mrs. Frank Lockett and Mrs. Ross. A delightful covered-dish luncheon was served.

EXTENSION ASSOCIATION MEET THURSDAY

The Boone County Extension Association committee will meet at Burlington to review the summary of community and commodity programs planned to date and to round out 1941 county agricultural improvement program plan of work, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The committee is composed of community program of work chairmen, officers of county farm organizations and other leading farmers who desire to cooperate in the meeting. This is the last of the program planning meetings for this year.

R. E. A. MEETING MARCH 11TH

The annual meeeting of the Owen County R. E. A. Association will be held at Owenton on Tuesday, March 11th, instead of March 4th, as previously announced, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Smoker Type Tobacco Recommended

Boone county farmers should plan to grow a smoker type of tobacco next year, acording to Russell Hunt, tobacco field agent, addressing farmers in a meeting at Burlington on last Tuesday, Feb. 18th. Smoker type of tobacco will continue to demand a better price and many growers are producing from 1,500 to 2,000 lbs. per acre .

Mr. Hunt recommended certain practices for 1941. They included:

(1) Variety — Experiment Station No. 16 or similar type of the smoker variety. Experiment Station No. 33 was recommended for river bottom land infected with Fusarium Wilt.

(2) Fertilizers — Use 8 to 12 tons of manure and 500 pounds of 20 per cent phosphate per acre and follow with 200 to 500 pounds of 4-8-12 complete fertilizer in the row.

(3) Plant Bed Treatment—Every bed should be treated with the Bluestone-lime treatment under all conditions. This treatment will control many of the plant bed and field diseases and is inexpensive.

(4) Topping — Top just before blooming time and then pull the top two suckers about two days before cutting. The tip leaves may be cut out if desired.

(5) Cover Crops — Vetch at the rate of 40 pounds of seed per acre, seeded early and with rye, wheat or barley, makes an excellent green manure crop to turn under when tobacco is to be put on the same land the second year.

Mr. Hunt advised farmers attending the meeting that best tobacco growers are producing more tobacco per acre and better quality is being secured with better tobacco growing practices.

Louvette Rogers, prominent tobacco grower in Belleview community, gave a splendid report on four Fusarium Wilt Resisistant varieties that he had used. Experiment Station No. 33 is the best variety he has grown to date, so he reported.

Walton Man In Selective Service Call

The following named have been selected for induction into the Army by the Local Draft Board. They are James Wisdom, of Walton; John Harold Cook, of Petersburg, and Stuart Wilson Ryle, of Burlington, Route 2. These men will report to the Local Board at Burlington, at 8 a. m., Feb. 28, and will then be sent to the induction station of the U. S. Army at Ft. Thomas.

Arthur Lawrence Utz, (colored) Burlington, Route 2, was inducted on Feb. 18. He is the only colored man to be taken from Boone county up to this time.

There has been a call for two white men to go on March 4, and unless there is a volunteer in the next few days, Robert Lowell Butler of Union, and Aubrey Everett Knox of Florence, will be taken.

The Local Board also announces that any man who has become 21 years of age since Registration Day, Oct. 16, may volunteer for Selectiv Service with the Board. He may be registered by the Local Board only if he wishes to volunteer. Also, any man between 18 and 21 years of age may register with the Local Board and volunteer for Selective Service with the consent of his parents.

E. C. Webster, aged 55 years, died at his home near Elliston, Ky., Feb. 19, at 11:30 p. m. He was the son of the late B. and Jennie Webster.

Mr. Webster is survived by his wife, eight children and several brothers.

Funeral services were held at Pleasant View Baptist church on Friday, Feb. 21, conducted by Rev. J. O. Carter, of Williamstown. Burial in the church cemetery, with Coates & Stewart in charge of arrangements .

SHOULD INCREASE ALFALFA ACREAGE

The alfalfa acreage should be increased by 2,750 acres in 1941, according to the recommendations of farmers attending the county soils and crops meeting at Burlington on last Tuesday. This would represent an increase of over 100 per cent of the acreages seeded in 1940, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

The county soils and crops improvement program recommended at the meeting included in addition to alfalfa acreage increases use of Balbo Rye, by far the best variety of rye grown to date; greater attention to conservation and utilization of barnyard manure and crop residues; 23 potash demonstrations; 23 grass variety demonstrations; 17 rye grass demonstrations; use 1,200,000 pounds of phosphate and 13,000 tons of agricultural limestone this year.

Wm. Johnstone ,field agent from the College, and John Worthington, prominent farmer of Verona community, were principal speakers on the program. The countywide soils committee elected for this year were: Mark Cook ,Hugh Stephens, S. B. Sleet and William Hill.

Grade Children Present 'Sleeping Beauty'

"Sleeping Beauty," a play centered around the old Fairy tale, will be presented by the first, second and third grades of the Walton School at the Walton Gym Thursday, Feb. 27, at 7:30 p. m. There will be 70 children in the cast. Costumes, scenery, lines, songs, and stage properties have been prepared by the children. The children have selected most of the songs and characters. There will be special music between acts by Mrs. Clifford Powers.

Come out for an evening and enjoy a trip to the land of enchantment. We promise an evening of entertainment.

Some of the main characters are:

King and Queen—Carl Richard Flynn and Virginia Richards.

Princess Rosamund — Betty Northcutt.

Prince Charming — Tommy Johnson.

Queen of Fairies— Carole DeMoisey.

Wicked Fairy — Ada Harvey.

Jack and Jill— Buddy Grubbs and Patty Johnson.

Mother Goose characters played by other children of the first, second and third grades.

Mrs. Olive Johnson is the accompanist.

Come out and see them perform. Admission five and ten cents.

The play is being directed by Nannie Lee Sickmon and Lucy Allphin.

Loses of young lambs have been cut in half in Hancock county by proper feeding methods.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK LIVESTOCK MEN

Farmers attending the Market Outlook Meeting at Burlington on Wednesday, Feb. 19th, heard G. P. Summer report the livestock price outlook is bright for 1941 and probably for the next year or two to come. Prices of beef cattle, dairy products, sheep, wool, hogs and poultry look much better for this year and especially in reference to the probability that there will be little change in the price of feeds.

Seventy-five farmers attending the meeting heard Mr. Summers state that regardless of the outcome of the war the proposed National Defense expenditure planned for the next three years should have a favorable effect on farm prices especially livestock prices.

Representatives of the Cincinnati Cooperative Commission Association attended the meeting. They recommended methods of preparing and shipping livestock to the Market to receive most favorable prices.

Bearcats End Season With Pair of Wins

The Walton-Verona Bearcats ended their 1940-41 basketball schedule by drubbing the Florence Knights 54 to 32 Tuesday evening on their home hardwood. For the first sixteen minutes of play it was anybody's ball game. Florence led 13-11 at the end of the first quarter and W.-V. was on top 24-23 at the intermission. But in the last half the Knights slowed down and the Cats "went to town." They were leading 39 to 30 at the end of the third period.

Scoring was pretty well distributed among the winners. Pennington was high with 12 and Groger and Welsh were next with 10 points each. "Big Boy" Sullivan was tops for the losers, hanging up 14 tallies, and Shotwell did well, scoring 10 points.

The Bearcats, in their final appearance prior to the district tournament, showed improved pass work and played a pretty fair game, but they continue to miss too many bunny shots —and that's bad. For the season, the Cats stand at 17 wins and 8 losses. Not bad, at that.

In the opener, the Walton reserves were easy winners over the Florence seconds, the score being 21 to 10 in favor of the locals. Groger and Holder divided 16 points for the winners.

Last Friday night, on the home floor, the Bearcats administered their second set-back of the season to the Simon Kenton Pioneers. The score was 37 to 23. This game was also pretty tight during the first half. It was tied at 7-7 at the close of the first period, but W.-V. took the advantage in the second frame, never to be headed. They were in front 18-11 at the half. The Pioneers were held to one point in the third quarter, the count, at this time, being 27-12 in honor of the Cats.

Welsh, with 9 points, was high scorer for the winners, and John Dudley Breeden was tops for the Pioneers with 7.

Led by Mayhugh, who scored 6 points, the Walton second stringers had little trouble downing the visiting reserve team 24 to 8.

"It's all over but the shouting" for the Cats and their understudies until the "big doings" here March 5, 6, 7 and 8. Coach Shields will probably give the boys "the works" this coming week, getting them in top shape for the tournament. So until then "keep a lip upper stiff, and lead with your chin."

WALTONIAN 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Waltonian 4-H Club held its first meeting of the year on Monday, February 24th, with Mr. Drake ,Mrs. Walter W. King and forty boys and girls present.

New officers were elected for the year of 1941, as follows: President, Mildred C. King; vice president, Jean C. Pennington; secretary and treasurer, Mary Louise McCubbin; reporter, Mary Louise McCubbin; cheer leader, Jack Farris; song leader, Wanda Joyce Dixon; sergeant-at-arms, J. B. McCubbin, and community club leader, Mrs. Walter W. King. No project leaders or captains were elected as time was limited.

We had a 100 per cent club last year and hope that we have as much success this year, which will be gained by our club if all the members will work hard so, come on boys and girls, we're out to win. —Club Reporter, Mary Louise McCubbin.

Economic Highlights

In future years, historians will record the swift changes that took place in the temper and attitude of the American people and their leaders during 1940 and 1941. Looking back now on the months that followed the outbreak of World War II, it seems as if we lived then in another world. The majority of the people wanted neutrality — and they wanted no part of Europe's newest mess. They wanted to avoid the risk of war at all costs. And the statesmen who represented them felt the same way.

Today the polls show that we still want to keep out of war — but that a considerable majority, despite that, favor helping England to the fullest extent even if it involves the risk of our being drawn into war. No one talks of neutrality— it is as dead as Moses. The cash and carry policy has been virtually forgotten — it is perfectly clear that every financial resource will be used to help Britain no less than ourselves. The American people, in short, are violently partisan, and the American nation is definitely and irretrievably involved in the war.

What has caused this change? It took us almost three years to become really anti-German in the last war—it took us less than a year this time. Better communication, both verbal and visual, has been the factor. So has the amazing courage of the British people —the Americans like and respond to any display of bravery against odds. Most important, in all probability, has been the fast-growing feeling that our destiny and Britain's are intermixed and inseparable, and that if Britain falls we will be in grave danger.

There are those who stoutly belie this doctrine, but they are much in the minority. The President obviously thinks that Britain is fighting for us as well as for herself. So do most members of Congress. So do the bulk of the leading commentators. So does a long list of principal daily newspapers. Thatis why opposition to the lend-lease bill has made so little progress. There just isn't enough support behind it.

Last chance of defeating or seriously modifying the bill— and, at best ,it was an extremely frail chance—died when Wendell Willkie took the stand. Mr. Willkie received 22,000,000 American votes last November, only 4,000,000 less than the President. His trip to England in which he crammed months of visiting, talking and investigating, into a few days and nights, was a dramatic pilgrimage. He made a fine impression abroad. While he has lost some of his past supporters, he has gained new friends and followers. So when Willkie said he was 100 per cent in favor of the bill, with certain modifications, and went on farther than the President in some respects (by suggesting that we give Britain outright destroyers and Army bombers) the die was cast.

The two men who were given the votes of close to 50,000,000 Americans in their race for the presidency, and who stand out head and shoulders above any other national figures of this day, believe that England's fate and our fate cannot be separated. There is no doubt of their sincerity—even as there is no doubt of the sincerity of those who still hold to a different and opposed point of view. And there is no doubt that this country is committed to the hilt to the policy for which Roosevelt and Willkie stand.

Today milions of Americans hate Hitler and what he represents with an almost personal hatred. For Musolini they have contempt and laughter. These millions of Americans feel that the dictators are their enemies, just as they are England's enemies. The old crimes and mistakes of Imperial England have been forgotten. And in the opinion of many a thoughtful student, we ourselves are about to embark, from necessity, on an unprecedented imperial policy of our own.

—o—

It is forecast that the Treasury will not offer any new tax proposals until late Spring. By then, it should have a fairly good idea of how much the lend-lease bill, plus our own rearmament, is going to cost, and how much of the total it is advisable to pay for as we go.

Higher direct and indirect taxes are, of course, considered inevitable in informed circles. That means further upping of the income tax rate in all brackets, and perhaps further lowering of exemptions. It also may mean new taxes on commodities, to be collected at the source rather than from the consumer.

The sales tax has many supporters. So far, this tax has been opposed by the Administration, but some feel that it will eventually be accepted as a matter of necessity. State sales taxes have proven tremendous and dependable revenue producers. A national sales tax should go a long way toward meeting the arms bill.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Times, things and people change —even in Washington.

Only a few months ago, American industry had to exert every effort to prove it wasn't a war monger, seeking war profits. It did disprove those false accusations even to the point of endorsing, through its spokesman, the National Association of Manufacturers, an excess profits tax to prevent war profiteering.

Since then, France has fallen. Britain faces a critical battle for existence. Washington emphasis has shifted. Nowadays, some of the former industry haters will almost raise the canopy and roll out the velvet carpet if an industrialist who can make cannon barrels shows up in Washington.

But the industrialists are realists. Many of them went through the World War and are conscious of the attempts that followed to pin responsibility for that upon them. Now, every confidential and public statement shows that with only rare exceptions they are building a record which will stand any scrutiny.

For instance, there is loose talk about how contracts have been granted to only a few big companies. That, in general, is true. But the reason given is that the Army and Navy want defense material in a hurry so they first went to the big companies which have the facilities and workers to turn it out in a hurry.

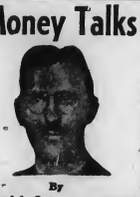
Now, reports in defense offices show, the big companies are subcontracting volumes of work to smaller concerns. No less an authority than the office of the Assistant Secretary of War reports that 50 per cent of all contracts for munitions have been sublet.

There also are reports about how many concerns are making money out of defense. Again, the Assitant Secretary of War says that the companies which are turning out munitions are averaging about a 4 per cent profit. They could do much better than that by producing for the public market, but instead they are taking smaller profits and turning out goods for the government.

They are stil having their problems, too. One big manufacturer happens to be operating in a state which has a law forbidding discrimination in wages between men and women for any reason whatever.

That manufacturer is running his plant 24 hours a day. He does not like to put women on night work, so he has all men on the "graveyard" shift .He would like to pay night workers a little more because they have to live on a topsy-turvy schedule. But if he gives the night workers more money, then he has to pay the women the same thing, because the state law compels him to..so there is no premium for night work.

Speaking of change, the official Washington attitude toward the American Youth Congress is an excellent sample. A year ago, Earl Browder was bragging about how the AYC is a 'transmission belt" for Communistic doctrines,' Aubrey Williams of the National Youth Administration was addressing the AYC convention, and Mrs. Roosevelt was having as overnight White House guests and acompanying to Capitol Hill AYC witnesses who were being questioned about "un-Americanism" by the Dies committee.



This year, while the House was extending the Dies committee, Williams boycotted the AYC convention and Mrs. Roosevelt, instead of attending the convention, found other things to do.

There's another interesting change, too. Time was, not so long ago, when Congressmen were accused of taking too many "junkets"—free trips to interesting places at government expenses.

Now it develops that at the heighto[f] the "season," last winter, when vacationers were deserting the snowy north for the warm south, 700 government employees went to Florida at government expense.

Incidentally, government employees used to be among the most highly incensed critics of the Congressional 'junkets."

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Census figures always provide valuable data well worth considering. The 1940 census reports a new trend in our population, which, if continued, cannot bring joy to our business men!

From the very beginning our business men have depended upon a steadily increasing population to provide them with new customers. In the past our birth rate has far exceeded our death rate, so that we had a rapidly expanding population and market. But some time during the past decade a shift occurred in our birth and death rate which, if continued will soon result in a declining instead of an increasing population.

The 1940 census indicates that under the current birth and death rates our population will fail to maintain its numbers by 4 per cent per generation. This means that for every 100 persons in any generation there would be only 96 in the next generation.

This trend indicates a definite change from the 1930 figures. If the 1930 birth and death rate had continued, each generation would have reproduced itself by more than 11 per cent. Thus, for each 100 persons in this generation there would be 111 in the next.

But somewhere in the 1930 decade the trend changed. If the birth rate does not climb to the old figure, American business men must learn to get along without an ever expanding group of customers. American prosperity, in the past, has been built upon expanding frontiers and an expanding population. The present trend may be bad news for business. It may be that our economic life will now settle down to the present level and stay there.

At least, it is something to think about.

The Old-Fashioned Kitchen

It has been a long time since I was entertained in an old-fashioned kitchen . I wish I had pictures of some dozen that I have known in many parts of the state, kitchens that were models of their kind. Probably few of the kind I shall tell you about are to be found today, but they were once numerous.

The kitchen was not merely a kitchen in those days. There was a large open fireplace, with the flue from the step-stove running into the chimney. Many of the older cook vessels from the day when cooking on the fire was the only way to prepare meals were likely to be in evidence. The kitchen was not small but combined for winter use, at least, the dining room and the kitchen. Then it was the place to do the washing in the cold weather, when it was a bit too cold outside. The wide fireplace held the wash kettle, that useful vessel that might be the center of soap-making or of pumpkin cooking or of lard rendering, as well as its more common use in washing clothes. There was likely to be in every kitchen a tripod, on which small vessels could be set to heat, with coals banked beneath them. The oven, in which sweet potatoes could be baked, was probably the last vessel of this sort to be laid aside. Sometimes I saw a pipkin, a small, long-handled saucepan, I suppose one would call it. In it you could heat a small quantity of water quickly; naturally the pipkin was of iron, strong and long-lasting. So far as that is concerned, all or nearly all of the older cook vessels were of the same sturdy material.

The other objects to be seen in an old-fashioned kitchen were quite as distinctive as the cooking vessels and the big iron kettle. Hanging by the side of the jamb would be strings of peppers, enough, it seemed to me, to season all the sausage or heart or liver in the whole country. Such strings were for decorations quite as much as for use, I suspect. There were strings of onions with their dried tops plaited together. Dried rings of pumpkin appeared in many kitchens. Some times there were pieces of meat, away over in the corner beyond the intense heat of the fireplace and stove. I have seen strings of twists of tobacco, also hung up to dry in the kitchen. We tied ears of popcorn together very deftly and made ladders of them for the kitchen. Since the kitchen was a subsidiary of the ample smokehouse, there might be jars of pickles, sauerkraut and other household necessities, as well as canned and preserved fruits and vegetables. As you sat in a well-stocked kitchen, you could see at a glance that the family were not facing starvation for the winter.

I loved to sit in such a kitchen and watch grow into a meal some of the old-fashioned foods that such kitchens produced. There might be pork and turnips, for instance, or hog-s jowl and turnip greens, if it were not too late in the winter to kill the greens down. There would be smoked sausage, cut down from the beams or rafters, here or in the smokehouse. Plain hoecake or corn dodgers just went with these other foods, as did fried pies. Some good sorghum molasses with plenty of butter and hot biscuits, might precede in time the fried pies. None of us in those days had ever hard of vitamins; we just ate as long as we could hold another bite, not a bad thing to do when probably the rest of the day would be spent in the raw, cold air of the winter woods.

There may not have been much style about the old kitchen, but it was a heart-satisfying experience to be in one and feel that here the life of the family had its headquarters. In fact, in many a home this room of many uses was also the winter sitting room; you could spend your entire day within its walls, leaving only for the bedrooms, upstairs or down, when the day was over.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Many hearts are made sorrowful in the recent passing of Mrs. Martha Farmer, who died as a result of burns sustained when her clothing caught on fire about a week ago. Mrs. Farmer was 84 years old, and had been a church member for 62 years. She was also a member of the W. M. U. and Sunday School and was a fine Christian character and one worthy of al l to follow after. Our community has lost one of its best righteous citizens. Her husband, Robert Farmer, preceded her in death nine years ago. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. James Cammack, and M r. Cammack; one daughter-in-law, Mrs. Laura Farmer; a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, four sisters and one brother besides many other relatives and friends, who deeply mourn her death. She expressed her desire to go on and meet her loved ones who had gone on before and be with her Savior in that far brighter city. Funeral services were held at the Baptist Church Saturday, Feb. 15, by her pastor, Rev. G. C. Mullins, assisted by Rev. J. S. Ransdell, with burial in the I. O. O. F. cemetery with Harry J. Eckler in charge.

For Easier and Better Washing

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

"Blue Monday" should have no place in the modern household. With good management, and the help of modern laundry appliances, you can accumulate clean clothes almost as easily as soiled ones. The wise housekeeper washes clothes several times a week. Try this plan—at least for two or three weeks—and see how well it works. Several small washes, rather than one big wash are easier on the laundress, and easier on the hot-water supply, too. Plenty of hot water—a clean tubful for each load and each rinse—is one of the big secrets of clean clothes. Here is a convenient way to divide the weekly wash. On Thursday and Friday launder sheets, bath towels, knitted underwear, and anything else that requires little or no ironing, so that all these things can be put away clean before the week is over. Do the rest of the wash on Monday or Tuesday. Clothes Dry Well Indoors. It is fun to hang clothes outdoors in the sun, and the tradition that it results in sweet-smelling clothes is pretty strong. But it isn't fun in midwinter when your hands are freezing and the clothes stick to the line. They won't dry well anyway! On cold stormy days a heated, indoor drier is a blessing. If you don't have one, try to find some place —a corner of your basement or even a play or recreation room—where you can hang clotheslines conveniently. Actually if clothes are properly washed and thoroughly rinsed they will be as white as when hung outdoors. However, the wind's billowing the clothes does help to take out wrinkles, so shake your wash well when you resort to indoor drying.

KATHARINE FISHER

Washable Colors Are A Blessing. Laundering becomes a problem when you must separate this piece or that because "it runs in the wash." Insist upon colored materials that are washable, so you can wash white and colored clothes together. However, there's something you may not have realized about washable colors—you cannot expect them to hang in the sun day after day and not have them lose some of their brightness. Given proper care, sports sweaters and shirts with colored stripes will go through an entire season bright and gay; but they may become a sorry sight if allowed to fade in the sun.

When Washing Woolens. Wool hose and other woolen garments must be washed by hand to avoid felting and shrinking, and they should be dried on wooden forms to insure proper size.

Soft, Fluffy Bath Towels. If you use a washing machine it is easy to launder a load of bath towels. But getting them soft and fluffy sometimes is a problem. We have found the only way to accomplish this is to shake the towels vigorously before hanging them on the line. It is easier if two people shake. Here's a place where young daughter can help you. Wash towels in rich, hot suds (not hotter than the hands can stand) and then rinse until the water is clear. Rinsing water should be about the same temperature as the suds. If towels become gray, a good bleaching will restore the background's whiteness and even brighten colors, if they are color resistant to washing. Use an approved bottled bleach and follow carefully the directions on the bottle.

Keeping Lingerie Lovely. To launder underwear, squeeze in lukewarm suds until clean, and then rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water. Tint your undergarments now and then to brighten up faded colors. Knitted garments need special attention when hung to dry. Don't hang them over the line, as they may stretch at the fold and dry out of shape. Place slips and nightgowns on clothes hangers that have a smooth nonrusting finish. Panties won't bulge at the sides if hung with clipon clothespins. Knit underwear doesn't need ironing. Wash lingerie, other than knitted, as described; press out moisture in clean bath towels; and iron with a warm iron.

Dollars & Sense!

Turn off the faucet of the liquor traffic and a net financial total of $4.500,000,000 will be immediately available for worthwhile business—and for defense financing.

This summation of a national "drink bill" survey was released recently by Mrs. Ida B. Wise-Smith, president of National W.C.T.U., who added: "Diametrically opposite to money expended for liquor, every dollar invested in legitimate industry would add to the permanent wealth of the nation."

Mrs. Smith

The defense program now in progress "will require the most stupendous sum of money ever appropriated by the Congress," Mrs. Smith declared. "The resources of this country will be strained as never before and generations yet to come will bear the burden of taxation. Already families feel the restrictions which will multiply as time passes.

"Is it not sensible to survey the ways in which some of the funds of this nation are wasted?"

"While the government debt and public relief expenditures were mounting the relegalized liquor traffic took out of the people's pockets $20,165,850,000 at a conservative estimate, based on the 12 billion gallons of liquor sold (figures 1933 to mid-1940).

"But that is only one cost. Crime accidents, disease, loss of earning power caused by liquor since repeal estimated at about $18,850,000,000. The direct and indirect cost of liquor in this most trying financial situation in our history has been $39,-015,850,000.

"The drink bill of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1940, was approximately $3,350,000,000. If this amount could have been used for wholesome and helpful commodities and activities, the income of the industries indicated could have been enlarged and expanded—in the following fashion:

MILK, 10 million more quarts daily
BREAD, 10 million more loaves daily
SOFT DRINKS, 50 million more bottles weekly
MEAT, 5 million more $1 orders weekly
MOVIES, 20 million more attendance weekly
CHURCH support, 10 million families 75c a month more
SUITS and dresses, 10 million more suits, 20 million more dresses
SHOES, 20 million more pairs
HATS, 15 million more
AUTOS, used, 230,000 more
BOOKS, 50 million more
HOUSEHOLD appliances, 10 million homes could invest $25 more each
DRY GOODS, jewelry, perfumes, etc., $300,000,000 additional MUSIC, additional expenditures of $50,-000,000
EDUCATIONAL aid, 3 million youth $100 more each.
HOLIDAYS, 10 million more family outings at $25 each.
TOTAL, estimated, $3,350,000,000."

Gable, Hollywood's He-man Shuns Society for Outdoors

HOLLYWOOD'S ace he-man, Clark Gable is in real life, very much like the roles he portrays on the screen. His favorite past-time, when he's away from the barnlike sound stages and blazing lights of the movies, is admittedly "roughing it."

"I get my fun out of my horses and dogs," he writes in the March issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine, "out of hunting and fishing and camping. My job keeps me pretty much indoors. No complaints you understand, I like acting. But in my spare time I get a great kick out of life for I have discovered the outdoors. With so many things to do there, I don't see how anybody can be bored."

When Mrs. Gable, Carole Lombard to all screen goers, first went on a hunting trip with him, he bought her small-sized man's clothes since he couldn't find any hunting garb for women. They were hot and heavy, but she had so much fun discovering the outdoors that she didn't mind them at all.

Gable divided his honeymoon into two parts, one for a hunting trip, and the other for a trip to New York. But when the time came for them to come to New York, Mrs. G. chirped meekly, "Let's not go to New York, we can have more fun camping."

Once, on a trip to southern Utah to lasso cougar, Gable's guide introduced him to his aging father. "Dad," the guide said, "this is Clark Gable. He's a motion picture star."

"Dad" eyed Gable up and down. "Howdy" he said. Then to the guide: "Jack, what in tarnation's a motion picture."

Fortunetelling Reveals Basic Fear of Life

Do you believe in astrology? Do you believe that a consultation with an astrologer will help you plan the future, avoid pitfalls that lie ahead?

If you are sincere in your beliefs, the article which Muriel Hasbrouck, an ex-fortuneteller, has written for the March issue of Cosmopolitan will come as a sudden shock. "For my fortunetelling years," Miss Hasbrouck writes, "I harbor no regrets; the experience was amazing. But out of it all emerges just one question: What shall it profit the prophet or anybody else? The answer is—nothing. There is no percentage in fortunetelling either for victim or for practitioner."

Miss Hasbrouck was drawn into the profession because first of all she needed money. Secondly because she knew her astrology mechanics thoroughly, and because she came from a Scottish family gifted with "the sight." Evangeline Adams, the greatest exponent of the trade had taught her the practical side of her work. Her motives were sincere when she started. She says she honestly believed she could be of help to people in trouble. "But," she adds quickly, "I have long since learned that is not so."

Why do people go to fortunetellers? Some do it for fun, but most go because they need help and have been unable to get it through orthodox channels. "Every client who came to me," Miss Hasbrouck confesses, "was afraid. The ordinary fears, illness, accident, even death rarely showed up. Fear of poverty and fear of loneliness always headed the list. Actually more people are afraid of these two things than anything else in life." Generally speaking, all Miss Hasbrouck's clients were afraid of life, and they hoped to find in her words, one ray of light for the future that could shake their basic fear even for an hour.

After some years at her work Miss Hasbrouck found it discouraging to find that a client practically never took a warning prediction seriously enough to do anything about it. People only believe what they want to believe.

Mrs. Hasbrouck finally gave up astrology when she found her friends drawing away from her. They regarded her as something of a circus animal. She was invited to parties, but only because she would be called on to entertain the guests. Furthermore, she felt mentally sick. She searched her records and could not find one client who had received any practical benefit from her fortunetelling.

In conclusion Miss Hasbrouck has this to say of her former profession. "Just as fortunetelling is against the laws of the land, so predicting of the future is in some intangible way against the law of life itself. It is destructive to character, ethics, and mental health for both the fortuneteller and the subject."

EDITORS' CHOICE

ACCORDING to survey, there are more radios than telephones in America's homes. Of the millions of listeners, none is as diligent as the radio editor. As the result of querying these in a nationwide United States and Canada poll, the New York World-Telegram gleaned the popularity ratings of the stars. Kate Smith (1) was voted the Favorite Popular Singer by a comfortable margin; Jack Benny (2), a double winner, was rated the Favorite Comedian; his show, the Favorite Program. In the announcer classification (3) Don Wilson (right) was winner with Harry von Zell runner-up. Dinah Shore, (4) shown with her boss, Eddie Cantor, was voted the Outstanding New Star of the year, second only to Kate Smith among the popular singers; (5) Helen Hayes' dramas, though comparatively new to the airwaves, won second place among all the dramatic productions.

NICHOLSON

Here's a Quiz For the Family

TO judge by the immense popularity of quiz programs on the radio and in newspapers and magazines, America is sharpening her wits. Cosmopolitan Magazine has started, in the March issue, a new type of quiz—one for the whole family. Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, all can join in. Here are some typical questions:

FATHER

1. Why isn't Thomas Edison in Who's Who in America?
2. Which of these has the fewest cylinders? Ford. Chevrolet. Plymouth. Mercedes-Benz?
3. What is the bulldog edition of a newspaper?

MOTHER

1. How should you eat a club sandwich?
2. Does thunder cause milk to sour?
3. The official name of the spotted "Coach Dog" is: Samoyed. Poodle. Airedale. Dalmation?

BROTHER

1. How long was the Greek Marathon race?
2. When was radio broadcasting begun?
3. What were the first words heard over the telephone?

SISTER

1. Who gave Deanna Durbin her first opportunity for stardom?
2. What swing musician can never get away from the doghouse?
3. The fashion for bobbed hair was supposed to have been started by what well-known woman?

ANSWERS

Father. 1) Who's who in America lists only living persons. 2) Mercedes-Benz. 3) The edition that goes on the street first.

Mother. 1) Cut or break it first, then eat with fork according to best authorities. 2) No. Warm and moist temperature sour milk and the air is generally warm and moist immediately preceding a thunder-shower. 3) Dalmatian.

Brother. 1) About twenty-four miles. 2) November 2, 1920. 3) "Mr. Watson come here I want you." Spoken by Alexander Graham Bell.

Sister. 1) Eddie Cantor had her on his radio honr. 2) The bass fiddler. 3) Irene Castle.

Paul Litchfield — Rubber Pioneer

TO have Paul Litchfield tell it himself, he owes his livlihood to Christopher Columbus.

Though a little known fact, it was the great adventurer who discovered rubber on his famed voyage of 1492, and for this, Mr. Litchfield, chairman of the board and formerly president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, is humbly thankful. In the rubber industry Litchfield is a character of immense proportions and his exploits make exciting material for Percy Waxman's profile of him in the March issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Schooled at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Litchfield studied 28 industries there, and disliked only one of them—rubber. The smell of it made him sick. But when he went looking for a job the only one he could find was in a rubber factory with a weekly salary of $9 and a schedule demanding 69 hours' work. But his technical training stood him in a position of good advantage, and at the tender age of twenty-one he was made assistant factory superintendent.

The scorn which he received from older men working under him created an indelible impression on his mind, and ever since he has worked to see that the youthful point of view is sympathetically heard. He has fostered the Boy Scouts of America and been duly honored by them. In the Goodyear Company today is a group of important executives who began as very young men in humble capacities under Mr. Litchfield's guidance.

By 1905, Waxman reports in his article, automobiles were increasing in number, and Litchfield, who had made the first Goodyear tire, realized that the development of tires had not kept pace with the cars themselves. He reasoned that the automobile would never achieve universal popularity until the tires could stand up under the heavy grind. While delving into the problem he thought suddenly that the ideal tire should be built not to resist road shocks but to absorb them. Thus followed the Cord and Supertwist tires of today.

According to Waxman, Litchfield also developed the pneumatic tire for heavy trucks to replace solid tires, permitting them to increase their speed from a mere ten or fifteen miles an hour to thirty or forty. Thus was opened up a new era of freight transportation. Though the idea was first scoffed at, Litchfield had been true to his pioneer ancestry and had blazed a new trail.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. HAWK IN THE WIND

Copyright, 1939, by D. Appleton-Century Co., Inc. WNU SERVICE

CHAPTER XVII—Withers finally plays his trump card and presents himself with a constable and lawyer to force Virgie to hand over Tom Pruitt's stock in the mill. Virgie learns from Marian that Tom has already registered the stock in Marian's name and that Withers tricked him into signing the other papers. She tells this to the officials and refuses to give up the stock certificates. Withers leaves the mill. News comes that Tom has escaped from jail and it is later learned that he has shot and killed Wallace Withers. Tom, himself, is accidentally killed in a fall from a mountain cliff. Branford and Marian tell Virgie that they have stopped fighting and are really in love. They promise to help her in managing the affairs of the mill.

"Mr. Payne," the lawyer introduced the newcomers, "and Mr. Hooper. And this officer, I suppose, you know?"

The shambling constable, looking awkward and on fire with curiosity jerked at his hat and said, "Howdy, Mis' Morgan."

"Hello, Ed," greeted Virgie. "You travel in poor company."

"This here is somethin' I got to do," fumbled Ed. "I ain't so set on it—but you know how things is—"

"Go ahead," ordered Virgie, curtly.

Ed rummaged out his paper. Wallace Withers pulled out his heavy old watch and ran his thumb over the crystal, thudded it back again. Lucy's eyes were big and anxious. Only Marian stood calm, smiling a one-sided smile.

"I got an order here," began Ed, "for some stock—belongs to Tom Pruitt—"

"Go on and serve the paper," snapped Withers, "I got to get home. It's most time to milk."

"Don't bother, Ed," Virgie said, "I know what's in that paper. It won't do you any good to read it to me. These gentlemen—and their attorney—are very astute. They know exactly what they are doing. You investigated the ownership of this stock, I suppose, gentlemen?"

"Certainly!" snapped the man Payne.

"You're just stalling, Virgie—and it won't do you a bit of good."

"I'm not trying to do myself any good, Wallace. I'm doing you good. You got that order by fraud—and I can prove it. That might not sound so well in court—"

"We got it square—Pruitt knew what he was doing. He knew he was signing away his stock—he had to save himself."

"Sounds funny." Virgie's voice drawled. "I've known Tom a long time. He was a shrewd old mountain man. He knew what he was doing most of the time—except when he lost his head because he was being robbed. It's hard to believe he'd sign an order to deliver that stock to you—yesterday, that was?—when he had already transferred it—a week ago!"

"I don't believe it!" barked Withers.

"The transfer is recorded. You can see the record at the courthouse. That will be about all today, gentlemen—" Virgie drew herself up superbly.

"No—not quite all," said a quiet voice from the door.

Branford Wills stood there, lean and calm and tall, a folded paper in his hand.

"Mr. Payne, I assume?" he said. "And Mr. Hooper? I have just come from Hazel Fork, gentlemen—"

The lawyer interrupted. "This is another matter, sir. We do not know you."

"I am employed by Mrs. Morgan. My name is Wills—formerly with the National Park Commission. I have been investigating the area on Hazel Fork—upon which I understand you gentlemen, all of you, intend beginning some extensive operations in lumber and pulp wood?"

"What's your business?" demanded Withers. "If you've been interferin' up there, Virgie Morgan—"

"Mrs. Morgan has not been interfering," Wills said. "Mrs. Morgan knows nothing about this. I happen to be a government cartographer, formerly, as I have said, with the Park Commission. I made the road maps for that area. There has been, evidently, some confusion and delay in surveys and condemnation suits—owing to the confused condition of the title to the land—a condition you gentlemen were very quick to take advantage of, but—I would not advise you to begin timbering operations on that land, gentlemen—now or ever!"

"You're very smart, young fellow," snapped the man Hooper, "but I happen to have a court order that allows me to timber that area to satisfy my claims and those of my associates. Do you think I'd be fool enough to invest money in a proposition like that if I didn't know what I was doing?"

"Unfortunately," Wills smiled a slow, dry smile, "I do not know what sort of a fool you are, Mr. Hooper, I am merely advising you for your own good. I have sent to Washington for plats and surveys for confirmation of what I know to be the truth—they should arrive by Monday. But—I happen to know that I am right. I went over the land today to be sure. I do not think you will cut any timber on the land formerly belonging to Tom Pruitt."

"What are you crashing in here for, anyway?" demanded Wallace Withers, angrily. "And what are you getting at, anyhow?"

"I'm advising you not to cut timber on Hazel Fork, Mr. Withers—you nor anyone else. Of course, I can't prevent you—but I can bring it to the attention of people who can prevent you— That land up there, gentlemen, belongs to the people of the United States."

"You're a meddling young fool!" stormed Withers. "What do you know about it?"

"Perhaps," suggested the lawyer uneasily, "it might be well to look into this matter, gentlemen."

"We'll look into it. And we'll look into that stock transaction, too. It has a fishy sound to me."

"By all means investigate thoroughly. You'll find—as I found, gentlemen—that that area of land up there is included in the boundaries of the National Park. Probably the condemnation suits to establish ownership are lost somewhere in the maze of other lawsuits and claims that have been filed on the property. But I wouldn't advise you to cut any timber there till you have satisfied yourself where the boundary lies. It's easy to take timber away from old men—and to rob women—but don't try it on the Government of the United States, gentlemen. That will be all. Good afternoon."

Lucy let her breath out slowly as the procession filed out the door.

"It's like the movies!" she gasped.

Wills was standing still, tall and lean and purposeful, in the middle of the room.

"There are some things to be settled," he said. "We may as well finish it. Withers planned all this sabotage to force you to sell. But he had help. Men inside the mill. Brains inside the mill. He had Mr. Stanley Daniels."

"No!" The choky cry came from Lucy. "No—it isn't true."

"I'm sorry—it's true. I've been doing some investigating, Mrs. Morgan."

"They framed him," wailed Lucy. "Old Wallace Withers asked him—Stanley, I mean—if there was any chemical that would destroy pulp and Stanley told him. And then the pulp was ruined—and Wallace Withers threatened to tell Mrs. Morgan that Stanley did it unless he gave up his job."

"Why doesn't he come here to speak for himself, if that's true?" Wills asked.

"Because," said Lucy faintly, "I've got him—locked up. He was going to leave. He didn't do it. He was a fool—but he isn't crooked. I locked him up. Shall I let him out, Mrs. Morgan?"

Virgie's smile crinkled her face and she burst into a sudden laugh.

"No—don't let him out, Lucy. Keep him there till he realizes what a grand girl you are. Keep him there till he melts."

Lucy smiled and it was as though a candle had been lighted behind her eyes.

"I think he's—melting, Mrs. Morgan!"

"It's raining," Marian said suddenly aloud. "Rain and sleet. I'd better take you home, Mother—it's going to be a dreadful night."

And then the telephone rang. Marian answered it, said, "Mother!" faintly, handed the instrument to Virgie, the color draining out of her face.

Virgie barked, "What did you say, how? Who came there? You say he took your gun?"

She hung up slowly, sitting rigid and aghast.

"Tom has escaped!"

"When? How? How could he?"

"Lon says he got away thirty minutes ago. They don't know how. He took Lon's gun."

"But—he'll freeze—on a night like this! We'll have to find him, Mother—"

"Yes—we'll have to find him." Virgie looked at Wills. "Lon says that Wallace Withers was over there today. Tom has found out who it is that has been plotting to ruin us. He's a mountain man—"

"We'll go," Wills said. "They'll look for him, of course?"

"Lon said he was sending some of the boys out. They won't know where to go. I know where Tom will go." Virgie's face was heavy with trouble as she twisted into her heavy coat.

"I'm going, too," Marian said abruptly.

"It's going to be an ugly night," Virgie objected. "You'd better go home before it freezes."

"Mother—I'm going. Tell Frank to put the chains on."

"Wrap yourself up then. Lucy, you stay here by the 'phone. If Lon calls tell him we're out on a hunt—if we find Tom we'll bring him in."

Wills drove and Marian huddled in the middle of the single seat of Virgie's old car. Freezing rain spatted on the roof, coated the windshield. The light failed with the swift completeness of mountain night. Wills got out to scrub the wind-shield clean. The wheels slewed on the curves in spite of the chains and Virgie's profile, against the dim light, was granite and grim.

"Drive on," she said. "I'll tell you when to turn."

"He wouldn't take the road, Mother," Marian worried. "And even if we met him we couldn't see him."

"Drive on," said Virgie, flatly.

They passed a looming mill and a curve where a waterfall came down, roaring and splashing under a high bridge.

"Left—at the next road," said Virgie.

"Mother—" an edge of panic was in Marian's voice. "You don't think—"

"I know!" said Virgie, soberly. "They were over there—Wallace and the others. Tom didn't know before who was working against us—but now he knows. Take it slow, Wills—this road is dirt and it'll be slippery."

"It's freezing a little. The chains hold. I can go faster if it won't make you nervous."

Marian huddled, small and frightened, under Branford Wills' elbow, her head in a snug beret, scarcely reaching his shoulder. Once he looked around and gave her a scrap of smile, in the dim light from the dash, but she was looking solemnly and searchingly ahead.

"How awful—to be wandering around in the hills on a night like this!" she said. "Poor old Tom!"

"I know how awful it can be," Wills agreed. "I had two nights of it. There's so much sky and black air and empty wind and savage dark around you—and you feel a sort of hatred in it—as though it would kill you if it could. And the branches reach out and snatch and almost snarl—and boulders and roots trip you up—and the wind gathers up handfuls of ice and flings them in your face."

"And you were lost!" said Marian in a small, frail voice.

He looked down at her. "I'm still lost," he said, levelly.

Virgie cleared her throat. "I'm here," she reminded them, "but I'm old and my hearing isn't what it used to be."

"Tom wouldn't be lost." Marian essayed the commonplace again. "He knows his way anywhere in these mountains—no matter how dark it might be."

The river was alongside now, dark and noisy and hidden by the whirling dash of sleety rain. Trees hung low, and the darkness grew thicker; it brooded and was hostile and fearsome. Marian clutched a sleeve and laid her face against it. Wind shook the old car fiercely, but the wheels dug and spun and plowed on. Once a frightened rabbit leaped through the darting steel rods of the rain, its eyes green and terrified. Ice was glassy on the hood, the wind-shield wiper gouged a feeble arc and then failed.

"I'll have to scour it off," Wills said. "We might hit something."

Air that cut their faces rushed in as he opened the door. Marian thought of old Tom—the thin, torn old coat he had worn in the jail, his feet sloshing through the freezing mud, wind cutting through mercilessly.

"Oh — hurry!" she whispered. "But—Mother, what if he didn't come this way?"

"He came this way. He took the old log trail across the ridge, and crossed the river on that swinging bridge."

"There's a light," said Branford Wills.

"The gate is beyond that big tree. It's steep beyond—you'd better change gears."

"Has he had time—"

"He left before dark. A boy saw him go. They didn't miss him till supper time—"

"If only they had locked the door," Marian mourned.

"We may be in time." Virgie was hopeful.

The house that sprang out of a gnarled darkness of old apple-trees was bleak and somber and somehow desolate.

"The door's open—" breathed Marian.

Virgie gave a little groan.

"I'll go," she said. "You wait here."

"Not alone, Mother."

"No—not alone," Wills sprang out after her.

Marian hurried after them, slipping and panting, in the wan beam of their headlights. But somehow she knew it was too late. She had known it when the dreary old house leaped out of the darkness, out of the solitude and silence which for a year it had known.

"Don't let her come," Virgie warned sharply.

"But I'm coming," Marian answered, setting the chin she had from David Morgan.

"Take my hand," Wills said.

"I can walk alone." But she took the hand.

Held it tight, clutched by the dread of that sinister, opened door. Beyond that door a lamp fluttered in the draft. Beyond it was a deserted room, where coals glowed in a base burner and Wallace Withers' elastic-sided shoes sat warming on the floor. Shoes he would never wear any more.

"Don't come closer," Virgie called sharply.

But Wills went on and Marian would not let go his hand, though her flesh was icy and her hair lifted a little on her head, at what lay there, face upward in front of that open door.

Wallace Withers had been shot cleanly through the head.

This time Tom's gun had not jammed.

"Don't touch anything," Wills warned. "Is there a telephone in this house?"

Virgie, a little sick because she could not hate even a dead, cruel old man who had wronged her, shook her head.

"Not even a well," she said.

"But—we've got to find Tom!" Marian began sobbing wildly.

"Take care of her," Virgie said to Wills wearily. "I'll get a sheet. I know where they are. I can't leave him lying there—like that."

"Don't touch anything," Wills warned.

She had heard Marian's little choking cry, "Oh, Bran—Bran—"

She had seen Wills holding her in his arms. Suddenly she was old and lonely, and this was death lying face up to the hostile sky—and out of the aloof hills a winter wind howled in desolation. Suddenly she was sorry for Wallace Withers. He had been lonely, too!

They found Tom Pruitt at dawn. Men with lanterns and dogs had crashed and slid through the icy night, cursing the storm and the darkness. And all night Virgie had sat by the stove in Wallace Withers' house, looking straight ahead of her, musing on the tangled tragedy of life—and the way greed snarled the twisting strands, wove traps and nooses and webs for hopes and high ambitions to be choked in.

Wills and Marian had gone for help and met a posse on the road. But light was under the hemlocks along the river bluff when they found Tom.

Virgie saw them coming, slowly, on the frozen lane, and knew what they had found.

"He went over them rocks—down there where the river runs under the cliff," a deputy said. "He was heading back toward your place I reckon, Mis' Morgan, and he missed his footing in the dark. I wouldn't 'a' on, Mis' Morgan—I reckon it's for well."

"Yes," said Virgie, tonelessly, "it's just as well."

Somehow she got home.

Riding in somebody's rackety car, cold and weary and aching from head to foot with a sorrow that was rigid and steely like bonds around her heart and throat.

The mountains and the woods were frigidly incased in a coating of icy glass. The streams were hidden and from the stack of the mill a wan steam drifted.

The fires were hanked and tomorrow the barkers would whirl again, gnashing their steel teeth into unresisting wood, grinding and spewing and sucking away the life-blood of a green tree so that missals could be printed for praying nuns and letters written to old mothers.

The mill would go on.

The mill would go on and Tom would not be there. David would not be there. A sudden, stark, awful loneliness got Virgie Morgan by the throat as she walked into her own house, and sank into the chair that had the print of David Morgan's thin shoulder-blades.

She couldn't go on—she couldn't—alone!

And then suddenly she was not alone. Youth was there, with lights and hot coffee and gentle hands.

Marian and Branford Wills. "We've stopped fighting, Mother—we found out we were terribly in love with each other. Do you mind, Mother? Take off her shoes, Bran, and rub her feet. I'll get her slippers."

Branford Wills knelt at her feet, lean and brown, with his deep voice and gentle eyes.

"I can't go on without her," he said. "I know what a presumptupus fool I am—"

"I'm glad," said Virgie numbly. She would have liked a son like this lad, she was thinking.

Lucy was there—and Stanley Daniels, looking sheepish and relieved and eager to help. They were scrambling eggs, they announced.

"We thought you'd need us, Mrs. Morgan," Lucy said, brightly, little red coins shining in her cheeks.

Suddenly Virgie began to sob.

They were so brave and so reckless and so gallant. Their eyes were so clear. They were youth—going on!

"Yes, I need you!" she said hoarsely.

WITH THE REDS

TAMPA, FLA. — There is an air of confidence in the camp of the Cincinnati Reds, champions of the world ,and not without reason. These men who were good enough to win their second successive pennant by a margin of 12 games last season, then continue on through the world series, feel their club has been strengthened by winter trades, and they feel their own achievements, plus their strengthening gives them the right to their confidence.

Having won two pennants on the arms of the most effective pitching corps in baseball, the Reds, naturally, are great believers in their newly coined slogan, "A good defense will wear out the best offense." At the same time, they are not letting any grass grow under their feet, and they're mighty happy about the additions to the outfield, etc., notably Jimmy Gleeson, who should help the team score more runs.

Defense hasn't been forsaken in the least. It never will as long as Bill McKechnie is the manager and Warren Giles the general manager. The acquisition of Monte Pearson was a master defensive stroke, for Pearson is looked upon as a potential 15-game winner. Add a 15-game winner to a staff that has such great starters as Deringer ,Walters and Thompson, plus backer-uppers like Jim Turner, Whitey Moore and Johnny Vander Meer, plus relief man extraordinary, Joe Beggs, and you really have something the opposing clubs have to step high to hurdle when they are out to score runs.

Many of the Reds' opponents, who do a bit of wishful thinking every once in a while, point to the situation at shortstop. To this Bill McKechnie replies, "We have no hole at shortstop. I'm sure Eddie Joost and Bobby Mattick will fill the bill. If I wasn't sure of this, I would never have traded a shortstop like Myers from our club."

In case you're interested in further information about Joost, it might be well to tell that Eddie played about half of the Reds' games at that position last year, and did a whale of a job. Too, he was quite a ball player in the world series, when he showed his ability under fire. In the event he doesn't have the strength to play a full schedule, then McKechnie will have Mattick to help out. In McKechnie's book, Mattick has a much higher rating than is commonly supposed. He sees a bright future for the young man.

Joost says a full schedule holds no terrors to him. He points to his record in the minors, when he always played regularly, and did well enough to merit advancement to the majors. The figures are in his favor.

THE AUTHORITY OF CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:41—20:8.
GOLDEN TEXT—And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?—Luke 6:46.

"By what authority doest thou these things?" The question of the scribes was a proper one, even though their spirit and purpose in asking it may have been wrong. Any man who claims to have authority over others should expect to be asked that question and be prepared to give an honest answer.

I. Authority Rejected (vv. 41-44).

On the previous day our Lord had made His kingly triumphant entry into the city and many had acclaimed Him (see vv. 37-40); but the city as a whole—and especially its leaders, both religious and governmental—had rejected Him.

As He came toward the city the next day and it spread out before Him in beautiful panorama, His tender heart was broken and He wept. His tears were not for Himself, but for the people who had rejected Him. We are told that the word used "for weeping here does not mean merely . . . tears" but "rather the heaving of the bosorn, and the sob and cry of a soul in agony" (Morgan).

That is how He feels about you who reject His authority today, for the city of Jerusalem represented the attitude of all unbelieving humanity. He loves you, sinner, and weeps over your rejection of Him; but just as He ultimately had to reject the city because it rejected Him, He will have to condemn you in your sin if you continue to reject Him. Why do it?

II. Authority Asserted (vv. 45, 46).

The act of Jesus in cleansing the temple was very bold, for He held no position in the temple and He had no police powers. Only a man with a disordered mind or in a frenzy of anger would assume such authority if it did not belong to him. This means that Jesus acting as He did here, quietly, deliberately, and intelligently, was declaring by His deed that the One whose authority is above and back of all human authority had come to cleanse His Father's house.

It is a striking scene. Let us see in it all the gracious majesty, power and authority of the Son of God, our Saviour and Lord.

III. Authority Accepted (vv. 47, 48).

The people "were very attentive," or more effectively, as in the Revised Version, they "all hung upon him." How remarkable it is that "the common people heard him gladly" (Mark 12:37), while the learned leaders, both in religious and political circles, hated and rejected Him.

That situation has continued throughout the centuries. Let us not be disturbed or confused by the fact that so many "leading" men and women (thank God, not all of them, by any means) reject or question the claims of Christ. It is the very thing we ought to expect.

Young people, be not at all disturbed by that supposedly conclusive statement, "scholarship is agreed," for usually it proves to be wrong. Don't be surprised if some leading novelist, or tycoon of the business world, is not a follower of Christ.

Meet Jesus yourself and you will learn to love Him and want to serve Him. Get the balanced judgment of "the common people" who have really met the Lord, and you will find the right way—God's way.

IV. Authority Defended (20:1-8).

Humanly speaking, the priests and scribes were right when they challenged Christ. He had no official position which justified His acts and His words. But note carefully that the very fact that He, in return for their "Tell us," replied, "Tell me," indicates that the human authority which had a right to challenge other human authority had now met the One who is "the head of all principality and power." He had a supreme right to say, "Before I answer you, tell me."

We are apt to regard the answer of Jesus to their question as a skillful evasion of a difficult situation, but it was far more than that. If they had replied honestly to His question regarding John, and admitted that His authority was from heaven; Jesus would probably have said, "Then what did he say of me?" He would have reminded them of the statement of John that he was not worthy to loose the latchet of His shoes, of his prophecy of the judgment to come, of the baptism of fire (see Luke 3:16-17), of the day when John called Him "the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world" (John 1:29).

Here was proof concerning His authority, but they did not dare to ask for it because they did not want it. You too, reader, if you have questions regarding the claim of Christ to authority over your life may have a satisfying answer, but only if you honestly want it and will receive it with open mind and heart.

PROPRIETOR OF SPARTA HOTEL DIES

Wednesday, Feb. 12, Geo. W. McCormick, Sr., passed away in St. Elizabeth Hospital following an operation on Saturday, Feb. 8. He was taken to the hospital on Feb. 3 for what was thought to be a minor operation. Geo. Willie, as he was familiarly known by his many friends, was born in Owen county, Ky., son of Hugh and Virginia McCormick, deceased .His parents moved to Sparta when he was a lad of 14 years, and here he spent 50 years of life being 64 when death came. Having been bar tender for the late Scott Moore for years and later taking charge of the Hotel and conducting a first class hostelry up to the present time. Many distinguished guests have been entertained in his hospitable home. Kind and generous to a fault, he made an ideal host. A good husband, indulgent father and loyal citizen, whose unassuming manner and quiet demeanor made him a universal favorite with the public. In the 65th year of life with much to live for, he gathered the drapery of his couch about him and laid down to pleasant dreams .For 18 years he had been in the service of the L. & N. R. R. Co, a position he held at the time of his death. He is survived by his wife, Mary E. McCormick; two sons, Geo. W. and Ed Russell; one daughter, Virginia Ann; one sister, Mrs. J. D. McCune, all of Sparta. The funeral was conducted Saturday at 10:00 a. m. at the at. Joseph Catholic Church in Warsaw by Rev. Geo. Stier, the local pastor, with C. L. Carlton and Son officiating.

The floral offerings were elaborate and beautiful and the long cortege that followed the remains to their last resting place was a silent reminder of the high esteem in which he was held by the community, in which he had lived for one-half a century. The body was laid to rest in the church cemetery. Peace be to his ashes.

Those from a distance attending the funeral of Geo. W. McCarmick were Misses Helen Weldon and Mildred Redding, Covington; Jno. Grant, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. John McKinney and Ruth Downs, Covington; David and Louise Murphy, Parkersburg, W. Va.; John R. Stout and wife, Carrollton, and John B. Grant, Louisville.

KENTUCKIAN MARRIES IN OKLAHOMA

Ernest Gilbert (Newtie) Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elza Wilson, recently married Miss Velma Jo Wilhite, of Lawton, Okla. The wedding took place in the Chaplain's quarters at the Army barracks. Newtie, as he is familiarly known down here in Kentucky, is an army sergeant in the U. S. Army. The bride wore a tailored suit of cape blue, with accessories to match and looked beautiful. The altar was banked with southern flowers and ferns, which made a beautiful background for the occasion. Immediately after the ceremony they left for Michigan, where the groom is stationed near Detroit.

A shower of good wishes goes from his Sparta friends for a long, happy and prosperous life together.

Sunday School 9:45 a. m.
Morning Worship 11:00 a. m
Evening Worship 7:00 p. m.
Prayer Meeting, Wed. ... 7:00 p. m.

Sunday, March 2, is known throughout American Methodism as "Day of Compassion." This is one of the finest opportunities the Methodist people will have to do something extra for the great cause represented. One-fourth of the million dollars that will be raised is to be used to carry the Gospel to our Army camps and help ward off the forces of evil that are clustering around them seeking the best we have in manhood in America. Another one-fourth will be used to carry on part of the work being done by the British Church before England became so involved in war. China has even sent a substantial contribution. Can we do less? The remaining one-half million will be used for overseas relief. We cannot visualize the human suffering and needs in those countries suffering directly from war. God has richly blessed us and we are sure that He wants to use us as the world's most crucial moments are facing us.

Subject Sunday morning, "Facing Realities With Christ." In the evening, "Youth to be Sold or Saved?" Come and worship with us.

There will be a group Quarterly Conference at Williamstown Monday, March 3, with a dinner beginning at 6:30, priced at 35c. Two fine meetings of this type have been held already. All members of the Quarterly Conference should make a special effort to go. All are invited.

EASTERN STAR STATE SECRETARY IS TAKEN

Mrs. Sarah H. Terry, grand secretary of the Order of Eastern Star of Kentucky, passed away at her home in Louisville, Ky., Sunday. Her death was unexpected as she seemed in good health a few days before.

Mrs Terry has attended Chapter meetings here and has many friends who regret to learn of her passing.

Woman Doctor Crusades For Proper Care of Babies

HERE and there in this pedestrian world are women of light. Modern miracle workers, they reach out their hands, and the blind see the sun, the deaf hear, the lame walk straight and strong.

Just such a woman is Ethel Dunham, a pioneer in the crusade to save premature babies. Dr. Dunham's great work which has spread from Portland, Maine, to Portland, Oregon has been vividly written for the readers of the March issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine, by Maxine Davis, well-known commentator on medical subjects.

Today, Miss Davis says in her article, about 100,000 babies, or five per cent of all babies born, are premature. Of these at least one half die immediately or soon after birth. To cut down this alarming total has been the lifework of Ethel Dunham, and in the twenty years of her career she has succeeded in tracking down the reason for these deaths, and spreading her findings to hospitals all over the country.

The American Pediatric Society only last November accepted Dr. Dunham's definition of a premature baby, which is not always a baby born before expiration of the term. According to Dr. Dunham, any baby weighing less than five and a half pounds is premature and demands special care. Furthermore the doctor rejects as an old wives' tale the theory that premature babies are apt to grow up mentally deficient. They will develop normally unless they suffer birth injuries.

Dr. Dunham has resolved the three main problems in saving the life of a premature baby. "The first is to keep him warm. The second is to protect him from [illegible], and the third is to find the best way to feed him."

SPARTA

Mrs. Till Winn is on the sick list, much to the regret of her many friends.

Miss Jean Riley, who has a position in Cincinnati, spent the week-end at home.

Mrs. Till Waters is again on the sick list.

Uncle Dan Buchanan, of Vera Cruze neighborhood, was a business visitor to Sparta last Monday.

Gip Wilson, of Mosby Creek, Owen Co., spent the week-end as the guest of his sister, Mrs. Ed Skirvin.

Quite an excitement was created Saturday about 4:30 when it was discovered that the new brick home of Joe Wilson was on fire. A bucket brigade was formed by the young men of the town and the flames were soon extinguished. The cause of the fire was due to burning paper in the grate, which fell on the shingle roof.

Mrs. Curtis Gullion spent Tuesday in Cincinnati shopping.

Mr. Paul Wilson, of Carrollton, has taken over the Sparta garage, operated by Everett McDannell, and will move here in the near future.

Wm. Houston returned Wednesday from wintering in the South. He was located in Texas, but decided to return to his native State a little early and old man winter still here.

Surveyors from the State Highway Department were here last week surveying the Sparta-Sanders turnpike road that has been taken over by WPA project for the purpose of building a 60-foot highway connecting highways 35 and 36. Gallatin county road engineer, Neal O'Connor, states that the right of way has been secured to the required number that the road is assured.

Floren Tacket, of Owen Co., and Miss Johnnie Harris, eldest daughter of Peter Harris and wife, were quietly married Saturday, Feb. 22.

Mrs. Tacket is well known to the general public. She has been assistant cashier of the Sparta-Sanders State bank for the past 10 years. A woman of splendid personality and an ideal business woman, she will make the man of her choice a good helpmate. They will reside on the farm known as the Colorado Grant place in old Sparta. The groom will farm and Mrs. Tacket will continue working in the bank. Their many friends extend wishes for a long and happy married life.

CALF STARTENA

We don't know an easier way to raise big, growthy calves than the Purina Calf Startena Way. There's no gruel to mix — no muss or bother. Calves start eating Calf Startena when 4 days old, and need no milk at all after the first month. That means that one bag of Calf Startena replaces 40 gals. of milk — milk that you can sell at today's good prices. Try Calf Startena — and see the difference!

Florence Homemakers Meet

The February meeting of the Florence Homemakers Club, was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lorie Morith, after which 30 members joined in the singing of "Jingle Bells," led by Mrs. Mable Sayre. Mrs. Laverna Willeford read the program outlined for the "Live At Home Project," for this year. She also gave suggested dates for planting various vegetables, several of the members joined in a discussion of how to kill bean beetles and other garden insects. The club decided to have a Penny Fund, to which all would contribute, this money to be used for flowers and gifts for the members, Mrs. Gertrude Fossett and Mr. Mable Sayre to take care of the fund. Mrs. John Martin was appointed 'Live At Home Chairman."

Mrs. George Kobman was asked to act as "Membership Chairman" until Mrs. Grace Wilson, vice president, is able to resume her duties.

When the president asked for volunteers for the 4-H work, Mrs. Gladys Fullerton and Mrs. John Martin volunteered to help with the sewing classes, Mrs. Lorie Morith, Mrs. Lillian Schramn and Mrs. Laverna Willeford, helpers last year, will work again this year.

After a delicious luncheon Mrs. Lorie Morith, delegate to Farm and Home Week, gave a very interesting report of part of the week's activities, and will finish her report at the next meeting.

Mrs. Margaret Hopper and Mrs. Henry Barnett gave a very instructive and helpful lesson on "Style Trends." They told us that the spring hats were beautiful, youthful and flattering. We were also reminded that this spring the hat is worn straight on the head—forward or back, but never tilted or cocked over one eye.

Every one missed the member so recently taken from our midst by death, Mrs. Myrtle Corbin. Mrs. Corbin had been a member of the club for many years. She had served the club faithfully, always present and willing to carry her part of the load.

A very speedy recovery is wished for both Mrs. Grace Wilson, our vice president, and Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, our H. D. A. We were glad to welcome Mrs. Garade and Mrs. Holmes as new members. New members and visitors are always welcome. The next regular meeting will be held at the Town Hall March 7, at 10:00 a. m.

Emergency Loans Available Farmers

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1941 are now available to farmers in Boone and Kenton counties, and applications for these loans are now being received at the County Agent's office by Henry R. Dicken, Field Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks or other private concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loans will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1941 crops, or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or, in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

W. C. T. U. TO MEET FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Walton W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Lula Hudson, Loreco Ave. Friday, March 7, at 2:00 p. m.

This organization has but recently been formed here and new members are desired. All ladies interested in this movement are invited to be present at this meeting.

Florence Woman Commits Suicide

Mrs. Helen Bentel, 36, ended her life Saturday at her home on Hopeful Lane, Florence. Despondency over ill health is said to have been the cause for the act. She died of a wound in her rigat temple at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, 15 minutes after she was taken there by her husband, Stanley Bentel. A 75-year-old, 30-caliber revolver was used to commit the deed.

Requiem High mass was sung at 9 a .m., Tuesday, at St. Paul Church. Florence, following services at 8:15 a. m. at a Covington funeral home. Burial was in St. Mary cemetery.

Besides her husband, the deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. Marie Faulkner, of Newport, and her mother, Mrs. Margaret Fleming, Florence.

SECOND TERM ENROLLMENT AT U. OF K. REACHES 3,498

All but seven of the 48 States are represented in the second-term enrollment at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, which closed Feb. 17, and 117 of the 120 counties in Kentucky are also represented in the student body.

While there was a drop of more than two per cent from the second semester registration for the school year 1939-40, voluntary enlistment and the dropping out of students seeking jobs in defense industries accounts for a percentage of this loss.

Seven foreign countries and possessions, including Africa, Canada, Canal Zone, China, Mexico, Egypt and Puerto Rico sent one or more students to the University of Kentucky this semester.

Among those students registered at the University from Boone County are: Alice Kathryn Anderson, Florence; Harold Kelly Clore, Burlington; James Calvin Conner, Burlington; Andrew Wood Edwards, Burlington; Chester Ray Edwards, Burlington; Josephine K. Grant, Burlington; Julian William Knipperberg, Burlington; Thomas G. Lutes, Florence; William Ryle Presser, Burlington; John Franklin Randall, Burlington; Virginia Lee Reimer, Burlington; Kathryn Grant Sebree, Florence; Robert Lewis Tanner, Florence; Keith R. Vice, Burlington.

FORMER RESIDENT PASSES TUESDAY

John O'Neal, a former well known citizen of Walton, passed away Tuesday, March 4, at 2 p. m. in St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington. Funeral services are to be held today (Thursday) at 1 p. m. from the Eckler Funeral Home, Dry Ridge. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. C. L. Renaker, of Dry Ridge.

CHAPMAN-MULFORD NUPTIALS SATURDAY

Terry V. Mulford, of Toronto, Ohio, and Miss Efie Mae Chapman, pretty young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chapman, of High street, were united in marriage Saturday evening, March 1st, at the home of the officiating minister, R. T. DeMoisey. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Eskee McCount, Mrs. McCount being a sister of the groom. After a brief honeymoon they will reside at Toronto, Ohio. Rev. DeMoisey also married Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Chapman, the bride's parents.

National Defense And CCC Enrollees

Although soil conservation is a prominent objective of the Walton CCC camp, the enrollees are expected to play an important part in national defense, according to Ward T. Darnell, superintendent.

The boys are not given military training in the camps, Darnell explained, but the training of the young men to work and to be more useful citizens is a fundamental part of the Civilian Conservation Corps program.

Building gully control structures, sodding terrace outlet channels, surveying terrace and strip crop contour lines, planting trees and grass on eroded land, drainage rehabilitation, and many other types of conservation work are being done by boys of the camp. But truck driving, tractor skinning, surveying, mapping, truck and tractor repairing, bookkeeping, drafting and numerous other jobs are also everyday occupations of many enrollees.

Conservation plans for 176 farms composed of more than 23,953 acres have been drawn up and put into execution by the camp and cooperating farmers in Boone, Kenton, Gallatin and Grant counties. This work, coupled with that done by other CCC camps and the Soil Conservation Service have contributed greatly to saving Kentucky soil and other resources, Darnell said. The training that has been given the thousands of boys who have passed through these camps , however, probably is the most important contribution that the CCC has made to the State.

Teaching the boys to work at useful jobs is the principal upon which the training of CCC enrollees is founded. About 90 per cent of the young men who report for duty to the camps have had little if any worth-while experience. Most of them were never able to get a worthwhile job before they came to the CCC. When they leave the camp after their six months to two years stay, practically all of them are qualified to hold down a job in some useful industry or occupation.

The Army officers, the medical officer, the educational adviser and the project superintendent, foremen, and technicians from the Soil Conservation Service all cooperate in training enrollees for some useful occupation. It is a practical school for boys, most of whom never finished their high school education. The CCC educational program teaches theories that have a specific application to the job at hand. "Learning to do by doing" is the motto.

When a group of new enrollees first arrive in camp they are given a few days of intensive training in the camp organization. At the end of this short period they are assigned to a foreman's crew in the field. The labor foremen are responsible for training them in the fundamentals of productive work. First, the boys learn to use a pick and shovel, to know what a hard day's work means, and to observe the "Safety First" regulations of the camp. From then on, they are assigned jobs of increasing responsibility, according to their capabilities.

Nearly all of the better jobs in camp have various grades of responsibility . For example: Some ten to fifteen truck drivers are needed in each camp. They are generally classified as five understudy drivers or swampers, and eight to ten drivers hauling men and materials. Drivers who can be trusted to haul men have been highly trained in the truck driv-

Economic Highlights

What Associated Press staff writer Richard L. Turner called "a new and, to some, a startling phase in the argument for helping Great Britain," recently appeared while the Senate was debating the lease-lend bill. This new phase was the admission that the proposed policy involves the risk of war.

The opponents of the lease-lend measure have long used that as their prime weapon. They have declared that once the bill becomes law it will be only a matter of months before we are active participants in the war against the Axis. At the beginning, however, the bill's supporters generally pooh-poohed that supposition. They said that the measure could not carry us any closer to war. Now their tone has undergone significant change.

For example, Senator Barkley, the majority leader, recently said that "the course we chart is not without risk." Going a long step farther, Senator Pepper, one of the most aggressive backers of all-out aid to Britain, said, "If the action we propose will not save England, we will save it anyway." Frankest of all was Senator Bailey, another leader of Democratic forces, who said: "I am hoping that intervention may not mean war, but I am ready if intervention does mean war."

The President himself said that there were hazards in any course that this country might pursue in its foreign policy. It was obvious that the possibility of war was in his mind when, in answer to a question at a press conference, he said that even if we were to engage in naval hostilities with Japan, there would be no let-up in our sending supplies to England. The Administration stand is that, risky as the lease-lend bill policy may be, it contains the greatest assurance for American security with the least risk of war.

If we went to war, it is apparent that, at the beginning, our participation would involve the navy and perhaps the air force, not the army. Britain could certainly use our fighting fleet—the great British navy, which has sustained heavy losses, is spread out dangerously thin. She must command the North Sea, the Mediterranean, and a considerable part of the Far and Near East. She much convoy the merchant ships that bring her supplies from the New World and Oceania. Her fighting force in the Orient is inferior to Japan's. Britain has plenty of men in khaki today—she hasn't enough floating gun platforms.

In theory, if we should go to war with Germany, Japan would at once attack us. She might attempt to seize the Philippines and the lesser Pacific islands which fly the American flag. And then what might prove one of the greatest naval wars of all time would begin.

There is still another possibility here. Britain apparently fears that Japan is about to embark on new adventures of her own—toward Indo-China, the Netherlands possessions, or even Singapore, key to the East. Large numbers of the famed Australian troops have been sent ot the Singapore garrison. Enough planes have also been sent, it is reported, to give Britain superiority in the air in that area—the Japanese air force is not especially large, and the sons of Nippon aren't supposed to be much as pilots. At the same time, Britain would have a tough job on her hands resisting a full-dress attack by the Japanese fleet. Many observers think that if Japan does not make her move, we will step in—that the buglers on our warships will sound Battle Stations, and it won't be for practice. Some think we might also help if Japan went after the Crown colony of Hongkong—a position which is virtually indefensible from land, and can only be protected by sea power.

It should become clear before long what Hitler's spring strategy will be—a drive through the Balkans, an attempt at invasion of England, a Japanese push in the East, or, perhaps, a combination of all three. In the meantime, this country is not nearly so far from war as the majority of its people, judging by polls, hope.

News of our own defense program is confusing. The pessimists say that everything has bogged down, and that chaos rules. The optimists say all is going well. The truth seems to lie between. Industry is at last getting geared to defense production—a tremendous job, for which it had little experience. And some of the bugs have been ironed out in the various government defense bureaus.

Production is nothing to write home about, as yet. However, some of the coolest observers think this situation will undergo real change before long—that, once the stage is all set, a great flood of materials will pour forth.

Defense officials have been chary of diverting peace-time production — now it seems that we must reduce the manufacture of some ordinary goods. We can't build for war and maintain normal production at the same time. Don't be surprised if next year the custom of bringing out new model motor cars is temporarily abandoned.

So far, there has been no severe price problem—no need for strict government control. All hope that situation will continue.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Behind-the-scenes plotting in Washington promises to break out in front page rash soon, war or no war, for it involves America's defense program.

It is all traceable back to 1939, when the Nazi blitzkrieg was getting its trial workouts. The President called in businessmen and industrialists to check the nation's plans for production of defense goods.

Government high and low-lights objected to turning this job over to men who know how to make airplanes and guns and tanks and ships. They thought, instead, it was a task for social welfare planners.

Their influence was potent enough to smother completely the plan drafted by these businessmen. Furthermore, the present defense set-up is miles away from what not only the businessmen but the Army and Navy themselves thought best to defend the nation.

Nevertheless, the plotters were not satisfied because they think practical businessmen still have too important assignments today. So they have begun their sniping at the men who are running defense.

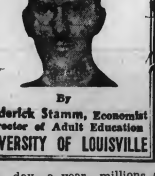
First, it was understood by everybody concerned, including the President, that the Knudsen-Hillman Office of Production Management would work directly with the President. Now the plotters are spreading the rumor that one of their followers will be put in ahead of Knudsen and Hillman and serve as their contact with the President.

So far, there has been no indication of approval for that from the President. But naturally businessmen and labor leaders who have been toiling day and night to get defense production into high gear are disturbed. They are, in many cases, afraid to do everything that they honestly thinks the situation demands.

The plotters are sniping particularly at the businessmen. They even got a Senator to introduce a bill forbidding the employment of $1-a-year men by the government. They are trying to create public belief that no businessmen are patriotic enough to work for the government for $1 a year without graft.

They don't point out that Knudsen and many of his associates have completely severed their business connections. They don't add that Hillman still draws his salary as head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union, because that doesn't serve their point.

From all corners come rumors, gossip, whispers—which upon investigation, prove false.



There are some signs that businessmen are getting a little happier at home are getting a shirtful, to use a colloquialism. They know their records are above suspicion, and that they can do the best job they possibly can.

If the sniping continues, it wouldn't surprise many in Washington to see a whole group of tired, hard-working, money-losing patriotic businessmen tell the President that unless the firing ceases they will pack their bags, leave overcrowded hotels, and go home to comparative peace and quiet.

While the snipers fire wads of gossip at businessmen, aggressive labor unions continue their unobstructed march. At every opportunity they are increasing their demands upon employers.

Some recent contracts made with unions disclose very interesting facts. One stipulates that if the company does not show a net loss the next six months — not make a profit, mind you!—wages shall be boosted. Still another says that if the company shows any net profit whatever (it might be 10 cents) employees shall be given a bonus equal to a pay raise for the preceding six months. And yet another provides that if any government rules or regulations would bring a pay raise they shall be applied, but it makes no provision for what should be done if the regulations would bring a pay cut.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

One day a year millions of Americans are made conscious of the cost of government. That day is March 15 when personal income tax returns are due and payable. Most Americans are now figuring how much they owe and, in some cases, how they are going to pay it. To many, this will be a new experience for this year the exemptions were lowered from $1,000 to $800 for the single person and from $2,500 to $2,000 for the married person.

In addition to the income tax, the national government has many "hidden" taxes which we pay every day of the year. These taxes produce two billion dollars yearly. Hidden taxes are added to the price of articles and too often we fail to realize we are paying them. For example, when we buy a ten cent package of cigarettes, we pay a 6½ cent Federal tax. If a pack lasts two days, then we will buy 182 a year and pay a tax of $30.00.

This is a fairly large amount and I am sure that if the government taxed us each $30 once a year for the privilege of smoking we would all set up a howl. But when the tax is hidden and paid in small amounts the consumer does not squawk.

Or you may drive an automobile. The Federal tax is now 1½ cents on each gallon of gasoline. Figure how much tax you pay this way. Or you may like a glass of beer occasionally. There is now a $6 a barrel Federal tax on this product. Maybe you like a movie; if so, you pay a Federal tax every time you buy a ticket. And there are many, many more of these taxes.

I am not attacking hidden taxes in this article. I am merely pointing out that many of us pay taxes 365 days out of the year and not only on March 15. Very few Americans escape paying taxes and this is the way it should be.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY Gordon Wilson, Ph.D. WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Punkins

As I write this, it is late fall; last night a big frost came; the leaves are brilliant or have already fallen. A few days ago I saw whole wagonloads of punpkins hauled out from the cornfields and left handy to the pig pen and the cow lot. Some of them in a few days will be carved into grotesque faces by small or larger children who have never lost the poetry of Hallowe'en. Today as I walked in front of a big down town gro cery, I saw a crookneck pumpkin lying sprawling among other fall goodies. Also today I ate a wedge of pumpkin pie for dessert. It is the season of pumpkins for me, a season shot through and through with poetry.

From our earliest days in America this poetic fruit has been a part of our heritage. The Indians had developed it before us and had known for centuries the inviting taste of it. Since they also knew turkeys and cranberries and corn, we inherited the makings of Thanksgiving right from them. The pumpkin, like corn, can be easily grown and produces an abundance of food for man and beast. The fresh new soil of the clearing just agrees with both corn and pumpkin; there they thrive and produce a quick, sure supply of food.

A greeat variety of pumpkins exist, almost a kind for every distinctive section. The New England pie pumpkin, about twice as big as your two fists, does not seem to thrive here, though I have managed to grow a few for poetry's sake. They have a flavor that no other species can duplicate; a pious person might say that they were just made for pies. A very large orange-colored pumpkin also grows in profusion in the north. I have seen fields so full of them that one wondered how any group of cattle or hogs or people could ever consume them. Then there is our paler-colored variety, of all shapes and sizes, though I confess I like the broad, flat one the best. The crookneck has an endless variety, too, but our most common one seems to be the white type. When I taught in a country school, the children used to bring me rosated sweet potatoes earlier in the season and baked crookneck pumpkin later. There may be plenty of other kinds, but those are the ones that I have known.

In the late fall, when the problem of keeping the pumpkins from freezing became acute, we used to cook up great quantities of them in the big wash kettle and store up the rich residue in stone jars. As we needed food, we would take out a portion of this and cook it down still further, adding sorghum molasses for the sweetening. Some of our neighbors made pumpkin butter, a substance much like apple butter. First the juices would be cooked out of some pumpkins that were only ordinary or average; into this stock would be dumped the very chocest meat and cooked until it would be of the consistency of apple butter.

Just why a person of high social standing should be "some punkins" I have never known, but if it were left for me to decide, I think I could soon make a clear etymology for the expression. Izaak Walton quotes some reverend English gentleman as saying that God evidently could have made a better berry than the strawberry but He didn't; borrowing the old fisherman's quotation, I would say the same thing about pumpkins and pies.

Farmers borrowing money from the Farm Security Administration are being encouraged to take an active part in the "live-at-home" program.

Laurel county farmers are planning to grow at least 100 acres of commercial potatoes.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

Delicious Lenten Casserole

To be sure you have something extra delicious with which to start the Lenten season, cut out this recipe for Salmon and Spaghetti Casserole. It is surprisingly substantial, and the flavor combination of the delicate fish with tangy tomato-and-cheese sauce makes it one your family will receive enthusiastically.

Salmon and Spaghetti Casserole

Sauté—
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
in—
2 tablespoons butter.
Add—
½ teaspoon salt.
Drain and flake—
1 1-lb. can salmon.
Sprinkle with—
1 tablespoon pure cider vinegar.
Add the sautéed mixture to the salmon.
Open—
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce.

Place ⅓ of the spaghetti in bottom of a buttered casserole, then spread with half the salmon mixture. Add another layer of spaghetti, then add remaining salmon. Top with third layer of spaghetti. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) about 25 minutes or until heated through.

Vinegar and Vegetables

Many vegetables are enjoyed the more for being varied once in awhile with a vinegar sauce. Vinegar brings out new flavors and adds interest to the vegetable part of your menus. Use vegetables with vinegar sauces to serve with fish, for the tartness has a way of enhancing delicate fish flavors.

Vinegar Butter Sauce

Combine—
4 tablespoons butter, melted
2 teaspoons pure cider vinegar
Dash black pepper.

Serve hot over cooked vegetables such as broccoli, green beans, etc. Serves 6.

Harvard Beets

Melt—
2 tablespoons butter.
Add, blending well—
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
⅔ cup water
¼ cup pure cider vinegar.

Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and clear, then add one No. 2 can diced or sliced beets, which have been drained. Heat before serving. Serves 6.

Substantial Snack

Be glad for such bright ideas as Ham and Bean Shortcake when you have occasion to prepare an impromptu meal or snack. It's a substantial combination of toast, oven-baked beans and ham which everyone enjoys both because it tastes so good and because it fills you up. Keep several cans of oven-baked beans on hand to use in this way.

Ham and Bean Shortcake

Heat—
1 medium (18-oz.) can oven-baked beans, vegetarian style.
Toast on one side—
6 slices bread.
Butter other side and toast. Place on buttered side of each toast slice—1 slice cooked ham (6 slices ham for 6 servings).
Top ham with the heated beans, then pour in center of each serving—
A generous spoonful tomato ketchup.

Serve piping hot. Serves 6.

Nationally Famous Astrologer

☽ Moon ☌ Sextile ♆ Neptune ♅ Uranus △ Trine ♃ Jupiter

Astrograph of President Roosevelt

The astrograph, or astrological signature, of Franklin D Roosevelt includes the Moon, which is sextile to Neptune and Uranus. Jupiter and Neptune are trine to Uranus. Sextile and trine are not planets; they signify positions of the planets at time of birth. Aspects in the chart of the President for March are very promising indeed. Favorable transits of Jupiter and Mars promise to make the month a highly successful one for him. He will have a very definite degree of victory this month, especially in foreign affairs.

Strength

MANY a weak and weary one has found comfort and strength in contemplation of the loving invitation of the Master (Matthew 11:28), "Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." This is a call to mankind to cast out fear, doubt, and sin, and to utilize the truth that makes one free.

It was his understanding of God as Spirit and of the spiritual nature of man that gave Christ Jesus dominion over sin, disease, and death. His conscious unity with God made him the Exemplar for all time. Circumstances could form no obstacles to his righteous activity. He walked on the water, fed the multitude, healed the sick, and raised the dead. It was no material sense of authority that enabled him to cast out the devils of unbelief, hatred, and fear. The good he understood and embodied constituted his spiritual strength.

An important step if one would demonstrate strength is to realize that life, truth, and intelligence are not in matter. Man is the image and likeness of his Maker; he is spiritual, not material, and strength is a quality of Spirit, not a condition of matter.

Weakness, weariness, fatigue, and sin are harassing pictures, drawn by mortal mind, but these are not a necessary part of human experience. They persist in their claim to power, and would deceive and enslave humanity. Only the mighty power of Truth can end their tyranny. Spiritual understanding reveals man unfettered by enslaving beliefs — upright, pure, and free. The daily task is done with energy and freedom when we claim spiritual strength as our divine right. Fatigue is no more necessary in human experience than is sin; and both sin and fatigue are overcome by the humble acknowledgment and confident claiming of the real man's inherent purity, strength, and freedom.

No one need lack spiritual strength. The Bible is filled with examples, exhortations, and promises that furnish daily sustenance. . . .

We need a better understanding of man. The weak, weary mortal whom we see bowed down with responsibility, fear, foreboding, and discouragement is not the real man. . . .

Man is spiritual, and for that reason he cannot be tired or weak. The image of Love is never tired, never under a strain, never overworked. Worry, fear, and a false sense of responsibility do not belong to man. Man is not separate from God. . . .

Like Jesus, we need to be determined to do God's will under every circumstance, in order that we may derive from God the everpresent quality of spiritual strength. We can be faithful in our consecrated effort to reflect God in every thought and deed. We should resolve calmly to use the energies of Truth in all our activities. When we strive to follow the example of our Master, we gain clearer views of Life, Truth, and Love.

The genuine strength of individuals, groups, or nations is in exact proportion to their exercise of spiritual power. Power is not in arms, in lands, or in money. Each individual makes a real contribution to world progress when he purifies his own thought and claims abundant spiritual strength for man. Only spiritual strength can overcome the aggressive elements of thought that are abroad in the world today. Greed, pride, fear, and tyranny are human weaknesses. Obedience to the law of God ensures genuine strength.

The Scriptures say (Isaiah 40:31), "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." Speaking of this passage, Mary Baker Eddy writes (Science and Health, p. 218), "The meaning of that passage is not perverted by applying it literally to moments of fatigue, for the moral and physical are as one in their results." — The Christian Science Monitor.

DYNAMITE TEST PROVES VALUE OF NEW AUTO SAFETY WHEEL

* * * * * * * * * * * * *

"Magic Eye" Camera Shows Blowout at 75 m.p.h.

1. Plymouth chassis engineer Al Brady and veteran test driver Jack Cassidy inspect special dynamite rig for blasting tire at any speed desired. Vulcanized into sidewall of tire is a dynamite cap. Wire to set off charge connects with the hubcap, through a spring attachment on the fender that allows for up and down motion of wheel. 2. Co-pilot Gus Johnson shows blaster-button mounted on instrument board. Red light beneath button flashes when current is switched on. In l.. 'hand he holds extra "dynamite patch", which ; ' p ..eed in tire for blowout tests. Cassidy is at the ..heel. 3. BANG! Magic Eye camera shows left front tire blowing out at 75 m.p.h.—but car is easily steered straight down the road, because both beads of tire are held firmly in place on Plymouth Safety Wheel Rim. (NOTE: Don't slam on brakes at such a time.) Air has already escaped, but note that tire still has appearance of being inflated and holds rim up, making it easy to steer car straight while slowing down to a safe stop. 4. Close-up of blasted tire after bringing test car to gradual stop. Tire stayed on—did not come off either side of Plymouth Safety Rim Wheel. As an experiment, car was started again with this flat tire, accelerated to 50 m.p.h., steered easily. When it stopped again a half-mile beyond, both sides of tire were still securely in place.

The death of Mrs. Shelby Tanner, of near Union, threw a cloud of sorrow over a wide circle. Long she walked life's road and she has gone to the grave in a full age, like a sheaf of grain cometh in its season. She had been confined to her home for several months, suffering from a stroke. She was a member of Union Presbyterian Church, and passed away Thursday at her home. Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon at Philip Tallaferro funeral home and she was laid to rest in Hopeful cemetery. Mrs. Tanner was 71 years old, and is survived by her husband, Robert E. Tanner, and a brother, Frank Yonell, and a number of relatives and friends. Many hearts go out in sympathy to her loved ones.

Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to the Westerman family in the death of their dear mother, Mrs. Anna Westerman, who passed away at her home on Stephenson Road, Erlanger, after a long illness. Her funeral was held at 2 p. m. Monday at the Talaferro funeral home, interment in Florence cemetery.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour? We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Common People Solidly Behind Defense Effort

THE American people are brave, strong, intelligent and sound in their thinking. They can be trusted. They believe in democracy. They don't need any totalitarian boss to tell them what to do.

These conclusions have been drawn by Dr. George Gallup, Director of the American Institute of Public Opinion, who for over five years has been conducting surveys of American public thinking on social, political, and economic subjects. His report, which is published in the March issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine, is a vital document of what is going on today in the mind of Mr. and Mrs. Average American.

"There is every reason to believe that the American people are the white hope of democracy," Dr. Gallup states. "Against a background of world confusion and bloodshed they stand out in bold relief. In their hands the future of democracy is safe. In fact the only danger is that the leaders may underestimate the spirit of self-sacrifice of the common people and their capacity of making wise decisions. Neither force of arms nor fraud of lies can conquer American people's belief in themselves, in the country, in the principles of democratic life."

But democracy cannot survive on the loyalty of its citizens. Its people must think straight and clearly. The American people, according to Dr. Gallup do just this. Oftentimes they have led their leaders. Six years ago while military experts argued over the necessity of planes in modern warfare, an Institute poll was taken covering a cross section of the public. It voted nine to one in favor of a strong air force. It was also in favor of conscription before any major political leader advocated it.

Through the medium of his surveys Dr. Gallup has found that the people of this country are making democracy work not only because they are trustworthy, intelligent and able to resist propaganda, but also because they have no class consciousness in the ordinary sense of the term. "There is no 'class war' to speak of," says Gallup, "even though political opinions tend to divide along income lines. In fact nearly all Americans consider themselves in the same social class."

Although the average American looked on approvingly when the New Deal came to power, put a curb on Wall Street and big business, and gave labor the breaks, Dr. Gallup points out that this opinion has altered. Collective bargaining is universally favored, but the common people of the U.S.A. would rather see a check on labor unions if a wave of strikes break out and hinder the defense program.

"Yes," says Dr. Gallup summing up his article, "I have faith in the common people. The social scientists often raise the question: Can we trust the common people? I think the question should read: Can the common people trust the leaders?"

Mr. George Lindsay passed away at the home of his half-brother, Edgar Lindsay Wednesday afternoon about 4:30. He was laid to rest in the Oakland cemetery after funeral services conducted at Oakland church by Rev. I. E. Stephenson. C. L. Carlton & Son, in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller, daughters Alberta and Glenna motored to Latonia Sunday to spend the day with Mr. and Mrs. Omer Elliston.

Raymond Collins, of Covington, and Wesley Collins, of Cincinnati, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Spaulding spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hendren.

The Homemakers have postponed their meeting from March 11th to March 28th, due to Mrs. Joe Reffett not being able to have them sooner. They are to be entertained in Mrs. Reffett's home.

Individual Freedom

FREEDOM BELONGS to the individual, and no system that denies this can possibly win and retain the support of enlightened thinkers. Intelligence vetoes slavery, which always results from obscuring that eternal freedom which is vital and real. Stephen and Paul did not hesitate before adverse popular opinion or misguided human authority when there was an urgent need to voice the truth. In the Christian Science textboook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy says (p. 224): "Truth brings the elements of liberty. On its banner is the Soul-inspired motto, 'Slavery is abolished.' The power of God brings deliverance to the captive. No power can withstand divine Love."

It is an old argument of error that tyranny is justified because it works to bring about good for the majority, that it will procure orderliness and peace, end warring factions, fulfill all practical needs, weld into unity elements that appear discordant and erratic. Such a belief, manifesting itself in a form of government which denies individual freedom of thought, speech, and action, may appear for a time to improve material conditions by checking license and other abuses which prey on individual rights. But the core of tyranny is its seeming power to produce a semblance of obedience through fear, instead of through intelligent self-discipline, and the basis upon which it rests cannot be made sound by over-zealous eloquence. Tyranny rejects spiritual values, without which existence is a meaningless dream. Devoid of reality, lacking the divine attributes which ensure the continuity of all right ideas, its pretense to power falls before the law of God.

God is omnipotent, omnipresent, omniscient, and omniactive, governing all His children through spiritual law. This divine law can be understood and demonstrated by all, for their mutual good. There is nothing in mortal belief that can intervene between God and His creation, including man made in His likeness, who is wholly good.

Even though this truth may be obscured for a time, it will stand in spite of all efforts of evil to erase it. Man cannot be separated from God, the cause of his being, the source of all real existence. Soon or late, every mortal will awake from the dream of separation from God, good, to hear and respond to the call of Love. Then will Principle and its reflection be understood as existing in everlasting harmony; and Love's likeness will be seen as eternally loving. Truth will "sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place" (Isaiah 28:17). . . .

Let us, therefore, seek and maintain the true sense of government that manifests the unalterable relationship existing between God and man; and let us not violate it by interposing a command to worship the idols of human will. Individuals must be free to offer their sole allegiance to God. The dawn of His day appears; the "bright and morning star" (Revelation 22:16) is seen as the coming of the Christ, Truth. The effect of this spiritual dawning on human thought, bringing hope and healing to men, is shown in the life and works of Christ Jesus. . . .

Right thinking individuals are united in the prayerful effort to see true freedom and law as divine attributes, and to claim their benefits for all. Mankind must gain a fuller understanding of the First Commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me" (Exodus 20:3), for obedience to it brings about the destruction of all evil. Then, like John the Revelator, all the people shall hear "a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God." —The Christian Science Monitor

WARSAW HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Spencer, Earl Brown and Mrs. Thelma Wallace were shopping in Covington Saturday afternoon.

Ed Radford and family moved Wednesday from the Sleet farm to their home on Sugar Creek, known as the L. R. Hall home.

Mr L. G. Sanders, wife and two sons, of below town, moved to the Sleet farm. We welcome our new neighbors and regret the loss of Mr. and Mrs. Radford and family in our community, but wish them best of luck.

Here's hoping for a speedy recovery of our dear friend, Miss Sallie Nebsit, who is in the hospital from eye trouble.

Buddie Snodgrass, of CCC camp of Walton, was a visitor at home last week-end. He likes the CCC fine.

Milton Scudder was a caller in town Saturday.

A. Lee Hamilton and wife, of Carroll Co., spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Alice Hall, and family. Mrs. Hamilton is in very poor health, we are sorry to report.

Mrs. Mangold and daughter Almedia were business callers in town recently.

Miss Lucy Mae Hall is visiting her sister, Mrs. Carver, and Mr. Carver.

Miss Emma Sleet returned home after a pleasant visit with Miss Beulah Gaines of Cincinnati, and relatives at Latonia.

Sorry to hear of the sudden death of Mr. Tom Craig, who was killed in an auto crash Friday. We extend sympathy to the bereaved relatives, and especially to the invalid son.

Japanese-Style Wrestling

Tamanishiki, one of the Sumo (Japanese wrestling) artists is shown performing the Dohyo-iri, or ring entry ceremony, which consists of the ceremonious clapping of hands and stamping of feet. He is wearing a costly fabricated loin-cloth for the occasion. The grand Sumo tournaments are held twice yearly in January and May, lasting for fifteen days, and the professionals performing devote their entire life in acquiring and displaying the art.

WITH THE REDS

Tampa, Fla. — This spring training doesn't present any great conditioning problems for the Cincinnat Reds, champions of the world. They're down here in Tampa, preparing for the 1941 National League pennant race, minus the reducing worries that confront the members of most ball clubs after a winter of idleness.

Bill McKechnie is happy that he will be able to condition his men with the routine procedure, and not forced to resort to drastic measures with any of his regulars. He is happy because his men seemed to have taken their situations seriously all during the off season, which is just another indication that the Reds are so good because they pay atttention to their business.

The Reds are a big team. Except for a few isolated cases such as Linus Frey and Eddie Joost, they are a team of huskies. Many of the men are inclined to take on weight if not careful. Paul Derringer, a 230 pounder, is a few pounds lighter today than he was the day he pitched the deciding game of the last world series. Gene Thompson and Frank McCormick, who finished up about 207 last fall, are now only a pound or two over their regular weight. Why, a couple of the boys, one of them Ival Goodman, the regular rightfielder, reported a few pounds underweight.

Many ball clubs have eaten themselves out of pennant races, and the Reds seem to be profiting from the tales of such happenings. Either that or preserving their condition seems to come naturally with them. It is a fact that most of the heftier members of the squad are the small eaters. It is also a fact that Eddie Joost, the thin man, who probably will be the regular shortstop, is one of the most prolific eaters among all the champions. It is doubtful whether there is a man who can pack away as much food as Joost, yet stay so thin. It would be a great help to Joost and the Reds if he would put on a few pounds, but nothing like this happens, no matter how he packs it away.

While on the subject of appetites, it became necesary to mention Mr. James Turner, of Nashville, Tenn., who really goes for his meat and potatoes. Turner weighs 190 pounds. He is the same today as he was several years ago, probably because he is such a hard worker. He has to work hard to throw off the tremendous amount of food he puts into his system. There is nothing fancy about what he eats. He likes the staples, but in a quantity that would floor most men.

McKechnie doesn't have to worry about the condition of Turner. Neither does he have to worry about the rest of the men on whom he is counting. Apparently, they are champions off the field, as well as on it.

Bucky Walters, ace Cincinnati pitcher, never tans. In the middle of the summer he looks like a fellow who has been indoors all the while the sun is shining.

Paul Derringer says that a pitcher should condition his legs and get his wind in shape before worrying about his arm. Arm trouble usually develops from uncertain footing, thinks Paul.

Bob Mattick and Jim Gleason were room-mates on the Chicago Cubs for two years. They're rooming together again with the Reds.

LESSON

CHRIST REJECTED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 20:9-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.—Matthew 5:11.

Rejection of Christ by Israel as a nation is pictured in our lesson. We know how the judgment of God has come upon that nation because of its failure to receive Him and believe on Him. God had to take the vineyard from them and give it to others (v. 16).

Men today reject Christ, and we find that the sin which causes them to do so and the judgment which follows are essentially the same as in the case of Israel. There is a reason for Christ rejection, and there is a certain time of answering to God for that sin.

I. Why Men Reject Christ (vv. 9-15).

Self-will, the very heart of all sin, underlies every refusal to let Christ have His rightful control over our lives. There are two forces which may dominate and direct my life—God's will or self-will. Just as love of God is the essence of all virtue (Matt. 22:37-38), so love of self is the essence of all sin.

The leaders of Israel, both political and religious, had one great fear which dominated all of their thinking concerning Jesus; namely, that they would lose all their authority if He were recognized by the people for what the leaders must have known Him to be—the Son of God and their rightful King. God had entrusted to them as underservants the care of His vineyard, and in their wicked greed they had determined to have it all for themselves, even though it meant destroying the Son and rightful Heir.

We need only a moment's reflection to realize that this is exactly what occurs every time someone now rejects Christ. It is because in self-will that person decides that the one who has a right to his life is not to have it. There are many sins, but this is the root sin of them all.

II. What Happens When Men Reject Christ (vv. 16-18).

Judgment. It came to Israel, as all history even to this dark day so strikingly testifies. Just so, it will come to every one who rejects Christ.

It is not a slight matter of comparative unimportance whether a man accepts or rejects Christ. He likes to make it appear so, saying that it is just something about the local church that he does not like, or the preacher does not exactly suit him; or perchance he hides behind the time-worn excuse that there are hypocrites in the church, when in doing so he proves that he is himself the worst of hypocrites.

All of these excuses do not hide the fact that in self-will he is rejecting God's will for his life in Christ. At the end of that road he will have to meet the judgment of God upon sin. God reads the heart, knows the falsity of every excuse and the real rebellion against Christ, which may be hidden from fellow men by smooth words and polite manners.

Tear off that mask, unbelieving friend who may read these words. Face the truth that you are refusing Christ's authority because you are self-willed, and look squarely at the fact that "it is appointed unto men once to die, and after this cometh the judgment" (Heb. 9:27. R. V.)

III. How Men Reject Christ (vv. 19, 20).

Deceit and treachery of the vilest kind marked the rejection of Christ by Israel's leaders. They feared the people, and lacking the authority to condemn Him themselves they had to obtain some evidence under which the Roman law would have to sentence Him. It is significant that they could not find one bit of real evidence against Him and had to proceed by trickery and treachery.

Christ rejection in our day is just as deceitful and treacherous, although it does not often appear so outwardly. As a matter of fact, the leaders of Israel were outwardly polite and careful. They sent spies who could "feign themselves to be just men." They "feared the people" and did not dare to speak openly against Him.

Men cover up their motives today. Some would wish to excuse themselves on the ground of lack of knowledge, but in our land at least that is largely their own choice. Others might say they have only been careless, but on what ground can one justify neglect of a life and death matter? Some blame the sins of professing Christians, but this is an individual matter—you must answer for your own soul.

No matter which way man may turn in seeking for an excuse for his rejection of Christ, if he is honest he will have to admit that he has dealt deceitfully with God. When he does that, he is ready in repentance and faith to take Christ as his Saviour and Lord.

Youngsters Need No Stimulant!

A born idiot has dignity, but one artificially created by alcohol has none, Angelo Patri wrote recently in a column for young people.

Writing for the Bell Syndicate, he said:

"The reforming of grown people never interests me. If we teach children what is good for them and do our best to protect them from evil we will not have too many adults to reform. That is why the cocktail hour that offers stimulating drinks to young people in their late 'teens and early 20's seems so dangerous to me.

"Young people are stimulated by the wine of youth. There is no drink as heady as that with which nature has stimulated them. It takes all they have to keep an even balance without taking on additional stimulation in the form of a cocktail.

"The afternoon gathering and the need for relaxation and gaiety are set in the day's routine by nature. Cocktails are not nature's way of relieving the situation and we who are in any way responsible for the welfare of young people should be quick to save the situation by providing the needful elements without falling back on stimulants.

"Music will help tremendously provided it is selected with an eye to its effect. Tea is a good stimulant. A good drink—tasty, sparkling, snappy—can be made by combining tea, fruit juices and ginger-ale. It can be lovely in color and when served in dainty glasses is quite as attractive as any cocktail. It will smell better and taste as good and it will do its work without robbing youth of its charm and its brains.

"A body without its mind is an awful sight, especially when that body is usually occupied by an intelligent, able mind. . . . It's an awful sight and one no young person would wish to imprint on friends' memories."

1941 Farm Plan

Farmers who have not signed their Farm Plan for 1941 are urged to call at county office, Independence and do so before it is too late. The Farm Plan must be signed in order t earn soil building allowance under the Agricultural Conservation Program.

Ky. Farm Forestry Program

According to information from Mr. W. E. Jackson, Extension Forester, he is planning to meet with interested farmers to discuss the Farm Forestry Program in Kentucky.

The Division of Forestry, Department of Conservation has a large assortment of tree varieties available for planting on the farm .They have many species of hardwoods and also species of pine trees suited to Kentucky conditions.

Mr. Jackson is planning to be at Independence Tuesday, March 11th. Call county agent's office at Independence 194 for details of the time of meeting.

Dairy Feeding Schools

Dairymen in several parts of the county are arranging for feeding schools. A study is made of improved feeding practices, balancing the ration of the dairy cow based on the feeds produced on the farm. See your county agent at Independence and learn how to have a feeding school in your section.

Sheep Prducers to Meet in March

According to S. W. Durr, chairman of the wool growers, plans are being made for a meeting of sheep producers at Independence Court house Monday, March 17th at 1:30 p. m. More information about the meeting will be given in next week's Kenton Farm News.

NAGGING BACKACHE

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion (chill or cold, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS

All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, ask your neighbor!

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbances sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

NATIONAL DEFENSE AND CCC ENROLLEES

ing class. A boy who wihes to become a truck driver and who shows ability along this line is started out as an under study and advances until he reaches the top grade, if he proves himself worthy and capable of such promotion.

There are usually one or two tractor drivers, two mechanics, ten members of surveying crews and draftsmen, five clerks and property keepers, one filling station operator, cooks, bakers medica assistants and other specialized types of workers in each erosion control camp. In addition, there is a group who- serve as sub foremen, known as leaders and assistant leaders.

"The question has come up many times recently as to what the CCC is doing toward National Defense," Darnell said. "No military training is given. All of the boys more than 21 years of age, however, are registered for the Selective Service, just the same as if they were not in camp. They will report for duty in the Army as soon as their numbers are called.

"When CCC boys go into the Army, according to opinions of Army officers, they will make far better soldiers than if they had never been enrolled in a camp. They have been vaccinated and have been put through the toughening up process so necessary for a soldier before he can be trained to fight. They have learned to to live together and work together. In other words, these boys have had their elementary training if they are drafted into the Army.

"The CCC is preparing young men for National Defense, however, in many ways beside make them physically and temperamentally fit. The training they receive in skills of vital non-combatant value may be an important part of the defense program. There is only a step between being a driver of a large crawler type tractor and the driver of an army tank. The boy who can be trusted to drive a truck in convoy and haul his fellow enrollees in the field can be held responsible for driving a truck to haul men and material in the Army. He would also make a good driver for an armored car.

"An enrollee who can tear a tractor apart and put it back together again might make a very handy man to have around when a tank breaks down on the battlefield. A boy that has been trained in the fundamentals of surveying and drafting can make military sketches with little additional training. Visitors who have eaten the grub in a CCC camp agree that many of the enrollee cooks would be a blessing to the company mess of some Army unit. These are but a few of the skills taught CCC boys that are preparing them to do their part toward the nation's defense."

In all cases the work training received on the job is supplemented with class room instruction that gives the essential "book learning" necessary to make the boys effective in their particular line. Some of the jobs require more theoretical training than others. The surveying crews, draftsmen, clerks and bookkeepers must spend some time studying mathematics. Other boys are taught elementary chemistry, dietetics, first aid and many other subjects. All illiterates are taught to read and write.

"Most of the boys who graduate from the camps get a job at the time they leave the camp, or soon thereafter," Darnell reported. "There are some, however, who go back hom to the farm. These b oys also find that their training in camp has been highly beneficial because soil conservation is one of the things all of the boys are taught thoroughly."

Mrs. Nelson Wilson called on Mrs. Harry Davis Sunday.

Miss Evelyn Kemper passed Sunday afternoon with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bradney and aunt, Miss Emma Kemper.

Russell Brock, who spent the past week with his aunt, Mrs. Daisy Kemper, returned to his home near Elliston Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Morgan, of Owen county, called on her aunt, Mrs. J. M. Devon, and Mr. Devon Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Dud Webster and family moved last week from the farm of Miss Emma Kemper to the farm of Sam Sullivan, of Craig's Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Luke Davis moved to the place vacated by Mr. Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Kemper were recent guests of his aunt, Mrs. Lutheria Slaughter, who is quite ill at the home of her adopted daughter in Lexington.

In a recent letter to her sister, Mrs. F. M. Bradney, Mrs. Myrtie Westover, of Morning View, states that she, her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Sebree, have recently returned from a trip through the West, where they visited relatives and points of interest in Missouri, Texas, Arizona, California and several other states. Mrs. Sebree will be remembered by her many friends here as Miss Anna Mae Westover.

W.-V. Wins 33rd Dist. Basketball Tournament

Before a near capacity crowd the Walton-Verona high school Bearcats eked out a 25-24 win over the Hamilton Farmers last Saturday night to win the 33rd District basketball crown, on the local hardwood. The game was a thriller from start to finish. Walton led at the end of the first quarter, 4-1; at the half the score was tied at 12-12, and at the close of the third period, the count was knotted 20-20. In the final quarter the Bearcats acquired a 6-point lead, but the Farmers whittled this down to 1 point, but with les than one minute to play, could get no farther, and the Cats were the winners.

In the preliminary game, between the second teams of the same schools, the fans were treated to a tilt, almost equal in thrills to that of their "big brothers," when the local reserves cut down their opponents 30-21 to win the Junior title. The first quarter ended in a 9-9 tie; at the half Walton-Verona was in front 19-12, and as the final quarter got under way they were still on top, 24-16.

The box scores of the two final games follow:

The tournament got under way last Wednesday night, with the first night's results being as follows: W-V.'s second team defeated the Hebron reserves 26-25, with Mayhugh being top scores with 11 points. Hamilton's reserves bested the New Haven second stringers 32--15, with Kite flying high, tallying 21 points. The only first team game of the evening saw Burlington whip Hebron 39-22. Porter was top scorre for the winners with 20 points. Burlington led at the half 15-13.

Thursday evening the curtain was raised with the meeting of the Burlington and Walton second teams. With Mayhugh tossing through 21 points, the locals had little trouble winning 35-26. The Florence and Hamilton reserves met next, with the junior Farmers landing on top 32-25. Ryle led the scorers with 10 points. The first stringers of New Haven and Florence put on a thrilling climax to the evening's show with N. H. coming through in the last minute of play to grab a 47-46 win. Florence was in front 23-21 at the half. Shields tossed in 20 points for the winners, and Shotwell tallied 17 for the losers.

Friday night, Hamilton's Farmers won a tight and exciting game from Burlington 41-37. Hamilton was in front 20-12 at the half.Williamson, the Hamilton act, scorched the nets to the tune of 32 points. Huey was high for the losers with 14. The next contest pitted the Bearcats against New Haven, and the locals scored a 37-26 triumph. W.-V. was ahead at the half 17-8. Coyle and Pennington divided 16 points for the winners, and Judge was high for the losers with 7.

There were two casualties during the meet. Day of New Haven sprained an ankle Thursday nite in the Florence game ,and Porter of Burlington, fractured three ribs in the Hamilton tussle Friday nite.

The Allen Supply Co. are the new owners.

NURSING COMMITTEE MEETS AT WALTON

The Nursing Activities Committee of the Boone County Chapter of the American Red Cross met Monday, March 3rd, at the home of Mrs. Lula E. Huey, Walton, for its regular monthly meeting. The report of Miss Elizabeth C. Lowry, Red Cross County Nurse, was read and approved. The Blue Ribbon Program is now in full swing in Boone county schools and the Nursing Committee is looking forward to presenting Blue Ribbons to many Boone county school children at the 4-H Fair in the fall. Besides the hostess and Miss Lowry, other committee members present were Mrs. J. Kirtley Cropper, of Burlington; Miss Lucy Lee Grant, of Bullitsvile; Mrs. Jane Utz, of Florence, and Rev. J. Russell Cross, Chairman of the County Chapter.

Project Leaders Attend Rug Class

A class for major project leaders of Boone County Homemakers Clubs, was conducted by Miss Vivian Cornutt, specialist of the University of Kentucky at the Court House in Burlington Tuesday. The lesson was the fourth of a series in "Rug Making" and dealt with the construction of braided rugs and mats. Twenty-two leaders from twelve clubs attended.

Interesting designs in hooked mats and rugs were displayed as evidence of application of the previous lessons Miss Cornutt had presented. The designs were original and had been carefully worked up in tints and shades from the dye-pot. The leaders reported interesting things done by members of their clubs. They will present the lesson on braided rugs before local groups this month.

NEW HAVEN P.-T. A. ELECTS OFFICERS

The New Haven P.-T. A. held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night, March 4. The main business feature of the evening was the election of officers for another year. Those elected were: President, Mrs. Irvin Rouse; vice president, Mrs. Harold Weaver; secretary, Mrs. John Masters; treasurer, Mrs. Ina Presser. Also Mrs. Alva Dickerson was re-elected to serve in the school kichen and lunch room.

In behalf of the members of the P.-T. A. I wish to commend the present officers and Miss Alva for their most effficient work for the past year.

The P.-T. A. feels that its objectives set forth at the beginning o fthe year have been accomplished. Some of the objectives are: The Frigidaire has been paid for, new books for the library and equipment for the science department have been bought, and the purchasing of a new cyclorama for the stage, which is now under way.

We feel that New Haven school is making rapid progress under the able supervision of our principal, Mr. Masters. Another year Mr. Masters expects to add to our school a commercial department. This will mean for New Haven students a complete commercial course. Mr. Masters asked for the full support of the P.-T. A. in getting this course for our school. The P.-T. A. in turn asks for the support of each New Haven parent. Will you give it to us?—Pubicity Chairman.

BUSINESS CHANGES HANDS

Last week the T. W. Spinks Co. of Russell St., Covington, was purchased by the employees of the company.

Jerry Wilde ,former president of the Moores-Carey Co., Cincinnati, and the Allen Supply Co. of Newport, and vice president and general manager of the Spinks Co. will head this new concern, having resigned from the former companies. Associated with Mr. Wilde will be F. B. Sandford, who has been assistant general manager of the T. W. Spinks Co. for the past 18 years; N. F. Chapman, Lee J. Droege, Edwin M. Culbertson and T. A. Hanaver, Jr., well known northern Kentucky citizens.

This newly formed organization will continue to handle the same commodities as in the past; the old and new customers will find the same friendly and helpful services as in years past.

Literary Club Holds March Meeting

The Walton Woman's Literary Club was delightfully entertained for the March meeting in the home of Rev. and Mrs. James H. Talley.

After a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. A. H. Gaines,"the program leader, Mrs. Clayton Jones, presented a youthful guest, Miss Evelyn Coffman, who entertained the club members and guests with a reading, having been invited by Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, who has been ill, to substitute for her for a musical number listed on the program.

The only other number on the program was a well given book review by Mrs. J. R. Conrad. The book — Let the Earth Speak, by Ann Stewart.

Ann Stewart is a resident of Boone county, and this fact made the review especially interesting to the group. After the adjournment a delicious refreshment course was served by the hostess to Mrs. J .C. Bedinger, Mrs. A. H. Gaines, Mrs. Olivia Willis, Mrs. Ora Frye, Mrs. Lotta Powers, Mrs. C. Scott Chambers, Mrs. Howard Stephenson, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. John L. Vest, Mrs. S. B. Sleet, Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mrs. Clinton Blankenbaker, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. Grover Ransom, Mrs. Lula Huey, Mrs. John Myers, Mrs. J. L. Hamilton, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Miss Evelyn Coffman, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. A. V. Cornelius and the hostess, Mrs. Talley.

The officials are to be "Chippy" Cain of Cincinnati and Robert Stith of Louisville.

LAURA CARPENTER DIES MARCH 8

Laura E. Carpenter, 66, of Florence, passed away suddenly Saturday morning, March 8, from arterio sclerosis. She was born in Boone county and was a member of the Christian church.

Funeral services were conducted by th eRev. Robt. Carter from the Florence Christian church on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial was in the Hopeful cemetery, near Florence.

The deceased is survived by her husband, C. W. Carpenter; three sons, Dan, Elmer and James Carpenter; two sisters, and three grandchildren.

Chambers & Grubbs, Walton, had charge of funeral arrangements.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

After making their debut in the District Tournament, the Walton-Verona basketball teams accompanied by their coach, cheer leaders and special guests, met at Stephens' restaurant to celebrate in a surprise party given by Mrs. N. T. Welsh for her son, Lawrence, on his 16th birthday.

Following the proper exercises given to Mr. Welsr, ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. Welsh and Mrs. Stephens.

Many practical jokes were played and finally all settled down to hear some piano selections by Mr. Warren E. Lammers, talented pianist, formerly of Cincinnati.

After many hearty wishes for more birthdays like Lawrence's, each one trudged home with a light heart and happy smile.

GUERNSEY SOLD TO HEILE

Newport, Ky. — The American Guernsey Cattle Club, Petersborough, N. H., reports the sale of a registered Guernsey bull by Geo. B. Moock to T. F. Heile, of Walton, Ky. This animal is Motto's Ferdinand, 296432.

GEORGE WESLEY MURPHY PASSES IN NEW YORK

Word was received here from Mrs. H. R. Morris, a relative, in Covington, of the sudden passing of Wesley Murphy, who died on March 2 at Brooklyn, N. Y., from a heart attack following pneumonia. Mr. Murphy was a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Murphy. and was about 50 years of age. He was reared in Walton, leaving after he finished school to accept a position elsewhere.

He leaves a devoted mother, Mrs. Eva Murphy, and a sister, Mrs. G. J. Grubbs, Coral Gables, Fla. His father and sister, Mrs. Nell Dixon, passed away several years ago here at Walton.

Many friends of the family here extend sympathy to the bereaved ones at this time.

Simpson county will have a sheep protective association if 2,000 sheep can be signed.

ASS'T. SCOUTMASTER LEAVES FOR ARMY

Albert L. Denton, Assistant Scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop No. 128, Richwood and Union, left last week for army service. Mr. Denton is a private in Battery C, 103rd Special Batallion, Coast Guard Aaircraft. He is stationed at Fort Sheridan, Ill.

A few days before Mr. Denton left, the boys in Troop 128 gave a surprise party for him at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robinson, Richwood.

A pleasant evening of music, games, contests, etc., was enjoyed, at th conclusion of which Patrol Leaders Ben Perry Tanner and Walter Ferguson, Jr., expressed the Troop's appreciation of Mr. Denton's assistant scoutmastership. Before leaving Scoutmaster Cross and all the Scouts joined Mr. Denton in repeating the Scout oath: "On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country; to help other people at all times; to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Miss Linde Bush,, of Greenup St., Covington, celebrated her birthday Wednesday with a family dinner at 5:30 o'clock.

Covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. Pascal Bush, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bush and daughter, Miss Ora Violet of Walton, Mr. and Mrs .Ed Mann of Whites Tower, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Penick, of Sherman, and Miss Ora Bush, nurse at St. Elizabeth Hospital for the past 20 years.

A most enjoyable evening was spent together.

Local Red Cross Chapter Honored

Rev .J. Russell Cross, Chairman of the Boone County Chapter of the American National Red Cross, has been notified that the Boone County Chapter has been awarded a certificate for Distinguished Achievement in the Annual Roll Call for 1941. Rev. Cross says that the credit for this award rightfully belongs to the loyal and faithful workers in the local chapter without whom the Roll Call could not have been the success that it was. To the 34 workers in the various precincts Mr. Cross has mailed a "Thank you" card from the American National Red Cross and the Boone County Chapter signed by Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the Red Cross; Norman H. Davi, Chairman Central Committee and by himself as the Chairman of the local chapter.

LOCAL FARMERS TO GROW TOB. SEED

L. W. Rogers of Belleview, Andy Cook and Sons of Petersburg and Charles L. Mempfling, of Taylorsport, are planning to grow a limited amount of Experimen Station No. 33 tobacco seed for sale in 1942. A small amount of seed was recently secured for these growers direct from the Experiment Stataion to produce the 1942 seed crop, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent.

Experiment Station No. 33 variety is especially for the growers in the river bottom sections who are having losses in their growing crops from Fusarium Wilt. This disease attacks the plant on one side killing that side of the plant and sometimes the whole plant. Experiment Station No. 33 is a proven good variety but is no better in quality than other commonly grown varieties. It is not recommended for hill land where growers are not having trouble from wilt.

Welfare Ass'n to Be Permanent Organi't'n

The Community Welfare Association will meet Friday, March 28, at 7 p. m. in the office of Mr. John L. Vest. For the past weeks the association has only had a working organization which was to function until April 1st. If interest demanded it a permanent organization would be set up at that time. The splendid response surely has shown without mistake the interest that the community has in this fine work. The major purpose of the meeting on the 28th will be to complete plans and establish the permanent organization.

In the meantime we urge all groups that desire to be represented on this board and have a part in the work of this organization to please duly elect or appoint someone to be your official representative. That will make them automatically a member of the welfare board of directors, and of course will represent your group in all matters pertaining to the work of the association.

CHURCH SOCIETY TO MEET SATURDAY

The local department of the Woman's Society of Christian Service will meet at the Methodist church Saturday in an all day meeting. If you became a charter member of the W. S. C. S. you are also in this department. All members and friends are urged to be present.

RYLAND HOME-MAKERS MEET

Mrs. Harry Caldwell entertained members of the Ryland Homemakers Club at her home at Visalia Tuesday, March 4th.

The business session was called to order by Mrs. Wm. Dickman, president of the club. The members present responded to the roll call with short talks about the flag of the United States.

The secretary, Mrs. Oliver Gee, gave her report, including the report of the rummage sale held recently in Covington.

Members made arrangements to attend the District Federation meeting of Homemakers to be held at Maysville April 29th.

In the afternoon the lesson on style trends for the coming spring season was given by Mrs. Godfrey Miller, aided by Mrs. Alfred Rich.

Mrs. Miller told how the Army and Navy greatly influenced the styles and colors of clothes of the coming season. Movies, too, have had their influence on these modes.

One important factor influencing the popular colors of this season is the desire of people of the United States to create a more friendly feeling toward their South American neighbors.

And the same desire is apparent in the popular beige shade and other colors native to Mexico. Thus, indirectly, the women of the United States again aid in the National Defense Program.

Mrs. Oliver Gee gave the lesson on nutrition, the main project of the year. This was a study of the importance of vitamin C to the proper functioning of the body, in what foods it is most abundant, and the diseases and ailments caused by a deficiency of it.

Members discussed changes made in the preparation, labeling and grading of food stuffs on our grocer's shelves, since the outbreak of the war in Europe.

Those enjoying the lovely luncheon and activities of the day were: Mrs. W. B. LaMaster, Mrs. Godfrey Miller, Mrs. Wm. Dickman, Mrs. Alfred Rich, Mrs. Wm. Mendenhall, Mrs. Mary Threlkeld, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, Mrs. Edwaid Houser, Mrs. Clarence Armstrong, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. John Murchison, Mrs. Oliver Gee, Miss Zelma Byerly, Home Demonstration Agent; Mrs. Harry Caldwell and her guest, Mrs. Berney.

The group will gather next month at the home of Mrs. Mary Threlkeld at Visalia, for their meeting.

Economic Highlights

The attention of the public at large remains focused on Europe's war — but the eyes of a good many experts are watching the Far East. For, these experts think, there is almost no possibility of our going to war in Europe in the near future. But there is a very definite possibility that we may engage in hostilities with Japan.

This government's attitude toward Nippon has been undergoing important changes. As the United States News puts it, "Attempted appeasement of the Japanese finally is ended. The United States, here after, will refuse to be frightened by statements out of Tokio. Vital American interests in the Philippines and in the Dutch East Indies and British Malaya are not to be sacrificed without an effort to defend them. If Japan presses ahead with her present plans in the face of American opposition she must expect war."

Japan means to dominate the Pacific. Her statesmen have said that all of Oceania must be brought within her sphere of influence. Some feel that, as an Axis partner, she intends to make an attempt on Singapore. She is a definite threat to Australia and New Zealand. She has outflanked the Philippines, and she is making angry faces at French Indo China. And she threatens our supplies of rubber, tin and tea.

Evidence of Washington's stiffened policy is found in the almost unanimous House vote in favor of a measure to fortify Guam. Not long ago, a similar proposal was easily defeated. Japan has said that fortifying Guam would be a warlike act. Chief of Naval Operations Stark told Congress that Japanese objections should be "totally disregarded."

If we should go to war with Japan, it is clear that the campaign would have two phases. First, and perhaps most important would be the economic phase. Of all first class powers, Japan is the weakest economically. She must import or die. And most of her imports come from us. We have embargoed sales to Japan of machine tools, aviation gasoline and some grades of scrap iron. But she has been buying increasing quantities of our crude oil, cotton, machinery, timber and other commodities.

Second step in economic war against Japan, after the embargo, would be a boycott on imports. Japan's great cash crop is silk. We now buy three-quarters o f all her silk production. If we refused to buy from her, her economy would be terribly shaken.

According to the U. S. News, if both Britain and the U. S. were to join in the embargo and the boycott, Japan would find hat the source of 75 per cent of her vital supplies was closed to her, and that the market for 75 per cent of her produce was also gone.

It is apparent that the economic weapon could be used against Japan without formality of going to war. However, the experts believe that this would simply make war inevitable, in that Japan would have to turn elsewhere for supplies and markets and that she would have to use military force to get them. If, for instance, we refused to longer sell her oil, her logical move would be seizure of the oil-rich Dutch islands.

From the strictly military point of view, our naval authorities have good reason for believing we could defeat Japan in combat. Our fleet is larger, has greater fire power, and is considered far more efficient. Japanese cities are extraordinarily vulnerable to attack. Our fleet has the finest and largest carrier-based air force in existence. We could blockade Japan—but Japan could not blockade us. W could go on indefinitely without imports. Japan could not. And Japanese resources —and, some say, Japanese civilian morale— have been worn thin by the long drawn out war in China.

In the event of naval war with Japan, it would be logical for us to use the British base at Singapore. Our own nearest major naval base, Pearl Harbor, is over 5,000 miles from Manila. The Manila base, Cavete, is not yet of formidable dimensions. It is considerably certain that the British would welcome our fleet to Singapore with open arms.

Japan would go to war with us under heavy handicaps. That being true, would she take the chance of forcing us to fight? The answer to that is difficult. Eastern ways are not Western ways. Japanese samurai tradition is something that is utterly alien to us. A real Japanese thinks little of death and disaster—he prefers it to losing face. Some who have studied the Japanese character believe it is not unlikely that Japan might attack us, even though she knew she was certain to lose, in a grand suicidal gesture.

Reports from the highest sources say that Mussolini is virtually Hitler's prisoner. The Gestapo is in Italy. German officials are in key positions in all departments of the Italian government, including the War Office.

No matter how the war ends, Mussolini must lost. He must take Hitler's orders if Germany wins—he will have to accept harsh British peace terms if Churchill's legions win. And, in the meantime, reporters who have left Italy say that anti-Fascist sentiment among the people grows by leaps and bounds.

Washington Snapshots
by JAMES PRESTON

Some of those who heard Sidney Hillman using figures to "prove" to the House Judiciary Committee that the defense industry strike situation is "all right," wondered if he knew the following story:

A social minded newspaper publisher decided to have a statistical study made of housing facilities in a large city to see how living accommodations could be improved. He wired a statistician outlining the study, offering $1,500 for the job ,and asking a telegraphed reply. The statistician wired back:

"Offer accepted. What do you want the figures to prove?"

Those who recalled that story were not indicting all statisticians, nor accusing Hillman of distorting figures or of misinforming the committee.

Some of them remembered ,at the same time, that Hillman is still drawing his salary as head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and that his statistician is Isadore Lubin, who probably is as fair as any other figure-fiddler in government service but who has worked closely with labor for years and now draws his pay from the Department of Labor.

The day Hillman testified that labor had a "remarkable record" 20 defense industries were tied up by strikes. The day before there were only 18, the week before, 10; and a month before only 6. Something caused the increase in numbers. Hillman did not say what.

However strong his intention to be honest, Hillman did a peculiar thing with his figures, through omission or oversight. He showed that the man-days of work lost in defense industries in 1940 were only a small percentage of man-days worked.

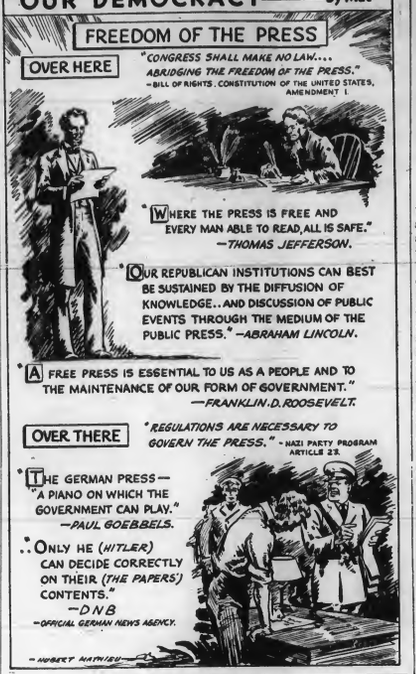
But he didn't tell the committee how those percentages for 1940 compared with percentages for 1939. Nor did he say how many days of lost work the percentages actually represented.

The committee was never able to establish very clearly, either, what effect the actual strikes had on related industries. For example, the day after Hillman testified, several automobile companies who have defense contracts prepared to shut down because a strike kept another company from turning out necesaary automobile wheels.

New Washington Wisecrack: "People used to talk about the government's blank checks; now they know they are blank notes, on which money is paid out now and will be collected (in taxes) later. How much later? Much later."

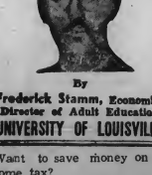
The first special investigation of defense is about to begin. It is under the chairmanship of Senator Truman of Missouri who complains that his state has not had its share of defense business.

Doubtless government officers who placed the contracts will explain to Truman. But their private explanation up to now is that there just weren't many plants in Missouri with equipment needed to turn out tanks or airplanes or bombs or rifles. Since it would take too long to build them, the government has placed its contracts where the facilities already exist.



If Truman expects to find (he doesn't say that he does) evidence of "profiteering" on defense contracts, he is in for a surprise, too. Assistant Secrtary Patterson of the War Department told a House Military committee that profits on his department's munitions purchases were far below permissible maxima.

Now Rep. Vinson of Georgia tells the House that the Navy has a remarkable record in its Bureau of Yards and Docks. In 1939, that Bureau could grant fees amounting to 10 per cent; in three contracts totaling $54,900,000, the average fee was 5.72 per cent. In 1940, the law allowed 6 per cent, but $350,800,000 worth of contracts carried fees of only 4.57 per cent.



The Navy Bureau deserves commendation—and the men who took the contracts could hardly be described as "profiteers."

New Speed Record: The House took only 16 minutes to pass 17 bills.

Money Talks

Want to save money on your income tax?

To save money is simply to know all the deducations to which your are entitled. Before pointing out some of the deductions that many people overlook, let me remind you that every single person receiving a total yearly income of $800 or over and every married person receiving a total yearly income of $2,000 or over must file a return, even though he pays no tax. And remember, these returns must be in by March 15.

Now for some deductions. First, taxes. You can deduct all state, county and city real and personal property taxes, state income taxes, gasoline taxes in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia, and amusement taxes. You may also deduct automobile license fees and driver's license fees. You cannot, however, deduct Federal income tax paid last year.

If you are a lawyer, dentist, dotor or clergyman, you may deduct dues to professional societies, cost of professional journals and depreciation on your library.

Clergymen may deduct automobile expense when automobile is used for official duties and also traveling expenses to church conventions. Lawyers, dentists and doctors may deduct traveling expenses to professional meetings as may teachers.

Workingmen may deduct labor union dues. Policemen and firemen may deduct cost of rubber coats, boots, helmets, etc., which are necessary in the performance of duty. We can all deduct the interest we pay on loans and contributions made to religious and charitable institutions.

Business and professional men may deduct all business costs including bad debts, depreciation, and all repairs to business property.

And do not forget to take off the 10 per cent earned income deduction allowed all wage earners. This is the deduction most overlooked and a large one, too.

There may be many more deductions to which you are entitled. There are a number o inexpensive books published on this subject which should help you prepare your tax return and also save you money by informing you of all your allowable deductions.

And, above all, be sure and file your return on time!

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

The Teachers' Institute

Ever since the teachers' institute became a lost institution in our state, I have wanted to place a small wreat h on the grave of what used to be a great thing. When it was a present reality, it often seemed cheap and sometimes unnecessary. It was itself an institution of long background, a remnant of a time when the institute really tried to teach people how to teach. Long before my time I fear that it had lost most of this aspect and was a week in which the local teachers lamely spoke on subjects a mile above their heads and a hired instructor or two worked off on us a supply of stale jokes and staler pedagogy. The institute lasted long enough for me to have my own fling as an instructor; I held six in my own right and did my share of boring people who could not run away. Besides, I visited many, many others in the capacity of worker for my college, largely in the days when public education was having a hard time overcoming local prejudics and private-school jealousles. In the year that I visited institutes I came to know many speakers, from some of the best I ever heard to the world's worst. I also came to know many teachers in all parts of the state, some that know only what was contained in the eighth-grade books and others that were downright scholars who taught in the one-room schools through choice or necessity. Not to have gone through these experiences would have taken away one of the most basic phases of my education.

Today as I turned through some dusty old diaries of mine, I found the complete program of an institute that I attened when I was teaching my second school. About that time there was a book on pedagogy on the market that talked glibly about "percepts" and "concepts." I notice that the very first talk was on "Perception," not the ordinary kind but the pedagogical variety then in vogue. One talk was on "The Chief Business of the School in the Formation of Concepts." My, how big that sounded, almost as big as the later "motivation," or "activities," or "social situations." There were exactly 59 such speeches during the five days. We were gluttons for punishment in those days. We had paid our dollar and were getting its worth in intellectual growth. Seriously, we profited considerably from these rambling and multitudinous talks.

It has interested me to see what I was talking about in these free-for-alls. On Monday I shared with another teacher the topic "Application of General Notions" some abstruse 'phychological thing, I suppose. Since I had not then studied the subject, I fear I I made a mess of it. On Tuesday I spoke on "The Study Period," of which I may have known a little more, though I had taught only one very small country school. My last appearance was on Thursday, when I spoke on "The Science of Sanitation." I cannot begin to recall what I said or was even supposed to say, for it was all pretty much a matter of repeating platitudes, I fear. Whatever I said about sanitation, I know, had no direct affect on my little school room or its execrable outbuildings. We had the good old germ-proof water bucket and the leaky dipper, but I do recall that I would not allow the children to spit on the floor. Signs in waiting rooms in those days read: "If you spit on the floor at home, please do so here; we want you to feel at home." I am sure that I was hardly that liberal in my school.

We who had brass, with or without brains, did a lot of speaking in those days. Any subject was our meat. We had gone to public or private schools where debating was the one great outside activity. We did not know a forward pass from a field goal, but we could down the best in parliamentary law. And we spread on the elocution that we had learned from books or from the million contemporary word-slingers.

Kenton Farm News

Farm Plans To Be Filled By April 15

The final date for filing 1941 farm plans, indicating that the farm operator will participate in the Agricultural Conservation Program this year, will be April 15, Geo. A. Eubanks, chairman of the Kenton County Agricultural Conservation Association announced today.

Approximately 772 plans giving general information on the farmrs' cropping practices this year have already been completed for farmers receiving conservation materials, such as lime, phosphate and seeds, for use in the 1941 program, Mr. Eubanks said.

While those farmers have indicated their intention to participate in the program, Mr. Eubanks pointed out that many other farmers carrying out practices for credit in the program have not completed farm plans for the year. Any farmer who is in doubt about whether his 1941 plan is on file, should inquire at the county office within the next few weeks.

A copy of each farmer's plan, showing farm allotments, rates of payment and information about practices, will be available to him for use in planning operations according to good farm management principles.

With these plans Kenton county farmers will be able to obtain the greatest benefit from participation in the 1941 program. Farmers are urged to talk over their conservation practices with the county and community committeemen so that they may obtain the maximum assistance available through the county office.

4-H CLUB POINTERS FOR MARCH

(1). Break the ground for the garden if it has not been broken.

(2). Prepare seed by thoroughly disking the ground and then dragging it smooth.

(3). Fertilize. In addition to manure apply a complete fertilizer (4-8-8 or 5-10-5). 200 pounds of the complete fertilizer is enough for a garden 100 feet square. If 20 per cent superphosphate is used, apply 100 pounds for a garden 100 feet square. Broadcast this fertilizer after the land is plowed.

(4). Set — (a) asparagus (b) cabbage (c) rhubarb (d) onions.

(5). Plant — (a) radishes (b) turnips (c) mustard (d) spinach (e) lettuce (f) peas (g) kale.

4-H POULTRY POINTERS

(1). Clean the brooder house thoroughly. Scrub with boiling water to which 1 ounce of lye has been added to each gallon of water.

(2). Provide suitable feeders and watering utensils. Each chick should have one inch of feeder space during the first four or five weeks and two inches thereafter.

(3). Make arrangements for the chicks early, so that they can be delivered at a certain time. Beware of so called "Bargain Chicks" as they are usually the most expensive kind in the end.

(4). If you mix your own feed, be sure to use only feeds of good quality to make up the chick rations. Have feed in the hoppers in the brooder house ready for the chicks when they are put in the house.

4-H TOBACCO PROJECT

(1). Setrilize the tobacco plant bed. Burning destroys weed seeds disease organisms and insects near the surface of the ground. This allows the small tobacco plant to grow, as they cannot stand much competition with weeds.

(2). Provide at least 200 square feet of bed for each acre of tobacco set. Most growers prefer to have twice this amount.

(3). The amount of seed to sow is approximately half a level teaspoonful of sound, recleaned seed per hundred square feet of bed. An ounce of tobacco seed contains about twelve teaspoonsful, sufficient to sow 2,000 to 2,400 square feet of bed.

(4). Cover the tobacco seed very lightly. Tramping the bed with the feet is the best way to cover the seed.

(5). The tobacco cloth should be spread over the bed as soon as the seed is sown. Box the plant bed with boards as this will help keep out flea beetles and other insects which are troublesome. It also prevents the tobacco cotton from rotting so rapidly.

91 YEARS of PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

REGULAR THROUGH SERVICE TO NASHVILLE
ESTABLISHED OCT. 31, 1859

FOLLOWING the opening of stock subscription books, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company held its first stockholders' meeting in September, 1851, and moved into its first general office building at Bullitt and Main streets, Louisville, in October of that year. A year later, after several preliminary surveys, and with $3,828,700 in the treasury, the board of directors definitely ordered the line to Nashville located by way of Elizabethtown and Bowling Green, Ky.

Actual construction of the road was begun on May 2, 1853, but many difficulties were encountered—and six years elapsed before Louisville and Nashville were linked by rail.

As construction progressed, trains were run to the end of the line. Actually the first train was run in 1855 when the track had reached a point twelve and one half miles south of Louisville. That city subscribed its second million dollars to the venture in 1856, and proudly dedicated the L. & N.'s first freight and passenger station in 1858. . . . The first regular through passenger service between Louisville and Nashville began Oct. 31, 1859.

TODAY 7,000 stockholders own 1,170,000 shares of L. & N. stock and there are about an equal number of bondholders. The Company's investment in road and equipment is now 445 million dollars. It owns 942 locomotives, 53,000 freight cars, 700 passenger cars and 2,000 pieces of work equipment. . . . The ability and the purpose of this railroad to efficiently and courteously serve its patrons are at the highest levels in its history. It is ready and willing to handle all transportation business offered it, whether peace-time commerce or for national defense.

7,000 TO ATTEND BIG 3RD ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION AT NEW JAMES THEATRE

Just three years ago the New James Theatre opened its doors to the public and has enjoyed an ever increasing attendance ever since. This theatre specializes in getting all the big first class pictures that are made. The public has learned this one fact and do not throng to the big city as soon as a picture is released for showing. They know they can depend on seeing it at the James in a very short time after release date. We invite you to compare our pictures with any shows in the surrounding territory and see for yourself. The pictures selected for showing during this big celebration were picked from over 500 pictures and we believe we have made a fine selection, pictures of every kind to satisfy the most select critics. The first picture is "Dr. Kildare Goes Home," with Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayres. Everyone loves the grand old actor Lionel Barrymore and always look forward to seeing one of these series of productions. These pictures are not only entertaining, but educational as well. With this picture we know the big week will get off to a fine start.

On the second big night, which has always been our largest attendance on bargain night attractions, we find your favorite singing cowboy and comedian in their best production, "Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride," with Gene Aurty and Smiley Burnette. Remember all these shows are only 10 cents admission. You couldn't ask for more, could you? With this picture we also have the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys in second chapter of serial, "Junior G-Men." Here's one show you can't afford to miss. Come early for the first showing of same at 6:30 p. m. Second show at 8:15 p. m.

Who do we find playing on Tuesday night, March 18th? Wallace Beery, in his greatest role since "Min and Bill," co-starred with Leo Czrrillo, Ann Rutherford and Marjorie Main, the picture being "Wyoming." We don't mind telling you we feel this will be the greatest week in our 20 years of motion picture business. Each night we feel we have a better picture for you, but truthfully say we don't believe after you've seen them all you will know just which one you have enjoyed the most, because these pictures were selected especially for this one big occasion and everyone is an outstanding production.

The fourth night of our celebration is just getting under way and look — Li'l Abner for your evening of entertainment. The boy wonder of the comic pages and air waves and all his pals in a big feature production of ho-ho-hokum.

Everyone likes big historical western productions. Here we have the thundering epic drama of America's last fighting frontier. Ruthless as the outlaw code, dangerous as a loaded gun, lawless as the untamed wilderness, it's "Cherokee Strip," with Richard Dix, Andy Clyde, Florence Rice and William Henry.

Take off those Santa Claus whiskers because we know you've had a fine time up to now and looking forward to Christmas again, so on our sixth big night we give you "Christmas In July" with Dick Powell and Ellen Drew as the outstanding stars. It's hotter than a firecracker and merrier than Christmas. Here's a picture that you will really enjoy. We don't tell you we've saved the best picture to the last because we know they have all been good although we do say if you haven't seen any of these pictures or have seen them all, you still owe it to yourslf not to miss the outstanding picture of the year. Not since "Alexander's Ragtime Band" have you had an opportunity to see such a marvelous production. It's "Tin Pan Alley," with Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Jack Oakie and John Payne. Wouldn't you like to hear K-K-Katy, When You Wore a Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose, Moonlight Bay, Goodbye Broadway, Hello France, The Sheik of Araby, America, I Love You and the new song, You Say the Sweetest Things? Well, here's your chance to hear all these sung as only Alice Faye can sing them Saturday night, March 22nd. Remember, two shows every night this week at 6:30 and 8:15 p. m. Admission price for all these pictures is only 10 cents for everyone except Saturday nights— 10 and 22 cents. We ask you to cooperate with us by being present at the very beginning of the first show if possible so we may have a complete empty house for our second big crowd. We want to thank you for making this our biggest week in our 20 years of motion picture work and your splendid cooperation and interest in making this house one of the finest in Northern Kentucky. We always strive to give you the best at the least prices and it's only through your support that we can maintain this pledge. As we leave our third anniversary behind us in our new house we start right in again to make the future years in this business more entertaining and more enjoyable for you. Right here we want to mention just a few of the big pictures we have under contract to show here in the very near future, pictures that we know are good and everyone wants to see: "Maisie Was a Lady," "Moon Over Burma," "Come Live With Me," "The Letter," "Flight Command," "They Knew What They Wanted," "Comrade X," "Thief of Bagdad," "Arise My Love," "So End Our Night," "Back Street," "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," "Kitty Foyle," "Tobacco Road," "Ziegfeld Girl," "Virginia," "Northwest Mounted Police," "Love Thy Neighbor," "Arkansas Judge," "Barnyard Follies," "You'll Find Out," "Chad Hanna," "Santa Fe Trail," "Four Mothers," "High Sierra," "Strawberry Blonde," "Western Union," "Second Chorus," "Citizen Kane," "That Night In Rio," "The Flame From New Orleans."

These pictures will all enrich your lives and make your life more enjoyable and happy during these turbulent days. We ask you to see as many of them as possible. If you fail to receive one of our monthly calendars let us know and we will be glad to mail you one. Our weekly advertisements appear in the Walton Advertiser, Boone County Recorder and the daily Kentucky Post, and our telephone number is Walton 423, so it's mighty easy to find out what's playing here.

Corn King's Recipe for Success

SHELBYVILLE, IND.—There's no magic formula for winning the title of "Corn King" of North America. It's largely a matter of sound farm management and soil improvement, according to Charles N. Fischer, who was adjudged Grand Champion Corn Grower at the recent International Livestock Exposition in Chicago.

The 35-year old champion, who farms 80 acres near here, entered a 10-ear exhibit of open-pollinated yellow dent corn, which judges at the Chicago show pronounced one of the finest ever seen from the standpoint of quality, firmness of ears, plump kernels and all-around superiority.

Maintains Fertility.

The soil on which this prize-winning corn was produced yields an average of 75 to 80 bushels of corn per acre every year. Fischer is eternally vigilant about maintaining the fertility level. This he accomplishes by putting back into the soil the plant food elements removed by crops. He uses fertilizer, follows a crop rotation and grows legumes.

"I follow a three-year rotation which includes corn, wheat, clover and alfalfa," he said. "The clover is sown in the wheat. An application of 125 pounds per acre of a mixed fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash helps to provide nourishment for the crops. The crop rotation and fertilization program is augmented by regular applications of manure from our livestock to all our fields."

Results such as he has obtained are exceptional, the Middle West

Charles N. Fischer

Soil Improvement Committee points out, but experience has taught Fischer and millions of other Middle West farmers that by applying fertilizer they can be assured of an increased corn yield, better quality and higher prices at marketing time.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist. SHERIFF OF BOONE COUNTY

G. A.'s of Big Bone Baptist Church

The G. A.'s of the Big Bone Baptist church met at the home of their leader, Miss Clara Mae Hamilton in observance of the "Season of Prayer" Saturday, Mar. 8. A very delightful dinner was served at the noon hour, after which the girls were called together for a "Season of Prayer." We were very glad to welcome our visitor, Miss Billye Wilson, and we want to thank her for furnishing the transportation. The Lord bless thee and keep thee, The Lord make His face shine upon thee ,and be gracious unto thee: The Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace. Let this be the prayer of our hearts to our Home and Foreign Missionaries.

MORGANSVILLE

"Seek ye the Lord while He may be found."

Let each of us seek to attain the greatest of all awards which comes when the long day is ended. When we stand alone, unafraid and can hear the Master say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou the joys of the Lord."

"Life is real, life is earnest, and the grave is not its goal. Dust thou art, to dust returnest, was not spoken of the soul."

"Prayer makes God more real to us. If we are separated from a friend for years and never talk or write we are not apt to lose interest and seldom think of that friend. To people who do not pray are really giving up their friendship with God."

"If you want to be healed of your troubles and trials, do something for others and do it with smiles."

The public sale held recently at the residence of the late Daniel Hanrahan was well attended. To the regret of the entire community Mrs. Hanrahan has moved to Independence, to the residence of Mrs. Ed Mills. She is known by those privileged to come into her home for the beauty and kindness of her character and her thoughtful consideration and helpfulness for others. Kindness being an outstanding characteristic, she is loved by many friends for her amicable traits. As she descends the sunset slope, may her last days be her brightest and best.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. John Cross called on Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and sons, Marvin and Richard.

Mr. and Mrs. Reaves and sons, of near Butler, are warmly welcomed to this neighborhood and will reside with her mother, Mrs. Florence Hightower.

KNOW YOUR MONEY
And Avoid Loss Due to Counterfeits

TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC:

The United States Secret Service and your police wish you to KNOW YOUR MONEY, and through this nation-wide educational program aim to suppress the major crime of counterfeiting.

CHIEF WILSON

Observance of these few simple rules will safeguard the pocketbooks of the Nation. Therefore, I urge every person to carefully study the rules and to follow them.

The United States Secret Service is grateful for the whole-hearted cooperation which it has always enjoyed from your police officers, and we now solicit the assistance of every American citizen in this effort to prevent crime through this modern method of education, instead of the age-old method of prosecutions and imprisonment.

Chief, U. S. Secret Service.

HOW TO DETECT COUNTERFEIT BILLS

1. KNOW YOUR MONEY!

2. COMPARE the suspected bill with a genuine of the same type and denomination. Observe carefully the following features:

(a) PORTRAIT: Genuine is lifelike; stands out from oval background which is a fine screen of regular lines; notice particularly the eyes. The counterfeit is dull, smudgy, or unnaturally white; scratchy; background is dark with irregular and broken lines.

(b) SEAL: On genuine, sawtooth points around rim are identical and sharp. On counterfeit, sawtooth points are usually different; uneven; broken off.

(c) SERIAL NUMBERS: Genuine have distinctive style; firmly and evenly printed; same color as seal. Counterfeit, style different; poorly printed; badly spaced; uneven in appearance.

(d) PAPER: Genuine bills are printed on distinctive paper containing very small red and blue silk threads.

3. RUBBING a bill will NOT prove whether it is genuine or counterfeit; ink will rub off of either.

4. REMEMBER—NOT ALL STRANGERS ARE COUNTERFEITERS, BUT ALL COUNTERFEITERS ARE LIKELY TO BE STRANGERS.

TYPES OF CURRENCY

The only three types of currency printed by the United States Government for circulation are:

1. FEDERAL RESERVE NOTES, which bear GREEN serial numbers and seal.
2. UNITED STATES NOTES, which bear RED numbers and seal.
3. SILVER CERTIFICATES, which bear BLUE numbers and seal.

PORTRAITS

Denominations of bills may be identified by portraits, as follows:

WASHINGTON	on all	$1.00 bills
JEFFERSON	on all	$2.00 bills
LINCOLN	on all	$5.00 bills
HAMILTON	on all	$10.00 bills
JACKSON	on all	$20.00 bills
GRANT	on all	$50.00 bills
FRANKLIN	on all	$100.00 bills

STAFFORDSBURG

The Staffordsburg Homemakers Club met last Thursday at the home of Mrs Lee Faulkner, with Mrs. Faulkner as hostess and Mrs. Will Summery, co-hostess.

The club was called to order by the president, Mrs Earl Hanna, after which all joined in singing a couple of songs, and all repeated the Lord's prayer.

The minutes were read by the secretary and were approved as read. The treasurer then gave a report of what had been taken in the last two meetings.

Mrs. Stella Richardson then gave the shrubbery lesson which was very interesting as we are beginning to plant our shrubbery.

Mrs. Leslie Riley read a very impressive and intersting letter from the Red Cross for which the club has been doing some sewing for the British and all the memebrs of the club voted on doing some more sewing this next month, which we all know will be greatly appreciated.

After a delicious luncheon Mrs. Geo. Klevin and Mrs. J. A. Kinney gave a very helpful lesson on style trends. They gave us information on wearing our Spring hats and also said the dresses would be somewhat better in length.

Mrs. Mabel Vallandingham gave a very interesting lesson on the vitamin B and C in relation to health.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for March 16

THE LORD'S SUPPER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:14-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—As often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till he come.—I Corinthians 11:26.

Old things pass away, and new things take their place—such seems to be the law of life. That which is useful and greatly desired fulfills its time of service and is set aside for that which takes its place. The change which occurred in our lesson shared this aspect, but was in reality so vital and fundamental that it merits our closest attention.

The Passover feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood. But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in death, and He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance—the Lord's table, showing forth His death till He come.

I. The Last Passover (vv. 14-18).

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last feast of that kind recognized by God. All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the head of the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose and desire to the day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished, and He was to become our Passover (I Cor. 5:7).

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not in any sense minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden he faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt." Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12: 27), He said, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19, 20).

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover, which had just been observed by Him for the last time, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

As we have already suggested, it is a feast of remembrance. "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup ye do show the Lord's death till he come" (I Cor. 11:26). At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in remembering His death for them, and they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. In doing so they testify to the world that they believe in and cherish these truths.

This feast is also rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion, first of all with Him, and then with one another.

We also note that our Lord spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means "covenant." The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service. The Christian Church therefore speaks of the communion service as a sacrament, a word taken from the Latin "sacramentum," meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. Betrayal and Strife (vv. 21-30).

Someone will say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the feast of the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing—we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God.

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord. It is a sad and soul-searching fact which is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ.

What about the strife regarding position? Shame on us, for it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatest.

May the spirit of Christ get hold of some self-seeking Christian as he today sees Christ as the One whose body was broken and whose blood was shed for him.

Drinking Woman

Many thousands of women, in these post repeal years when drinking is temporarily fashionable to some, have climbed down off woman's age-old pedestal to clamber up on tavern bar stools.

Referring to this new drinking woman as Jane Barleycorn, the Anderson (South Carolina) Independent and Tribune wrote editorially:

This?

"Her old father, John Barleycorn, has been widely known for many years. . . .

"Nobody likes her. She makes an insufferable nuisance of herself. Her father, John, at least knows how to go about in dignity sometimes. In his more recent phase . . . he isn't as loud as he used to be.

"Jane Barleycorn, however, thinks it is smart to drink . . . To Jane's mind since drinking is smart, to get drunk seems even smarter and to make a nuisance of herself is the top of sophistication.

"Old John Barleycorn should spank his daughter. . . . A lot of people would like to spank her . . ."

Other writers, eyeing present conditions, have reminded women that early in the Middle Ages woman had achieved equality with men in business and social life. Then women invaded the taverns and went so far beyond men in embracing drunken and unsocial conduct that society revolted and built anew the restrictions which kept women imprisoned until the late Eighteenth Century.

Or This?

Declaring "Temperance a Vital Need," the Sault Ste. Marie (Michigan) News editorialized:

"The most rabid anti-prohibitionist will not loudly contend that the present situation with regards to liquor is satisfactory or is conducive to the greatest advancement, morality and prosperity of the people of America.

"The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, first and most persistent of the foes of alcohol, performs a distinct service to its country in pointing out, without ceasing, that we cannot drink ourselves into prosperity or happiness or sound citizenship."

Dayton Cops Reg'nal Cage Tournament

Saturday night at the Simon Kenton high school gym near Independence the Dayton High Greendevils defeated Newport's Wildcats 36-31 to win the right to represent the 9th Region in the State basketball tournament being held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, this week-end. In the first round, being played today, the Devils meet St. Xavier of Louisville, considered one of the better teams in the State meet.

To reach the finals Dayton had to defeat Lloyd of Erlanger and Hamilton and Newport had to conquer Covington and Bellevue.

The Hamilton Farmers, before bowing to Dayton, in a close game ,had eliminated Ludlow. The Farmers played good ball and are to be congratulated on their showing. Their pair of aces —Williamson and Miller— were good enough to win places on the all-tournament team.

Walton-Verona did not fare so well in the meet. They drew Bellevue in the first round and were defeated by the Tigers 31-24. The contest was close throughout, but the Tigers were on top most of the way. Paul Simpson of the Bearcats, was named on the all-tourney team.

Now that the season is over the basketballers can completely "unlax" and take life easy. With the possible exception of an occasional "scrub" baseball game or some other activity ,the boys can let their thoughts fondly turn to that which all young men think of in the spring—Ah, me!

"Save Shade Tree" Says Landscaper

"Save the Shade Trees" is the slogan to be adapted by the home landscaper during the early spring months, according to Mr. N. R. Elliott, specialist of the University of Kentucky. "Shade trees need practically no pruning, except occasional removal of dead or broken branchs." Decay usually starts in stubs that are left by ruthless pruning which may cause death to the tree.

Boone County Homemakers are receiving such instruction, as well as other timely information, from Mr. Elliott each month through their local landscape project leaders. They are interested in what can be done at small cost to make their home landscapes beautiful. Native shrubs and trees are being set and plans being made to utilize material at hand and the commercially procured stock to better advantage.

This month Mr. Elliott is cautioning "tree lovers" against mistreatment of valuable shade trees.

"There is already a scarcity of good trees in most communities and it certainly would be good policy to take care of these rather than have some one, who measures the effectiveness of his work by the amount of brush removed, to prune them. Practically every home, farm and community needs more good looking shade trees. Let's take care of those that we have and plant more for the future!" says the specialist.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

"Testing Mental Food for Purity" is the topic of the special program for Sunday evening, March 23, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

Meditation—

A THOUGHT

Master let me ever keep my stride with Thine along the way,
And may the cadence of our step
Forever hush the call of sin or base desire.
Give me to know and understand
That Thy faith, O Lord, gave me
My hope, my life through all eternity;
And to Thee—Calvary.

Piner School Notes

The regular meeting of the Piner elementary P.-T. A .was held at the school March 11. The business session was held, at which time the nominating committee reported. Officers for next year are to be elected at the regular April meeting. After the business session the program consisted of a piano solo by Wanda Bridges, followed by an intra-school basketball game. The boys that played were Logan Colston, Lee Landrum, Marvin Menefee, Elbert Landrum, Donald Ray Elliott, Kenneth Lawson, Owen Tungate, Marvin Huffman, Moreland Lawrence, Richard Kelly and Marion Collins.

At a recent spelling bee at the school Wendell Bridges was the winner. James Cross was second. Both well represent the school in the Kenton Co. Courler-Journal Spelling Bee.

The Glee Club is working hard as they are to present some musical numbers at the Flag and Bible presentation at the school on Sunday, March 23. Betty Sue Caldwell is to give a reading and a piano solo is to be rendered by Junior Crosthwaite. The flags and Bibles are being presented by Junior O. U. A. M. and the D. of A. The public is cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Moore, of Walton; Mr. and Mrs. Wright, of Walnut Hills, and Mr. and Mrs. L .C. Drake, of Cincinnati, were afternoon callers Sunday at L. A. Gardiner's.

Rev. John Roberts, of Walton, sold his property in Elsmere to Welborne Yearly, Cold Springs.

NOTICE

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church, will hold a bakery sale April 12 at the office of the Community Public Service Co.

They will have cakes, pies, dressed chickens, eggs, homemade bread, candy and other good things to eat.

PATSY ANITA DAVIS OF GLENCOE, PASSES

The body was removed to the Coates & Stewart funeral home and prepared for burial. Later the body was removed to the grandparents home near Poplar Grove. Funeral services were conducted from the Poplar Grove Baptist church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with burial in the Poplar Grove cemetery.

She leaves her father and mother and one small sister.

Goodridge-Nestor Nuptials Announced

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Dell Goodridge and Roy C. Nestor was solemnized at Florence, Ky., Sunday afternoon, Dec. 5, by Rev. Robert Carter. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Searcy, of Bellevue, Ky., were attendants. Mrs. Nestor is the daughter of Mrs. Virginia Goodridge and the late William Horace Goodridge. She is a graduate of the Florence High School, Villa Madonna Academy, and Bryant & Stratton School of Commerce, Louisville, Kentucky.

Mr. Nestor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nestor of Cincinnati and Higginsport, Ohio. He graduated from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and later attended the University of Cincinnati. He is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity and is now connected with the Railway Mail Service.

They will make their home in Florence, Kentucky.

WIFE OF PROMINENT GRANT FARMER TAKEN

Mrs. Nora Chipman, 44, Williamstown, Ky., wife of Omer Chipman, prominent Grant county farmer, died Friday at Christ Hospital, Cincinnati. She was a member of Salem Methodist church, Grant county.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Misses Anna Lou and Marietta Chipman; her mother, Mrs. Lena Ruholl; three sisters, Misses Catherine Anna and Georgia Ruholl, and two brothers, Francis and Joseph Ruholl.

Services were held Sunday at 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) in the Williamstown Methodist church. Burial was in the Williamstown cemetery. The Rev. W. H. Cardwell, former Walton pastor, preached the sermon.

MISS LACY MEETS WITH 4-H LEADERS

4-H club leaders in the county had the opportunity of meeting with Miss Edit h Lacy, from the State 4-H Staff, University of Kentucky, Thursday, March 7, at the Court House in Burlington.

Miss Lacy presented very practical suggestions for use of available material in carrying on work with girls enrolled in 4-H clothing projects. Illustrative material showing use of construction details in sewing was studied, latest "wrinkles" in hand made accessories were displayed and organization problems were discussed.

Kits containing literature, samples of materials, illustrative construction details and fashion sheets, are being assembled for the leaders and will be distributed this week.

4-H club girls are urged to get their work under way immediately in order to be ready for spring rally in May.

440 Farmers Make ACP Honor Roll

Four hundred and forty Boone county farmers made the 1940 Boone County Honor Roll by earning 100 per cent of their last year's Agricultural Conservation Program Soil Building Allowance, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The Honor Roll represents 38.5 per cent of the 1,138 farmers cooperating in the program.

The Honor Roll represents more than just earning 100 per cent of the soil building allowance. It represents 413 farmers using 9,182.3 tons of agricultural limestone and 563 farmers using 1,282,800 pounds of phosphate, a 25 per cent increase in the seeding of alfalfa and other soil building practices. The past year's total represents the largest amount and the largest increase of improved practices on record in the history of the county.

Farmers who have seen the benefits of these improved practices will continue to be soil improvement minded long after the 1940 program.

The 1941 A. C. P. soil building year closes June 30th. Every farmer in Boone county will profit by earning 100 per cent or more of his soil building practice allowance. This means there will be greater use of agricultural limestone, phosphate, and improved seeding practices. A farmer must sign up each year with the county A. C. P. Association before he is eligible for A. C. P. soil building benefits. April 15 is the last date for signing up. A few farmers have not signed to date. Those who have not should do so immediately. HAPPY HELPERS CLASS MEETS AT M. E. CHURCH

The Happy Helpers class met at the Methodist church for the regular monthly business and social meeting on Tuesday night. A covered dish dinner was enjoyed previous to the meeting. A nice sum was realized for the class from tithes brought in by the members present. Mr. Clay Myers is president of the class. There were 27 members and guests present, including children: Mr. and Mrs. Clay Myers, Rev. and Mrs. James H. Talley, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Lancaster, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Mrs. Grover C. Young, Mrs. Sue Stamper, Mrs. Livonia Northcutt, Mrs. Leslie Cooper, Mrs. Horace Johnson, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hall, Marie and Donnie Myers, Joe Stephenson, Miss Mills, Helen Stamper, Delbert Northcutt and Marlana Hall.

HOMEMAKERS OF VERONA MEET

The March meeting of members of the Verona Homemakers' Club took place on Friday, the 7th, at the home of Mrs. Jim Lamn for a session which was held all day and featured by interesting talks and luncheons. Mrs. O. K. Powers talked on Style Trends in Spring and Summer Fashions.

Mrs. Walter Renaker told about accessories and fabrics for Spring and Summer.

Mrs. Will McCormick gave lesson on braided rugs. All members joined in discussion on Demonstration Gardening.

Eleve nmembers answered roll call and three lady visitors, Mrs. John M. Boyer, Mrs. Walter Brown and Mrs. W. B. Stamper. Also several of the member's husbands were present. We miss our leader, Miss Mary Hood Gillaspie, who still remains ill.

We welcome a new member to our club, Mrs. John Boyer.

Our next meeting will be April 4 at Mrs. Walter Renaker's. Members are all urged to be present, and visitors are always welcome.

Roll call—Favorite Recipes.

Major project—Crochet Rugs.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Penn are sporting a new car.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winkle moved to Covington Monday.

CARPENTERS' SCHOOL TO BE HELD MAR. 27

The first Boone County Carpenters' School will be held at Burlington Court House next week, Thursday evening, 7:15 p. m., March 27, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. All carpenters and lumber dealers are invited to take part.

The meeting will be strictly for educational purposes for the improvemnt of farm buildings in the county. Plans, programs and blue prints for better farm buildings will be discussed by Jesse L. Brooks, agricultural engineer from the College of Agriculture, and leading carpenters and lumber dealers.

There are also many farmers who do a large part of their carpenter work. These men are also cordially invited to attend.

SECOND SERIES OF 4-H MEETINGS

Meetings are now being held in 10 4-H clubs in the county to complete enrollment and distribute record books, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. This is the second in a serles of eight meetings to be held in each club this year.

Preliminary enrollment figures indicate a large increase in enrollment from previous years. New members will be accepted at this second series of meetings which will probably increase enrollment still further.

Verona, Petersburg and Constance clubs have already completed these meetings. The coming schedule includes the following:

New Haven — Thursday, Mar. 20, 1:30 p. m .

Hebron — Friday, Mar. 21, 1:45 p. m .(C. S. T.)

Grant — Monday, Mar. 24, 8:15 a. m.

Burlington — Wednesday, Mar. 26, 9:15 a. m.

Hamilton — Wednesday, Mar. 26, 1:30 p. m.

Florence — Monday, Mar. 31, 11:45 a. m. (C. S. T.)

Walton — To be scheduled.

Well Known Florence Woman Passes

Mrs. Emma V. Rouse, 82 years of age, a resident of Florence for many years, passed away Friday at the home of her daughter, Dr. Glady Rouse, and Mr. Robert Rouse, where she had been the past few weeks. Every attention possible was given her in this last illness.

Services were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the Hopeful Lutheran church, burial in the Hopeful cemetery.

Rev. Ira A. Paternoster, Christian minister of Cincinnati, had charge of the services. Mrs. Rouse was a lovely Christian lady, a devoted mother, with a host of friends.

The floral pieces were many and beautiful.

Besides her daughter she leaves a son, Dr. W. J. Tanner, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; two granddaughters, the Misses Tanner, and one grandson, Robert Rouse, Jr., of Florence; one brother, Joseph Meyer, Richmond, Ky.

Dr. and Mrs .Tanner arrived in Florence a short time before his mother passed away.

SEASON OF PRAYER

The W. M. S. of Walton Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. R. E. Ryle March 6, for an all day meeting.

Splendid program on Home Missions rendered by members.

Members present were Mrs. Ed Hankinson, Mrs. John Noell, Mrs. D. K. Johnson, Mrs. F. E. Fisher, Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Mrs. Charles Montgomery, Mrs. Mattie Doubman, Mrs. John Fayan, Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Cecil Gaines, Mrs. Elnora Hodges, Mrs. Susie Norman, Mrs. Wm. Parker, Mrs. Levi Pennington, Mrs. T. W. Jones, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm ,Mrs. Cyrus Goodpaster ,Mrs. T. C. Mason, Mrs. Nell Hunt, Mrs. Bryan Rector and daughter, Mrs. A. K. Johnson, Mrs. B. W. Franks, Mrs. W. L. Sturgeon and Mrs. Ryle.

County 4-H Club Organization Complete

The organization of 4-H clubs in Boone county has been completed and at this time there is an enrollment of 373 in 10 clubs. Others are expected to join during the next few weeks as the work with projects gets nderway. Of this number 179 are girls enrolled in home economics projects.

Girls in clothing projects will begin work immediately on costumes for the annual county Style Revue and State Fair exhibits. While they sew they will study standards in clothing, preparatory for the clothing judging contest.

Food units have attraced many of the girls who will study the nutritional needs of the body, food preparation, and baking standards. A few will participate in the foods judging contest and will send exhibits to the State Fair.

Many girls will can vegetables and fruits from their farm gardens and some others will work with room improvement. Each member is required to carry a project under the direction of a local leader and to keep a record of the work she does, money spent, time consumed and estimates of morey saved.

Local volunteer leaders direct this project work in cooperation with the county Home Demonstration Agent. These leaders give much time and thought to this program and are to be praised for their achievements. Parents of club members must value 4-H as an opportunity for their children and encourage them to participate in all activities.

Community 4-H clubs will study "Citizenship" as outlined for the clubs throughout the State. Health, production of food on the farm for home use, safety, the good-neighbor attitude, and life on a give rather than a get basis —all these things and more are included in being good citizens is the belief of J. W. Whitehouse, State 4-H leader and members of his staff.

Mr. and Mrs .D. K. Johnson and daughter Neoma spent Sunday with their son Lloyd Johnson and family in Ft. Mitchell. In the afternoon they attended the band concert at Beechwood school. Jerry Johnson is a member of the band.

EXTENSION ASSOCIATION HOLDS PLANNING MEETING

The Boone County Extension Association held its annual planning at Burlington on February 27, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. The community and commodity programs planned were recommended by the committee. Additional projects were recommended to round out the 1941 planned programs.

DON'T BE A QUITTER!

"When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down
a bit,
Rest, if you must—but don't you quit.

"Life is queer with its twists and turns,
As very one of us sometimes learns,
And many a 'failure' turns about,
When he might have won had he stuck it out;
Don't give up, though the pace
seems slow;
You may succeed with another blow.

"Success is failure turned inside out—
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt—
And you never can tell how close you are:
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit—
It's when things seem worst that you must not quit."

Economic Highlights

Weeks ago opponents of the lease-lend bill admitted that their cause was lost. From the beginning, it was a certainty that the bill would go through. And so, when an irritable, debate-weary Senate finally voted on the bill on the evning of March 8, it came almost as an anti-climax. There was no excitement. Congress simply gave its formal approval to a fateful, far-reaching policy which had been established and decided in all basic essentials long ago.

The bill passed with comparatively little change. It gives the President powers which can be compared only to those conferred on Wilson during the World War. He is, in short, empowered to sell, transfer title to, lease, lend or otherwise dispose of any and all war materials to any powers whose defense he considers vital to the defense of the United States. The Senate added three more or less important amendments, all of them approved by the White House. One ends the authority of the President to enter into contracts, on June 30, 1943, and stipulates that all contracts must be fulfilled by July 1, 1946. Another limits orders for war materials to amounts which will later be authorized by Congress, and adds a stipulation that not more than $1,300,000,000 worth of war supplies now possessed by our Army and Navy can be transferred. The third requires the President to report to Congress on the progress on the program each 90 days.

Two much-publicized proposed amendments were beaten. One would have forbidden the President to allow the U. S. Navy to convoy supply ships abroad. As White House spokesmen pointed out, this meant little or nothing, inasmuch as the Constitution gives the President as Commander-in-Chief of all the military forces, almost unlimited authority over naval actions and policy, and it would take a Constitutional amendment to change that. The other amendment would have forbidden sending an A. E. F. to foreign lands without explicit Congressional approval. Administration leaders said this would weaken our foreign policy particularly in the Far East, by assuring our possible enemies that we would be unable to back up our talk with action. Congress concurred.

The vote did not divide strictly on party lines. The Democrats held their forces well in line — 49 voted for the bill, and but 13 against. The Republicans split. Seventeen said no. Ten voted yes—including the party's Senate leadr, McNary of Oregon.

It has been widely reported that Mr. Roosevelt was just waiting for Congress to finish its wrangling before taking drastic steps to iron out arms production difficulties. It is one thing to pass a law providing all-aid to England—it is a very different thing to produce and ship the arms the belligerents so desperately need. The defense high command has already been shaken up, but there is still considerable division of responsibility. No one man has been given supreme command, as was Bernard Baruch in the 1917 War Industries Board. The feeling persists that the President will be forced to do this before long. And reports are also going around that some of the men high in defense councils have not proven to be such production wizards as their build-ups indicated.

In the meantime, it is next to impossible to find out exactly how well or badly the defense drive is going. Some say it is in fearfully bad shape; others say that it is progressing as well as can be expected. What may prove to have been an important declaration was lately made by ex-Ambassador Bullitt in a speech before the Overseas Press Club. Mr. Bullitt said that "we could double our planned output of airplanes and tanks and merchant ships and guns in 1942 if we would buckle to the task now." He indicated that a declaration of "full emergency" may be necessary to awaken and prod the country. And Mr. Bullitt has often reflected the Presidential direction of thinking in the past.

It is true, however, that the physical effects of the arms drive can be seen in great quantity now. Manufacturing towns are mushrooming. Shipyards are springing up. Close to 150,000 drafted men are under arms and training. Airplane production is undoubtedly rising. In other words, progress is being made — but many an expert thinks it is far slower than the nation has a right to expect.

It was the ever-eloquent Winston Churchill who, months back, spoke of the new ties which are binding England and the United States together, and, in magnificent phrases, likened this to the Mississippi River — saying, let it roll, in full flood, "to broader lands and better days." That too is the hope of Washington for the world of the future.

The peace of such a world would be guaranteed by two great powers — the United Kingdom and the United States. They will have the navies and the gigantic air forces. They will guarantee the liberties of little nations. They will work for a higher standard of living for all. It is a splendid dream. But, until and unless all that the Hitler theory of government represents is destroyed, it can be only a dream.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Strange times make strange bedfellows in Washington — and all because the new getters-in-bed don't understand what their new bedmates are up to.

The story is that some of the Capital's theoretic planners were very disturbed when practical, experienced businessmen were allowed positions of some influence in the new defense set-up. The planners want to run the show themselves, so they are anxious to discredit the businessmen in the hope that the latter will be eased out of the program.

An original point of attack was based on the charge that defense contracts haven't been spread around the country, but have been concentrated instead in present industrial areas. Critics making this claim conveniently ignore the War Department's own explanation that the reason is the necessity for speed—that if you are anxious to get machine guns rapidly, it is usually far quicker to convert a manufacturing plant already operating in Pittsburgh rather than build an entirely new one in Idaho.

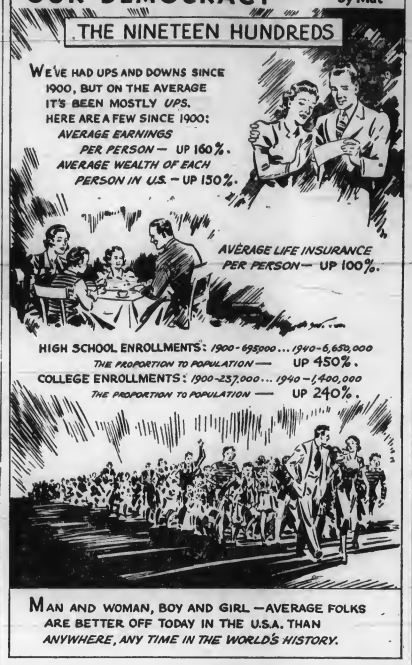
Indeed, building a new plant in some non-industrial area would be only the beginning of the problem. In its wake, would come the necessity of bringing raw materials to localities to which they had never been directed before; of drawing skilled and semi-skilled labor from their home localities and home communities; and of making other changes and adaptations in dozens of new directions.

Those who are assailing businessmen in defense, however, seem to care less about whther their specious arguments would or would not retard defense, and much, much more about whether they constitute good political capital.

Incidentally, to show how such minds run it is interesting to note that this criticism of the businessmen in the defense set-up who are trying to get things accomplished rapidly contradicts the criticisms that their enemies were trying to pin on them a short while back. Not many months ago the effort was being made to condemn the businessmen by getting out rumors to the effect that they weren't turning out equipment as fast as they should.

This fell flat because it quarreled with common sense. Not only trained experts, but plenty of ordinary Americans, knew that the change-over from making peacetime articles to making defense products took a little course-charting at first to avoid delays later. Getting orders out to industrial districts where the change-over could be made most swiftly was one of the big, important moves the businessmen made that is beginning to show real results now.

But the "we-don't-like-it" boys, nothing daunted, changed direction like a weathervane hit by a high wind, and began criticizing the businessmen for doing the very kind of thing they had previously been assailing them for not doing before.



The second point of attack has been directly against the businessmen themselves. There are many score businessmen who are working in the defense effort for $1 a year. The professional critics hope to make much of the fact that some defense contracts have gone to firms with which these men were connected.

What the theorists overlook is that in choosing personnel for the Defense Commission, successful "producers" got first call. If they were successful, their firms were too. If their firms were successful, then often they were capable of turning out defense goods satisfactorily and in a hurry.

So, whether the industrialists and businessmen were in Washington or not, their firms still would have won contracts. And if contracts had been denied to those firms just because they had representatives in Washington working for the good of the country, the defense program today would be in a terrific log jam.

The situation seems to boil down in essence to a feeling in the minds of certain planners which might be defined somewhat as follows: "We don't trust you, because we don't see why you'd give up good jobs to go to work for your country. There must be something more to it than meets the eye."

Maybe the ingredient that the smart boys in Washington can't quite understand is called "patriotism." If that's the case, their frame of mind is far more a reflection on themselves than on the men who are making the defense program work and, in the course of doing so, have aroused the incredulity of a few noisy critics.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Several times during the past year I have warned you that prices would gradually creep upward. I want to warn you again for it now appears that prices will increase at a more rapid pace than we have experienced for somy time. Why do I believe this?

First, our national income is now running around 80 billion a year, and if the present pace is continued we shall soon reach the 1929 level of income. A large part of this increase is going into salaries and wages; this in itself means a greater demand for consumer goods — the things we buy.

Second, our defense industries are already taking larger and larger amounts of material which normally go into peace time consumers goods. For example, manufacturers of automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and such are beginning to wonder if they will be able to get the raw materials they need. This is causing a growing concern on the part of many consumers that supplies of many types of goods may be limited.

Third, larger waegs and salaries coupled with the fear of shortage and price rise, have caused many people to lay in supplies for months ahead. The scramble for goods has already depleted the merchants' shelves, and they are now bidding up prices in order to replace these goods.

Practically everyone I talk to keeps saying, "Buy now and save yourself some morey." Couple this buying psychology with actual scarcity of some few products an dyou have all the groundwork for higher prices. It is like a snowball rolling down hill—once started it is hard to stop.

Mone will buy more goods today than it will a month or two from now. Sound buying now should mean money in your pockets later on. This is one time when I believe goods are better than money.

Pulaski county farmers, who grew 2,000 acres of hybrid corn in 1940, expect to double the acreages this year.

Ordering From the Catalogue

Catalogues from mail-order houses are so plentiful now that we look for new ones as we look for new styles of dresses or new models of cars. In my latest days at Fidelity we had begun to order things from a catalogue, a little dubiously at first, for we were afraid that the companies doing business in that way were conducting a skin game. Since some of our neighbors had tried their hand at ordering, though, and had not lost their money, we fell in line. Thirty-five years ago I find by consulting my old diary, our family ordered from a well-known house a new buggy, not a rubber tired one, for Father was not that new-fangled, but a good, roomy steél-rimmed type, a family buggy. A very important envelope came a few days after our order, announcing that our buggy had been shipped; still later we got a notice from the depot, eleven miles away, that our treasure had arrived. Since I was the only boy left at home, the pleasant duty was mine to go get the buggy. I saddled our old family nag and spent most of the morning riding out across the hills from Fidelity to the county seat. First after arriving at town I went to the saddler's and got a brand-new set of harness, made right there by an excellent worker. My, how fresh and new everything smelled! The buggy had been shipped knocked down; we felt big putting it up, for another brother met me there to share in the joy of creation. He also probably thought I was a bit too green about machinery to do much with a new buggy. After the wheels and shafts were on, I drove up town, bought some small articles (among them some baker's bread, a lap-spread, and a whip) and then across the hills to the family, who sat waiting for me, scanning all horses and buggies that went along the big road. In the buggy, I notice in my diary, was a large catalogue of the same great mail-order house. That would be so ordinary a thing now that no child would ever dream of recording the fact in a diary; but things were different in old Fidelity.

By degrees ordering from a catalogue got to be a big thing. We got seed catalogues, too, and sent for things that were not to be found in the packets for sale in the D. M. Ferry box at the country store. We took great pains to show the visitors the strange new things we grew from those same mail-order seeds. Sometimse we made up an order in the community, feeling very important in doing so. There was a species of magic about it all; you had merely to make a few pen scratches on a piece of paper, deposit a bit of money with the local postmaster, mail your letter, and then wait a few days for the magic to work. Financial matters always seemed queer to us children, anyway; just why a mere piece of blue paper, given in exchange for our money, could be accepted in lieu of cold cash was (and is) strange. But after a few uses of this system we felt so confident that we no longer feared results. If we had had an account at the bank, we might have felt different, but it was a rare person who entrusted his cash to the bank. When we delivered our produce, we got cash or due bills; I suspect few of us would have known what to do with a check.

This will sound strained to many of the younger ones, who probably think that mailboxes were made to receive the big catalogues and the fat, chubby packages that follow the catalogues into the remotest places. But every institution has to get started; while it is in the formative stage, it seems as new and strange as a being from another world. When you get your next order from Sears or Ward, like it if you wish to return it and get your money back, but be assured that others have had some of their greatest moments while making out orders or receiving them by mail or by freight.

MORGANSVILLE

"As thy day, so shall thy strength be," "God hath not promised skies ever blue. Flower-strewn pathways always for you He hath not promised sun without rain, joy without sorrow, peace without pain, but He hath promised strength from above. Unfailing sympathy, undying love."

"There are no victories without conflicts, no rainbows without clouds and storms." "Christianity can come only within the heart by new birth. Ye must be born again."

Welcomed as fondly as a ray of sunshine after a rainy day was the pleasant call Sunday afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Rigs and dear little grandson, Glenn, bright, promising young son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Riggs. Sunday marked the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Riggs, and in celebration of having reached another milestone in life's journey, they brightened our drab life with lovely gifts, which were deeply appreciated. Most heartily do we thank them for giving roses while their fragrance could be inhaled, and from the flowers they have scattered in many lives that there may be yielded back to them a perpetual fragrance is the united wish of a host of friends. As apebble thrown in the river, their kindly deeds are far reaching and truly are gleams of sunshine in a dark valley. Their noble examples are worthy of emulation!

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Robinson and sons have moved to one of Dr. E. F. Wolfe's farms near Morning View, and occupy the residence vacated by Mr. Johnson and family.

50,000 MEMBERS IS GOAL OF SOCIETY'S CAMPAIGN

The necessity for its campaign following on the heels of another must be established in the public mind, it was agreed by the executive committee meeting Monday, March 10, to complete plans for the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children drive opening April 2.

This can be accomplished in a minute's reading time, in the opinion of the State chairman Neil Dalton, assistant to the president of The Courier-Journal and The Times.

"Twice in a few months Kentuckians are being asked to aid crippled children," he said. "The children cannot help this, but they can be injured by it unless the two campaigns are understood.

"The first was for Infantile Paralysis work only. It was for 20 per cent of our cripples, the number suffering from infantile paralysis. It culminated on the President's birthday. Half of the money is for work in Kentucky; half for research through the National Foundation in New York.

"The second campaign is for all cripples, especially for the 80 per cent not affected by the first. It is to be made through a membership campaign by the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, with a goal of 50,000 members. It is to be made by men and women in each county who give their time not only to the campaign, but to the other Kentucky Society work for crippled children of their own communities throughout the year."

CONCORD

"Serve the Lord with gladness; come before His presence with singing."

Mr. and Mrs .Raymond Rex and son of Ludlow, visited relatives here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lucas are entertaining her sister from Erlanger for the week-end.

The Sunday school wasn't so well attended as so many have the measles. We were glad to see Mrs. Harvey Hughes out after having been ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wilhoite of Cincinnati, are here on her farm for some work.

Bertha Chapman spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. M. O. Jones. Mr. Jones and son Carl are plowing and burning tobacco beds, getting a large crop started.

Mr. Robinson and family moved in Eula Wilhoite's house last week.

Mrs. Gurley of Laconia, Ind., is visiting her daughter here, Mrs. Floyd Chapman. They all spent Sunday at Mr. Jim Hedger's.

PLANT FOOD TRIO SPURS GROWTH OF KENTUCKY CROPS

CHICAGO.—How the "triplets" of plant nutrition—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—perform their mysterious job of feeding Kentucky farm crops and sustaining the fertility of the soil, was described in a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Nitrogen is the mineral element which encourages the growth and development of leaves and stems, and the fleshy portions of roots and fruits," the statement sets forth.

"Phosphorus, usually provided in the form of superphosphate, is the element which hastens the ripening of seed and favors early maturity of the crop.

"Potash is the element so necessary for the development of starch. It is the balance wheel that promotes healthy growth, enables the plant to make proper use of the nitrogen supply, and develops resistance to disease by the plant. Potash helps produce better quality grain and fruit.

"Each of these three elements can best contribute its benefits to the soil in cooperation with the others. Some land requires more of one fertilizer element than another to build up deficiencies and produce more profitable crops.

"Fortunately, farmers everywhere can determine the needs of their soil by consultation with their county agent or with agronomists at the state college or experiment station. These experts are equipped to make soil tests and then to provide specific suggestions concerning officially recommended fertilizer analyses adapted to various soils and crops." On the basis of such information the farmer can select the fertilizer which will be best suited to the job of building and maintaining the productivity of his soil.

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or x-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

Fillips for Fish

Be glad for tart, spicy pickles—and the many different kinds of them—when you tackle the problem of meals for Lent. They lend sprightly color appeal and character of flavor to an otherwise delicate fish dish.

When making fish casseroles with the various kinds of canned or leftover fish, add India relish or chopped sweet mustard pickle. No member of your family will regard such a casserole as just another inexpensive way to give them their protein foods during Lent. Vary the meal plan, too, by serving that same inexpensive canned fish frequently as a salad that's perked up with the crisp tartness of chopped sweet gherkins or dill pickle. Baked or scalloped potatoes and hot rolls help make this meal substantial enough to please the hard-working men.

Add chopped pickles to the stuffings you use in baked stuffed fish—both dill and sweet pickles have a flattering way with fish when they have a part in the stuffing. In garnishing the fish, pickles should also have a part. For example, when you are preparing a planked fish, you could place pickle fans between each mound of mashed potatoes surrounding a broiled fish. And top a salmon loaf with a row of overlapping fresh cucumber pickle slices.

Below are some recipes which show grand new ways to perk up fish dishes—Ketchup Relish Sauce and Upside Down Tuna Loaves to make a tempting glaze on both baked and broiled fish.

Ketchup Relish Sauce

Combine—
4 tablespoons tomato ketchup
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon India relish.

Heat together until butter melts. Spread a small amount of the sauce on the baked fish just as it has finished baking and place the fish under the heated broiler just until the sauce melts and spreads evenly over the fish. Serve the remaining sauce in a sauce boat to be poured over the fish as it is served.

Upside Down Tuna Loaves

Drain oil from—
1 small (7-oz.) can tuna fish.
Flake and add—
1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese
1 egg.

Mix thoroughly, breaking macaroni into small pieces.

Grease muffin pans well, then lay in the bottom of each—

Slice crosscut sweet pickle.

Fill with the tuna mixture, packing down well. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 45 minutes.

Speedy Specials

Attractive menu ideas which can be carried out quickly are a "must" during the spring housecleaning season. It's a good idea to prepare for those busy days by laying in a supply of prepared foods—cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese, for example—and cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce with cheese. Both of these foods lend themselves to variations. Try the ones below and you'll get other ideas for quick and delicious meals made with this team of housecleaning helpers.

Macaroni With Deviled Salmon

Drain, then break in small pieces—
1 16-oz. can salmon.
Combine and heat well—
1 tablespoon butter
2 teaspoons prepared yellow mustard
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash black pepper.
Add salmon and continue heating until the salmon is heated through. Heat over hot water or in saucepan—
1 medium (17-oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese.

Place macaroni on platter, then pour salmon in center of macaroni. Serves 5.

Spaghetti Vegetable Scallop

Fry in cooking fat—
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup finely chopped green pepper.
Combine with—
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 large (24-oz.) can cooked spaghetti in tomato sauce.

Heat thoroughly and serve. Serves 4. Note: This mixture may be heated for serving by baking in a casserole in a moderate oven (375° F.) 20 minutes.

KENTUCKY FARMERS TOLD HOW TO MAKE LEGUMES PAY BEST

CHICAGO.—Legumes as a prescription for restoring sick Kentucky farm soils to health were recommended in a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"But," the statement adds, "legumes by themselves are not a panacea for all soil ills. To be effective, they must be accompanied by an intelligent plan of soil management.

"The value of legumes such as alfalfa, clover and soybeans lies in their ability to deposit nitrogen in the soil and to provide the soil with plenty of organic matter.

"These values can be lost, however, if legumes are permitted to remove more plant foods than they contribute to the land. Few farmers, perhaps, realize that legumes are heavy consumers of potash and phosphorus. Four tons of alfalfa, it is estimated, will draw 176 pounds of potash and 43 pounds of phosphorus from the soil.

"Thus legumes, unless accompanied by adequate applications of fertilizers high in potash and phosphorus, may actually deplete the soil of these essential plant foods while they are increasing the supply of nitrogen.

"A well balanced diet of plant foods is the real key to rehabilitating the soil. Each of the three major elements—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—must contribute its values in cooperation with the others."

"All Aid" Now in Boosting Total Soil Fertility Key to Future Prosperity of Kentucky Farmers

Must Put Plant Foods Back Into Soil.

CHICAGO.—Soil building measures that will raise the total fertility level of Kentucky farm land, rather than "shot in the arm" expedients designed to boost the yield of a single year's crop were urged by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in a statement made public here.

"Soil conservation is true conservation only when it provides adequate safeguards for the future of the farmer's soil assets," says the statement. "This means putting back into the land the plant food elements that have been removed by generations of harvests.

"On millions of Midwestern farms the vigor of the soil has been exhausted by continued croppings Crops rob the soil of life-giving plant foods.

Successful Farmers Solve Problems by Taking Advantage of Agricultural College's Research

EACH farmer has problems different from his neighbor. No two soils are alike. A certain problem may be of little importance on one farm, but of vast importance on another. But all things considered, sound soil management is the key to long-range profitable farming. And the successful farmer is the one who recognizes the important problems as they appear and takes advantage of the results of agricultural research in arriving at the proper solution. With an average season, with good seed and good tillage, nothing will affect the yield per acre so favorably as fertilizer.

Life-giving plant foods have been shipped away in the form of grain, hogs, beef and milk. The result of such exploitation has been a steadily declining crop yield per acre and a drastically lowered farm income.

"Effective soil building comprises a few basic principles. These include the raising of legumes, intelligent crop rotation, pasture renovation, liming and where necessary, contour plowing.

How to Build Soil.

"Of vital importance to the success of any soil improvement plan is the advice of the county agent, or the agronomists at the state agricultural college and experiment station.

"These experts can provide the most valuable assistance by analyzing samples of the farmer's soil and determining its deficiencies in nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Then, by recommending the correct analysis and quantity of mixed fertilizer, they can help the farmer rebuild the productivity of his soil.

"By following such a program Midwestern farmers can look forward to a definite increase in crop production, accompanied by an improved income and higher profits. They can put their agricultural undertaking on a firm footing for the future. They can put a padlock on their soil—which means that it cannot be easily stolen from them."

Properly selected fertilizers will restore the soil.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

Application Deadline For 1940 Payments In ACP Is March 31

March 31 is the final date for farmers to file applications for payments under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program, Geo. A. Eubanks, chairman of the Kenton County Agricultural Conservation Association, announced today.

Applications of 11 farmers in Kenton county are incomplete and must be completed this month in order that the farmers may qualify for payments under the program.

Of the 786 applications from Kenton county under the 1940 program, 775 have been completed and 705 have already been paid.

Reports from the State AAA Office, Lexington, indicate that approximately 94 per cent of the 1940 conservation payment applications of Kentucky farmers have been completed. Of the 165,400 expected for the year, 155,949 had been filed up to March 6, and most of these had been paid.

The number of applications already filed under the 1940 program is 4.3 per cent larger than the total of 149,473 filed under the 1939 program, reflecting a general increased participation in the program throughout the State.

Older Rural Boys Discussion Group

According to Maurice Williams, assistant county agent, Mr. Carl W. Jones, field agent in older boys' work in Utopia Club work will visit Kenton County Wednesday, March 26, to help organize a group of young farmers in the Crescent Springs section of the county.

Mr. Jones worked with 41 groups of young rural people in the various counties of Kentucky during 1940. One of these groups have already been organized in the Bracht section of the county.

The Crescent Springs group will meet at the farm of Frank Foltz at 7:30 p. m., E. S. T. Earl Foltz is cooperating in arranging for the meeting at the Foltz's home.

Time To Spray Your Peaches

Peach trees should be sprayed without further delay if you are to conrol peach leaf curl. It is too late to control leaf curl after the leaves are out. See your county agent for spray schedule.

4-H Club Members Study Citizenship

Kentucky's 43,029 4-H Club members have "Citizenship" as a major subject of study this year. Health, production of food on the farm for home use, safety, the good-neighbor attitude, and life on a give rather than a get basis—all these things and more are included in being good citizens, says J. W. Whitehouse, State 4-H Club leader.

By producing in home gardens, in herds and flocks, most of the food required by the family, more money will be left to buy books, radios, for travel, etc. Therefore the 4-H'ers are encouraging wiser expenditure of money for the greater good of the family, in their live-at-home program.

Vitamins A through G are very important to young citizens who regard health as vital to good citizenship. Boys and girls who have adequate food, exercise, sleep and right attitudes will be more alert in all respects.

In fact, it's an all-inclusive kind of program the 4-H'ers are getting this year, the State leader declares. After the World War of 1914-19, many people settled down into a negative attitude toward patriotism for their country. This program is emphasizing that, rather than trying to get something from America, the main emphasis should be on giving something to it, concludes Whitehouse.

Mrs. Roscoe Jump who has been on the sick list, is better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beverly have moved to the property of E. P. Bradley in Folsom.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Beach and family have moved to Mrs. Minnie Isaac's property.

Miss Virginia Lee Pettit was the guest of Miss Ruby Lee Webster Wednesday night.

Todd county 4-H'ers sold $2,650 worth of beef calves raised from their own cows.

Monroe county farmers who bought beef calves last year cleared 30 percent on investments, above all costs.

WITH THE REDS

Tampa, Fla.— When the Reds completed a deal with the Chicago Cubs in which they acquired Jimmy Gleeson, Bobby Mattick, etc., for Billy Myers, the outfield of the Cincinnati Club took on a new hue. This new complexion of things placed Gleeson, Mike McCormick, Goodman and Ripple prominently in the picture, and created a place in the background for Harry Craft, who had been the Reds' regular centerfielder until McCormick came around.

Craft, a retiring sort of fellow, might have been satisfied in the past to remain in the background, but he isn't today. Now you find a new threat to the regular garden setup. Harry Craft has emerged from the shadows, so the outfield of the Reds is the battleground of a fight among five men for three positions.

There was some indication of what was to happen when Craft reported to Bill McKechnie on the first day of training. He was a heavier Craft than at any time since 1938, which is particularly significant, since that was the season that Harry was a freshman sensation with the Reds. He belted 15 homers and chased 83 men across the plate that season, and those close to the club predicted that in him the Reds had one of the coming greats of the game.

Craft slumped off in 1939, was sick part of the season, and was about 20 pounds underweight at the finish. He reported heavier last year, but still wasn't the Craft of 1938, and his work showed it. Well, during all of this, Mike McCormick slipped in and stole his job. Mike is quite a ball played. He batted .300 in his first year with the Reds, and continued through the world series clubbing for a .310 average in the classic.

That's why Craft was put in the background. It was natural, notwithstanding that Harry set a new defensive record by committing only one error during the entire season. Never was his defensive skill questioned. Through his priod of bad health, he still maintained his ability to go get the ball. It was all a question of batting with him.

Regardless of whether it is the added weight, or whether it is a mental situation, there's no denying that Harry has had a return to his 1938 spring training form. He's been knocking the cover off the ball in the Red's exhibitions. He only has to do that in moderation to become outstanding again, for his long distance power and his fielding skill push him to the top every time he starts to hit with any consistency.

Because Eddie Joost is a thin man, and because he broke into the majors as a utility infielder, he has had the misfortune to be classed as a player who cannot stand the gaff of a full season. Joost never has had the opportunity to refute this undeserved reputation, until now, and he intends to make the most of it while shortstopping for the Reds. Before going to the majors, Eddie played every day in three Class AA lagues, the Pacific Coast, International and American Association ,and never showed any tendency to bog down. Why should he start now?

Frank McCormick of the Reds, the National League's most valuable player of 1940, is one of the most consistent performers in the majors. He batted in 128 runs in 1939 and 127 last year. In 1939 he smacked 41 doubles, 4 triples and 18 homers. Last year he hammered 44 doubles ,3 triples and 19 homers. He hasn't missed one of his team's games since becoming a regular near the tail end of the 1937 season.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE, MR. TAXPAYER
. . . between an unregulated traffic contributing nothing in state, county or local taxes, and Kentucky's $20,000,000 legalized beer industry which has paid more than $6,000,000 in taxes to the state alone during the past six years!
But occasionally some people, losing sight of this difference, would unwittingly deprive state and county treasuries of this revenue, thereby increasing their own tax burdens as well as inviting a return of the anti-social conditions resulting from unlicensed, unregulated outlets.
Through our Committee's self-regulation program, the Kentucky beer industry is cooperating with law-enforcement officials to preserve these benefits by helping maintain wholesome conditions in the retailing of beer. YOU can help by patronizing the law-abiding beer outlets in your community!

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 23

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JESUS CONDEMNED AND CRUCIFIED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:13-25, 32-34a.
GOLDEN TEXT—What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?—Matthew 27:22.

Two nights stand out in the story of the life of Christ, and therefore in the history of the world. The first was His first night on earth—that "silent night, holy night" of which we sing at Christmas, when He was born as the babe of Bethlehem. The other was His last night on earth. Except for the precious hour of fellowship in the upper room and His communion with the Father in the agony of Gethsemane, it was a night of darkness, denial, and betrayal.

There were six trials—or mock trials—of Jesus, three religious ones before Annas, then Caiaphas, and then again before the Sanhedrin; three political trials, before Pilate, then Herod, and Pilate again. At the close of this last trial before Pilate Jesus stands

I. Cleared by the Evidence (vv. 13-17).

At the first trial before him Pilate had declared on the basis of his examination that Jesus was "Not guilty" (v. 4). Herod, to whom He had been sent, had only played with Him (vv. 8-11). What a travesty! Now Pilate again presents Him to the people as having "no fault." It is a striking truth that no man of any age has ever been able honestly to point to any fault in the life or character of Jesus Christ. Think that over—unbeliever!

Now came Pilate's first step in the wrong direction. An accused man without guilt should be declared innocent and released. But Pilate feared the Jews who had already made trouble for him with Caesar. So he compromised and said he would chastise Jesus before releasing Him. John Morely was right when he said, "Under some circumstances compromise is the most immoral word in the English language." It gained Pilate nothing; in fact, it led to his next step downward.

II. Condemned Through Cowardice (vv. 18-25).

To avoid a disturbance and to keep the leaders from complaining to Caesar, Pilate gave Jesus into their hands with the "sentence that it should be as they required" (v. 24) when they cried "Crucify Him!"

Pilate was in a difficult place, but that does not excuse him. It is in the hard and trying place that a man should stand for the right, come what may. Too many of those who profess to follow Christ are afraid to stand up for Him in the hour when men deny Him. Some unbelievers are fearful about declaring their allegiance to Him, because they fear the opposition of men.

Where is our courage, our manliness? Have we lost the moral stamina of our pioneer forefathers, the religious conviction of our Christian fathers and mothers? Pilate was a coward, and we are ashamed of him. Let us not be cowardly and make Christ ashamed of us (read Matt. 10:32, 33).

III. Crucified with Malefactors (vv. 32-34a).

The details of and circumstances surrounding the crucifixion are of deep interest to every Christian. We stand with Luther and weep as we see Christ's unspeakable agony, not only of body but of spirit, and we cry as did Luther, "For me, for me!" How can any believer contemplate the cross and withhold self, substance, or service from Christ?

Equally earnest and heart-searching is the message of the cross to the unbeliever. He knows he is a sinner (Rom. 3:23), he knows that "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23), and he knows that "neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). Here at the cross he meets that one "who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed" (I Pet. 2:24).

There were two malefactors who were crucified with Him (v. 32), and one railed at Him. The other said, "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom"; and Jesus said to him, "Today thou shalt be with me in paradise" (Luke 23:39-43). Unbeliever, will you not just now take the eternal life which Jesus died to make possible for you?

Loving His enemies to the last, our Lord prayed for the forgiveness of those who thus despitefully used Him. What matchless grace! One wonders how many of them by repentance for their deeds made it possible for that prayer to be answered. That door of redemption stands open today for every one who up to now has crucified the Son of God afresh (Heb. 6:6) by sin and unbelief.

MRS. ELIZABETH RAMEY DIES AT MELBORNE, KY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Evans Ramey, age 84 years and 26 days of age, daughter of the late Edward and Nancy McGinas Evans, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Tretchell, at Melborne, Ky., Wednesday, March 12, at 4:45 p. m. after a very brief illness. Mrs. Ramey was born and reared in Grant county, and four years ago, she, with her husband, went to Melborne to make their home with their daughter. Aunt Betty, as she was known, was a woman of loving disposition and always ready and willing to do her part. She had long been a member of the Dry Ridge Christian church, and was a wonderful Christian church worker and just a short time before she passed away she asked for the hand of her son and daughter and smiled and said Home, and with that sweet assurance we feel that she has passed in the other room to be with her Savior.

She leaves her aged husband, Mr. Jerry Ramey, one daughter, Mrs. Henry Tretchell, of Melborne, Ky.; one son, Ben Ramey, of Williamstown, Ky., and three grandchildren and a host of friends. The body was removed to Coates & Stewart funeral home and prepared for burial, which was conducted at the funeral home at 1:30 Saturday, March 15 by Rev. M. L. Hutcherson in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Burial was made in the Williamstown cemetery, with Coates & Stewart in charge.

FRUIT GROWERS PLAN SERVICE

Northern Kentucky fruit growers are cooperating with the College of Agriculture in a special educational spray service again this year, according to H. R. Forkner, County Agent. Boone county fruit growers attending a planning meeting at the County Agent's office in Covington the past week were Emmett Riddell, Charles L. Hempiring and B. C. Stephens.

Fruit growers will assist in supplying samples of leaves infected with scab, spores, run coddling moth traps and jar peach trees for curculic. Result of this work will be forwarded immediately to the horticultural department which will, through letters and radio repors, keep growers informed on the timeliness for applying necessary sprays and control measures.

Increased Enrollment In 4-H Sheep Project

Many Boone county 4-H club members are enrolling the sheep project this year for the first time, according to H. B. Drake, Assistant County Agent. This project is organized for boys and girls who are interested in starting with a small number of good animals and building a flock from them.

This increase in enrollment is partially due to the favorable outlook for sheep products. Indication are that both wool and lamb prices will be above those of last year and will compare very favorably with other livestock products.

The enrollment of 4-H members probably reflects an increased interest among Boone county farmers in sheep raising which has always been an important livestock enterprise in this county.

In Graves county, during February 425,000 pounds of 20 percent phosphate and 75,000 pounds of 47 percent phosphate were delivered.

Sixteen Men To Answer Service Call

The Local Draft Board at Burlington has selected 16 men for induction into the United States Army at Ft. Thomas, on April 4, 1941. They are to report to this Board at 9 a. m. E. S. T. at Burlington. They are Howard Russell Ryle, Burlington, V-62; George Richard Louden, Burlington, V-365; Herman Rader, Walton, V-724; Lawrence Louis Aylor, Florence, 55; Thomas Lawrence Linton, Covington, 68; Shelton Lee Love, Union, 69; Clyde Thomas Colston, Florence, 74; Wilgus Edmond Coyle, Verona, 77; Leland Russell Loomis, Burlington, 85; Orville Brown, Burlington, 97; Robert Grant Shears, Florence, 100; Wayne Arrasmith, Union, 133; Floyd Lee Pope, Burlington, 153; James Marvin Robinson, Morning View, 155; James Roy Louden, Burlington, 162; Louis Edward Reeves, Constance, 188. The "V" before the order number denotes the men are volunteers.

William Gorge Porter, now living at Franklin, Ind., but who is registered with the Local Board, will be inducted April 2, to replace a registrant who was rejected at the Induction Station, Ft. Thomas, Feb. 28, because of physical condition.

341 questionnnaires have been mailed to date by the Boone County Board and another 100 will be mailed this week. State Headquarters, Louisville, have advised the Local Board to have 15 men per 1,000 rgeistered Class 1-A men ready and physically examined because of the increase of the size of the calls in the future.

RESERVOIR OPEN FOR FISHING APRIL 1

The Walton Reservoir will be open for fishing on April 1st. Those who love to angle for the finny tribe will find this 8 acres of water restocked with ring perch, bass, channel cats, 10 to 18 inches in length.

Rates are as follows: $5.00 for season ticket, April 1 to Nov. 1; half day, 50c; all day, $1.00. Each and every one fishing must have a ticket. The lake will be open throughout May.

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS

On April 3, 1941, the regular meeting of the Burlington Homemakers will be held at the Court house in Burlington at 10:30 a. m. The major subject for the day will be crocheted rugs. Any one interested in making rugs will be sure to get some pointers such as: In braiding rugs never have the three strips the same length, in having them different lengths it tends to make the joining lots stronger. Then one learns also how to determine the first turn for the size rug she is making, just many little details which help so much in the finished rug.

At this time of year the "Garden Lessons" and discussions are especially interesting. To learn the proper ways of planting is a big help and a help also to profit by other's experiences.

Any one interested in the planting of shrubbery will get much out of these meetings. We have a capable Exterior Beautification chairman, who tells us just how, what, when and where to plant around our homes as a foundation planting to get best results.

A good meeting is promised. Any ladies who are interested, come and bring a "covered dish" a good time will be had as well—Remember the date, Thursday, April 3.

CONSTANCE HOMEMAKERS

The regular monthly meeting of the Constance Homemakers Club will be held April 2nd at 10:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Margaret Prable. Roll call to be answered with "Music I Enjoy Most."

Each member is requested to bring their finished mat to the meeting. Some of the members have started making braided rugs.

New members and visitors are always welcome.

Mrs. Ida Herbstreit, Secretary.

Pre-School Clinic To Be Held Here

Is your child ready for school? Do you know that there are more cases of small-pox in the U. S. now than ten years ago? Why? Because people are becoming careless about vaccination.

Would you like for your child to have a thorough medical examination before entering school next fall? If so, come to the Pre-School Clinic to be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Lowry, County Health Nurse; Dr. R. E. Ryle, physician; Dr. D. L. Maddox, dentist, and the Walton P.-T. A.

PRESS WOMEN OF KENTUCKY ORGANIZE

Miss Mary Elizabeth Hutton of Harrodsburg, was elected president of the Kentucky Press Woman's club at an organization meeting Saturday at the Brown hotel in Louisville.

Other officers chosen were Miss Mildred Babbage, Cloverport, first vice president; Mrs. Jewel Duncan, of Dixon, second vice president; Mrs. Frank C. Bell, of Bedford, third vice president; Mrs. J. R. Wallace, Walton, recording secretary, and Mrs. J. La Marr Bradley , of Providence, treasurer; Mrs. Urith Lucas, of Maysville, corresponding secretary.

Miss Jane Hutton, of Harrodsburg, was named regional vice president to represent the club on the Board of the National Federation of Press Women, Inc., with which the Kentucky unit will be affiliated. The annual convention is scheduled for June 26-28 in Milwaukee.

Mrs. John E. Kleinhenz, president of the Woman's Press club of Indiana and regional vice president of Indiana for the national federation, met with the group to explain the purpose and history of the organization.

Purpose of the club is to secure the benefits of organized effort, to make improvements through association, and to stand for the highest ideals of American journalism. Those eligible to membership are women residing in the state of Kentucky who may be newspaper publishers engaged in the journalistic or advertising field, or free lance writers of a professional nature. An annual meeting will be held in the spring and two other sessions will be called during the year to transact business.

Founded in May 6, 1937, the National chapter was organized in Chicago, Ill., by the Women's Press club there. At present there are nine states belonging to the group with Kentucky as the tenth to enter. States are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Texas and Wisconsin. Mrs. B. J. Bless, Jr., of the Western Chronicle, Weston, Mo., is national president.

A MAN'S PRAYER

"Teach me that 60 minutes make an hour, 16 ounces one pound and 100 cents one dollar. Help me so to live that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, without a gun under my pillow and unhaunted by the faces of those whom I have brought pain. Grant that I may earn my meal-ticket on the square and that in earning it I may do unto others as I would have them do unto me. Blind me to the faults of the other fellow, but reveal to me my own. Guide me so that each night when I look across the dinner table at my wife who has been a blessing to me, I will have nothing to conceal. Keep me young enough to laugh with little children, and sympathetic enough to be considerate of old age. And when comes the day of darkened shades and the smell of flowers, the tread of soft footsteps and the crunching of wheels in the yard — make the ceremony short and the epitaph simply 'Here Lies a Man.'"

Rickets in her baby chicks was stopped by addition of cod-liver oil, by Mrs. Hattie Martin, Powell county.

P.-T. A. PLAYS AT NEW HAVEN APR. 3

On Thursday evening, April 3, the Florence P.-T. A. will present two musical comedies, "Gay Ni neties' Review" and "Raising Money in Bangville" at the New Haven school, near Union. These comedies were successfully staged in Florence last Friday, and both are quite good, as well as amusing. The New Haven P.-T. A. is sponsoring this program at the N. H. school.

Rehearsals will be held at the Florence school on Monday and Tuesday evenings of next week.

WILLING WORKERS' CLASS ENTERTAINED

The Willing Workers' Class of the Christian church was delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. William Crouse Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Nell Campbell and Miss Masil Falls were co-hostesses. At 6:30 a delicious covered-dish dinner was served. A high-light on the menu was country ham, supplied by Mrs. Crouse.

The business meeting was then held, Mrs. Nell Campbell, President, presiding.

A musical program and social hour was enjoyed by the following members: Rev. and Mrs. T. H. Alderson, Mr. and Mrs. Powers Conrad, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Mayhugh, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess Haley, Mrs. Aileen Conner, Mrs. Wallace Grubbs, Mrs. Mabel Groger, Mrs. Irene Bush, Mrs. John Gault, Mrs. Martha Jane Carpenter, Mrs. Ruth Hall, Mrs. Olivia Wills, Mrs. Lulu Huey, Mrs. Julia Rouse, Miss Georgia Rouse, Mrs. Tom Neal, Miss Mary Ransler, Mrs. J. Welfare Ass'n. To Meet Friday Evening

There will be a meeting of the Walton Welfare Association on Friday, March 28, at 7 p. m., slow time, in the basement of the Dixie State Bank. The public is invited and urged to attend this session.

At this meeting it is planned to make this association a permanent organization, and officers will be elected at this time. The present acting heads of the association were named temporarily and their tenure expires on April 1st. So if you are interested in this worthwhile organization — and you should be — plan to attend this important meeting on Friday evening. The support, to date, has been wh olehearted and it is hoped the people of Walton and vicinity continue this spirit.

The Welfare group has been active only a short time but has done yoeman service in aiding the less fortunate. We trust this will be an organization that can operate successfully in this community for years to come.

Economic Highlights

If a vestige of doubt remained in any mind as to this country's position in the current world struggle for power, the President's speech at the White House Correspondents Association dinner should have dissipated it. There was no humor in the President's voice. There were no light touches. He had grave words to say, and he said them gravely.

That speech, coming hard on the heels of Congress' approval of the lend-lease bill, made our policy clear as crystal — we are out to destroy dictatorship, and the entire resources of this nation will be spent freely to that end. He denounced the Nazis by name. He accused them of seeking the destruction of elective systems of government on every continent, including our own. He accused them of seeking to stir up controversies and to create disunion within all democracies, including our own. And he said that they would fail — that the would-be conquerors will find that the force of democracy, though they may move slowly, will in the end be supreme.

That speech was obviously designed for more than American ears. Immediately after it was made, it was broadcast to the far corners of the world, in 14 different languages. It went, by short wave, to Germany, to the occupied nations, to Africa, to South America. For this government feels, as do the British, that the moral effect of 100 per cent support of the democracies' war is almost as important in some ways as will be its material effect. It is no secret that Britain expects that revolts in the conquered nations will eventually be a major contributing to Hitler's collapse. The fact that the United States has actually intervened in the war, even though only as a non-belligerent, is expected to give new hope to the millions of peple who nwo live as virtual prisoners of the nazi-fascist system.

It is significent that the President had little to say concerning the world after the war. The whole emphasis, here and in England, is now being placed upon victory. That dominates all official thinking and planning. There is little time for discussion about the world order of the future. That must wait.

Highly important were the President's words to industry and labor. He definitely took the stand that many have wanted him to take for months — he said that all must work harder and longer, that all must expect smaller profits. He said, in effect, that all must sacrifice, and that nothing will be permitted to stand in the way of the swiftest posible consummation of the aid to the democracies program.

So the policy has been finally established. The debate is over, and even the opponents of the lend-lease plan admit that public sentiment is overwhelmingly behind it. Now the real job begins—to make and supply the weapons Britain and Greece and China must have. That calls for greater industrial productivity than we have so far obtained. It calls for a ship building drive of unprecedented proportions. Further it may very likely call for use of the American navy to convoy merchant ships to England — it is obvious that our weapons will be of no use if the ships bearing them are sunk by the dozen in the Atlantic.

The President's request for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to put the lend-lease plan into effect, was unquestionably designed as a dramatic gesture. It is known that at least two years must pass before it will be possible for our factories to produce that value of goods for England — some think the war will be over before the appropriation is exhausted. The President apparently preferred to ask for a tremendous appropriation at once, rather than to request smaller sums at intervals ove ra period of time ,in order to show the dictators that we really mean business.

The tide is moving swiftly now. Watch for crackdowns on labor if it gets out of hand. Pressure of the strongest kind will probably be applied to organizations or industries which are still thinking in terms of business as usual, and are not troubling themselves to give all-out effort. Even the Administration's strongest critics believe that it really means that sacrifices, financial and otherwise, must be shared by all.

The President made a significant statement when he said ,at a press conference, that the lend-lease bill does not restrict aid to any particular group of countries, but can be extended to cover other nations if the need arises.

Obvious tactic in this was to assure the small Balkan powers that America would help them too if they resisted Nazi invasion. England is moving Heaven and earth in an effort to improve her position in Europe, and to create a strong front against Hitler.

It is highly questionable, however, if the frightened Balkan governments can be swayed now. Hitler's immense legions are ominously close, and the U. S. is far away. Britain has little to spare in the way of aircraft ,mechanized equipment and fighting ships. Best military oninion holds that most of the small countries will accept Axis "protection."

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Another stop-gap method of handling strikes from Washington is in the making. It probably will come in the form of a Presidential order creating a new Defense Labor Board.

Many Washington observers, including Congressional students of the situation, are fearful that whatever happens in this direction will be only a treatment of the ailment rather than a cure.

These legislators point out that the public, and apparently even the President, have been sold the belief that the defense strike situation isn't bad because only 1-400th of working time was lost last month in labor disputes.

That, of course, doesn't present a true picture. It is possible for a small rivet plant to be closed by a strike without making much difference in total working hours lost by labor disputes. One reason is that if an airplane factory has to slow production or close down because of the absence of rivets, that is charged officially to "material shortage" or something else besides a labor dispute.

Actually, of course, airplane production is impeded by the strike. But official figures don't reflect that fact.

What some officials point to as a much better illustration is figures showing the number of labor disputes to which the U. S. Conciliation Service is having to assign mediators .

Last September, the Conciliation Service assigned men to an average of 54 new labor disputes each week. In January, that average rose to 68 a week. And in February, the average was 82 NEW labor disputes each week.

All of these, of course, did not result in strikes, because the Conciliation Service was able to settle many disputes. But the figures certainly show a threatening rise in the weekly totals. The first week in March, U. S. Conciliators were assigned to 83 disputes, one more than the February weekly average.

Some of these disputes drag on for weeks. And nearly all have a vital effect upon defense production.

What many legislators fear is that when the new Defense Labor Board (or whatever it is called) is created, the public will sit back contentedly and say: "Well, that's that; no more strikes."

It is known that many labor agitators expect that to happen, too. They want the Board created as a means of stopping probable Congressional legislation. For any Board that is created by executive order can be disbanded the same way; any law that passed Congress would have to be repealed by another law.

The laborites don't want any laws. They are operating now under a basic statue, the Wagner Act, which says that only the employer — not the union — can sin. They have more privileges than ever before, and less responsibilities.

The laborites are pretty smart, too. The heat was taken off the National Labor Relations Board becaues a reorganization was presented as a "purge." The "purge" followed an investigation by a special House committee which disclosed many questionable if not obviously wrong things about the Board and some of its officials.

But many of the "purgees" are landing in other government jobs. One has just been appointed as an assistant counsel to the top defense agency, the OPM.

And while it has not yet been made public, the Labor Board has given pay raises to more than a dozen of its subordinate officials who were called before the Congressional committee last year to explain some of their arbitrary and irregular actions.

It's a somewhat familiar story and a depressing one: Sell the public on the idea that everything your particular circle does is all right, and don't worry too much about the national welfare.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The cost of maintaining a home is on the rise. The U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that it cost the average family two per cent more to live in February than in January. Last week I stated that a price rise was coming, and these figures bear out the fact.

What items in your household budget are taking more money? Food costs have shown the greatest increase. Prices of pork, fresh vegetables, coffee, lard and sugar have gone up considerably. Pork chops sold for 26.6 per cent more this February than in February, 1940. And we may expect a further rise in the cost of food, according to most authorities.

Rent is the next item which has shown tremendous increases. In some of our larger cities and especially those in which we have large defense industries, rents have gone up as much as 25 to 35 per cent.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics also reports that house furnishing costs, clothing costs, and fuel and electricity have gone down. This is surprising. It seems to me that clothing prices cannot stay down in the face of the substantial wage increase recently granted the union workers in this industry. The cost of transportation, recreation, and medical care has gone up slightly. Taxes are also taking more of our income. So, all in all, it costs us considerably more to live than it did a year ago.

But there is another side to the picture. Consumer income, for the U. S. as a whole, has increased approximately 9 per cent over February a year ago. Thus even though living costs have gone up (for the nation), income has gone up faster (for the nation), and so we are not so hard up after all.

Inequalities in the rise in income create the greatest problem. Farmers have not shared equally in the increase with the industrial worker. Neither have the school teachers, ministers and the white-collar workers who are on yearly salaries. All of us do not share equally in income increases but practically all of us do share equilly in price increases. And it is this that works hardships on certain classes and not on others.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

The Moving Picture Show At Fidelity

You can hide a country village for a long time from the things that everybody else knows about, but by and by the world learns of it and comes with its best and latest inventions. For years we heard of the moving picture and had somewhat doubted the truthfulness of our informers. By and by, thirty-five years ago, a tent show came to us, bringing the miracle that has done so much to change our social life and our very conception of things. The Midyett Company (the actual name) brought its big tent and set it up on a level space near where the Fidelity High School now stands. From all the creek bottoms and high ridges the crowd gathered, probably all of them as skeptical as I. What we saw became a landmark in our getting acquainted with the big world beyond our farthest hills. Long before talkies we had what surprised us: colored slides were thrown on the board representing scenes suggested by well-known songs — "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" "Old Kentucky Home," "Swanee River" and the like — and the graphophone played the song, properly synchronized, we would say now. The master of ceremonies appealed to our seriousness by playing at the very bginning of his program the Twenty-third Psalm and the Lord's prayer on his graphophone. The talking machine was still so new that we enjoyed this nearly as well as the later and more unusual show.

The moving pictures were just moving pictures, not a play or anything of the sort. They would be mere extras now, news reels or some such thing. The only one I now remember was a parade of Ringling Brothers' Circus, the sort of thing all of us had seen in the flesh but never before on the silver screen. Punch and Judy came immediately afterwards, somewhat obscuring the impression of the silent but marvelous movies. I have forgoten most of the moving picture, I am sorry to say, but I think I could reproduce word for word the Punch and Judy act, time-worn though it was then.

About a year later an advertiser for Western lands came to us and showed us colored slides by the dozens, so compelling that one of our neighbors sold out his farm and at once betook himself to the Far West, only to sneak back home again after a single season. After the colored slides of the finest fruit I have yet seen and of the largest grain fields that probably exist in the world came some moving pictures of work in this fabulous West. Just in the midst of the first reel the machine broke down; all of us felt that we had been cheated, though we had not paid a cent for our entertainment.

And then came a showboat, a genuine showboat of the old tradition. Some of the neighboring families were spending a Saturday on the river, with large picnic dinners as a natural part of the day. About the time we were eating our dinner a deep-toned whistle down the river made us forget even our appetites. It was a small showboat, coming to anchor at the very landing where we were picnicking. The few heads of families present soon discovered that we must have a show all to ourselves. They went aboard the showboat and consulted the owner, who told them that because of the smallness of our crowd it would be necessary to charge us twenty cents apiece. That meant forty cents for most of us, as we had our best girls; but what is forty cents when you want to do something handsome for HER? Our twenty people, then, got all of the high jinks of the showboat, with its crew of three, that others had to take in a stuffy crowd. There were many short reels, the only one I remember being a pillow fight in an orphanage or boys' school or somewhere. We hobnobbed with the owner and his wife and the champion fiddler and felt sorry for the others we met on the roads, who were coming to a regular, not a command, performance.

A REPORT to America

The Ford Motor Company's business has always been to serve the needs of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs. Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

1 A $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, air-cooled, double-row, radial engines.

2 We are building a new $800,000 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engine castings.

3 Army reconnaissance cars — military vehicles of an entirely new type — are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.

4 The government has given the "go-ahead" and work is now under way for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber airframe assemblies by mass production methods.

5 Several months ago work was started, on our own initiative, on an entirely new 1500 horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.

6 A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established, to train 2000 students at a time.

That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry.

Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.

Illimitable Income

TO LIVE within their income appears to present a difficult problem to many people. In numerous cases, the supply seems to be insufficient to meet even legitimate needs, and the ceaseless struggle to make ends meet and to keep out of debt robs human experience of its rightful measure of harmony and happiness. Such a state of affairs ought never to be submitted to unquestioningly, whatever the circumstances.

Nowhere in the Scriptures do we find authority for believing that God's will for His children is limitation and lack. On the contrary, we find that whenever men have humbly and trustfully turned to God for help, they have triumphantly come out of their troubles, no matter how hopeless the situation had appeared to be. God's love for His children has undergone no change. He is eternally our Father, and all may turn to Him in absolute confidence that He will answer their call for help, for did not the Master, speaking of the Christ, Truth, promise (John 14:13), "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son"?

Someone may say, I have asked God, most earnestly and for a long time, to bring me out of my financial difficulties, and I have received no answer. The asking which meets with no response is not prayer based on the spiritual understanding of God and of man's relationship to Him. A state of insufficient income arises from the mistaken belief that man is material, and that matter is substance. . . .

Paul declared to the Athenians (Acts 17:28), "In him we live, and move, and have our being." Referring to Christ Jesus' words (John 10:30), "I and my Father are one," Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, writes on page 361 of her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," "As a drop of water is one with the ocean, a ray of light one with the sun, even so God and man, Father and son, are one in being." Such inseparability of Parent and child can be truly conceived of only as that of infinite Mind and infinite idea. . . .

The coming of spiritual ideas to human consciousness is illimitable, for God, divine Mind, is ceaselessly pouring forth His treasures of spiritual thought to sustain, support, and satisfy His children. The real man possesses true substance by reflection, for Mind, substance, is eternally present and knows no limitation or insufficiency. The application of these grand spiritual truths in human affairs should not be thought strange. The strange thing is that men have so unquestioningly accepted evil as a powerful, controlling factor in human experience. . . .

Let all those who suffer the strain and stress of belief in insufficient income, lift thought above anxious human planning and contriving, and let them turn their thoughts in a new direction. Let them ask God for childlike trust and receptivity, for calmness and courage, for an overflowing sense of gratitude and love, for wisdom and the clear spiritual vision which distinguishes between the real and the unreal. Then let them wait with confident expectancy, and the answer will come, even as it did in the father's sweet assurance to the elder brother of the prodigal son (Luke 15:31), "Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine."

All that God has is ours by reflection, and He is infinite Mind, divine Love. When the material income seems inadequate to meet the daily demands, let us remember that God alone is the source of supply. We must love God, good, above all else, acknowledge no substance or intelligence but divine Mind, and strive to reflect the divine nature and character in every detail of daily living. When the spiritual fact is seen and understood, unlimited good flows into human experience, and the false beliefs which have seemed to control us loosen their hold and fall away.

To the listening ear come spiritual intuitions, divine aspirations, holy thoughts of joy and gladness, and the wisdom to use the newfound good. The more one uses spiritual ideas, the more they multiply and abound. Thus one finds all his human needs supplied, and so proves the truth of Mrs. Eddy's words (Miscellaneous Writings, p. 307): "God gives you His spiritual ideas, and in turn, they give you daily supplies. Never ask for tomorrow: it is enough that divine Love is an ever-present help; and if you wait, never doubting, you will have all you need every moment." — The Christian Science Monitor.

We Call It

Romance

IT'S JUST a can of soup. But during a long lifetime, the man who made it found some way to advertise it. At first, just a sign over his little soup kitchen, a few newspaper ads, a few billboards. But as the advertising grew, so did the business.

Now the business employs thousands of workers, helps to support tens of thousands of retail clerks and transportation men, and gives the housewife a better, cheaper soup than she could prepare at home.

Back of every heavily advertised article is a romantic story of this kind—the kind of romance that built America.

BRACHT STATION

"Blow March winds, blow,
Blow your wildest, March, mad March,
Trumpet with a thin blue sound
In the eaves of blast around.
Roar in the elm's triumphal arch.
Shout to see last summer's grass
Toss and tremble at your stride,
Blow the willows, scatter wide,
Last year's seed-pods as you pass.
Louder! Louder! Raise such din
You forget that you should know
Every gusty breath you blow
Blows YOU out, and April In."

After an absence of a few weeks your Bracht Station scribe has again ventured in with a few items.

The few spr ing-like days have given the farmers quite a bit of pep. They have been plowing and burning their seed beds in this and all adjoining and visible territories.

Some of the young folks of this place attended the show in Walton Sunday afternoon.

Miss Wanda Bales of Covington, visited her parents here Sunday.

E. Huff was a business visitor in Casey county a couple of days this week.

Mrs. T. T. Elliott of this place, has opened up a neat and attractive lunch room in her place of business and solicits your patronage. She will serve you with lovely and well prepared home cooked meals.

Mrs. W. H. Wires, of Minneapolis, Minn., visited her parents, E. F. Bales and wife here and her brothers and sister of Covington, several days last week, returning to Minnesota Saturday.

E. Huff purchased a fine horse from Homer Huffman one day last week.

E. F. Bales and wife visited friends in Walton last Sunday.

Wesley Burgess who was employed in Detroit, Mich., returned to his home near Crittenden several weeks ago and was confined to his room with a severe cold for several days, but we are glad to report him able to be out again. He is now employed at E. Huff's place of business. Glad to welcome the young man back in our midst.

Dear friends, my vocabulary is very limited. I have tried to interest you; although my items are few.
If there is one who is about to fall
If you can't speak well of them,
don't speak at all.
While there are those who have many faults,
Please don't forget that you may have many more of your own.

KENTUCKY U. GIVES FARMERS ADVICE ON FERTILIZER CHOICE

LEXINGTON, KY.—Practical advice to Kentucky farmers on points to consider in buying fertilizer is contained in a bulletin issued here by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

The bulletin, compiled by faculty members of the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky of which Dr. Thomas P. Cooper is dean, lists four essential points:

"1—Ascertain the needs of the soil and what will supply it. No fertilizer will give proper results if it does not contain the plant nutrients in which the soil is deficient. If in doubt as to the kind of fertilizer the soil needs, consult the county agent or the experiment station.

"2—Be guided by the information given on the State Guarantee Tag (A State Guarantee Tag, issued by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, showing the manufacturer's guarantee, must be attached to each bag of fertilizer before it can be lawfully offered for sale.)

"3—Buy no fertilizer that is not registered and tagged with a State official tag.

"4—High grade fertilizers are most economical. Too many farmers buy on price rather than on quality. This is false economy."

Emphasizing that the best results in increased crop yields and in saving on the fertilizer bill lie in selecting the higher analyses, the bulletin suggests fertilizer grades such as 4-8-6; 4-10-6; 4-12-8, 5-10-5; 6-12-6 and similar combinations.

With knowledge of the soil constantly increasing and facilities for determining the requirements for nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash likewise being improved, no farmer needs to be ignorant of the fertility account of his soil. Having learned what his soil requires he can buy fertilizer profitable.

Two new drainage demonstrations have been started in McCracken county, in cooperation with the Tennessee Valley Authority.

KENTUCKY PRESS WILL SELL STATE AT HOME

To tell Kentuckians at home what Kentucky should tell the world outside about the attractions within her borders, members of the Kentucky Press will, between now and November, publish a series of pictures and news stories dealing with principal scenic and historical places of interest unlike anything which has previously been done to attract visitors.

At Louisville last Saturday, final touches were given to the KPA's program for publicizing Kentucky at home and soon the newspapers of the State, and very probably a number of dailies in cities of border states which have large circulations in Kentucky as well as in their own commonwealths, will be giving prominence to information about Mammoth Cave, Cumberland Falls, the Bluegrass region, the Lincoln Shrine ,Pioneer Memorial State Park, My Old Kentucky Home, Audubon State Park, tobacco days, mule days, the Mountain Laurel Festival, horse shows, strawberry festivals, county fairs, singing festivals and numerous other colorful events which take place annually in many towns, parks and cities throughout the State.

The outdoor season of 1941 is certain to be the greatest tourist period in all history, as far as United States is concerned. Already officials of touring bureaus, the AAA, the United States Travel Bureau and other agencies which have correct information are forecasting that the previous all-time high of tourist business, $5,000,000,000 in the year 1939, will be surpassed by at least another billion dollars.

Domestic touring will maintain its boom proportions, say these authorities, and a material increase will come in travel to and from Canada and Mexico. The South American countries also will send their visitors to this country. . . and there is every reason why Kentucky, with her notable background of heroic tradition, her great natural wonders and unsurpassed scenic beauty, should get a very greatly increased share of this trade.

The Kentucky Press Association has taken a step which will go far toward making many citizens of the State conscious, for the first time, of what Kentucky has been missing, especially in recent years, by not doing a more effective job of selling her attractions to the world; for, whereas the U .S. Travel Bureau estimated last year that Kentucky obtained $56,250,000 of the $5,000,000,000 tourists spent in this country in 1939, she should have received $250,000,000.

Newspapers of Kentucky always have been very generous with their space for every project which sought the State's advancement. This year, through the KPA they will go further, and prove to Kentuckians themselves why neglect of the State's chief asset, her appeal to millions 'round the world, should no longer to be tolerated as typical Kentucky indifference.

KENTUCKY MOTOR TRUCK LAW

Ever since the Kentucky truck law was enacted the representatives of a few big commercial truck operators have carried on a propaganda campaign under one slogan or another to get rid of that law. Before "interference with national defense" was thought of, the law called a "trade barrier."

As an illustration of the bad effect of the law as a trade barrier, there was broadcast thruout the country, by public speakers and newspaper stories, the statement that a truck hauling an emergency shipment of lighting equipment for Old Hickory, Tenn. was held up at West Point, Ky., for 24 hours and fined $100 because the truck exceeded the Kentucky limitations. The truth is that this truck was delayed not more than 30 minutes, and the trucker was not fined at all. The facts are stated in an affidavit of the patrolman who apprehended the overweight truck.

More recently, the propaganda has been carried on under the slogan, "interference with national defense." The law was wisely drawn so that special permits could be issued for operation of larger and heavier trucks in any emergency. On January 9, 1941, the Kentucky State Highway Department announced regulations, with the necessary safeguards, for the issuance of special permits when the entire load was for national defense purposes. Such a permit was issued to the Whitney Transfer Company, yet, according to the sworn testimony of a Highway Patrol Captain before Magistrate Rehm in Louisville on February 28, one of Whitney's trucks with more than 10,000 pounds over the regular limit was being operated on Highway 31-W under a "defense" permit, and part, if not all, of the cargo was ordinary commercial freight and not intended for any defense purpose.

Instances such as these show that the propaganda campaign against the truck law is based on misleading statements for selfish purposes, rather than actual interference with the defense program. National defense should not be used as a subterfuge to gain special privileges for private profit.

The fact that the public may be willing for its roads to be damaged if necessary to promote national defense, does not mean that it is willing for those roads to be used at all by overweight trucks hauling ordinary private commercial freight, but pretending to be engaged in a mission of national defense.

Clark county farmers expect to grow 400 acres of hemp, under agreement with the Kentucky-Illinois Corporation.

Extensive drainage projects are being undertaken in Owsley county, with much more still to be done.

Court-Martial Booze and Vice!

The age-old battle of social and religious workers against the liquor trade has entered a new phase with the nation's current effort to train a citizen army.

In effect, liquor says "These are our customers and we want their money." In effect, the volunteer social workers say "These are our boys and we don't want them trained to be beer addicts."

Involved not only is the sale of 3.2 beer in the camps but liquor and vice conditions around the camps.

"One Solution"

Completing a thorough study of such conditions for the Christian Advocate, a reporter-investigator said:

"The coalition of liquor, gambling and vice is strong in almost every community adjoining the camps. . . . In many cases the arrangements between such forces of corruption and local politics appear to be based on an amiable reciprocity. . . . The resulting rapid decadence of morals among hitherto clean young men is a threat that only a mind persistently blind will fail to see. . . . The army commanders, charged with the task of turning out men who are physically and morally fit, are frankly apprehensive—off the record, of course."

Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, president of National W. C. T. U., says it is necessary for the church people of America to try to clean up local conditions but she warns that liquor laws in most states do not permit local authorities to stop liquor sales. Before local action can be taken, she says,

"Drum Him Out"

"our young men will be drink addicts, some will be diseased, and many will be inefficient soldiers. The logical solution is for the federal government to act, as it has the power to do, immediately. The government has the responsibility, having called our boys to be soldiers."

Bills to outlaw all liquor and vice in and around military camps were introduced in this congress and immediately gained wide backing from church, social welfare, parental and temperance groups.

CARE OF THE SPINE

By Dr. Thomas Sullivan

The spinal column has been shown to be the anatomical and physiological foundation of the human body. No single part of the body structure is so importantly related to the life and normal operation of the body as a whole, or to its individual functions, as the spine. To ignore this structure in the general scheme of personal hygiene has probably caused more sickness, disability and distress than any other mistake made in the history of healing.

Chiropractic with its concentrated studies of the spinal column has already solved more of the mysteries of pain and disease than any previous research in matters of health within recent years. The most important remaining work is to create a strong consciousness of the importance of the spine for all people who value good health.

Acute diseases and pains which have been the greatest scourge of mankind have been given the best testimony to date of the value of spinal attention. The simple cold which annually causes more loss of time and money than any ailment of the body, has found a quicker cure and a more ready defense, from the care of the spine than from any other curative or protective agent thus far presented. Colds mean not only nose and throat inflammation but also similar conditions in the bronchial tubes, (bronchitis). They may also affect the eyes, ears, urinary bladder and other deep parts of the body.

Acute pains which are commonly known as neuritis, neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, etc., have been so responsive to corrections of spinal displacements that they need no longer be feared. Their cause is known.

The whole range of the destrictive and damaging acute diseases has been carefully studied by chiropractic research workers. Results which must be called phenomenal, have been attained through the process of correcting defects of spinal balance and displacemnts of vertebrae. How can such work as this solve these tremendous problems of sickness—is a question frequently asked by the people who have heretofore given no thought to the influence of the spine on health.

The answer is given in every textbook of physiology. It is given to those who search into the laws of nature. It is found by every searcher in the field of psychology. It is easily understood by the mechanic and the engineer who will apply the logic of his training to the mechanics of the human body.

CONCORD

"Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth."

Miss Elva Speagle, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Brown entertained Sunday Hobert and Robert Speagle and Opal Beach, this being in honor of Hobert's and Opal's birthdays. We are sure they all enjoyed the occasion.

Services were well attended. Rev. and Mrs. Smith spent the week-end at W. N. Robinson's.

Mrs. Sallie Whitson, Vevie Webster and Bertha Chapman from Concord, attended the W. M. U. quarterly meeting at Ten Mile. This meeting was very instructive and the speaker, Miss Cleveland, was enjoyed very much.

Charlie Bolington and Stanley Robinssn are on the committee to get a case of eggs for the Orphan's Home. Let's help them fill the case.

Will McCrander purchased one of the Aladdin lamps from the church, as the church has electric lights.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chapman and daughter of Verona, spent Sunday at his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Chapman. Mrs. Chapman returned home Saturday after making a visit in Latonia with relatives.

The measles are still in our community.

Mrs. Gurley of Laconia, Ind., is visiting relatives here and also on Eagle Creek .

Alice Marble, Tennis Star, Stages Heroic Comeback

Alice Marble

IN tennis circles, Alice Marble is unique. The well-known adage of sportswriters that the muscle molls were made to be abused in sports columns is shattered by this statuesque California Blonde.

"She's a nice person," Bob Considine writes in the April issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, "free of all the affectations and phoniness the net game seems to attract. Her face is mobile, and her clear hazel eyes look at you when she speaks in her warm, lively manner. Unless you have been around top-flight tennis players you cannot imagine how different all this makes Alice Marble."

That she is the best all-around player the sport has even seen and a promising singer as well, is beside the point, Considine reports. She is an inspiration to thousands of Americans who, sick of heart or body, have wanted to give up the headache of living. For the story of Alice Marble is not simply an endless list of tennis victories to which the sports pages of the last ten years bear witness.

When she collapsed on the court in one of the big foreign tournaments in Paris, doctors said she was through, claimed she was tubercular and would never play again. For almost two years Alice Marble was off her feet. Broke, she had hardly enough to pay for bare medical necessities. But they say you can't keep a good man down, and Alice is one of these.

Against the advice of all her physicians she entered the national singles in 1936. A hopeless underdog she beat Helen Jacobs, the favorite, hands down in the finals. Her star has been in the ascendency ever since, and at the moment she is on a four months' professional tour which will net her $25,000 outside of her percentage of the gate receipts. Once this is over she wants to take her voice culture seriously. She knows opera is beyond her. "But", she says, "I'd settle for a Jeanette MacDonald concert tour."

BEECH GROVE

Mr. and Mrs. Dock Howard entrtained Sunday Virgil Wolfenbarger and family and Orb Allen and family, Carl Kerr and wife of Covington.

The chicken supper proved quite a success Saturday night at Banklick Christian church. Many thanks to all who attended.

Julius Riley, wife and little daughter Rosalyn Jean spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Clarence Fields, and Mr. Fields in Covington.

Mrs .George Bradford, daughter and son, of Gunpowder, and Mrs. Sarah Lusher of Ft. Mitchell, spent Sunday with Mrs. Bill Cook and family of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dehner of Richardson Road, had as visitors Sunday Mr. Donald Hyles, of Covington, and Mr. Frank McCormack, wife and daughter Marilyn of Latonia.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!
I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE
I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!
I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.
In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.
Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist.

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati: Spring barnstorming trips, on which teams work their way north after training for the baseball season to come, in the south, have become an accepted part of the itinerary of most major league clubs. There are some dissentors to this general practice who do not enter into this type of priming for the season, but in the main the major league teams are for it, and the plan is being followed by the majority.

Traveling north together for the fifth straight year will be the Cincinnati Reds, champions of the world, and the Boston Red Sox, one of the hardest hitting teams in the big leagues. These teams started their treks because of their desire for first rate competition, plus the gradual shifts to the north that enable the players to take the changes of weather in stride.

It's mighty fine competition for the Red Sox to be facing the great Cincinnati pitchers day after day, and, at the same time, it's pretty good for Bill McKechnie's chunkers to pitch to the Red Sox batters for 13 consecutive days. It may be a coincidence, but the fact remains that the world's championship teams for the past ten years have been those that have taken trips in the spring as the Reds are doing.

This year the Cincinnati and Boston clubs will extend their activitiles to Cuba, for they are scheduled to open their tour with three game s in Havana. From there they hop to Dothan, Ala., to Fort Benning, Ga., to Montgomery, Ala., to Owensboro, Ky., to Louisville, Ky., to Cincinnati. The Reds play another game at Dayton against the Detroit Tigers, and two more in Cincinnati, prior to the opening of their National League season, while the Red Sox stop at Baltimore, then head home for two games against the Bees.

The game at Fort Benning will be played at Hank Gowdy Field, which was named after the Reds' coach, who was the first major league player to enlist for duty in the World War. This game will draw probably one of the trip's largest crowds. It is being played under the auspices of the Fort Benning Athletic Association.

There is a strange atmosphere prevalent among the Cincinnati and Boston clubs as they travel north together. The players are friendly, of course, but they develop a sort of rivalry that is good for them. They take more interest in these games than they would in ordinary exhibitions, for the personal angle enters into it. It gets to be a matter of pride with the players of both clubs.

The fact that the Reds and the Red Sox, two of the richest clubs in all baseball, engage in these junkets is in itself a testimonial to this sort of activity. It it was not good for them, you can bet these clubs wouldn't go in for it.

When the Reds and the Red Sox play in Cincinnati on Wednesday and Thursday, April 9 and 10, it will mark Boston's first appearance at Crosley Field. The Sockers have been close many times, but never dr opped in for a visit to the Queen City.

The Reds' 25 players, who will be on the active list all season, probably will outweigh any squad in the majors. Bill McKechnie goes in for big men, and he's certainly got them.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for March 30

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

CHRIST'S COMMISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:36-53.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you.—Luke 24:49.

Calvary and the darkness of the tomb gave way to the glory of the resurrection morning. Jesus had appeared to the two on the Emmaus road, and when they hurried back to Jerusalem to tell the eleven disciples, who were gathered behind barred doors, they found that He had already appeared, not only to the women, whose story they did not believe (see v. 11), but also to Peter (v. 34). While they were excitedly discussing this great wonder, apparently torn between belief and unbelief, joy and sorrow, suddenly Jesus appeared, coming through the barred door and greeting them with a blessed message of peace.

I. A Risen Christ for Fellowship (vv. 36-43).

The disciples were bewildered and slow to believe. Perhaps we would have done no better.

Note how patient and gracious He was in dealing with these frightened —and, in a sense, stupid—disciples. He might have been so discouraged by their unbelief as to be short and sharp with them, but He was not. We need to learn of Him. There are weak brethren even in the church of Christ who need our tender and patient consideration (see Rom. 15:1; I Thess. 5:14). Christ died for the weak brother too (I Cor. 8:11).

What a blessed time of fellowship the disciples and the Lord had together. Such times are greatly needed for our mutual encouragement. Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together (Heb. 10: 25). In a day of need and trial those that fear the Lord should speak often with one another and with the Lord (Mal. 3:16; I John 1:7).

II. A Dependable Book for Guidance and Instruction (vv. 44-46).

Jesus gave His own endorsement to the Old Testament as a dependable record of the prophecies concerning His person and His work of redemption. The critics of God's Word must face the fact that their man-made theories are in conflict with the testimony of the Son of God. Of the two, we know whom we will believe!

Notice that an important part of the Lord's fellowship with His disciples was devoted to opening their minds so they could understand the Scripture. The word "opened" might be translated "disentangled." He took out the prejudices, the wrong ideas, and set them free to understand and appreciate the Scriptures.

III. A Great Message for Proclamation (vv. 47-49).

Fellowship with Christ and a knowledge of God's Word which does not result in an aggressive witness for Him is quite useless. We meet Him and learn His truth that we may carry it out to all nations, not forgetting (note it!) to begin at the wicked Jerusalem which is right at our doorstep.

The business, and the only business, of the Church is that witness. We need to renew our commission, get it clearly in mind, and then proceed to carry it out. "But," someone may say, "we are not able for this great task." Of course not; but He is able, and will enable us.

"Power from on high" is the portion of God's witnesses. This world worships power—mechanical, political or military power. The greatest power of all is spiritual power, and God is ready to give it to His faithful witnesses.

Note that the message is one of repentance and remission of sins "in His name." The gospel of Christ is the primary need of men and women, boys and girls, in your community and mine; yes, and to the very ends of the earth.

IV. An Ascended Lord to Worship (vv. 50-53).

The ascension of Christ is not often made the subject of a sermon or message in the church, but it is an important doctrine of Scripture. It marks the completion of the work of Christ, and His return to the place of honor at the right hand of the Father. There, before the Father's throne, He is the advocate of every believer, the pledge and assurance of a perfect and eternal fellowship between God and believing man.

The worship which the disciples gave to Christ as He ascended went on as they returned to their appointed place of witness, for they continually praised Him. Such should be the attitude of every true believer. In the temple of his own heart there should always be the joy of the Lord as He is there worshiped and adored.

Now we have completed our study of Luke, but we cannot stop here, for the Gospel, according to Luke's own statement in Acts 1:1, was only the story of what Jesus "began both to do and to teach." The continuation of that account is found in the book of Acts, which we begin to study next Sunday.

Grading Demonstrations for Sheep Producers. To Study Market Lambs.

Sheep producers at their meeting at Independence on the 17th, decided to hold three lamb grading demonstrations in May for the purpose of studying market lambs.

Grading demonstrations are planned for the Oak Island, the Walton-Nicholson and the Fiskburg-Morning View sections. The demonstrations will show the sheep producers how the lambs are graded and what the market classifies as tops and the other grades. Growers of sheep can plan to attend the demonstration in their locality. Time and place of demonstration will be given at a later date .

Rural Carpenters and Lumber Dealers to Meet.

Mr. J. B. Brooks, Extension Agricltural Engineer will meet with rural carpenters and local lumber dealers to discuss the Farm Building Educational Program in Kenton county. The meeting will be held at the Independence Court House at 1:30 p. m., Eastern Standard time, Wednesday, March 26th.

Fruit Growers to Receive Weekly Radcio Information Digest of Fruit Spray Program Given

According to W. W. Magill and W. D. Armstrong, Extension Horticulturists from the Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky., the fruit growers in Northern Kentucky will receive timely spray information on Monday of each week over WCKY, at 6:15 a. m. Eastern Standard time beginning in April.

This spray program and weekly broadcast is made possible thru the cooperation of the Extension Service, Mr. Don Dean, farm field reporter for WCKY and the fruit growers in Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties.

Second Year of Spray Service

This is the second year of the Spray Service Program. Last year an Insectary was set up on the farm of B. W. Scott and Robert Scott in the Crescent Springs section.

In order to make the spray program more timely the fruit committee with the Extension Agents and Fruit Specialists worked up a program to have a weekly digest of the spray service given ovr WCKY.

Fruit Growers Gather Data

A committee of fruit growers in Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties make weekly reports on apple scab spore development, codling moth emergence, and plum curculio appearance.

These reports and leaf samples are sent to the Insectary laboratory at the Experiment Station where the information is tabulated. The digest of the reports is given out in circular letters and by radio, Monday of each week to keep the fruit growers informed about when to use timely sprays and how to control insects and diseases of fruit and berry crops.

Tune in on WCKY, each Monday at 6:15 a. m. Eastern Standard time, and keep informed on how to control fruit insects and diseases.

CONSERVATION PROGRAM
Minimum Legume and Grass Seeding Rates Announced

Minimum seeding rates for legumes and grasses which Kenton county farmers plan to sow this spring to earn soil-building credits in the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program was announced by Geo. A. Eubanks, Chairman of the Kenton County Agricultural Conservation Association.

Rates for principal grasses and legumes seeded in Kenton county are: Bluegrass - 14 pounds per acre; Lespedeza - 15 pounds per acre; Redtop - 6 pounds per acre; Timothy - 8 pounds; Alfalfa - 12 pounds; Orchard Grass - 14 pounds and Red Clover - 8 pounds per acre.

Mr. Eubanks pointed out that in each case the amount given is the minimum amount of seed approved by the State Committee to be sown for Soil-Building credit in the program. Larger amounts will be necessary or desirable in many cases to assure a good stand of legumes and grasses.

These rates apply when legumes or grasses of the types indicated are seeded alone. Pastures are better and the land is better protected from erosion and leaching when legumes and grasses are grown in combination. Growth is more vigorous and the soil is improved more when these legumes and grasses are treated with lime and phosphate and such treatment is often needed to get a good stand.

Seeding rates for other legumes and grasses and for legume and grass mixtures may be obtained at the county office.

When crimson clover or vetch are sown in August or early September the full minimum seeding is required whether sown alone or in a mixture.

Mr. Eubanks advises farmers to consult Mr. Wicklund, county agent, about seeding rates, time of seeding, quality of seeds, preparation of land and about seeding practices, especially when using new types of legumes and grasses.

The College of Agriculture Extension Division Circular Number 242, "Practices in seeding Meadow and Pasture Crops" can be obtained at the county office.

MORGANSVILLE

"Love your enemies." Forgiveness, perhaps, is one of the most difficult of the Christian virtues to practice, and yet it is one of the most essential of our Christian duties. Not to forgive, according to the Word of God, is to make it impossible for Him to forgive us, and the unforgiving spirit has no place in His Kingdom.

"In eternity it will amount to more to have given a cup of cold water with right motives to an humble child of God than to have been flattered by the whole world."

"We live in deeds, not years, in thoughts not breaths. In feelings not in figures on a dial, we should count time by heart throbs. He most lives who thinks most, feels noblest, acts best."

"What be the gift of the dreamer of dreams to dream the things to do. Without the grit of the doer of deeds, to make that dream come true?"

"There is no unbelief. Whoever plants a seed beneath the sod and waits to see it push away the sod, he trusts in God. Whoever says, 'Tomorrow, the unknown the future trusts the power alone. He dares disown."

Sincere appreciation is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Russell Robinson for recent kindness.

Fourscore and six years of honorable and useful life, sixty of which were spent in church and Sunday school work, was the record of Miss Sallie Hopkins, of Grant's Lick, whom death recently claimed.

Rickets in her baby chicks was stopped by addition of cod-liver oil, by Mrs. Hattie Martin, Powell county.

In Floyd county, 300 tons of limestone per week now is being received as part of the grant-of-aid program.

RADIO MOVIN' DAY

At 3 a. m., Saturday, March 29, every radio station in the Northern Hemisphere above 720 on the dial will move to a new dial location. WCKY, Cincinnati's CBS station, for example will be heard at 1530 instead of 1490 as Miss Dorothy Lowell, star of CBS' "Our Gal Sunday" points out in the picture above.

Owners of push-button sets must have their radios re-aligned by their radio set servicemen in order to receive their favorite stations after March 29.

The change to new dial locations for 795 of 883 American radio stations came about as the result of an international conference of government radio engineers from Canada, Cuba, Haiti, Mexico, Santo Domingo and the United States.

This conference, held in Havana in 1937, established principles by which all stations would use radio channels with a minimum of objectionable interference.

Federal Communications Commissioner T. A. M. Craven said of the change: "The fact that North American nations can agree upon such a complicated problem augurs well for the future of democracies in this region of the world. Therefore it is hoped that the public will recognize the benefits to be secured and will bear with patience the temporary inconvenience involved in 'changing the dial'".

NOTICE
The Walton P.-T. A. will receive sealed bids for the conducting of the lunch room for the school year 1941-'42. All bids to be in by April 21.

Please send to Mrs. C. Pruett, 120 N. Main, Walton, Ky. 4t21

VERONA
March, 1941, brought coldest St. Patrick's day since 1900.

At the March meeting of the P.-T. A., there were 26 members and visitors present. The program given by the first and second grades was very good and enjoyed by all. The three lady teachers having married while teaching in our school, were presented with silver candlesticks. After the business session refreshments were served. The next meeting will be Thursday, April 10.

We are sorry to report the following sick in our community: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fisher, A. T. Hunt, Gilbert Brewster, and several cases of measles.

Little Ronnie Riffet is in Children's hospital in Cincinnati.

Rev. Harold Davis tendered his resignation to the Baptist church here to take effect May 1.

Jimmie Rhodes is working in Louisville. Bill Vest and family and Clyde Chapman and family have been there for two months.

WARSAW HEIGHTS
Miss Emma Sleet, L. G. Sanders and Wm. Hall were business callers in town Monday morning.

Chas. Hendren and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Adams near Sparta.

Kenneth Carlton, wife and daughter Patsy of Cincinnati, O., were week-end guests of her parents, Wm. Hall and family.

Mrs. Raymond Ellis has been on th esick list past week, also the little Coombs children have the measles. We hope for speedy recovery.

Mrs. Wm. Hall was called to the bedside of Mrs. Hamilton of Carroll county, Saturday. Sorry to report her very ill, but some better Sunday.

J. W. Sisson was a business caller in town one day last week and talking with old friends.

L. G. Sanders, wife and two sons, Sam and Billy, were pleasant guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adams, Sunday at Ethridge.

Wm. Hall and wife are rejoicing over the arrival of a new grandson born to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Carver Friday, March 21. The little fellow has not been named at this time.

In Lyon county, County Agent J. W. Blu III reports more lambs saved than formerly.

UNION
The small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Jones, little Della Marie, is confined to her bed with bronchial pneumonia. We hope for her a speedy recovery.

Four of our local young men, Orville Black, Benny Setters, Shermon Friend and Jack Glore, have accepted positions with the White Castle, Inc., of Cincinnati.

Several from here attended funeral services for Mr. T. G. (Gip) Denton Wednesday afternoon at Richwood church. The two requested hymns, so beautifully rendered by the W. M. S. of the Union Baptist church, was greatly appreciated by his family.

We are glad to report that Master Jimmie Noe, handsome little son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Noe, is able to be out again after several days' illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Doane entertained her relatives, Miss Virgie Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Ora Rose, of Cynthiana, last Wednesday. They were called here due to the death of their brother-in-law, Mr. T. G. Denton, of Covington, Ky.

We understand that our efficient auctioneer, Col. Lute Bradford, has charge of the C. C. Sleet sale to be held on Friday, March 28. Let's all go out and pep up the bidding for Col. Lute.

Mr. R .K. Newman has sold his grocery business to a Mr. Nash of Covington. Mr. Nash was formerly connected with the Regal Pharmacy of Covington. We extend a hearty welcome to Mr. Nash and family.

Mrs. J. T. Bristow had the misfortune to severely burn her left arm at her home last week. We hope for her a spedey recovery.

Miss Crystal Masters visited Miss Mary Glenn Newman on Saturday of last week.

Surely we shall have one more such spring days as last Friday and Saturday since we are so anxious to bid adieu to old man winter.

Land Use Planning Com. Organized

Land Use Planning committees have been organized in five communities, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. Land use planning is a new program designed to coordinate the efforts of professional agricultural agencies in an attempt to affect a solution to problems farmers feel important in limiting agricultural income.

These committees started a study of type of land and types of agriculture in their own communities. They are working on the assumption that many problems vital to farmers, can be traced directly to the land. Mr. Richard M. Sandefur, assistant county agent in Grant county, who has been conducting land use planning work there, assisted in the meetings.

Meetings will be conducted in four other communities in the near future. Committees from the various precincts, organized to date include: Grant, L. W. Rogers, chairman, Lee McNeeley, vice chairman; Petersburg, Chas. W. White, chairman, J. H. Huey, vice chairman; Burlington, Hubert White, chairman, W. Carpenter, vice chairman; New Haven, S. B. Sleet, chairman, J. O. Griffith, vice chairman; Walton, Jesse Wilson, chairman, and J. G. Pennington, vice chairman.

WALTON, GRANT 4-H CLUBS WINNERS

Walton and Grant 4-H clubs were awarded the Boone County Bankers Trophies by A. B. Renaker, representing the Boone County Bankers' Association, at the 4-H leaders conference held Saturday. These trophies are awarded each year to the grade and the high school clubs making the highest score in the county. Clubs winning the trophy two years out of three are entitled to keep it.

The Walton Club, represented by Mrs. Walter King, community leader, received the trophy for the second consecutive year and will keep it permanently.

Mr. J. F. Moore, Grant Club leader, received a new trophy, as the Grant Club had won the grade school award two previous years and had already obtained permanent possession of it.

C. S. CHAMBERS NEW SCHOOL HEAD

The following item was taken from the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald-Journal of March 26:

The board of education, meeting last night, appointed C. Spencer Chambers, supervisor of penmanship to the post of principal of Lincoln School.

Mr. Chambers, successor to the late James A. Shea at Lincoln, will continue his penmanship work and his salary of $5,000 a year remains unchanged. He has been serving as acting principal.

Mr. Chambers is a native of Walton, and his many friends in this section will be pleased to hear of this promotion. Congratulations, Professor!

W. C. T. U. TO MEET FRIDAY

The local W. C. T. U. is to meet Friday, April 4, at 2 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Horace Simpson. All members are urged to be present at this session.

Two new members have recently been added to the Union. They are Mrs. Dan Bedinger and Mrs. J. B. Walton.

3 INJURED IN CRASH AT BEAVER

Three Hamilton, Ohio, men were injured early Monday when their car left the highway at Beaver Lick and was wrecked.

Earl Harris, 20, who suffered a basal skull fracture, was most seriously hurt. His condition was reported as critical late Monday by attendants at Booth hospital, Covington.

Francis Leifheit, 20, driver of the car, escaped with a lacerated nose, and Wm. Flackinger, 30, suffered face and back injuries. Leifheit and Flackinger were released after treatment at Booth hospital.

VERONA HOME-MAKERS TO MEET

Don't forget, Friday, April 4th, the Verona Homemakers' meet at Mrs. Walter Renaker's at 9:30 a. m. Subject of the day will be, "Crocheted Rugs and Leather Tooling." Roll call, favorite recipe.

All members are requested to be present and visitors are always welcome.

CCC To Celebrate 8th Anniversary

A program commemorating the eighth anniversary of the formation of the Civilian Conservation Corps, commonly known as the CCC, will be held at the CCC-SCS Camp at Walton, Kentucky, on Saturday, April 5th and Sunday, April 6th, between the hours of 1:00 and 4:00 p. m.

During the hours 1:00 to 4:00 on Saturday, there will be Field Inspection trips, picture shows and various demonstrations. Sunday afternoon is to be open house for the general public.

The inspection will include official welcome by the Camp Officers and Camp Superintendent, after which there will be an inspection of camp buildings and various departments whose functions will be explained by Camp Officials.

Everybody interested in farm improvement and various phases of the training program, is cordially invited to attend.

At 1:15, E. S. T., or 12:15, C. S. T., there will be a broadcast over WLW radio station at Cincinnati, this being the Farm and Home Hour program. This is going to be very interesting to everybody. Anyone interested, tune in on this broadcast. This broadcast is sponsored by the Soil Conservation Service, Mr. Ewing Jones, Dayton, Ohio, is in charge of the program.

Hudson, "Educational Work in Islands of St. Helena," and "A Lenten Meditation" by Mrs. Lotta Powers.

Assembling for the meeting were: Mrs. A. L. Jockey, Mrs. Lula J. Hudson, Mrs. Mayme Simpson, Mrs. W. O. Rouse, Mrs. Lotta M. Powers, Mrs Allie Hughes, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. Russell Piner, Mrs. Sallie Miller, and Mrs. D. E. Bedinger.

"Soils and Security" Bulletin Available

A dirt farmer who learned about the menace of soil erosion as a boy, when his father ruined a good farm in order to raise enough money to put that boy through college, has written a bulletin about soil conservation.

This bulletin, "Soils and Security," should be authentic, because that boy later helped his father lay out terraces and otherwise rebuild what was left of the farm. After that he spent thirty years as a soil scientist, studying what makes soil, and what makes it erode.

His name is Dr. H. H. Bennett, and now he's Chief of the Soil Conservation Service. In his latest bulletin, "Soils and Security," he draws upon his own farming experience plus his studies and the experiences of many another farmer, to present in simple words and pictures the development of soils and nature's laws for their use.

In the opinion of Thomas S. Richmond, Soil Technologist of the Walton CCC Camp operated by the Soil Conservation Service, this bulletin is one of the most readable publications ever issued on this subject. It describes, by word and by photograph, the ways soil erosion is caused and what farmers can do about it. Copies may be obtained free of charge by writing to Ward T. Darnell, Camp Superintendent, Walton, Kentucky.

Harold Conner Announces His Candidacy For Sheriff of Boone

In this issue, Harold Conner announces his candidacy for Sherriff of Boone County, subject to the action of the Democratic Party on August 2nd, 1941. Harold, as he is known by everyone, needs no introduction to the voters of Boone County, but makes the following statement regarding the coming campaign:

"I was born and reared in Boone County, graduated from the Burlington High School, and later atterded the University of Kentucky. I am a charter member of the Modern Woodmen of America. I am also a member of the American Legion, Boone Post No. 4 of Kentucky, which Post, with the help of the late Ben H. Riley, County Attorney at that time, I helped organize and acted as Post Adjutant for several years.

"With humble pride I point to my record as Deputy Sheriff of Boone County under my father, L. A. Conner, which ended with my enlistment in the United States Army. Also, as Deputy under the late B. B. Hume, and at present, Chief Deputy under the present Sheriff Frank K. Walton.

"I am thoroughly familiar with the clerical and legal duties of the Sheriff's Office and wish to state that Boone County has ranked second among the one hundred and twenty Counties in the State for the past three years, in regard to efficiency and record keeping, and I point with pride to the part I have had, as Chief Deputy Sheriff, in establishing this record and holding it for the voters and tax-payers of Boone County.

"I am proud of the above record and shall make a clean and honest campaign.

"If elected, I shall serve with dignity and emphasize the square dealing policy, for which the Sheriff's Office should be known.

"I sincerely solicit the support of all the people of Boone County and feel that my record will assure me of your vote of confidence."

SPECIAL SERVICES AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The First Christian church, Walton, announces a special service to be held next Thursday evening at 7:30, at which time the entire service will be given to the observance of the Communion of the Lord's Supper.

A Sunrise service will be held on Easter Sunday morning at six o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend both services.

Mary Fisher, 84, Passes At Verona

Mrs. Mary Margaret Fisher, 84, a native and lifelong resident of Boone county, passed away Sunday, March 30, at her home in Verona.

Mrs. Fisher leaves her husband, Joseph Fisher, to whom she had been married 68 years last September; four sons, H. R. Fisher of Verona, F. E. and G. T. Fisher, both of Walton, and Holmes Fisher Addyston, Ohio, and two daughters, Mrs. C. S. Finnell and Miss Orpha Fisher, both of Verona.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2 p. m. from the residence, with burial in New Bethel cemetery, at Verona.

J. L. Hamilton & Sons had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Juniors To Present Play April 15th

Have you ever heard of a Papa Nebo? What is an Oreanga? A Zombie? Who is Dumballa? How do you conjure up the dead? Don't know? Then see "Mumbo-Jumbo," the new play which the Junior Class of Walton-Verona High School is presenting on Tuesday ,April 15, in the school auditorium. It is filled with Voodoo folk-lore as practiced in Haiti. This play is one of the most unusual you have seen. It has murders, and murders that turn out to be not murders; a blind man, a hidden fortune all in three hilarious acts. But wait—a list of the characters will appear in next week's paper.

QUALITY SAMPLE SHOES OFFERING GRAND BARGAINS

Mr. Max Rose and Mr. Paul Epstein, of the Quality Sample Shoe Shop, have put forth every effort, during the past few months, to have their store well stocked with an exceptionally good line of Nationally Advertised Shoes. The Quality Sample Shoe Shop is located at 627 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky. See their ad on page 8.

4-H Club Leaders Hold Conference

Boone County 4-H leaders, in their annual conference Saturday, were encouraged by D. H. Norris, Co. Superintendent of Schools to help 4-H boys and girls adjust themselves to changing world conditions. Mr. Norris, in talking to the leaders, stated that we have experienced a rapid rise in the standard of living and many of our youth are inclined to believe they should be able to start at the top rather than work themselves up to responsible positions. He suggested that 4-H leaders could do much to correct this viewpoint.

Other local speakers on the program included Mr. John Masters, community club leader and principal of the New Haven school, and Mrs. Elizabeth Moorehead, club leader of Taylorsport, who outlined many ways 4-H leaders could help their members and how members and parents could help the 4-H leader. Mr. J. F. Moore, community club leader and principal of the Grant school, led the group in recreation.

Forty leaders attended this annual event, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. Leaders were awarded pins and certificates of service for past years of service. Mr. E. E. Fish of the State Club department attended the meeting and discussed State Club Activities.

PROMINENT GRANT CO. MAN DIES

Funeral services, at which Rev. J. O. Carter officiated, were conducted at the Williamstown Baptist church, Monday, March 31, at 2:00 o'clock, for Walter K. Parker, well known Grant county resident. Mr. Parker, who was 63 year, 7 months, and 6 days of age, passed away at the residence on Cynthiana St., Williamstown, on March 29th.

The deceased had been in ill health for the past year, suffering from injuries which he received in an automobile accident.

Mr. Parker was a highly respected citizen, always ready and willing to do any service for good, was a faithful member of the Baptist church, and a devout member and worker in the Locust Grove Junior Order. He was the son of the late Robert and Lucy Bristow Parker.

The body was prepared for burial at the Coates & Stewart Funeral Home, and was later removed to the residence.

Burial was made in the Williamstown cemetery.

Surviving are the devoted wife, Mrs. Daisy King Parker, and one son, Ralph Parker of Washington, D. C., and several brothers and sisters.

DORCAS CLASS MEETS WITH MRS. CECIL GAINES

The Dorcal Class of the Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. Cecil Gaines last Thursday for an all-day session. After business period and dinner a good program was rendered.

Members present were as follows: Rev. and Mrs. C. J. Alford, Mrs. Jesse Wilson, Mrs. Sam Sleet, Mrs. Susie Norman, Mrs. Grace Jones, Mrs. Mollie Sturgeon, Mrs. Nathan Northcutt, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mrs. Virgie Fisher, Mrs. Anna Wade, Mrs. Anna Johnson, Mrs. Ethaline Ryle, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Georgia Mason, Mrs. Levi Pennington, Mrs. Beulah Stephenson, Mrs. Helen Graff and daughter, Judge Sidney Gaines and the host and hostess.

MANY RADIO STATIONS CHANGE WAVELENGTHS

Many radio stations have moved from their regular places on the dial. W. M. Stephenson, radio specialist, 509 Scott Boulevard, Covington, has offered his patrons an opportunity to have their push button sets realigned free with each repair job. Mr. Stephenson has made an exhaustive study of all makes of radios, and is capable of repairing any set. Due to increased business Mr. Stephenson has moved from 505 Scott Boulevard, where he was located for more than 11 years, to his new location at 509 Scott Boulevard, Covington, where there is a free parking lot next to the store for the convenience of his patrons. New log books may be obtained free by calling at Mr. Stephenson's store or sending him a post card.

FIELDS-STONE NUPTIALS READ

A marriage, which will be of interest to many in this community, took place Monday, March 31, when Mary Margaret Fields, and Albert Jefferson Stone spoke their vows, in the presence of a few relatives.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. F. DeMoisey at his residence in South Walton.

The bride, the daughter of Mrs. Dora Fields, is a student in the local High school. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stone. Both young people are residents of Walton and are very popular here.

The young couple was accompanied by the bride's mother, the groom's parents, and Mrs. Dan Isbell.

Benson First To "Toss Hat In"

If there is any truth in the old adage, that "the early bird catches the worm," then all should be "peaches and cream" with C. D. "Dewey" Benson in the Democratic Primary election to be held on Saturday, August 2. Dewey, who is well and favorably known throughout the county, is the first to toss his hat into the political ring, and his formal announcement as a candidate for re-nomination to the office of County Court Clerk of Boone county will be found in this issue.

Mr. Benson is completing his second four-year team as this county's Clerk and his conduct of affairs coming under his jurisdiction, have been above reproach. He is capable and conscientious—so why look further for a good County Clerk. Your support is solicited by Mr. Benson.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

"Christ is the World's Saviour" is the topic of the doctrinal program for Sunday evening, April 6, in the Baptist Young People's Union.

Group Captain in charge, Harold Soden.

Meditation: John 3:16:

"God ---------- the greatest lover
So loved ----- the greatest degree the world ... the greatest company that He gave ... the greatest act
His only Begotten Son ----------
---------- the greatest gift that whosoever ----------
------- the greatest opportunity believeth .. the greatest simplicity in Him ... the greatest attraction should not perish ----------
---------- the greatest promise but ------- the greatest difference have ------ the greatest certainty everlasting life ----------
------- the greatest possession."

ENTERTAINS WITH BIRTHDAY DINNER

Mrs. Bruce Wallace entertained with a delightful six o'clock dinner, Saturday evening, at her lovely home in South Walton. The affair was arranged in honor of Mr. Wallace's birthday anniversary. The guests, who included Mr. Wallace's mother, Mrs. D. B. Wallace, Mrs. Harry Hamilton and her mother, Mrs. Bleasy of Verona, Mr. Michael Prusack of Chicago, and Mrs. Gertrude Gardt and Mrs. Martha Wallace, were seated about a prettily arrayed table, in the center of which was a beautiful bouquet of snapdragons and other flowers. The dinner was "topped off" with two very attractive and luscious birthday cakes.

Following the dinner a pleasant social evening was enjoyed.

THIS WEEK IN DEFENSE

The National Defense Advisory Commission charged the Office of Production Management Plant Site Committee with "the main responsibility" in selecting locations for new defense production facilities. The Committee will attempt to choose uncongested areas and regions suffering a decline in peacetime industries to distribute defense contracts more widely, and increase subcontracting to utilize all human and natural resources. It will also review plans already formulated.

The Maritmie Commission announced it favored extension of existing shipbuilding facilities rather than building new plants in order to avoid fly-by-night financing and further "dilution" or scattering of experienced management and labor.

Defense Housing

Congress authorized a defense housing insurance fund of $10,000,000 with which to underwrite $100,000,000 in mortgages on defense homes. Construction contracts for 2,400 new defense housing units, largest number in any one week, brought the total to 43,357—of which 25,377 are for civilian workers, 17,980 for enlisted personnel.

Defense Spending and Financing

The OPM announced scheduled defense expenditures total nearly $40 billion, including $7 billion for British aid. Nearly $30 billion represents appropriations and authorizations already made and the rest is in bills now before Congress. Actual cash spending from last June to March 17 amounted to $3.5 billion.

The Treasury announced income tax- returns reached $1,139,000,000 in the first 20 days of March, far exceeding estimates. U. S. savings bonds and stamps to help finance defense will go on sale May 1, the Treasury said. Stamps can be bought for as little as 10 cents and bonds as little as $25.

Appropriations

President Roosevelt signed legislation authorizing additional Navy expenditures of $340,526,383, including $66,050,000 to complete air bases in British possessions. Congress voted $75,000,000 more for defense housing and $22,500,000 for the National Youth Administration to train 450,000 youths for defense industries.

The House passed and sent to the Senate the fifth supplemental defense appropriation bill providing $4,073,810,074 for the Army and Navy in fiscal 1942, including $1,000,000,000 for 3,600 Army bombers.

Labor Strikes

The OPM Labor Division announced the settlement of eight strikes in defense industries in defense industries: Bethlehem, Pa.; American Chain and Cable Company, York, Pa.; Todd Shipbuilding Company Company, Galveston, Tex.; Union Electric Company, St. Louis, Mo.; Dolese Brothers, Wichita, Kan.; Walworth Company, Boston, Mass.; Ray Day Piston Corporation, Detroit, Mich.; and the Indiana Steel Products Company, Valparaiso, Indiana.

Secretary of Labor Perkins asked Defense Mediation Board action on four strikes: International Harvester Company, four plants, involving 24,000 workers; The Condenser Corporation, South Plainfield, N. J., 2,200 workers; Vanadium Corporation, Bridgeville, Pa., 225 workers; and the Universal Cyclops Steel Co., Bridgeville, 1,400 workers. The Board asked the disputants to resume production and prepare to negiotate with the Board. Shortly afterwards the Cyclops Company strike was settled.

Secretary of War Stimson stated "steps must be taken" to reduce delays on defense orders caused by strikes. Under Secretary of War Patterson said several strikes were very seriously affecting the Army re-armament program. Interior Secretary Ickes said the Allis-Chalmers tie-up was holding back equipment to supply power to defense plants.

Labor Supply

A social Security Board survey showed 351,000 available workers with primary skills in selected defense industries—more than half in New York, California, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Texas. Most workers are in construction occupations. In some metal trades none were found. Only a "relatively small number" were found for aircraft and shipbuilding work.

The Department of Agriculture prepared to aid local committees in determining and avoiding farm labor shortages and dislocations. The OPM began consideration of new jobs for workers in industries slowed by the effect of priorities on vital materials.

The U. S. Employment Service announced it would inform local schools which types of defense vocational training should be given priority. The CCC announced it has speeded up training valuable to defense industries and that beginning April 1 it will enroll $65,000 boys between 17 and 23.

Selective Service

Selective Service anticipated a shortage of certain experienced merchant vessel seamen and recommended their deferment to Class II-A. An amendment to the Selective Service Act was approved by the House to exempt former marines, coast guardsmen and sailors.

Ships

Secretary of the Navy announced award of contracts totaling $100,315,682 for 239 subchasers, minesweepers and fleet tugs. Maritimes Commission awarded contracts totaling $205,500,000 for 137 ships in the President's 200-vessel emergency program.

Prices

The NDAC issued statements that recent rises in the prices of sugar and quicksilver were unwarranted. Astually the supply of sugar for consumers is larger than usual, the agency said.

The NDAC also set a ceiling on rising aluminum prices and said if similar unwarranted increases continue in iron and steel scrap and materials used in shoes, additional price ceilings will be established.

Lease-Lend

Congress passed and the President signed legislation appropriating $7,000,000,000 to provide Great Britain and other democracies with war materials. The OPM announced 200 tons of magnesium would be delivered to Britain shortly.

The State Department announced arrangements to send two shiploads of flour to unoccupied France under Red Cross supervision.

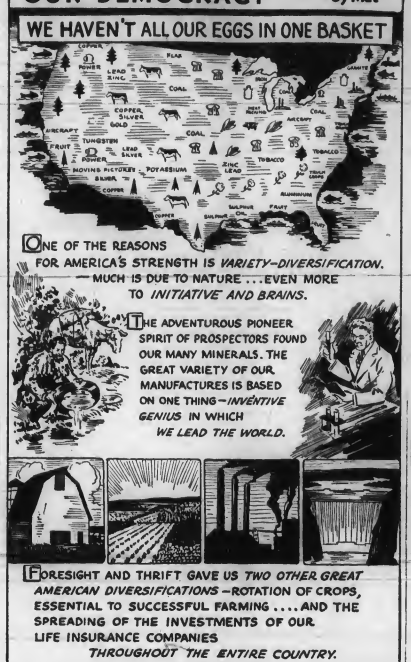
The Department informed the new Jugoslav Government aid was possible under the lease-lend program.

Priorities

The OPM issued General Preference Orderes placing British and U. S. defense needs for magnesium, tungsten and machine tools ahead of civilian needs and providing that civilian orders can be filled only with special permission. The OPM also applied a formula for the allocation of all aluminum and aluminum alloys, and directed producers to set aside each month one percent of their production as an emergency reserve.

Power

Grand Coulee Dam, world's largest structure and greatest source of hydroelectric power, was placed in operation two years ahead of schedule. The U. S. and Canadian Governments prepared plans for the St. Lawrence power project—described in a Commerce Department report as an even larger power source.



The Securities and Exchange Commission invoked a law providing for elimination of companies which "unduly or unnecessarily complicate" public utility operation and ordered dissolution of the top holding units of the $600,000,000 United Light and Power System. The Georgia Power Reserve Cooperative became the first cooperative to receive a Federal loan for an emergency mobile power reserve.

Civilian Defense

Predicting a local need for policemen, firemen and health authorities trained in civilian defense, an OPM committee recommended a training program supervised by local authorities with financial and technical assistance from the Federel Government.

War Secretary Stimson stated formation of Home Guards should be speeded to replace National Guard units in the case of serious labor disturbances or other situations liable to retard the defense program. He said Home Guards are "under way or will begin soon" in 28 States.

OUR DEMOCRACY——by Mat

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

The attitude of a noisy minority that "dog bites business man" is the real test of headline news has misdirected the attention of many people from the really tremendous achievements of American industry so far in building up the national defenses.

Coupled with the vociferations of disgruntled theorists in obscuring the accomplishments of industry has been the necessity of keeping detailed figures and information concealed in many cases. After all, when you're creating defenses to make the nation safe, you don't go out of your way to give potential enemies a complete set of charts on those defenses.

But even parts of the record of manufacturing achievements so far afford sufficiently startling evidence to give the average citizen a new measure of confidence and a new measure of pride in the industrial machine of his own United States, the greatest, most adaptable, and most efficient in the whole wide world.

It is not, for instance, giving away a military secret to state the plain truth that in the course of the last 18 to 24 months, American industry has arrived at a state of production of the weapons of defense which the Germans reached only after six years of an intensive effort that ended with Mars eating up 72 per cent of the German national income each year.

Like a champion runner competing against a man hobbled with chains, American industry is "lapping" its field of totalitarian opponents again and again as time goes by. Free men move fastest. In the fields of thought and action, they not only move fastest, they also move most intelligently.

In defense, there are examples galore to prove this point. A few among thousands may be interesting to readers.

To begin with, the manner in which industries geared to peacetime production have changed over swiftly to the making of defense equipment is one of the most fascinating stories on record. At the present time, a maker of sewing machines is turning out pistols; a maker of lingeries weaves mosquito netting for Army cantonments; a linoleum factory makes shells; oil plants make rubber, and rubber fabricators make gas masks; a typewriter factory turns out machine guns, a tobacco machinery plant puts together diesel engines, auto makers turn to take production, a lipstick maker produces shell casings, a lawn mower manufacturer turns out fuses, and a carpet manufacturer fabricates machine tool parts. The list could be continued almost endlessly.

Even more remarkable, though perhaps on the surface somewhat less colorful, is the way in which American industry—in almost every case unused to making military equipment—has fulfilled the new requirements set for it. In spite of countless handicaps, it took on ten billion dollars' worth of defense contracts between last June and the first of the year and currently, a survey shows, is on time or ahead of schedule in the case of 75 per cent of firms with defense contracts.

Space doesn't permit relation of the whole breath-taking story, but one more example is of particular moment. Remember the case of the machine tool industry? It makes the "super-machines" necessary for modern mass production. At the outset of the defense program, carping critics said that this particular industry would become a serious "bottleneck," and hold up the entire program.

Well, the machine tool companies answered those idle statements with deeds. They expanded, they set their minds to the utilization of all available machinery, they went in for subcontracting on a big scale. The 1940 production figure for the machine tool industry was—hold your breath—2000 per cent over the depression low! It will be even more startling for the year ahead.

That's the spirit in which industry, not counting the risks or the uncertainties, is moving ahead to make America strong. Every week there are stories like these: an airplane factory built in 57 days. . . a tank factory in 4½ months in the snow and cold mud . . . ships launched three months ahead of schedule.

Free men build best. Americans hoped that was true, knew in their hearts it must be true, for it was the best justification of the kind of life our forefathers conceived in this country. Now industry, with free men working for it and free men doing the planning, is proving the value of human liberty beyond the least shadow of the smallest doubt!

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

Teachers' Associations

When the teachers' institute died, its twin brother, the teachers' association, seems to have died, too. There may be a few survivals, but I am afraid that there are not enough left for seed. Really, it is a pity in many ways that so good a custom should die so suddenly and so needlessly. Just as the institute at the county seat was for the teachers, the association was for the people in the rural sections. On that day the high and mighty teachers of adjoining neighborhoods came and did their part, showing off before their public. Children came and listened and went away determined to be school teachers and public speakers. I was one of these, and I have never ceased to thank Providence that when I was a little boy, the teachers came to our little country community and held forth for a day. Right there I resolved to be a teacher, and I am not tired yet.

Honestly, some good things went on at these meetings. The catch words were flightly different, but there was often an interest in teaching school that few of this time would associate with a time when nobody who kept school in a country community had so much as a year's high-school education; most of the crowd who came to hear were probably about fifty grade pupils in formal schooling. But all of them were alive, I can assure you. Teachers got up and expressed themselves, not overawed by the instructor as at the institute. Sometimes patrons and even children were called on. I made my first public speech at a teachers' association, a little scared, perhaps, but eager to get into the group that I hoped to make mine for life. It was just a little country church where we met at Fidelity, but intellectual things attracted a lot of us, even though we had not ridden on a train or seen a steamboat.

By and by I grew up and was old enough to take the examination for a certificate. By hard work I made a second-class certificate and began my first school, in a county farther west than Fidelity. And then I went to teachers' associations as a professional. Sometimes I rode a mule that some of my patrons had lent me; sometimes I actually rented a horse and buggy and took some young lady teacher. There was still the great dinner on the ground that I had known at Fidelity; the fine old institution was alive and well. Only a few years later, however, it died a violent death, literally choked out by newer things.

Education was the excuse for the meetings, of course. Minds in those times as in these needed an occasional quickening; teachers' associations supplied one of the most valuable and innocent means of compelling thought. But education was not all. The social phase of these associations more than balanced what we sought as intelligent beings. We liked to see the teachers and to compare and contrast our own with those from the other sections. We thrilled to the feeling that we were engaged in a great tradition, the pushing forward of exalted neighborliness, call it by whatever word you may. The dinner on the ground brought many and certainly made the rest of us intellectuals glad we were living.

With all of our advancement in education since I sold my little red mule and started off to school, I still wonder whether we school people are as near our clientele as were our poorly-prepared predeccessors, who had at least one chance each year to appear informally before their patrons and those from the surrounding districts.

WHAT IS SCARLATINA?

By Dr. Thomas Sullivan

Scarlatina or scarlet fever is an acute condition accompanied by fever and diffuse redness of the skin. It begins with a chill followed by rapid rise in temperature—103 to 105 degrees. In some cases persistent vomiting is present in the early stages of the disease. The heart beat is very rapid, sometimes 140 to the minute, instead of about 72 as in normal health. In 24 hours the chest and neck become covered with a rash and within a few hours this spreads to the whole body. Upon close examination the ruption is seen to consist of tiny red spots so closely packed together that at a distance the skin appears to be uniformly red. This redness lasts about a week and then gradually fades away. The skin peels off in from two to six weeks. The throat is swollen and sore and there is inflammation of the tonsils. The tongue is covered with a heavy white fur which lasts a few days, leaving the tongue a bright red color. Headache, insomnia and sometimes delirium are present. Within a week the fever subsides and the patient slowly recovers.

In this and other acute diseases there is considerable accumulation of poisonous materials in the body and the patient's recovery depends on successful elimination of these. This the chiropractor aims to accomplish by natural stimulation of the organs of elimination through the correction of spinal abnormalities. Displaced vertebrae press upon nerves and prevent normal transmission of nerve force to the body. Chiropractic adjustments are carefully designed to restore any vertebrae which may be found out of position. This enables normal transmission of nerve energy to take place and the organs of elimination which formerly had been failing in their work, respond to the nervous stimulation. When this has cleansed the body of toxic accumulations, Nature rebuilds and restores health.

OUR BRAND of democracy was won for us, and is being held for us, by men who chose their own careers, owned big farms, built big factories, and did what selling was necessary to keep those farms and factories busy.

One of the biggest aids in mass selling is mass advertising. In the long run, it "polices" itself.

Advertising of poor products always fails. Only a first rate product, fairly priced, can stand the dazzling glare of national advertising. When you think of the heavily advertised soups, soaps, breakfast foods, mechanical refrigerators, automobiles, silverware, radios — you are thinking of the aristocrats among commercial articles.

CRITTENDEN LADY PASSES SUDDENLY

Mrs. Hattie Webster, aged 45 years, 5 months, and 13 days, was found dead in her bed early Tuesday morning, March 25th at her home in Crittenden, Ky. Death was attributed to accute heart attack, according to Claud Neal, Grant county coroner.

Mrs. Webster had been in poor health for some time, but she had retired for the night, feeling much better than she had for several days. So her passing came as a great shock to her host of friends.

The deceased was born October 12, 1895, the daughter of the late Lucy Gorden. I n1918 she was united in marriage to Henry Webster, and to this union five children were born, one daughter having preceded her mother in death. Mr. Webster passed away November 16, 1940.

She leaves to mourn her passing, one daughter, Mrs. Mattie Switzer of Crittenden, Ky.; three sons, Wilbur of Pensacola, Fla., and Clarence Marvin and Harlan at home; one brother of Covington, Ky., and one granddaughter, besides a host of friends.

The body was removed to the Coates & Stewart Funeral Home for preparation and later returned to the residence. Services were conducted from the Mt. Zion Baptist church of which she was a member, Thursday, March 27 at 2:00 p. m., Rev. Bennett officiating. The numerous and beautiful floral offerings and the large crowd which witnessed the last rites proved the esteem in which the deceased was regarded.

Interment was made in Mt. Zion cemetery, Coates & Stewart having charge of arrangements.

Boys in Sports

Any athlete will be "thrown for a loss" if he poisons himself with beer, wine or whisky, in the opinion of outstanding coaches.

As the late Lord Baden-Powell, Boy Scout founder, wrote: ". . . the old saying that 'strong drink makes men weak' is a very true one."

Players and coaches would say "amen" to that, as they did in the following statements in a W.C.T.U. survey:

Red Grange: "You cannot smoke and drink and expect to succeed as an athlete."

Bill Tilden: "It is certain injury to touch alcoholic drink in any form . . . it is a poison that affects mind, eye, and wind."

Helen Wills Moody: "The precision that tennis demands makes necessary total abstinence, even from beer . . ."

Connie Mack, the grand old man of baseball: "All the umpires together have not put as many men out of the game as old man booze."

Pop Warner: "Abstainers are better athletes than even moderate drinkers."

Alonzo Stagg, grand old man of football: "A drinking man has not clear sight, and the athlete has got to have it; a drinking man has not full capacity in nerves, and the athlete has got to have it because he calls upon every particle of the stuff that is in him to produce in the particular sport he is in."

"You'll Always Lose Here"

Fielding Yost: "I have never observed any good from the use of it. I would not waste my time trying to train or develop one who uses it. A boy or young man who drinks does not give himself a fair chance."

Lloyd Jordan, Amherst College: "Alcohol is the deadliest enemy of perfect coordination, judgment and all-around efficiency."

In other words, the boys who use their heads don't pour a poison into their systems.

BOOTLEGGERS

Introducing an editorial listing the bribery and bootlegging now existing in wet states, the Jackson, Miss., Clarion wrote: "Come up close, all you poor, deluded, intelligent, respectable people who have had dust thrown in your eyes by the liquor interests to such an extent that you are deaf to the truth and blind to the facts."

HOW TO DETECT COUNTERFEIT COINS

1. KNOW YOUR MONEY!
2. RING all coins on a hard surface. Genuine coins sound clear and bell-like. Counterfeits sound dull.
3. FEEL all coins. Most counterfeit coins feel greasy.
4. COMPARE the reeding (the corrugated outer edge) of a suspected coin with one known to be genuine. The ridges on genuine coins are distinct and evenly spaced. On counterfeit coins they are poorly spaced and irregular.

HOW TO CASH GOVERNMENT CHECKS

1. KNOW YOUR ENDORSERS!
2. DEMAND definite identification of the payee.
3. COMPARE endorsement on check with signature on identification.
4. WPA workers carry cards with identification number, signature and physical description. If you cash WPA checks, compare these three things and make sure the description fits that of the person presenting the check.
5. BE CAUTIOUS about cashing a check on which the payee's address is far removed from your place of business.
6. REMEMBER—You may lose the amount of any Government check which has not been endorsed by the rightful payee.
7. MAKE A CHECK BEFORE YOU TAKE A CHECK!!

The High Cost of Getting Well

Within recent years much has been said about the high cost of getting well. After giving this problem a great deal of study, we have devised a simple plan whereby the patient may get the best health service at a very nominal cost, without sacrificing any laboratory tests or X-rays which may be necessary in his particular case.

We shall be glad to explain this plan in detail if you will call at this office.

NAGGING BACKACHE
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

We heard the children romping in their playroom upstairs—then suddenly, a scream!

We both rushed up and found our young son had fallen and apparently broken his arm. We immediately phoned our family physician, who verified our worst fears.

In time, the arm was carefully set, but other difficulties arose that called for an unusual prescription.

I looked at the clock—where could we get it filled at this late hour?

We spoke to the doctor, who then picked up the phone and called "that man" out of bed—again "that man" (our neighborhood druggist) did not fail us.

Our neighborhood druggist never fails us! Should you, like most women, suffer discomforts during the menstrual period, just phone your druggist—he usually advises women to try Vatona Tablets—this may be just what you need!

WITH THE REDS

Cincinnati — It isn't very often that Bill McKechnie goes out on a limb, but he's doing so in the case of his big catcher, Ernie Lombardi, about whom much has been said this spring. "Lombardi," says Bill, "will be the Reds' catcher on opening day, barried unforseen accidents, of course."

That means that the big fellow is rounding into playing condition as well as can be expected. He was late in reporting to the training camp because of contract differences, and when he started to work out, there was a noticeable limp as a hangover of the sprained ankle he suffered near the end of the 1940 season.

However, that limp was a natural reaction to strenuous exercise, after a winter of inactivity, and it did not in the least excite those closest to the club. During the latter stages of training, Lombardi continued to show marked improvement in his physical condition, and his progress has been so rapid that McKechnie has taken the floor to let everybody know how he feels about the matter.

Lombardi is probably the greatest magnate for rumors in the history of the Cincinnati Club. Many times during his Cincinnati career he was rumored to have been killed or seriously injured in auto accidents, while he was snoozing peacefully in his apartment. This past winter the report came in that he weighed 300 pounds. Then he was supposed to have hardening of the arteries, etc., and the latest is that his ankle will keep him on the shelf this season.

Meanwhile, Ernie goes about his business, saying nothing. He knows that time will prove everything, and that as soon as he appears in the lineup, then there will have to be a new angle to the rumors about him. He reported to the club this spring without any excess poundage, and now he weighs about what he did at the close of the 1940 season.

Fans of Cincinnati and vicinity will be able to get a preview of the world's champions when thy tackle the Boston Red Sox, one of the hardest hitting teams in baseball, at Crosley Field, Cincinnati, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 9 and 10. In addition, the Reds and Red Sox will play two more games in the Cincinnati vicinity, at Owensboro, Ky., on Monday, April 7, and at Louisville on Tuesday, April 8.

On Friday, April 11, the Reds will meet their 1940 world series opponents, the Detroit Tigers, at Dayton, while on Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13, these same two teams will stage their renewal of the world series feud at Crosley Field.

The Wednesday and Thursday games against Boston will start at 3 o'clock. The Saturday and Sunday games will get under way at 2:30. Time of game at Owensboro is 2:30 at Louisville 2:30, and at Dayton, 3 o'clock.

Box seat tickets for the Wednesday and Thursday games at Cincinnati, and reserved and box seat tickets for the Saturday and Sunday games are now available at the Reds' ticket office at 307 Vine Street. Mail orders will be given prompt attention.

Boston's appearance in the Queen City will be the first for that outfit, which is a member of the American League. The team is one of the hardest hitting in all baseball. The infield alone smacked about 120 home runs last year. This inner wo rks is made up of Jimmy Foxx, Bob Doerr, Joe Cronin and Jim Tabor.

It will be interesting to see the Reds' pitching against the Boston hitting.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist Director of Adult Education UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

Residential building in this country is at the highest level since late 1928 and early 1929. Unless some unforeseen event occurs, 1941 will run far ahead of 1940 in the number of new houses constructed.

The present building boom is due, in part, to the desire of the Federal Government to make work and, in part, to the fact that we have not had any new building to speak of for over ten years. This lack of home building created a real demand for new houses; we were bound to see a boom in building as soon as people went back to work and had money to invest. The Federal aid, it seems to me, made possible this new construction program at an earlier date than otherwise.

How long will the building boom last? It should last for at least two or three years. One of the threats to this new boom is the possibility of a dangerous upswing in building material prices. A swift rise in building costs could bring a collapse in residential construction volume just as it did in 1916.

Manufacturers of building material and the Government are trying to keep prices down. But in spite of their efforts, prices have gone up tremendously. Metal lath has gone up eight per cent since the first of the year while fibre board has risen $2.00 per thousand feet. As we all know, the wages of carpenters, plasterers, painters, and bricklayers have all gone up. Reliable reports state that brick and cement prices are due for a rise. Taxes are also on the uptrend.

Thus all indexes point to higher building costs. The only cost that has not gone up is interest on borrowed money. And this is one great stimulant to present building. But unless other costs stay near the present levels, we may expect many people to postpone building a new house until costs go down to what they believe a fair level.

Let us hope prices can be kept down, for there is a real need for more modern residences in the U. S.

CHRIST PROMISES POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 1:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1:8.

Important things bear repetition. Luke, who wrote both the Gospel and the Acts, presents the ascension of Christ, His promise of power, and His command to witness, at the conclusion of the Gospel and at the beginning of the Acts. The one is all suffused with evening light; the other is radiant with the promise of a new day. The one is the record of a tender farewell; in the other, the sense of parting has almost been absorbed in the forward look to the new phase of relationship which is to begin."—(Alexander Maclaren).

I. The Proof of Christ's Resurrection (vv. 1-3).

Before telling of "the day in which he was taken up," Luke makes it clear that the ascended Christ, who had made the promise of power to His disciples, was the very one who died for our sins, but who could not be holden of death or the grave. He arose, of which there are indeed "many infallible proofs" (v. 3). At Easter time we recall the fact that leading historians and experts in the field of evidence have declared that the resurrection is the best established fact in all history.

The fact that for forty days after His resurrection Christ was among His disciples, speaking to them of the things of the kingdom of God, is significant and conclusive proof in itself.

As the indispensable dynamic of their service as His witnesses, He now assures them that they will receive power.

II. The Promise of Christ's Power (vv. 4-8).

They were to tarry in Jerusalem until the power of the Holy Ghost came upon them. This took place on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2) when the Holy Spirit came to abide. We no longer are called on to tarry for the Holy Spirit to fall on us, for the moment we believe, He comes into our lives in blessed abiding presence. But we do need to tarry, to wait for His fullness of power, before we attempt to minister for Christ. We need to yield to Him for His fullness, bringing out emptiness that He may fill us and then use us.

The disciples had an important question to ask (v. 6) regarding the restoration of the kingdom. The reply of Jesus turned their attention from that future matter to their present obligation to witness for Him and their need of power for that witness. This does not mean that His followers are to lack interest in the Kingdom which Christ will one day establish, nor that they should fail to be interested in prophecy and its fulfillment. It does clearly mean that we must leave times, seasons and dates to the Lord and be diligently about the business of witnessing for Him.

How greatly the little band of disciples needed power in that day to face a hostile, unbelieving world, sunken in bondage to Satan, and bring to it the convicting and converting message of the gospel. They received that power, and in spite of every hindrance the gospel through the centuries has made its way to the hearts of men, and won its victories for God.

We need that power today. The Holy Spirit is here to give it to us, as we yield our lives to God. There are many Spirit-empowered men and women in the Church today, but relatively their number is small. Who is ready to yield to His control now, and thus swell the host of faithful and effective witnesses?

III. The Pledge of Christ's Return (vv. 9-12).

We mentioned last week that sermons are seldom preached on the ascension of Christ, although it has an important place in the Bible. Even more glaring and disturbing is the failure of preachers and teachers to declare the truth of the second coming of Christ. The promise of it is written large on the pages of the Bible, but some men seem to ignore it.

How plain and understandable is the promise in this passage. "This Jesus"—not some other—"shall so come"; that is, personally, literally, and visibly. There is no ground here for spiritualizing, to say, for example that He comes in death, or that this was but a metaphorical expression.

The text is very plain and emphatic. In agreement, we find, among others, such texts as Luke 21: 7; John 14:3; Philippians 3:20, 21; I Thessalonians 1:7-10; I Thessalonians 4:16; II Timothy 4:8; Hebrews 9:28; Revelation 1:7. Unless we reject God's Word, we must receive this truth, and should receive it with joy, for it is the blessed hope of the Church (Titus 2:13). He is coming again!

Kenton Farm News

Make the Farm

Feed the Family

This is the title of the Extension Division Circular Number 354 issued by the college of Agriculture. The opening paragraph of this circular has the following to say:

"Research in the field of home economics has shown the need for a variety of foods not only for the growth of healthy children but also for the health, efficiency and happiness of adults. Such foods must include the kinds that supply energy for work and play, protein for growth and repair of muscle tissue and also furnish minerals and vitamins for growth and maintainance of health. Farm families need variety in food as well as city families. Too often on the farm there is a sameness in the meals which do not contain all the food nutrients necessary for well being of the family. These inadequate diets may consist mainly of bread, beans, cured meats and coffee, sometimes supplemented with potatoes. City families with inadequate incomes, are compelled to limit their purchase of food to subsistence requirements but the farm families may produce on the farm such food essentials as eggs, milk, butter, poultry, green vegetables, fruits, potatoes and some fresh meats."

This circular suggests to farm families the necessity for making the farm largely feed the farm family. Some of the reasons are: First, it is almost impossible to have the variety of food materials needed unless the farm produces such foods as dairy an poultry products, green and root garden plants and some fresh meats, large fruits and berries. In the next place an abundant supply of such farm foods obviated the necessity of using so much of the income from the sale of cash crops and livestock to furnish them - - - - - - - - The great incentive for the farm way of life is not only the fresh air and sunshine, but the independence that comes with the use of farm-grown foods."

This Circular is Full of good information and it will help the farm family to "MAKE THE FARM FEED THE FAMILY" if the recommendations are practiced.

Copies of this circular can be obtained from your county extension agent's office.

The Garden Month by Month

Another important circular is the garden circular that gives timely information on how to get the most out of your home garden month by month. This circular No. 343 should be studied by all farm families as a guide in making the garden more profitable. It tells you what you should know each month in the year to have a profitable garden. You can add to your family income by having a well planned, spring, summer and fall garden.

Orders for 107,000 Tons of AAA Lime Set New State Record

Distribution of lime as a conservation material supplied by the AAA for use in the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program has already passed the mark set in 1940, the State AAA Office announced.

With three months to go on the 1941 program, orders for 107,000 tons of agricultural lime for 64 Kentucky counties had been booked by the AAA through March 1. In the 1940 program 87,939 tons of lime was supplied as a conservation material to farmers in 26 counties of the state.

Orders for more than 90,000 tons of phosphate for use on legumes and grasses in the 1941 program are also reported. This material is being distributed in the Agricultural Conservation Program in all counties of Kentucky.

Both of these materials are needed on farms in Kenton county according to C. A. Wicklund, county agent, and George A. Eubanks chairman of the Kenton county Agricultural Conservation Association farmers are advised to make plans for using both lime and phosphate in earning the soil-building allowances, if they have not already done so, before the 1941 program closes June 30.

Farmers are advised not to use the phosphate furnished as a grant of aid by the AAA on small grains that have been seeded in grass. Where the phosphate is used on a small grain before the grain is harvested or cut for hay a double deduction will be made from the payment earned by the farm.

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord and He will have mercy upon him and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon."

The Unseen Hand is at the helm of every life trying to walk in the footsteps of the Saviour who "went about doing good." There is no other way by which true comfort can come to our hearts than by bowing our heads in perfect submission to the Divine Will. While it does not make the pain of the sorrow less, it does bring the heart into full accord with the Divine, and to say, "Not my will, but thine," ends all strife and struggle and the soul rests in undisturbed calm. That life is most worth living whose work is most worth while."

"Christianity is not a thing to be proved, but a life to be lived."

"Reverence is one of the great ways the soul has to show its gratitude to its Maker."

"There is nothing so kingly as kindness, and nothing so royal as truth."

"They are never alone that are accompanied with noble thoughts."

The Oak Island W. M. S. and the Homemakers' Club served a delicious lunch at the public sale, held at the residence of Thomas J. Stephens, March 22. The entire community deeply regret the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Stephens and interesting family to Covington, but wish them every success in their new home. They have been prominently identified with church activities and will be greatly missed by the church.

Mrs. Jesse B. Smith and sister, Mrs. Kirby Smith of Grant's Lick, were in attendance at the Stephens sale Saturday, and en-route home paid a brief, pleasant call.

Harley Stephenson Killed Tuesday When Milkhouse Falls

Harley Stephenson, 58, was fatally injured, Tuesday about noon, when a small frame structure, said to be a milkhouse, fell on him, crushing his chest and ribs, and causing internal injuries. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital, Covington, in the Chambers & Grubbs ambulance, where he died a few hours later. The accident occurred on the Clarence Struve farm on Richwood road, where men were moving said building. A support gave way, causing the tragedy.

Mr. Stephenson resided on the J. C. Bedinger farm near Richwood, and was a farmer. He had moved, with his family, to this location in March, having previously resided on the Walton-Beaver road. He was born and spent his entire life in this section, and was well liked by all who knew him.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Anna Bell Stephenson, the deceased leaves fourteen children, ranging in age from 1 to 18 years; his mother, Mrs. Ora Stephenson of Independence; four brothers, Walter, Vin, Ira and Louis Stephenson, all of near here; and one sister, Mrs. Edna Curley of Independence.

Funeral services are to be conducted Friday, April 11 at 2:00 p. m. from the Chambers & Grubbs funeral home, with Rev. T. H. Alderson, pastor of the Walton Christian church, officiating. Burial is to be in Independence cemetery.

BURLINGTON P.-T. A. PLANS PRE-SCHOOL CLINIC

At the first P.-T. A. meeting at Burlington, the following committee was appointed to plan and work out Burlington Pre-school Clinic: Mrs. J. K. Copper, Mrs. Walter Brown and Mrs. W. L. McBee.

This committee met in the Red Cross office April 7, setting the date for the Clinic Tuesday, April 15 ,at 1:00 p. m.

There will be three people to look after transportation and four to assist with the clinic. Dr. M. A. Yelton, who generously did this work last year, is being counted on again for this year. He will be assisted by the Red Cross Nurse.

Wilton Stephens Seeks Re-election

Wilton Stephens, present tax commissioner, now makes his formal bow to the voters of Boone County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, Saturday, August 2nd, 1941.

During his term of office, there has been no increase in the assessment of any type of property, Boone County is one of the few counties in the state not to have received an increase in real estate assessment in the last few years.

His statement follows:

"I have, to the best of my ability, served the people of Boone County as Tax Commissioner for the past seven years, being as reasonable, impartial and courteous as possible. My associations with you have been a pleasure rather than a duty, and I greatly appreciate the cooperation you have given me.

"If re-elected, I will endeavor to serve you even more efficiently than I have in the past."

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH WILL OBSERVE COMMUNION THURSDAY NIGHT

A Special service will be held at the First Christian church this evening (Thursday) at seven thirty, at which time the entire service will be given to the observance of the Lord's Supper. A responsive order of worship will be followed and worshippers are urged to come in the spirit of reverence and prayer. The public is invited to the service.

RICHARD POWERS DIES IN DETROIT

Death brought to a close the life of Richard Adolphus Powers, who passed away at the home of his son, Joseph, at Detroit, Michigan, on Thursday, April 3. He was 83 years and 2 months at the time of his passing.

Mr. Powers had made his home in Detroit each winter and had spent the summers with his daughter, Mrs. Nick Trapp, in Walton. He was well known, and because of his sterling qualities, was beloved by a great circle of friends, not only in this community, where he had spent so many years, but also in Detroit, where he won for himself a host of staunch friends.

He is survived by the above mentioned daughter and son, another son, Samuel, also of Detroit; one brother, Mr. Thomas Powers of Detroit; one sister, Mrs. Mecie Batton, of Covington; seven grandchildren and four great grandchildren. Three daughters and three sisters preceded him in death.

Funeral services, in charge of the Detroit Masonic Lodge, who gave Grand Honors to their brother Mason, were conducted April 5, 1941. Mr, Powers had been a member of Lodge No. 362, at Fiskburg, Ky., for the past 56 years.

Wool Pool Urges High Quality Clip

The Boone County Wool Pool members met Monday, April 7, at Burlington to make plans for selling the county's 1941 wool clip, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The pool went on record as making recommendations that all growers use care in handling their wool so that it may be delivered in the best marketable conditions.

The following points should be stressed:

(1). The sheep should be sheared only when wool is dry and the wool should be kept dry.

(2. Operators of commercial power clipping machines do not use as much care in handling the wool at shearing time as did the growers who clip their own sheep. Growers are urged to be on hand at shearing time and remove tags and burs from light burry wool before the fleece is tied up.

(3). Only paper twine should be used. Binder twine damages the quality of the wool.

(4). Straw and trash should be kept out of the fleeces at shearing time.

(5). Black, gray, seedy, dead, light burry, fleece grown and fine or Merino wool should be kept separate from the clear combing wools.

(6). Tie each fleece as soon as it is removed from the sheep. Roll the fleece carefully, with the clean, flesh side out, and with no loose ends. Roll the fleece toward the neck as compactly as possible. Tie only with paper twine.

EASTERN STAR MEETS MONDAY

A special meeting of the Walton O. E .S. was held, in the chapter room, Monday night, when Mr. and Mrs. James Blackwell and Mrs. Bertha Harvey ,of Latonia, were initiated into the mysteries of the order.

Mrs. Roberts, worthy matron, (a sister of Mrs. Blackwell) and John L. Vest, worthy patron, with their co-workers exemplified the work in a very impressive manner.

A very pretty part of the ceremony was the presentation of Eastern Star pins to Mrs. Blackwell and Mrs. Harvey. These were gifts of their respective husbands, and were fittingly presented by Miss Nora Roberts and Della Shearer. Mrs. Blackwell was also the recipient of another lovely gift from her niece, Miss Nora Roberts, which was presented by Louisa Rouse.

After the meeting, a delightful covered dish luncheon, and pleasant social time were greatly enjoyed.

Dorotha Ryle Seeks County Clerk Post

Mrs. Dorotha Ryle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McMullen, of Burlington, officially announces her candidacy for the nomination of County Court Clerk of Boone County in this issue of The Advertiser.

Dorotha, as she is better known to everyone, graduated from Burlington High school and attended Y. M. C. A. Busines School in Cincinnati.

In January, 1930 she was appointed Deputy County Clerk under A. G. McMullen, then County Clerk and served in this capacity during the last four years Mr. McMullen was in office. She has also served as Deputy County Clerk for the past two terms under C. D. Benson, present County Clerk, making a total of eleven years as deputy.

Mrs. Ryle states that she is deeply grateful to the people of Boone County for the kindness shown her during the time she has been in the County Clerk's office and if elected, pledges the same courteous and efficient work as in the past.

Boone county farm leaders are launching a drive to "feed the family from the farm" as a defense measure.

"Scarlet Ghost" at New Haven Apr. 16

The New Haven Seniors will present their class play, a mystery-comedy with the dramatic title, "The Scarlet Ghost," on Wednesday, April 16, 7:00 p. m., C. S. T., admission 25c and 15c, at the school auditorium.

The story centers around old Hetty Norton, a wealthy woman who has always had her own way. When one of her nephews decides to be an author and another decides to marry an actress, Hetty goes into a tantrum and fireworks fly. Then the family lawyer brings a huge sum of money to the house to be kept overnight in an old wall safe. The attempts of various people to get the money, to solve the appearance and disappearance of the Scarlet Ghost, and to straighten out their love affairs make an exciting evening. Finally even Hetty herself is stabbed, and it is only through the clever efforts of the gardener-detective, Halloran, and in spite of the efforts of Flynn of the police that the mystery is solved.

The cast of characters include: Hetty Norton, an elderly business woman used to having her own way, Rebecca Knox; Shirley Stone, a young woman of the Press, Catherine Gilpin; Hank Halloran, the gardener who is a self-developed detective, Meier Taylor; Allen Montgomery, Hetty's nephew who wants to be an author, Bobby Shields; Elma Adams, secretary to Hetty for years, Sara Sutton; Clarence Macklin, the family attorney, Bobby Ryle; Janice, the maid with a nose for news, Jeanette Schwartz; Spencer Norton, Hetty's other nephew who wants to be a husband, Preston Tillett; Dorothy Norton, Spencer's new wife, Frances Stephens; Jim Flynn, inspector of police, James Day; THE SCARLET GHOST - - - one of the above characters. Coach, Miss Rebecca Sleet.

VERONA HOME-MAKERS MEET

The Verona Homemakers were entertained in the home of Mrs. Walter Renaker, Friday, April 4th with 21 attending, seven being visitors.

We welcome another new member, Mrs. Grover Ransom. Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, being a very efficient lady, served in Miss Gillaspie's place. However, Miss Gillaspie is being missed very much, and all will be glad to have her with us again.

We had a very educational and interesting meeting. Mrs. Moore gave many good points about proper food and Mrs. J. L. Roberts, on disguised meat. Mrs. Walter King talked on beautification, telling how to prune shrubs. Mrs. Will McCormick read on what to do in April gardening.

A vote was taken on the choice of a new project for next year, and "Food and Nutrition" was chosen.

Ideas were taken on new vegetables to be raised this year.

Mrs. John Boyer was appointed Citizenship chairman; Mrs. O. K. Powers, Reading chairman; Mrs. Gladys Stewart, Defense Program; and Mrs. Will McCormick, "Live at Home" program. Mrs. Walter King gave the lesson on leather tooling; and Mrs. Gaynell Flynn and Mrs. Moore gave very instructive lesson on crochet rugs, in which all manifested great interest.

The next meeting will be held May 2nd. The major project vill be "Knitted Rugs;" roll call, "Elementary First Aid."

—Maude Wilson.

"Mumbo-Jumbo" to Be Given Tuesday

The cast has been completed for the production of "Mumbo-Jumbo," the brand new three-act mystery farce by Jack Barnard, on Tuesday evening, April 15, 1941. The central characters, those of two harum-scarum college youths, will be played by Stanley Lee McElroy and Russell Groger. Geraldine Elliott will portray a beautiful young woman under the strange spell of Doctor Omahandra taken by Paul Simpson. Rose Ellen Chapman will be a Voodoo witch doctor, James O. Dudgeon a mysterious blind man. Bonnie Jean Davis will be Tweetie, a country maiden; Nathan Northcutt will be Sheriff of Milburn, and Mildred King will be his female rival, the Sheriff of Hopetown.

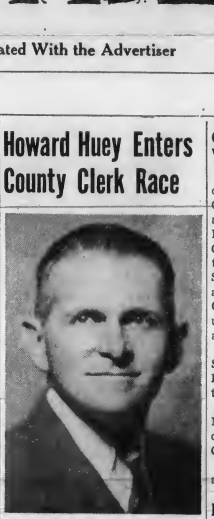
Others in the cast include: Mrs. Custer, Wanda Lou Conrad; her son, Harold, Clifford Ryan; State Patrolman, LaVerne Ryan; Mrs. Sarah Reynolds, Laura Marsh, her husband, John, Harold Vest; Peaches Greeding, a chorus girl, Ruth Haley; and the two nieces of the Sheriff of Hopetown, Marian Hancock and Rose Ann Bickers.

According to Mrs. H. P. Baker, who is in charge of the production, "Mumbo-Jumbo" will be presented at 7:30 p. m. at the High school auditorium of Walton-Verona school.

The admission will be twenty-five cents for adults and ten cents for children.

The play is being produced by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York.

Don't forget the date—April 15. Be there!



I. W. GABBARD OPENS SINGER SEWING MACHINE SHOP IN ERLANGER

I. W. Gabbard, formerly employed by the Singer Sewing Machine Co. of Covington, recently opened a Singer shop in Erlanger. The new store is located at 49 Dixie Highway, Erlanger.

Mr. Gabbard has been connected with the Singer Co. for several years, and will be able to service any Singer products sold by him.

He announced that he will carry a complete line of Singer accessories and all other makes of sewing machines. He will be glad to give you a free estimate on repairing your old machine, and will be glad to quote you prices on the new Singer machines.

Howard Huey Enters County Clerk Race

J. Howard Huey, of Petersburg, tosses his hat into the political ring this week, when he makes his formal announcement as a candidate for nomination of County Court Clerk, on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Huey was born and reared in County, educated in the schools of Boone County and was the first student to graduate from the Burlington high school.

For two years he was principal of the Petersburg high school, but has earned his livelihood from the farm the remainder of his life, at which profession he has been very successful.

Mr. Huey has served his district for the past seven years as Magistrate, which position he has filled most efficiently. He is a director of the K. I. O. Milk Producers Association, which post he has held for several years. He is also a member of the Young Men's Democratic Club and has always been a staunch Democrat.

In announcing in this issue of The Advertiser, Mr. Huey makes the following statement:

"In seeking election to the office of County Clerk, I promise that, if elected, I will serve the people with the same conscientiousness that I have served them as a member of the Fiscal Court, and shall strive to conduct the office with an efficiency that will be a credit to Boone County."

W. C. T. U. Holds Regular Meeting

The W. C. T. U. held a very inspiring meeting last Friday, April 4th. Our president had a very helpful program prepared, the contents of which should be known by all mothers in our town, and especially those who have had to let their precious sons go to army camps.

Mothers! Awake! and know the places to which your boy has gone and do something to stop the flow of vice. Pray the following article from a loving father may reach our President:

Excerpts from "an open letter to our President" by the Editor of The Christian Advocate, in the January 16, 1941, issue of that publication: The power that inheres in the sacred office of the Presidency of the United States is more than that wielded by any other ruler in the world, because an American President speaks in the name of free men! No dictator, holding a continent at bay, is as powerful as the President of the United States at the head of 140,000,000 free men! May you and your high office rise to this hour!

At the same time that the christion people plead with you to save their sons from the desolation of war, they also plead with you, Mr. President, to use your great influence and the prestige of your unrivaled position, to protect their homes and their children from the ravages of the liquor traffic.

American sons and daughters by the hundreds of thousands are being despoiled. The very youth upon whom we must rely for defense are being debauched. Social wreckage strews the land. Innocent homes bear unjust burdens, and all because of this iniquitous business. And one strong and imperative word from you—OUR PRESIDENT—would rise like a wall of defense. Speak that word, Mr. President, we beseech you!

We bid you Godspeed.

I am, dear Mr. President,
Yours sincerely,
The Editor of
The Christian Advocate.

QUICK-STOKES WEDDING SUNDAY

Announcement has been made of the recent wedding of Miss Glenna Quick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Quick of Madison Pike, to Dwight E. Stokes, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. Stokes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Stokes of Frankfort, Indiana, and is a singer on station WLW, Cincinnati, Ohio. Miss Quick, until her marriage, was a Junior at Simon Kenton High school.

The marriage was performed Sunday at Frankfort, Indiana, by Rev. J. R. McDanold, pastor of the Christian church there.

The couple was attended by Miss Betty Smith of Independence, Ky., and Charles Kegy, of Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes will reside at 657 Riddle Road, Cincinnati.

PRE-SCHOOL CLINIC HERE MAY 5TH

Is your child ready for school? Bring them to the Pre-school Clinic. We give you a thorough physical examination FREE. This clinic will be held at the first grade room of the Walton school May 5, 1941.

SUNRISE SERVICE SUNDAY MORNING AT 6:00

An Easter Sunrise Service will be held at the First Christian church next Sunday morning at six o'clock. The theme of the service will be, "Not Here, But Risen." The public is cordially invited to attend.

Other services will be, Bible School at 9:45. Morning worship and Communion service at 10:40. Subject of the message will be, "I Am The Resurrection."

Evening worship begins at seven o'clock. Subject of the message, "Pilgrims of the Burning Heart Way."

Local Literary Club Entertained

Mrs. Alan H. Gaines, president of the Walton Woman's Literary Club, presided at the April meeting, which was held Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. W. O. Rouse being the gracious hostess to the group.

At the business meeting, which first occupied the attention of the ladies, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Lulu Huey; vice president, Mrs. Clayton Jones; secretary, Mrs. C. F. Blankenbeker; treasurer, Miss Emma Jane Miller. Mrs. Clayton Jones and Mrs. John C. Bedinger were named as delegates for the convention of the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Ashland in May. The program for the year on "The Good Will Tour," which has proven a source of much interesting information, was continued with papers on "Panama," by the program leader, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, which was presented by her daughter, Mrs. Clayton Jones; "Conquest of the Tropics," by Mrs. Barnette W. Franks; and "Glimpses of Central America," by Mrs. Gaines.

After the program a pleasant social time was enjoyed, and at the close of the afternoon the hostess served a delightful salad course to the following members and guests: Mrs. W. W. Whitson, Mrs. T. C. Mason, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Joe Rouse, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, Mrs. James H. Talley, Mrs. John L. Vest, Mrs. D. Hess Vest, Mrs. Wendell W. Rouse, Mrs. John Meyers, Miss Emma Jane Miller, Mrs. Clayton Jones, Mrs. Alan Gaines, Mrs. E. E. Fry, Mrs. Barnette W. Franks, Mrs. J. R. Conrad, Mrs. C. Scott Chambers and Mrs. John C. Bedinger. Mrs. Rouse's sister, Mrs. Fannie Brittenhelm, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wendell W. Rouse, charmingly assisted Mrs. Rouse in entertaining.

BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC

By J. E. Jones

The seizure of German, Italian and Danish ships brought prompt protests from Germany and Italy. Our own Government announced that the seizures were "strictly legal," and the Axis wasn't even asked to agree with our position. It seems very likely that our Government will assume formal title over these ships as the next step, and the Axis won't like that, either. As a matter of fact the time has passed when the Government of the United States gives a whoop about what these European war lords think, or like.

Naturally, actions speak louder than words, and a good many Administration and Congressional leaders in Washington admit the truth of the daily charge that the United States "is in the war," or "on the way." We may convoy loaded ships to England, and other friendly countries in spite of Germany's threats to destroy American ships carrying aid to the British. Greece and other nations are also being furnished liberal aid from Washington, and if Germany and Italy sink our ships, the little neutrality that still exists in the United States will "go out the window."

It has been perfectly plain for several weeks that the Axis have been given plenty of excuses to extend their war to include the United States, and that our Government hasn't backed down an inch on anything. Our Nation has taken over ships, and given the Hitlerites to understand that they can't bluff us. So, what's the answer? Some people in Washington say that is the right way to keep out of this war. When you ask them why, they will remind you that Hitler instructed his butchers in the very beginning of the attacks on Czechoslovakia and Poland that the United States must not be given cause to go to actual war with Germany. The reason he gave was that the United States was the cause of German defeat in the first World War.

Isn't it reasonable to believe that Hitler is afraid of the United States and that is why the Germans want, above all things, to keep us out of the Battle of the Atlantic? And isn't that quite likely to be the way the United States will "keep out."

Those who want to see Hitler defeated at any cost, those who still think the war is none of our business, those who say we should preserve "social gains" even if it means becoming a German province, and those who insist we must set up a totalitarian form of government matching Hitler's.

Of course, as most solons see it, there is a middle way. But the majority are worried by fear lest this country, in supplying resistance to a dictatorship, destroy the very thing it is seeking to preserve.

What it gets around to is this: The "planners" are still in Washington. The general tendency of Congress recently has been to avoid experiments and theories. So the planners have changed tactics. Instead of advocating their proposals for the "general welfare" they now urge them as "defense" necessities.

One example will suffice. Many states have long conducted safety inspections of boilers. By and large they have done a pretty good job. Few boiler explosions are heard of. Yet now a bill has been introduced which for "defense" purposes would let Congress and the Federal Government take over this state function.

Every plan, every proposal, which Congress rejected in comparatively normal times is now being dressed up in a uniform, and its supporters are saying: "Look! We must pass this to speed defense!"

That tendency worries the legislators, particularly those who think that instead of trying new things we should make workable those laws already on the statute books. Another thing which concerns them is belief expressed by some constituents that the job of building and maintaining defense is easy.

To counteract that belief, new facts slowly are being made public, to show that tanks and planes and guns can't be built overnight and by a few men.

For instance, it took 15 months to build one plant, install the proper machines, train the workers, and turn out a million shells. It will take only 60 days for the next million.

Another example is this: A huge, five-ton multiple spindle bar machine would have to work constantly two and a half days to turn out enough bullet cores to keep one machine gun firing for a single hour.

Already, the nation's plants are humming at top speed. Contracts have been placed with them for about $13 billion worth of defense goods .But not including what will develop later this year or in years to follow, Congress has approved or is in the process of voting more than $42 billion—nearly three and a half times as much.

The job grows bigger daily. Most patriotic legislators hope it won't be interfered with by demands for maintenance of "social" gains no matter what the cost.

The current Congressional fear is put this way by Rep. Sumners of Texas, who is regarded by his colleagues as one of the soundest legislators in Washington:

"We're repeating the mistakes of France. I warn you, the boys in uniform won't knock off at 5 o'clock. They'll stand the night watches."

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Mail reaching U. S. Senators and Congressmen in Washington indicates that many people are slow to realize what this nation faces in coming months.

Perhaps naturally, constituents who write in from the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts and some Gulf States are pretty well aware of the dangers involved in being an "arsenal for democracy." But many inland states reflect belief that the job can be done in an offhand manner.

What general policy the United States adopts is, in the minds of most legislators, no longer a question. That, they say, has been decided in the British aid bill and other legislation. The only issue, as a great majority of the solons see it, is how the nation carries out its declared policy.

Some legislators and military experts see a "shooting war" only a few months away. Others think the shooting can be avoided. But virtually none believes that the whole nation is aware of the troublous shoals ahead.

Voters who write in usually fall into several well-defined groups:

HEBRON 4-H CLUB NEWS

The Hebron Norbeh Champion Home Economics Club, met Thursday, March 20, 1941, at the school. Our community leader, Miss Conrad, helped us to organize our club, choose our project captains and adult leaders. The club had some new members coming in this meeting.

The club met again Friday, March 21, at the school, and discussed the things the club is going to do this year. Mrs. Moore, who is substituting for Miss Gillaspie, gave a talk on "What the Units are to Make." The meeting was adjourned by Carolina Seiler, who led us in our 4-H pledge.

OUR DEMOCRACY—by Mat

SHERIFF'S PROBE SHOWS BROAD JAIL BREAK CAREFULLY PLANNED

The following story was clipped from the Morning Sentinal of Orlando, Fla., and concerns a former resident of Boone county. Sheriff Jim Allen Black, mentioned in the item, was born and reared at Big Bone, and he is a nephew of Frank Allen. We publish the story with the thought that Mr. Black's friends and relatives in this section, would be pleased to learn of his present activities.

Charley Henderson, under sentence of death for murder, and Amos Anderson, of Titusville, Fla., where he was implicated in the liquor business, according to jail records, were fomenters of the jail-break plot at the Orange county jail Wednesday midnight, it developed at Sheriff Jim Allen Black's investigation yesterday.

Henderson and Anderson, with the latter being the brains, told their 26 cell-block mates that they could lead the whole crowd in the break. So well were the plans drawn and so tight-lipped were the plotters, that even the trusties caught no slightest hint, nor even suspected such a plot was brewing.

The arch plotters reckoned, however, without Night Jailer George DeMeritt. Despite the fact that he was fighting in the dark with a pair of jail blankets noosed over his head, and even after he was pistol-whipped with the barrel of his own "lemon-squeezer" pistol, he continued to struggle so effectively and against odds, that the plotters were unable to drag him into the third cell of the block, where blankets had been stripped for tying him, and also for making rope-ladders to use in descending from the fourth floor to the ground.

If they had succeeded in getting Jailer DeMeritt into that third cell and tied up—or if they had killed him—then the arch plotters would have had time to complete the break and made it good, Sheriff Black is convinced.

Yesterday afternoon Sheriff Black and his deputies made a thorough search of the entire cell-block and the stripped blankets were discovered, well hidden. It also developed that every man in the escape plot, either actively or passively.

Johnny Harris and James Johnson, the two prisoners who at first flash, appeared to be ring-leaders, were really small fry, Jailer DeMeritt stated last night. They decided, after the essential part of the plot, which was getting DeMeritt into that third cell, and tied up—or murdered—miscarried, that they could make it out of the jail on their own. The real ring-leaders, DeMeritt said, slithered back into their cells.

DeMeritt says he is certain that Amos Anderson convinced the others he could lead them successfully in the break; that Anderson is the man responsible for the timing and the preparations for scaling the walls downward by means of the improvised rope-ladders.

It appears ,according to Sheriff Black, that if Harris and Johnson had contained themselves — the jail break would have got much farther, for no radio alarm would have brought the entire Orlando police force to the jail, and the plotters would have had several hours to spring a window, let down their rope ladders, and get to the ground.

Anderson, according to jail records, is a federal prisoner, awaiting trial.—Morning Sentinal, Orlanda, Fla.

RABBIT HASH HOMEMAKERS

The regular monthly meeting of the Rabbit Hash Homemakers' Club, was called to order by President Mrs. Ethel Wilson, at the cream station at 12:30 p. m., March 11th. Eight members and two visitors were present.

Our clubs are very fortunate to have Mrs. Curtis Moore, substituting for Miss Gillaspie, who is recuperating from her recent illness.

Mrs. Ozell Hall was welcomed into the club as a new member.

Mrs. Ethel Wilson read a very interesting letter from her "letter friend," Miss Cecily McCall, England. The Blue Grass District meeting, Federation of Homemakers', to be held at Maysville, April 29, was discussed.

The date set for a bake sale to be held at the creamery, is Saturday, April 12.

"Live at Home" leaders gave helpful hints for feeding and brooding baby chicks. Mrs. Opal Kelly gave instructions on braided rug making.

"Home Improvement" was chosen by our club for the major project next year.

The meeting adjourned at 3:00 p. m. Mrs. Ida Mae Ryle will be hostess at our next regular meeting at the cream station, April 8th. Members are urged to be present.

—The Secretary.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

BY Gordon Wilson Ph.D.
WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

"A HOUSE BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD"

Sam Walter Foss, who wrote the poem, "The House by the Side of the Road," must have come into our community or county on an observation tour before the poem took form. I certainly know of enough things that he could have seen to justify his 'well-known poem and its philosophy.

Across the creek on one of the highest and poorest hills lived old Uncle Bill Cabell, in a little unpainted shack that looked strangely like several dozen others of our neighborhood. There was nothing very attractive about Uncle Bill except his habit of keeping the coffee pot on some coals all through the winter and inviting everybody who passed by on the little country road to come in and have a cup. Now, isn't that a fine thing for anybody to do, especially one so poor as Uncle Bill and so far away from the center of life?

Some twelve miles west of Fidelity lived my great-grandfather, who belonged, wittingly or unwittingly, in Foss' poem. When he built his house, he dug a well right by the side of the road. This well was a typical old-fashioned one, with a well-house, an old oaken bucket, and all. By the very side of the road he had a long horse-trough dug out of a log with an adze. Here the wayfarers stopped to refresh themselves and their horses, sure of a welcome, for the well never ran dry and was free to everybody. When I used to visit at this old place, long after my great-grandsire had passed away, there was a constant stream of people coming by and stopping at the well by the side of the road.

Fidelity had and has another institution that is as remarkable as the union church, now long gone but its bell preserved and mounted on the new high school building. This other institution was a public cistern. The water from a large store building was collected in it. I grew up to think the cistern a large one, and it must have been for I never knew it to run dry, though many families used from it, and we usually had to depend on it to water the thirsty children in the schoolhouse, some half mile away. It was to this cistern that we went when Miss Eunice let us go for a bucket of water. The cistern is now gone, but a public well has taken its place, right out in the rockiest part of the village. And that reminds me that only this very year I drove through a small county-seat town where the old town pump is still running at the same old stand. There used to be many of these, picturesque things that have had to go in the limestone regions because of the danger of pollution.

More and more I hate to see passing community enterprises that held people together long before we even knew the word "civic." It is a pity that we could not fence in some typical community and keep it untouched as an object lesson in some of the virtues that standardization may cripple or kill. If I were asked to plan a museum of this sort, I would fence in old Fidelity, except I fear I have waited too long, for modernization long ago reached out and put its stamp upon even my real-dream village.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

UPRIGHT POSITION OF MAN SACRIFICES MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY

Constant opponent of man in the upright position is nature's law of gravity. In the lower animals the spine is a beam; body weight is suspended along interlocking bones. without undue stress or strain on any one part. In man, the spine is a pillar, body weight is borne with increasing stress from above downward, and strain is directed against the spine at various levels. Spinal strain also is caused by poor posture habits, occupational stresses, accidents and similar causes. As a result, one or more bones of the spine may become functionally displaced. Many diseases peculiar to the human being have been proved beyond doubt to be caused directly by such spinal displacements, causing, as they do, nerve irritation at the opening between the vertebrae through which the nerves emit from the spinal cord.

Again, the horizontal spine in lower animals, for example, the cat, permits great flexibility between individual bones. When a spinal displacement occurs, it usually is quickly corrected. In man, on the other hand, while the spine as a whole is comparatively flexible, movement between any two bones is very much restricted. As a result, any spinal displacement tends to persist. Since health and long life may be seriously affected by such spinal displacements, the means to help maintain the spine in normal mechanical alignment needs very careful consideration.

MORGANSVILLE

"He is not here, He is risen." The darkness of the cold, silent tomb gave way to the glorious resurrection morn, when our blessed Lord burst asunder the cords of death.

"To thine own self be true, and it must follow as the night the day. Thou canst not then be false to any man." "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire muttered or expressed. The motion of a hidden fire that trembles in the breast."

"Humility is the richest pearl that is in the christian's crown of graces."

Don't look for the flaws as you go through life, and even when you find them 'tis wise and kind to be sometimes blind and look for the virtues behind them."

Heartiest congratulations are extended to Mrs. Lanter of Independence, on attaining such advanced years, and that she may reach the century mark is the united wish of a host of friends. In peace and serenity she lives at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rusk.

Mrs. J. L. Pickett, Mrs. Albert Richardson, and Mrs. Margaret Settle recently called on relatives

Blaine Trapp was a guest of Kenton relatives the past week.

SPARTA

Mrs. Jas. Bond spent the past week in Indianapolis.

John L. Morgan moved, this week, from the Jones property to the property of Chas. Brock.

Mrs. Louise Myers and son Raymond Ransdell of Indianapolis spent the week end the guests of her father, Dr. J. M. Stallard.

Mrs. Lummie McHatten, one of our older citizens, has been on the sick list, but is somewhat improved.

The C. E. Harrison sale, above town, was well attended and everything sold well. The farm was purchased by Frank Lafferty an Owen county farmer, for $7,500.00.

Mrs. Maud Dickerson of Lakeland was the week end visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Lafferty and family.

School closed last Friday with very appropriate exercises held at the Sparta Christian church.

Miss Ann E. Jacobs, who has a position at Good Samaritan hospital, Cincinnati, spent one day here last week with homefolk.

Phil E. Stallard spent several days in Indianapolis on business and returned home the last of the week.

A. E. O'Connor moved Saturday to the farm of his father, Owen O'Conner, for the ensuing year.

Kenton Farm News

MAKE YOUR FARM FEED YOUR FAMILY.

Budget your family food needs.

PLAN NOW FOR A GOOD EARLY AND LATE HOME GARDEN.

Kentucky Extension Division Circular No. 354 has the following to say about Foods For a Family of Five:

Table 1. Estimated cost of food for a family of five, purchased at retail price, and covering a period of a year, giving the amount of each product used: Milk, 1460 quarts; cottage cheese, 156 pounds; butter, 130 pounds; lean meat and poultry, 450 lbs.; lard, 50 lbs.; bacon and salt pork, 150 lbs.; canned vegetables, 306 quarts; canned fruits, 234 quarts; eggs, 150 dozen; apples, 5 bushels; fresh fruits, 360 lbs.; fresh vegetables, 350 lbs.; potatoes, 18 bushels; home sweets, sorghum, honey, jellies, etc., 75 lbs.; flour and cereals, 690 lbs.; dried vegetables, 26 lbs.; pickles, 26 qts. The estimated total cost of the above items, $500 to $658.00.

With the price of food products advancing it is doubly important that farm families make plans for growing as much of their food requirements as possible.

A well managed half-acre garden of rich soil should produce $200 to $250 worth of vegetables for the family needs. Budget your garden plans to include a canned supply for winter as well as for the table during the growing season.

Next week we'll talk about Home Garden Feeds.

Under Planting of Burley Tobacco Allotments Will Not Result in Reduction in Allotted Acreage.

Under the marketing provision of the Agricultural Adjustment Act which govern allotments for burley tobacco during the next three years, farmers may plant less than their allotted acreage in 1941, 1942, 1943 without being penalized by reduced allotments in future years, George A. Eubanks, Chairman of the Kenton County Agricultural Conservation Association announced.

When a farmer failed to grow his entire burley tobacco allotment over a period of years in the past his farm allotment was reduced; but under present regulations, allotments are "frozen" and such reductions cannot be made.

This does not mean that reductions cannot be made under certain other specific conditions, such as violation of the marketing quota law, but it means that no reduction can be made because a farmer failed to grow his alloted acreage. Two farms having an allotment of five acres each in 1941 will have equal allotments in 1942 even though one farmer grows five acres of tobacco in 1941 and the other grows only two acres—unless the allotments are changed for other reasons.

Thus if Burley growers wish to do so, they may shift to other crops (check with the county office on growing vegetable crops) or livestock in 1941 in order to reduce the present large supply of burley and return to the production of burley tobacco in 1942 or later, Mr. Eubanks stated.

Prevent Leaf Spot Diseases in Tobacco

Leaf spot diseases affecting tobacco can be prevented if a bordeaux mixture is used on the plant-bed at the proper time.

Leaf spot diseases are caused by germs which are found in the surface layer of the soil in a position to attack the young plants. These germs produce a disease that is commonly known as rust.

A 3-4-50 bordeaux mixture applied early in the spring prevents rust in tobacco.

The equipment needed to apply bordeaux is a 50 gallon barrel, either wood or metal, a 12 or 14 quart sprinkling can and a stone jar or crock.

Procedure: (1). Fill the barrel ¾ full of clean water. (2) Dissolve four pounds of hydrated lime in 3 to 4 gallons of clear water to make a thick paste. After all of the lime is dissolved pour into the barrel and stir the solution very thoroughly. (3) Dissolve three pounds of bluestone in a crock or jar containing warm water. Pour the bluestone into the barrel containing the lime solution. Stir the solution vigorously several minutes. (4) Add enough water to the barrel to bring the contents to 50 gallons. (5) Use the material immediately. Any of the material not used in an hour or two should be poured out. (6) 50 gallons of the material will cover a bed 9 feet wide and 200 feet long, or two beds 9 feet by 100 feet. This is at the rate of a quart of the solution for each foot of a bed 9 feet wide. (7) Apply mixture to the bed, without removing the canvas. Use a common everyday sprinkler. Don't wash the mixture off.

Two applications should be made if the spring is cool and damp. The first application should be made when the plants have two leaves and the second application 10 days later when the largest plants have four leaves.

A detailed discussion of leaf-spot diseases is given in Circular No. 230, The Production of Burley Tobacco. This bulletin may be obtained at the County Agent's Office in Independence, or Covington.

Mrs. Rod Hughes, Mrs. Alleen Connor and Mrs. Estelle Gordon motored to Hanover, Ind., Friday. Perry Hughes and Miss Luke Gordon, college students there, accompanied their respective parents home, to spend the Easter holidays.

Mr. Herndon Nix of Erlanger, a former resident of Walton, was a pleasant caller at the Advertiser Tuesday.

Bruce Wallace and Mrs. Gertrude Gardt were visitors, Friday evening, of Mrs. Mary Gutting and family of Warsaw.

James R. Salyers, District Supervisor of the Covington District for Vocational Rehabilitation, was a visitor in Walton the forepart of the week and while here was a welcome caller at the Advertiser.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kuyper of Cincinnati spent Sunday with the latter's sister, Mrs. Mayme Simpson and son, Malcolm Simpson.

Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Bedinger of Columbus, Ohio, are spending several days this week with relatives here.

MRS. BARNETT FRANKS HONORED WITH SURPRISE

A birthday surprise, which was a total surprise, was that tendered Mrs. Barnett Franks, Monday evening. While Mrs. Franks was tending a Sunday school teachers' meeting at the home of Mrs. R. E. Ryle, a number of ladies gathered at her home to await her return. And Mrs. Franks, oblivious of these "underhanded" plans, let her guests sit in a dark room, while she gaily visited long after the meeting was over. However, when the honoree did finally get home, she and her guests had a pleasant evening playing stunts, and visiting.

Those who helped Mrs. Franks celebrate were: Mrs. Ora Fry, Mrs. Mabel Stansifer, Mrs. Bess Conrad, Mrs. Gertrude Gardt, Mrs. Mason, Mrs. C. J. Alford, Mrs. Powers, Mrs. Minnie Davis, Mrs. Cecil Gaines, and Miss Grace Weller.

NORTHERN KENTUCKY WOMEN TEACHERS MEET

About 40 members of the Northern Kentucky High School Women Teachers' Club, met on April 2, at the Walton-Verona High school for the last meeting of the school year. Dinner was served at 5:30 by the ladies of the Walton Y. W. C. A.

After dinner, a program consisting of vocal selections by Mrs. J. B. Johnson, accompanied by Mrs. Sam J. Hudson, and readings by Mrs. Evelyn Sizemore and Miss Evelyn Coffman, was presented.

In the business session, which was conducted by the president, Miss Lela Pogue of the Dayton High school, a committee was appointed to investigate the possibility of bringing an eminent woman speaker to Northern Kentucky next year. A nominating committee was also appointed. Both committees will report at the October meeting.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U. WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

"Taking Christ Seriously" is the topic of the devotional program for Sunday evening, in the Baptist Yung People's Union.

Group captain in charge, Geraldine Elliott.

Meditation—

The quality of mercy is not strained,
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath: It is twice blest:
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes;
It is an attribute of God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest God's,
When mercy seasons justice.

MRS. PRABLE HOSTESS TO CONSTANCE HOMEMAKERS

The regular monthly meeting of the Constance Homemakers' club was held at the home of Mrs. Margaret Prable, April 2nd. There were fifteen members and five visitors present. We were glad to welcome Mrs. Ralph Cotton as a new member.

About ten members decided to attend the district meeting to be held at Maysville, April 29th.

Mrs. Walter Sprague was appointed reading chairman of our club.

At noon a delicious luncheon was served.

We were glad to have Mrs. Moore assistant H. D. A. with us.

During the afternoon session our major project leaders, Mrs. Virgie Kottmyer and Mrs. Walter Sprague gave a very interesting and helpful lesson on crocheting rugs.

The next meeting will be held May 7th, at the home of Mrs. Alice Kenyon.

—Mrs. Ida Herbstreit.

VERONA 4-H NEWS

The third monthly meeting of the Verona Willing Workers 4-H club, was held at the Verona school, April 7.

The meeting was called to order by our president, Vernon Myers. A very nice playlet, called "Building Fires in Safety," was given by members. It was conducted by our vice-president and program chairman.

Mrs. Moore gave us our citizenship books.

We were sorry all of our leaders weren't present, but were glad Mrs. Chapman was there.

The project captains gave their reports.

We all join in wishing Miss Gillaspie a speedy recovery.

A. S. LUCAS OF FLORENCE PASSES

A. S. Lucas, 79, retired building contractor, passed away, Sunday after a year's illness, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grant Maddox, near Florence on the Dixie Highway.

Mr. Lucas had been a resident of Boone county for 30 years. He was a member of the Florence Baptist church and had a host of friends throughout the community.

Services were conducted Wednesday at 2:00 p. m. at the Florence Baptist church. Rev. Roy Johnson, of Burlington, had charge of the services, assisted by Rev. M. D. Martin of Erlanger, and Rev. Drake of Newport. Burial was in the Florence cemetery.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Maddox and Mrs. Emet Baxter, of Harrison, Ohio; five sons, Rev. Elmer Lucas, Arlington, Va.; Albert, Stanley, J. D. and Broadus, all of Florence; a brother, John W. Lucas, Johnson City, Tenn.; three sisters, Mrs. Kirtley Sechrest, Johnson City; Mrs. William Ware and Miss Laura Lucas, both of Williamstown; 14 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

ANNUAL DISTRICT FEDERATION MEET

Boone county Homemakers will attend the Annual District Federation meeting in Maysville, Tuesday, April 29. Mrs. Sam Sleet, New Haven, will preside, as the group representing 14 counties in the district, assemble.

Miss Ella Gardner, Recreation Specialist from U. S. D. A., Washington, will be featured on the afternoon program. District chairmen will make reports and present aims of their respective programs for the year. Mrs. P. W. Adkins, Pineville, president of State Federation of Homemakers' Clubs, will also be a speaker.

All Boone county Homemakers are urged to get in touch with their local club presidents to make reservations for transportation and the luncheon.

HOMEMAKERS' "LIVE AT HOME"

"Your major project in home improvement is an important part of your 'Live at Home' program," Miss Vivian Curnutt, specialist from the University of Kentucky, said to leaders representing Boone County Homemokers' clubs at their meeting at the Court House in Burlington on last Tuesday. She pointed to the fact that in the "Rug Making" project, discarded materials may become beautiful and useful additions to the home.

The lesson this month was "Crocheted Rugs," the fourth in a series Miss Curnutt is conducting leaders were present, representing clubs at Bullittsville, Burlington, Constance, Florence, Grant, Hebron, New Haven, Petersburg, Taylorsport and Walton. The meeting began at 10:00 a. m. and continued into the afternoon. Interest was shown as each leader worked to learn by application the suggestions given for the sucfor the Homemakers. Fifteen cessful making of crocheted rugs. The leaders will present the instructions at meetings of local clubs this month.

RED CROSS HEALTH NOTES

Miss Florine Thomason, representing Red Cross Nursing Service, Washington, D. C., has just spent two days in Boone county. Miss Thomason said she was very much pleased with the Red Cross work done in this county.

Through the cooperation of Dr. S. B. Nunnanly, her physician, the Red Cross, family and friends, Mrs. Hazel Reaves Turner has entered Hazelwood Sanatorium, where the doctors, after taking an X-ray, believe she will soon regain her health.

Ruth Anne Isbell, Walton, Ky., has just returned from Boothe hospital, Covington, where she had her tonsils removed.

Mary Louise McCubbin, Walton, is getting her eyes examined, by an eye specialist, and glasses, this week.

Helen Burns and John Kendall of Hebron school, have had their eyes examined by an eye specialist, and gotten much-needed glasses.

LEADERS AND CAPTAINS CHOSEN AT 4-H CLUB MEET

The Waltonian 4-H club held its second meeting on Monday, March 24, with 23 members present, and five absent.

Mr. Drake, the assistant county agent, Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, the substitute home demonstration agent, and Mrs. Walter W. King, the community club leader, were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and approved by the president, Mildred King.

Mrs. Moore passed out program sheets in Citizenship, which we hope will help us to become better American citizens in the near future.

Project leaders and captains were elected as follows: Clothing leader, Mrs. Walter King; foods leader, Mrs. Marie Kendall; boys' project leader, Mr. James Pennington; foods captain, Rose Marie Johnson; clothing captain, Mary Louise McCubbin; poultry captain, J. B. McCubbin; and garden captain, Edward McIntyre.

The members repeated the club pledge.

Mr. Drake and Mrs. Moore talked to the boys and girls about the different projects.

It was decided, among the girls, that their foods class meet each Tuesday, and their clothing class meet each Thursday.

At 3:00 p. m. the club members and adult leaders adjourned.

Mrs. Moore took the picture we won last year for Leaders' Conference, which is to be held Saturday, but left us with hopes of winning it for good.

RYLAND HOMEMAKERS HOLD APRIL MEETING

The April meeting of the Ryland Homemakers' club was held at the home of Mrs. Mary Threlkeld, at Vissalia, April 1st.

The following members responded to roll call: Mrs. Alfred Rich, Mrs. Oliver Gee, Mrs. Wm. Dickman, Mrs. John Murchison, Mrs. Clarence Armstrong, Mrs. Wm. Mendenhall, Mrs. Wm. Damon, Mrs. Godfrey Miller, Mrs. J. C. Brown, Mrs. Harry Rubbe, Mrs. John Belew, and Mrs. Mary Threlkeld. There were also two guests, Mrs. Walter Calvin and Mrs. Bruce Kenady, and Home Demonstration Agent Miss Zelma Byerly.

The group sang several songs, then enjoyed a special song, "How Betsy Made the Flag," by Mrs. Walter Calvin and Mrs. John Murchison.

Mrs. Wm. Damon gave an interesting lesson on citizenship. She compared the conditions of war-torn countries to a country stricken with a terrible sickness and how we Americans must aid those stricken, as much as possible, and at the same time build up our own defenses to prevent a similar situation here in America.

Miss Byerly gave a consumers report, telling how the nation's women spend their 85% of all money spent.

The lesson on the proper method of setting in a sleeve, was given by Mrs. Harry Rubbe.

Mrs. Oliver Gee gave the lesson on foods. The vital mineral salt, iron, was the subject of discussion. Profiting by Britain's mistake of neglecting important minerals in the diets of their people, we Americans are using every possible means of obtaining these minerals in our diets. One way is the enriched flour and enriched bread now on the market. This puts bread in its important role of being "the staff of life."

The club again made plans for a tour of places of interest in Cincinnati, scheduled for May 6.

The May meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wm. Dickman in Covington, on May 13th.

BURLINGTON HOMEMAKERS

The Burlington Homemakers met Thursday, April 3, at the courthouse. There were 24 present, including two new members, whom the ladies were glad to welcome.

The county president, Mrs. Kottmeyer, visited with us at this meeting. She talked to us about the District meeting to be held in Maysville on April 29, and told about the library facilities the club is to have. The Homemakers, we were told, have as part of their program, National Defense on the Home Front. The county president told of the many things this covered.

Our Garden Lesson was good, and after having had it, no one should have wilting or dying cucumber vines or bean beetles in the garden.

The Exterior Beautification chairman had as her topic: "The Pruning of Shrubbery." At this time of the year, one is interested in knowing how to do this—there is a right and wrong way to prune even the smallest bush. To get the prettiest and most natural effects, bushes should be pruned accordingly.

The Citizenship chairman asked for the cooperation of the ladies in cleaning up and planting the school grounds. The work was begun on Saturday, April 5th.

At this point the meeting adjourned for lunch. After a "covered dish" luncheon the meeting was resumed, the roll was called and Mrs. Snyder appointed reading chairman. A vote was taken for the Major Project for the next term, but the subject will not be decided upon until the Advisory Council meets and votes.

Mrs. Riley, in the absence of the Project Leader, gave the lesson which was on Crochet Rugs. The lesson was very interesting and the women seemed quite anxious to learn; all seemed to get busy and practice and we had very able teachers.

Don't forget the date of the District meeting, April 29, at Maysville. Reservations must be made by the 23rd for luncheon, as well as for transportation.

There is still time to file applications for mattresses.

Come out to the next meeting! One is assured of time profitably spent.

—Mrs. R. C. Garrison.

-that man IN OUR NEIGHBORHOOD!

I DARED NOT LEAVE THE HOUSE

I had just put the children to bed and turned out the lights, when the youngest started to cough. With confidence, I went to the medicine cabinet — the bottle was empty!

I knew from experience the child would grow worse through the night unless relieved, but my husband was away — I could not leave the house.

In this predicament, I thought of "that man", (our neighborhood druggist) and phoned immediately — then in what seemed but a few moments, I heard welcome footsteps — the filled prescription had arrived.

Yes, our neighborhood druggist fills prescriptions with infinite care and also carries a fine line of cosmetics and proprietary products. For women, he usually recommends Vatona Tablets to aid in the relief of those trying discomforts of the menstrual period — this may be just what you need — at least get in touch with your druggist.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

S. S. Lesson for April 13

CHRIST SHOWS HIMSELF ALIVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:13-17, 25-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore.—Revelation 1:18.

Certainty and assurance — these are at the heart of our observance of Easter. We declare with Paul, "Now is Christ risen from the dead" (I Cor. 15:20), and that He is "declared to be the Son of God with power . . . by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1:4). We would join the apostles who "with great power gave . . . witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 4:33).

Someone may say, "That's well enough for you who have faith in God, but I'm bewildered, uncertain, fearful, in a disordered world. What shall I do?" Come with us as, in our lesson, we join two men who had become bewildered, who felt that all their hopes had been crushed, that the future was only to be feared.

We join them as they walk wearily along the road from Jerusalem to Emmaus. Suddenly there is Another with the little group. Let us listen to their conversation. First we find

I. Holden Eyes and Slow Hearts (vv. 13-17, 25, 26).

The two sad men who had left Jerusalem to go to Emmaus were disciples of our Lord who had just been through the crushing experience of seeing Him crucified. Now, as the jeering mob held triumphant sway in the city, they left the dead Christ (as they supposed) in the tomb and went their way. True, there had been some reports on the morning of the third day that the woman had seen Jesus alive (vv. 23, 24), but their hope and faith was at such low ebb that they could not —or did not—believe. Even when Jesus appeared to walk with them and question them, they did not know Him.

Eyes closed by unbelief; faith hindered by doubt and fear; a despondent heart slow to believe God—how very effectively these shut out the blessing of God and of His Word, even to the believer. Even deeper is the darkness in which the unbeliever finds himself. But all is not lost; there is One here who can open unseeing eyes and warm cold hearts —even Jesus.

II. Burning Hearts and Opened Eyes (vv. 26-32).

Although they did not realize it (how slow we are to appreciate our blessings!) until after He was gone (v. 32), their hearts began to burn within them as soon as He began to expound the Scriptures to them.

What a Bible exposition that was, as Christ Himself opened all that the Scriptures taught concerning Him! Bible teachers have talked about, and it makes one's heart burn just to read their suggestions (see for example Morgan on Luke, page 278). Little wonder that these men were "strangely warmed" as they listened.

The way to have a burning heart is to read God's Word or to have it expounded by a Spirit-filled teacher or preacher. Especially is there blessing in reading and studying what the sacred Book teaches about our blessed Lord.

With the heart "strangely warmed," as John Wesley described his Aldersgate experience, comes the opened eye. "They knew him" (v. 31) in the breaking of the bread. Perhaps they saw the scar in His hand, or possibly they identified a familiar gesture or something in His voice; but until their hearts were warmed they did not see. Paul knew that truth when he declared: "But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (I Cor. 2:14).

Some reader who has trouble believing in the resurrection will find the problem solved when he meets Christ and has his heart changed in regeneration. What follows?

III. Quickened Feet and Glad Testimony (vv. 33-35).

The seven miles (sixty furlongs, v. 13) which had passed so slowly were now quickly retraced. They bad glorious good news to bring to the disciples at Jerusalem. How swift are the feet of the one who has good tidings to bear (see Rom. 10:15). One wonders why so many professed Christians are so slow about carrying His message. Can it be that they do not yet know the risen Christ? For if we know Him, surely "we do not well" to keep silent in a day of good tidings (II Kings 7:9).

Note in verse 34 that before they could speak, the others gave them the good news of the resurrection. It is proper and delightful that believers share spiritual blessings (Rom. 1:11, 12). That's why we come together in God's house.

Brother in the Lord, Christian sister, how long is it since you had a new and stirring experience of the presence of Christ? Not necessarily spectacular or exciting, but a real spiritual experience. Let's ask Him for it!

Drink, Drive, Die!

Very few Americans would get into an automobile driven by a "doped up" driver. Yet, scientific leaders time and again have labeled alcohol "a dangerous poison and a narcotic."

There were 32,600 motor vehicle deaths in 1939 and the National Safety Council, disinterested authority, says Drinkers or Pickled Drivers or Pickled Pedestrians are involved in one out of four fatal accidents. That would seem to make liquor—beer, wine or spirits—a factor in 8,150 deaths.

"Alcohol Plus Gas"

The reason, according to authorities, is that a drink or two puts the nerves and brain to sleep, dulling thinking, blurring vision, lessening hearing, and confusing reactions.

Prof. H. L. Hollingworth of Columbia University and Dr. Walter R. Miles of the Carnegie Nutrition Laboratory in Boston recently made separate laboratory tests of the effects of small quantities of alcohol which showed definite results in narcotizing of nerve centers.

The highway and city street death toll is the reason for a mounting demand that government "keep the drink out of the driver or keep the driver out of the car."

"Equals a Death Ride"

It is one major reason why the Grange in some states has demanded that no taverns be licensed outside city areas. It is the reason for strong sentiment against curb service of alcoholic beverages. It is one of the strongest proofs that the public pays more than money for its relegalized liquor traffic.

The W.C.T.U. reminds that the original word "narcotic" was almost identical with the root word for "snare" and "noose". That should be something for car drivers, passengers, and pedestrians to think about.

FACTS VS. FICTION

The liquor interests have made much in recent years of their alleged efforts to put the business on a "high plane." Yet, the Chicago Daily News of March 4, 1941, said in a news story: "Efforts of the liquor interests to change the county zoning ordinance so they can plant saloons, roadhouses and night clubs within 500 feet of the Maine Township High School . . . have evoked a storm of protest." A recent W.C.T.U. release recalled that "Profits and more profits, customers and more customers are the sole objective and aim of the liquor traffic."

INDEPENDENCE R-1

(Too late for last week)

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schoorg had as their guests for Sunday, her sister, Miss Elizabeth Hoehn, and Mrs. Frances Wolking, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kemphaus and Miss Ruth Wolking of Erlanger, Kentucky.

UNION

Mrs. Preston Hedges, Mrs. John Points and daughter Wanda, were shopping in Cincinnati, Tuesday.

Our local Boy Scout Troop 128 met for their regular meeting on Tuesday evening, at 6:30, and plans were made to stage a mock trial at New Haven school soon. We are sure this will prove very interesting as will the "added attractions" they will put on that evening, so let's all go out and give the boys a big boost.

We had four delegates present at the Spring Conference of the 6th District P.-T. A. We all enjoyed the guest speaker, Dr. Raymond McClain, president of Transylvania College, Lexington, and were very happy to have our own Mrs. Walter Ferguson elected second vice president for another term.

Mrs. George Melvin, who has been ill with pneumonia, is somewhat improved at this writing.

Mrs. Ira Jones and son Donald were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Melvin, over the week end.

Mrs. Sherman Friend and son Scott visited her mother and family of Dayton, Ky., on Wednesday of last week.

Several of our talented members took part in a very interesting program of impersonations at our regular meeting of New Haven P.-T. A. on April 1. The whole program was a scream, but as usual, Aunt Ida and Little Clifford got the biggest hand. We all are hoping they will favor us with just such a live program again real soon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Points had as their Sunday guests the following: Mr. and Mrs. Stapleton and twin sons, Don and Dale of Cold Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Malot and four sons, Joseph, Billie, Teddy and Donny, and Mr. Willard Points, all of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Preston Hedges and Scotty Friend of Union.

Powell Crouch visited Allen Newman, Sunday.

Little Della Marie Jones is out again, after a long illness of whooping cough and pneumonia. Her classmates of grade two at New Haven will be glad to welcome her back to school soon.

WARSAW HEIGHTS

Mrs. Raymond Ellis and family, Mrs. Margaret Armstrong spent Sunday with Mrs. Emory Ellis and family of Rossville.

Willie and Sammie Howell of Dry Creek, were here Monday with a new tractor, sawing wood for Stanley Wallace and Will Hall.

Temp Courtney and family entertained several of their relatives Sunday. We failed to get their names, but are sure they enjoyed a fine dinner and a good time.

Mrs. John Smith of Sparta Rd. spent the past week end with her daughter, Mrs. Orville Beach, and family.

Miss Vivian Groves of Napoleon Ridge, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wallace and husband, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hedges, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Hall spent Sunday in Carroll county with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hamilton. Mrs. Hamilton, who has been confined to her bed the past five weeks, we are glad to report slowly improving under the care of Dr. Sam Brown, of Ghent.

Miss Melba Hall spent the past week end with her friends, the Misses Bakers, of South Fork.

Homer Spencer and family attended services at Sugar Creek, Sunday morning.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hedges, a daughter, Sunday, March 30. She has been named Jennie Lee.

NICHOLSON

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Reynolds had as dinner guests, Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. John Afterkirk, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Summey, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Flynn and son, Mrs. Henly Huston and son Eugene of Latonia.

We have on our sick list: Mrs. Frank Cook, Mrs. L. G. Cummins, Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. Bessie Campbelle, Mrs. Anna McLure and Mr. Joe Maddox.

Next Sunday is Easter. Come to Hickory Grove Baptist church and worship with us. We are going to have some visitors with special songs. Sunday school at 10:00 o'clock; morning services at 11:00; evening B. T. U., 7:00 p. m.; preaching at 8:00 p. m. Come, bring someone with you.

Feminine America's Good Taste Starts from the Toes Up

IN the world of fashion there are no greater liberals than the stylists of Hollywood, and perhaps no other group has more influence on the women of America. But no matter where a style trend may originate, it is an accepted fact that feminine America's good taste starts from the toes up in a beautifully sheer stocking. Women today are turning unprecedently to two-threads and three-threads, figures show.

The richness of Nylon, the feeling of delicacy and opulence it engenders against the leg, lies in its sheerness. The sheerer the hosiery,

Jane Wyman, Warner Brothers lovely young star appearing in "Honeymoon for Three," is one reason why American women are said to have the prettiest legs in the world. Jane's legs rate with Dietrich's in Hollywood.

JANE WYMAN

it stands to reason—and this goes for silk or Nylon—the more carefully guarded they have to be in laundering. The fine strands and the natural but delicate elasticity of the stocking must be kept inviolate; rough handling or repeated rinsings during one washing may snap the strands and deaden the elasticity. Tubbing stockings is really an art.

Of late a new way to wash hosiery has come to the attention of women. It is not a soap but a scientific preparation that looks like orange jelly, smells like pine and washes the stocking in a single rinsing. That's right, believe it or not, there are no repeated rinsings. This innovation, Royal Rinse by name, makes no suds and requires no rubbing. It completely eliminates soap scum, and preserves the delicate dye tints and elasticity of the hosiery. Just a fingertipful stirred in cool water does the trick.

Women know only too well what a big dent stockings make in their pocketbooks throughout the year and why it's important to take care of them and what chaos they cause with even the best-intentioned budgets. Last year some 516,000,000 pairs of hosiery were sold in the United States. These cold, hard, realistic figures tell the story about wear and tear.

WITH THE REDS

The Reds come marching home this week from the barnstorming wars. They are a well conditioned team and they're ready for the defense of their world's championship. Fans hereabouts will get plenty of opportunity to judge for themselves just how prepared are the men of McKechnie, for the Reds have four exhibition games scheduled on their home Crosley Field this week. In addition, they have another at Dayton.

The exhibition unveiling will take place Wednesday, when the slugging Boston Red Sox make their first visit in history to Cincinnati. They'll meet the Reds Wednesday afternoon starting at 3, then stay over for a repeat performance the following day, which will be something new inasmuch as it has been set aside as a ladies' day. Ladies will be able to obtain their tickets in advance at the downtown ticket office at 307 Vine Street. The same procedure in regards to ladies as was in effect all of last year will be followed in 1941.

Friday the Detroit Tigers, the Reds' 1940 world series opponents, will meet up with the champs at Dayton in a game that is expected to draw that city's largest crowd. These same two series opponents then move into Cincinnati for Saturday and Sunday engagements that will wind up the exhibition season. The regular National League season will open on Tuesday, April 15, with the Reds opposing the St. Louis Cardinals.

The opening series against the Cards will be of three days' duration, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, following which the Reds will take to the road until Saturday and Sunday, April 26 and 27, when they take on the Pittsburgh Pirates. Then the Reds take to the road once again, swinging through the East until Saturday, May 10, on which day they will open a home stand that will continue through May 22.

The Reds' downtown ticket office is now equipped to handle paid reservations for any game during the season. Just address the order to the Reds' Ticket Department, 307 Vine Street, Cincinnati. If possible, a stamped nd addressed envelope should be enclosed. This will facilitate handling.

Ticket officials report that improvements in their system have made it possible to give immediate attention to all mail requests. The ticket office also will be open from 9 to 5 daily for sales over the counter.

Money Talks

By
Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

It is beginning to look as if the farmers are going to get some benefit from the Defense Program.

Of the $7,000,000,000 appropriated for aid to the Allies, $350,000,000 has been earmarked for the purchase of agricultural products. This money will be used to buy foodstuffs of all kinds for Britain and "other nations resisting aggression."

Under this program the Department of Agriculture will go to the agricultural markets of this country and buy the commodities needed. This plan will peg prices at certain levels, hogs, for example, at $9.00 a hundred pounds at Chicago, butter, 31c a pound, eggs, 22c a dozen, and so on.

What will this mean to the housewife? She may expect pork prices to jump from 10 to 20%, milk prices to go up (already up 1c a quart in Louisville), butter to go to around 35c a pound. One housewife recently complained that it costs her from $2.00 to $4.00 more to feed her family this year than a year ago. This is the experience of nearly everyone, but most families have more to spend than last year.

Up to date the farmer has not benefited much from the Government's defense spending program. But now it looks like he may get a show. Especially is this true if the war proves to be a long one and we must ship Britain more and more foodstuffs.

DON'T FLY YOUR KITES near electric wires

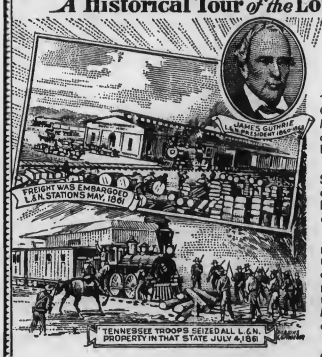
It's better to be safe than sorry. Follow these safety suggestions and avoid possible injury:

1. Don't use wire, metallic or wet kite strings.
2. Don't use metal kite sticks.
3. Don't try to rescue kites from electric wires by using long sticks or climbing poles.
4. Don't try to jerk your kite from an electric wire by pulling on the tail or string.

The best place to fly kites is in open fields—away from electric lines and busy highways.



If you see a kite caught in electric wires, call our office. We know how to remove kites without endangering anyone or causing an interruption to electric service.

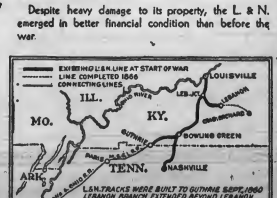
91 YEARS of PROGRESS

A Historical Tour of the Louisville & Nashville R.R.

The War Years 1861—1865

After completing the line to Nashville in October, 1859, the L. & N. built from a point south of Bowling Green to Guthrie, Ky., where it connected with the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad. Through operation of trains between Louisville and Memphis began early in 1861.



War came, but a lively trade between the North and South continued for several months, the latter importing vast quantities of materials via Kentucky, a border state. The L & N handled much of this traffic, consequent congestion eventually causing a brief embargo on all freight.

In July 1861, Tennessee troops seized all of the road's property in that state, but portions of the line were controlled alternately for a while. Track and bridges were destroyed whenever possible. Damage was quickly repaired, however, and trains kept moving. Later, after the North was permanently in control, General John H. Morgan and other Confederate leaders often hindered operation of the road.

Despite heavy damage to its property, the L. & N. emerged in better financial condition than before the war.

In the War Between the States, the Louisville & Nashville was of vital importance. Eighty years later it is an integral part of that strong arm of National Defense, our country's railroad network. Constantly improved, especially since the World War, operating methods are more efficient, and organized cooperation among shippers, the Government and the railroads makes it possible to get more use out of better railroad facilities.

The Louisville & Nashville, in appreciation of the business entrusted to it, is constantly striving to render a better service. As an example, within the last year this Company has appropriated a total of over nine million dollars for new freight equipment. In addition, it has spent large sums to improve its plant facilities, in order to furnish its patrons with the best possible transportation service.

Suggests Amendment To Constitution

A Good Roads Amendment to the Kentucky Constitution was suggested by Herbert L. Clay, of Louisville, Secretary of the Kentucky Petroleum Industries Committee, speaking at a meeting of the Boone County Petroleum Industries Committee in the Chamber of Commerce Building in Covington, Wednesday night, April 2nd.

"For many years the Kentucky road fund has been the object of threatened raids, and before any such raids are successful the road fund should be protected by a constitutional amendment," Clay said.

"Gasoline taxes and motor vehicle license fees are paid by motorists in addition to general taxes solely for the purpose of building and maintaining roads, and the continued use of these taxes for road purposes should be guaranteed by constitutional provision."

The Boone County Petroleum Committee meeting is one of the 120 now being held in every county in Kentucky for the purpose of safe-guarding Kentucky's highway program and the interests of highway users.

The meeting was presided over by H. P. Day, chairman of the Kenton County Committee, who pointed out that 78% of Kentucky's 4530 communities depend entirely on motor transportation, a greater percentage than in any other state in the Union, and that Kentucky should therefore be particularly interested in promoting and fostering use of the highways.

The meeting was attended by 50 oil men.

Officers selected at the meeting to serve for the current year, were: W. T. Renaker, chairman; W. L. Kirkpatrick, secretary; W. W. Woodward, legislative chairman; Lloyd Rouse, Public Relations chairman; and Harold Martin, Frank Dusing, Jess Gillespie and C. H. Clore, vice chairmen.

WOOL POOL URGES HIGH QUAILTY CLIP

"Handling the Wool Clip" is available at the county agent's office to all sheepmen, on request.

The Boone County Wool Pool has completed more than 40 years of service to Boone county farmers. The Boone County Pool is rated as the most successful of its kind in the State. Officers elected for the 1941 year are: H. E. White, president; Lillard S. Scott, secretary; and the following as directors: Carlon, Lee McNeeley; Grant, Lillard Scott; Petersburg, Chas. Stevens; Bullittsville, Clint S. Riddell; Constance, Lloyd McGlasson; Florence, C. F. Blankenbeker; Burlington, H. E. White; Union, Alms Riley; Beaver, J. W. Conley; Walton, B. W. Franks; and Verona, Walton Johnson. Growers planning to sell their wool through the pool are urged to sign up immediately with their director. Only signed up wool is eligible to be sold through the pool.

VERONA

A good rain visited this community last week. Rain was indeed welcome as many people were out of water both for home use and for stock.

Measles have about run their course in this community, and most children are back in school.

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Ryan are rejoicing over the arrival of a girl, born last Friday. Grandpa Ryan is stepping high.

The Baptist church shipped a case of eggs to the Orphans' Home at Louisville.

The R. A.'s, G. A.'s and Sunbeams met last Thursday with their leader. The mothers should appreciate the efforts of these leaders, and help in any way possible.

The meeting of the Light Bearers class at Mrs. J. T. Roberts', was well attended, and a very good program was rendered. Everyone enjoyed the Bible study completing the book of Exodus. For the next meeting, the fourth Wednesday in April, the book of Esther will be studied.

The Happy Twelve club met with Mrs. Mae Webster for their April meeting. The day was spent in quilting and packing eggs for the Orphans' Home at Lyndon.

Mr. A. T. Hunt is improving very slowly at his home.

Mr. Joe Fisher, who had been sick, is able to be out again.

Mrs. Jean Shelter, who has been nursing her niece, Rita Roberts, has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Roberts. Mr. Shelter is in Florida for spring training.

There will be a meeting of the P.-T. A. Thursday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Election of officers will take place at this time.

WALTON 4-H CLUB NEWS

Having had the most points for the past two years of any club in Boone county, Mr. A. B. Renaker presented the Waltonian 4-H club with the Boone County Bankers'- trophy on Saturday, March 29, at the Leaders' Conference at Burlington.

The trophy, a picture called "The Shepherd and His Flock," now belongs to the Walton club.

Mrs. Walter W. King accepted the picture on behalf of the club.

Mr. James Pennington and Mrs. Walter W. King were awarded certificates of leadership.

Those representing the Walton club were: Mr. and Mrs. Walter King, Mr. and Mrs. James Pennington, Mrs. Marie Kendall and Mildred King, president and Junior Project Leader of the club.

We wish to thank the Bankers for presenting the trophy; Mr. Drake, Miss Gillaspie and Mrs. Moore for assisting with our club meetings; Mr. Pennington, Mrs. King, Mrs. Kendall and all the former leaders for helping us to be successful and the club members for completing their projects which helped very much.

We hope to be as successful in the coming years, which will be possible if everyone will cooperate with the leaders and officers.

Williams In Race For Boone Sheriff

J. T. (Jake) Williams, of Burlington, announces his candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Boone county in this issue, subject to the action of Democratic primary, Saturday, August 2, 1941.

Mr. Williams is well known throughout the county, and has served the past four years as Deputy Sheriff under F. M. Walton. He was born and reared in Boone County, and has been an active farmer up until the last four years, operating a farm near Bullittsville.

Jake, as he is known to all his friends, is a member of the American Legion Post No. 4, Burlington, having served in the U. S. Army during the World War. He is also a member of the Modern Woodman Lodge.

Mr. Williams has made an efficient deputy during his term and has added many new friends during his position as deputy.

He was married to Edith Carpenter, Florence, 1919, and is the father of three daughters.

Mr. Williams stated that he desired to thank the citizens of Boone county for their courtesy shown him during his term as deputy sheriff, and now earnestly solicits their support for the office of Sheriff. He further stated that if elected he would endeavor to serve the people to the best of his ability.

Entertain For Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Pascal Bush entertained Sunday for dinner, in honor of Mr. Bush's birthday, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Penick and daughter Mabel of Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Penick and two children, Mrs. Abbie Bush, Miss Ora and Linda M. Bush of Covington, and daughter Ora Violet of Walton.

FANNIE CLORE, 68, PASSES APRIL 10th

Mrs. Fannie Clore, 68, passed away last Thursday at her home 3 miles north of Bullittsville, after a three weeks' illness from intestinal influenza. The remains were removed to the Chambers & Grubss funeral home for preparation. Afterwards the body was returned to the home. Mrs. Clore was born in Boone county, and was a member of the Primitive Baptist church.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday, April 13, from the Sand Run Baptist church by the Rev. Ratliff, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Burial was in the Sand Run cemetery.

She leaves her husband, Yancy Clore; two sons, Charles and William Clore; a grandson; two sisters, and a number of other relatives.

Chambers & Grubbs had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Portable sheep dipping vats will be used in Mercer and Lincoln counties.

Certified seed was used for three-fourths of the potatoes planted in Cumberland county.

Paul Sidebottom, In Senate Race

Paul L. Sidebottom, of Williamstown, announces his candidacy for State Senator from the 26th Senatorial District, in this issue of the Advertiser.

"Believing that the farmer, merchant and small business need representation in legislation at Frankfort, and believing that I have consistently represented these interests in the past at Frankfort, I will be a candidate again for the Democratic nomination for Senator from the 26th Senatorial District, August 2.

WALTON P.-T. A. TO MEET MONDAY AFTERNOON, APR. 21

The Walton P.-T. A. will have its regular meeting Monday afternoon, April 21, instead of Friday. All parents are urged to attend, as this is a very important meeting.

Our pre-school clinic will be conducted in the first grade room of the Walton school, May 5th and 6th.

Woman's Clubs To Hear Garden Authority

Members of the Woman's Club of Walton, have been much interested in the word received from Mrs. Lemuel Bledsoe, jr., president of the Warsaw Woman's Club, that Dorothy Biddle, famous garden authority, would lecture on Thursday afternoon, April 24, at 2:00 o'clock (C. S. T.), in the auditorium of the Warsaw Christian church.

Miss Biddle will speak on the topic, "The Decorative Use of Flowers in the Home," demonstrating, as well as lecturing.

Dorothy Biddle is known to all garden enthusiasts, as she is Editor of the Garden Digest, and a contributor to leading garden magazines. Since she is in great demand by clubs, the Warsaw club is urging all women who are interested in garden topics to take advantage of this opportunity to hear her on April 24.

Immediately following the lecture at the church, all those attending the lecture are invited to a tea at the home of Mrs. Frank S. Connely, where Miss Biddle will be the guest of honor.

A program of organ music will be offered in addition to the lecture, by Mrs. Andrew M. Smith. Mrs. Smith, a member of the Organ Gulld, is an accomplished musician, and will add much to the pleasure of the afternoon.

Tickets, at seventy-five cents, will be on sale at the door.

LOCAL DRAFT BOARD HAS NEW CLERK

Courtney G. Kelly was appointed Clerk of the Boone County Selective Service Board, at a meeting held by the Board on Friday evening, April 11th. It was recommended by the State Selective Service Headquarters that a man be appointed as the Clerk so that he could assist the physician in making the medical examinations. Mr. Kelly is an ex-service man.

Mrs. Dorotha Ryle, who has served as Clerk since the Board first organized, is now a candidate for public office and upon the advice of Col. Frank Rash, State Director of Selective Service and his legal advisor, offered her resignation, effective April 15th. Col. Rash stated that while there is nothing in the Selective Service Act to demand this resignation, it would be to the best interest of everyone concerned.

MRS. STEPHENSON HOST TO WALTON HOMEMAKERS

Ten members responded to roll call, and five visitors were also present when Mrs. Mary Stephenson pleasantly entertained the Walton Homemakers on Friday, April 11th.

Our exterior beautification chairman, Mrs. John Vest, gave a very interesting talk on pruning shrubs. Mrs. Elisebeth Gardener, our Live at Home chairman gave an instructive talk on gardening canning and storage. We were asked to raise one new vegetable this year. Our rug project leader, Mrs. Gaynelle Flynn, gave a very instructive talk on crochet rugs and material used in making them.

Mrs. Allen Gaines was appointed as chairman of the reading club.

Mrs. Scott Chambers reminded us of the district meeting at Maysville, April 29th.

Our next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ora Fry on May 9th. The major project will be rug making.

New 4-H Hall of Fame

A new 4-H Club Hall of Fame is announced by the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. It is composed of State champions in 4-H projects as follows: Beef production, Catherine Rigsby, Garrard county; canning, Louise Schneiter, Jefferson county; corn growing, Eugene Blankenship, Morgan county; clothing making, Nancy Stolts, Fayette county; dairying, William Peterson, Marion county; foods, Frances Louise Clore, Oldham county; 4-H room improvement, Verna Mae Keightley, Oldham county; poultry keeping, Jake Maddox, Jefferson county, Mary K. Ewbank, Gallatin county; swine production, Jake Adair, Bourbon county, and tobacco growing, Marjorie Faught, Ohio county.

Miss Ewbank is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ryle Ewbank of near Warsaw.

Garden Champions To Be Selected

4-H garden champions will be selected on the summer 4-H tours, according to H. B. Drake, assistant county agent. Prizes will be awarded winners in local communities and a grand champion will be selected for the entire county. Geo. W. Hill and Co., Covington, seed dealer, has already furnished a garden plow and all attachments to be awarded the Boone county 4-H member raising the best garden.

Garden project members enrolled in 4-H clubs having 5 or more garden projects will be eligible to compete for local awards. Five or six of the ten clubs will have sufficient enrollment to be eligible for these local prizes to eb eawarded by the Geo. C. Goode Co., also of Covington. There has been a considerable increase in the number of garden projects this year and there is every indication of strong competition for these awards.

SCHOOL BOARDS URGED TO AID HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

District boards of education in Kentucky were urged to make provision in their 1941-42 school year budgets "for the seriously handicapped children of school age in your district."

John W. Brooker, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, recently wrote all superintendents that the Constitution and court rulings in Kentucky "provide that educational opportunities be furnished all school children."

He quoted from a 1938 opinion of the Attorney General's Office, which said:

"It is mandatory on the board of education to give to the handicapped child the same opportunity as that presented to the other children. We would advise, therefore, that local school revenues and state per capita (allotment) should be used by boards of education to furnish the same opportunities to the handicapped child as to his more fortunate brother."

Robert Baldock and Depp Bros. of Metcalfe county have enrolled in the state ton-litter contest.

SOCIAL WELFARE WORKER ADDRESS UTOPIA CLUB

A Cincinnati Social Welfare worker will address Utopia Club Thursday evening, April 17th, on "Welfare Problems Confronting City Workers," according to Mary Hood Gillaspie, home demonstration agent.

Special committees have been appointed for project group discussions. Everyone interested in Utopia club work is invited to attend.

NEW HYBRID SWEET CORN VARIETIES

Five new hybrid sweet corn varieties—Golden Cross Bantam, Spancross P-39, King Cross 12 Row Bantam, Golden Hummer Hybrid, and Silver Cross Evergreen—will be tried this year by a few Boone county sweet corn growers, according to County agent H. R. Forkner. Aunt Mary, another new variety of high quality, will also be grown in the variety demonstration plots.

New and improved varieties form one important means of agricultural improvement. Not all new varieties are as good as thos most commonly grown. However, if after considerable trial and error through extensive demonstration work an improved adapted variety is found, much agricultural progress has been made.

THE HEART'S GARDEN

The heart is a garden
Where thought flowers grow;
The thoughts that we think
Are seeds that we sow.

Every kind, loving thought
Bears a kind, loving deed;
While a thought that is selfish
Is just like a weed.

We must watch what we think,
Each minute, all day;
And pull out the weed thoughts
And throw them away;

And plant loving seed thoughts
So thick in a row
That there will not be room
For weed thoughts to grow.

—Katherine Merrill.

It is estimated that 550 Taylor county farmers will treat tobacco plant beds for blue mold.

DESTROYS MAIL BOX AND IS ARRESTED

An item, which appeared in the Advertiser some time ago, has aided the Post Office Department in apprehending a person shooting holes in rural route mail boxes.

Last October the Postmaster asked the Walton Advertiser to co-operate in soliciting the aid of rural route patrons in apprehending persons shooting holes in the rural boxes. On Monday morning, a patron contacted the Postmaster and gave him the license number of a car whose occupants were committing this offense. Monday afternoon the arrest was made by State Patrolman Joe Megerle, and Marshal Robert E. Brugh. This resulted in obtaining a confession and complete details turned over to the Post Office Inspectors.

This co-operation on the part of Rural Route patrons, provide the Department with evidence to convict this person. This will aid in preventing distruction, and is greatly appreciated by the Post Office Officials.

HOME EC GIRLS ENTERTAIN WITH BUFFET SUPPER AND THEATRE PARTY

The Home Economics II girls of Simon Kenton, entertained their friends with a buffet supper and theatre party, last Wednesday evening. The supper featured chili, spaghetti, sliced meats and cheese, slaw and homemade cake and ice cream. The table decorations and place cards were in keeping with the Easter season.

After the supper, many of the girls and their guests went to Walton to see Judy Garland in, "Little Nellie Kelly."

POULTRY MARKET TOUR ON MAY 22nd

The 1941 poultry tour of the Cincinnati poultry and egg market will be held Thursday, May 22nd, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Jim Humphrey, poultry field agent and the department of market, College of Agriculture, will assist in the tour.

The tour will include visits to leading poultry and egg dealers, storage houses and the market exchange. Everyone interested in poultry marketing is invited to attend.

LIVE AT HOME MEETING ENJOYED BY COMMITTEEMEN

Cheese and butter making demonstrations were given before Boone County Live at Home Program committeemen in an all-day meeting at Florence on last Tuesday, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent.

Greater and more efficient use of dairy products on the farm, has been considered by the committeemen as an important project in a better living program for the farm. Leaders attending the training meeting will advise their Homemakers' clubs and their communities on new practices in the use of dairy products.

Advisory Council To Meet April 21st

The Advisory Council of the Boone County Homemakers' Association, will meet at the Court House in Burlington, Monday, April 21, at 1:00 p. m. Presidents of local clubs and county officers will attend. Mrs. Geo. Kottmyer, Constance, will preside. Miss Lulie Logan, Lexington, assistant state leaders of the Home Demonstration Agents, will hear the discussion of projects for next year.

Arrangements for meeting, will be made by Mrs. Mary Scott Moore, substitute home demonstration agent.

BAPTIST TRAINING UNION TO MEET APRIL 17-20

The State Baptist Training Union Convention will meet April 17-20 with the First Baptist church, Owensboro, beginning Thursday night and closing Sunday at noon. Acting President L. C. Roberts, Owensboro, will preside. Dr. R. E .Humphreys is host pastor. The registration goal is 1,500.

National Wildlife Week April 14-19

The observance of National Wildlife Restoration Week, April 14-19, will help to focus attention on the farmer's role in restoring wildlife, according to Ward T. Darnell, Camp Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the Boone County CCC camp SCS -5- Ky., Walton, Kentucky.

Farm land affords a vast area for the development of wildlife resources, Mr. Darnell points out. Farmers are the producers of more than three-fourths of the total amount of game taken by hunters. For that reason farmers are in a particularly advantageous position in the wildlife restoration movement.

"Through the individual efforts of farmers on their land, the restoration of wildlife can be given a tremendous and widespread impetus," he says,

At the edge of fields and woodlands, wildlife borders can be established to replace these unprofitable areas with habitats which will encourage the increase of desirable forms of wildlife. Lespedeza scricon is the best plant to use in field borders, since it is sufficiently hardy to withstand the use of such areas as turn rows for farm machinery and animals.

Stream banks, small marsh areas, steep slopes, and fence rows should contain shrubs—not trees—for wildlife shelter, nesting sites, and food. Crops rotated in strips provide abundant food of a kind near woodland shelter. Woodland protected against grazing helps wildlife, especially if a few den trees are left for squirrels and hole nesting birds.

These practices, which are first of all better farm conservation measures are a part of practically every conservation farm plan prepared for farmers cooperating with the Boone county soil conservation district.

MRS. CRUTCHERFIELD ENTERTAINS COLORED CLUB

The Colored Homemakers were entertained in the home of Mrs. George Crutcherfield, Tuesday, April 8th. There were 21 present, of which six were visitors.

The meeting was very interesting, with Mrs. Moore acting in Miss Gillaspie's place.

A vote was taken on the choice of a new project for next year, and "Food and Nutrition," was chosen. Miss Martha Johnson was elected as program conductor. Mrs. Moore gave some helpful ideas on crocheted rugs, and Mrs. John Vest gave some suggestions on glove making. Mrs. Walter Sleet had a nice program. We had a new member, Mrs. Roy Monroe.

Those who enjoyed the covered dish luncheon, were: Mrs. Joe Howlett, Miss Lola Sleet, Mrs. Roy Monroe, Mrs. Delia Riley, Mrs. James Ingram, Mrs. Lucy Johnson, Mrs. Estill Sleet, Mrs. Walter Sleet, Mrs. Elmer Ross, Mrs. James Riddell, Mrs. Frank Locket, Miss Martha Johnson, Mrs. Herbert Baker, Mrs. Bertha Chambers, Miss Anna P. Ross, Miss Myrtle Baker, Mrs. Birdie Blue, Mrs. R. P. Hughes, Mrs. W. W. Rouse, Mrs. J. L. Vest and Mrs. Moore.

Witherspoon College has one of the best fields of vetch in Perry county.

Kenton county vegetable growers have named a committee to study marketing conditions.

CALDWELL-PENICK WEDDING SATURDAY

Louis Edward Penick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Penick, and Miss Mary Catherine Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Caldwell of Walton, were married Saturday evening, April 12, in the home of the officiating minister, Rev. R. F. DeMoisey. They were accompanied by a sister of the bride, Mrs. Gale Craddock, and Mr. Craddock of Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. Penick will reside in Covington, where the groom is employed.

MEMBER KENTUCKY PRESS ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED JANUARY, 1868

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt, in a press conference, said that although the U. S. rearmament program is being greatly accelerated, he is still not satisfied with the rate of production.

Director General Knudsen of the Office of Production Management said that "during the last seven months we have actually started, and more than 60 percent completed 784 new factories," employed thousands of contractors, commandeered all existing shipyards and ordered seven new ones. He itemized progress and needed production increases as follows: .30 cal. machine guns—"ahead of schedule," need 500 percent increase; .50 cal. machine guns—"9 percent ahead of schedule," need 1000 percent increase; 13-ton tanks—"fair rate," need 100 percent increase; 26-ton tanks — "production deliberately held up" by the Government; powder production and TNT—"on schedule;" rifles—"ahead of schedule," need 100 percent increase; machine guns—"ahead of schedule," need 500 percent increase; aluminum—"production increased from 25 million pounds a month a year ago to 40 million pounds a month," need 70 million pounds a month; magnesium — "production doubled," need six-fold increase; supplies and equipment—"satisfactory;" Army and Navy housing—construction over half completed; need 44,500 buildings and 95,000 tent frames.

The President released to the British 10 U. S. Coast Guard cutters under the terms of the Lease-Lend Act. He also pledged Jugoslavia "the United States will speedily furnish all material assistance possible." The President reopened by proclamation the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, permiting U. S. commercial vessels to come up the East side of Africa to the Suez Canal.

The President signed an agreement with the Danish Minister to classify Greenland with Canada, Martinique and other foreign possessions in the Western Hemisphere which the U. S. would defend from foreign attack. The State Department recalled instances of German activity in Greenland as recently as March and said the agreement gave the U. S. the right to construct air bases.

Sub-contracting

The OPM published a booklet describing successful farming-out methods used by private companies and local, regional and labor-management groups in obtaining defense work. Under Secretary of War Patterson cited the $88,000,000 smokeless powder plant at Charleston, Ind., as an example of how a single defense project draws in the resources of the entire Nation. Mr. Patterson said 65 subcontractors with headquarters in 13 States and several hundred sub-subcontractors equally scattered were involved in the Charleston work; license plates from 36 States could be seen at the workers' parking lot; and nearly every manufacturing State is supplying something—glass from Maine, doors from Iowa, brass fitting from Alabama, stainless steel from Illinois, etc.

Agriculture

The Department of Agriculture began expansion of the ever-normal granary program to assure ample supplies of pork, dairy products, eggs and poultry by buying in the open market to support long-term prices at these levels; hogs (cwt.), $9.00; dairy products (butter-pound basis), $0.31; chickens (lb.), $0.15; eggs (doz.), $0.22. The President explained the program was primarily a stabilization matter—to present reasonable assurance to hog producers, for example, that the price of pork will be at a fair level when specially fattened animals are ready for market.

Consumer Protection

The President combined the Defense Commission divisions of price stabilization and consumer protection into an Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. The new agency is designed to prevent rising cost of living, hoarding and profiteering and provide for the necessary supply and equitable distribution of materials and commodities for civilian uses. The President cited the "draft industry" clause of the Selective Service Act as authority for enforcing orders of the new office.

Consumer Commissioner Elliott stated the cotton textile industry is able to meet all possible military and civilian needs, shoe prices will rise only moderately, and there are sufficient supplies of raw materials for most other consumer goods. Maintenance of living standards, however, Miss Elliott said, requires cooperation between consumers and retailers in resisting unjustified price rises and "buying hysteria," and promoting the use of substitutes.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that retail food costs for most wage earners have risen 2.9 percent since March, 1940—including one-half of one percent last month. The Bureau reported higher prices for meat, dairy products and eggs, and lower prices for cereals, bakery products, fruit, vegetables, fats and oils, beverages and sugar.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board announced that construction costs for a standard home continue to rise—although the rate of increase is declining.

Selective Service

Selective Service Headquarters amended regulations to permit 10 instead of five days notice of induction to registrants and a postponement of induction for 60 days when necessary to avoid "unusual individual hardship."

The System also advised local boards to request registrants who are doctors to apply for commissions in the Medical Corps Reserve and ruled that registrants who are seamen may be deferred when they are essential to a ship.

The System designated six reforestation and soil conservation work projects in California, Colorado, Indiana, Maryland, Virginia and Michigan to which conscientious objectors may be assigned.

The Army

The War Department estimated Army strength at 1,185,600—68,-11 officers and 1,117,000 enlisted men, as follows: 487,000 Regular Army, 286,000 National Guard, 38,000 Reserve, 374,000 trainees. In an Army Day radio speech Chief of Staff General Marshall said:

"Remarkable progress has been made — our men have drilled and worked through all kinds of weather and under all sorts of conditions. The Army now emerges as an organized force."

General Marshall quoted Rep. Wadsworth of New York (R) as telling Congress with respect to food, order and absence of disease, "I think there has been nothing like it in military history. No Army has ever made such a record."

Labor

The U. S. Conciliation Service announced settlement of 54 strikes during the current week, including the Ford Motor Company controversy. Secretary of Labor Perkins certified the following strikes to the Defense Mediation Board: Phelps-Dodge Copper Products Corporation, Elizabeth, N. J.; Seas Shipping Company, New York City; J. Sklar Manufacturing Company, Long Island, N. Y.; and the Cowles Tool Company, Cleveland, Ohio. The Board announced settlement of the Allis-Chalmers and Seas Shipping Company strikes at West Allis, Wis., and New York City, respectively.

In Clinton county: four sunporches built; 15 flock owners bought certified hatching eggs; four 20 by 20 laying houses built.

OUR DEMOCRACY—by Mat

Washington Snapshots by James Preston

Nobody knows for sure what the future holds as far as strikes in defense industries are concerned. But Washington is sure that whatever happens will be as important as any other single piece of news that breaks during the months lying immediately ahead.

One school of thought holds that strikes will ease off in the near future, apparently taking heart from the early efforts of the new Mediation Board. Another school suspects there will be a decided increase. They base this in part upon their feeling that the CIO will try to anticipate an expected "crackdown" by strengthening itself with as many new members as possible—a little after the fashion of the fellow who drove his car at 60 miles an hour because he wanted to get home before he ran out of gas!

Only time will tell for sure. But it ought to be pointed out that some optimists may be drawing far too sweeping conclusions from those first Mediation Board settlements and the wide attendant publicity.

Most experts are inclined to believe that a much better barometer can be found at the U. S. Conciliation Service, headed by Dr. John R. Steelman. Dr. Steelman's division regularly issues figures on the number of labor disputes to which conciliators have been assigned, and they tell a graphic and disturbing story. Here are the figures:

Back in September of last year, conciliators were assigned to disputes at the rate of 54 a week. In January, the figure rose to 68; in February, it stood at 82; in March, it was 94; and during the first week of April, it had reached the astonishing figure of 125 disputes for the week.!

These particular statistics can hardly give much support to those who seek the strike picture as roseate. No more encouraging was a recent War Department statement that about one million man-hours of work had been lost on defense contracts for Army orders alone between the first of the year and March 24!

Many sincerely interested in seeing the defense program move ahead would like, too, to know a little more about the basic philosophy of the new Mediation Board. History-minded Washingtonians recall that the mediation board set up to handle labor disputes at the time of the World War had prety clearly articulated ideas on the standards that should prevail at such a time. They ran something like this:

1. No individual or group should seek to take advantage of abnormal conditions to make changes in basic relationship that couldn't be achieved in normal times.

2. No man should be forced to join a union in order to hold his job.

3. There should be no strikes or lockouts in defense industries.

It is felt that the majority of the new Board holds no such principles, and that in certain cases there is a widely different individual approach to the strikes-in-defense problem. Ultimately, results will tell the tale. Meanwhile, observers are concerned.

Encouraging, on the other hand, are some of the accomplishments of industry in defense work in spite of the obstacles and uncertainty surrounding it on every side. It has just been announced, for example, that 1,215 airplanes were turned out in March. To point up the meaning of that volume of production, officials point out that the operating equipment of all American airlines the best equipped in the world—totals only about 400 planes.

And the horsepower of the engines manufactured in March, they tell us, would be enough to run 79 ocean liners the size of the S. S. America, with enough power left over to run 129 cabs to carry passengers to the pier!

The complexity of some of the defense manufacturing tasks may be adduced from a few simple facts on tanks: The transmission alone of a single medium sized tank weighs 7,608 pounds, or about twice the total weight of an entire medium sized automobile. An entire medium sized tank weighs about 55,000 pounds. And it wouldtake one man about 1,000 hours just to build that transmission!

As one high defense official remarked, "I don't know why they ever called those babies medium-sized."

Maybe it was because of a feeling that industry can lick far more than its weight in tough production problems like these!

The typical U. S. worked employed on a five-day week, according to one economic authority, "works all of Monday and even a little of Tuesday" to pay present tax levies.

Industry, through research work, has developed brakes on the modern automobile that are about five times as powerful as the average car engine.

Ben Drake, Adair county, made a trailer-type lime spreader from the rear axle and wheels of an old automobile.

WORDS AND OCCUPATIONS

Every part of the state has known a change in its basic occupations. The language still used is often about all that is left of these former times. Our colloquial speech is full of words that lose most of their meaning if dissociated from their original meaning and setting.

The earliest people in the state were the scouts or explorers. Many of these must have had strange fears when they heard the wild animals at night. Just how much are you frightened when some one screams like a panther? If you had been fed on pioneer stories as I was, you would almost lose a year's growth at the mere mention of the name panther, or "painter." Just what a Salt River Roarer is the lists of Kentucky wild animals fail to tell me. I suppose that he was the same as, or else a subspecies of, the Ring-tailed Roarer. Both mysterious animals often were mentioned by the bold, bad man who was wishing or even spoiling for a fight. The same man also declared that he could lick everybody within certain wide boundaries, could eat a grindstone or a corpse, and could drink a barrel ("barl") of licker.

After the scouts came the permanent settlers, and they are still here. For a long time the cultivated patches in the woods were mere "clearings," which gradually widened into fields. Constant cultivation and poor methods of cropping produced gulleys, which became so common that the cheapest thing you could say about any one was that he was as common or cheap as gulley dust.

Lumbering left its terms scattered around, too. Even yet I hear often of a "whole raft" of something. Honest people were, and are, as straight as a shingle. A triangular slide on which lumbermen brought out logs from swampy or muddy grounds was called a "lizard," dragging logs was, and is, "snaking" them .I have snaked many a log in the winter, chiefly, though, for wood-chopping. Every farm boy who has done this has something to brag about as long as he lives.

Long association with the farm animals has given us many of our most expressive folk figures of speech. "As stubborn as a mule," "bawl like a calf," "spunky as a blue hen's chicken," "independent as a hog on ice"—these are picturesque similes that any country boy understood and still does. Some wise man has said that most of what he knows about people he learned by studying the farm animals. How dull would anything have to be to be as dull as a frow, unless you have made boards? In the days when many were carriages. There were even trains, but they were processions. Most of the terms applied to the railroad had already been used in stage-coach days. But if you want to see how many terms mean nothing to us now, read Holmes' "One-hoss Shay." These terms have largely vanished with the chaise itself.

Mining as such is rather localized in our state, but nearly every neighborhood had some one who went West to the gold or silver "diggings." "Over in our diggings" was a well-known expression when I was a boy, though many of us failed to connect it with mining.

In the vocabulary of our standard speech there are many words that reflect older occupations, many of them now obsolete but some reinterpreted. Long before the discovery of what steam could do, there were engines, though they were merely machines. Our "gin," as a Cotton gin, is a left-over of this meaning. There were cars, too, but they were a farmhouse made its own leather, everybody knew when a thing was as tough as whang leather. One of my favorite similes is that something is as noisy as a litter of pigs.

Thirty-five bushels of certified Portorican seed sweet potatoes were distributed among 24 Larue county farmers.

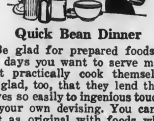
Delicious Spring Meal

You can build a grand Spring meal around creamed salmon with mushrooms. Serve the salmon on toast or crisp waffles or in bread cups. For accompaniment, have a crisp salad and a green vegetable such as broccoli. This meal is inexpensive enough for everyday family fare and "dressy" enough for any company occasion. You'll find you can enhance many other creamed dishes in the same way by using the delightfully seasoned home-style cream of mushroom soup to make the sauce.

Creamed Salmon with Mushrooms

Melt in saucepan—
2 tablespoons butter,
Add, blending well—
3 tablespoons flour.
Cook until bubbling, then add—
1 medium (16-oz.) can cream of mushroom soup.
Mix until thoroughly combined, then add—
1 tablespoon chopped onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup chili sauce
6 large ripe mission olives, sliced.
Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Clean and break into medium sized pieces—
1 1-lb. can red salmon.

Add salmon to sauce and heat thoroughly without stirring any more than necessary. Serve hot over crisp toast, in bread baskets or on crisp waffles. Serves 6.



Better Than Ever

No sour cream in the house? Then use this recipe for cole slaw and you'll find you've got a salad that's better than ever. Mayonnaise gives it the fluffy, creamy quality and pure cider vinegar adds just a touch of extra tanginess.

Mayonnaise Cole Slaw

Combine lightly and keep crisp and chilled in refrigerator—
2 cups shredded cabbage
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon finely chopped onion.
Cook in skillet until golden brown—
5 strips bacon cut in ½-inch pieces.
Remove to brown paper to drain. Add to bacon fat—
1 tablespoon pure cider vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup mayonnaise.

Stir until thoroughly combined. Add bacon and mix. Pour over vegetables, then toss lightly and serve in bowl lined with lettuce leaves or serve on individual salad plates with lettuce. Serves 4.

Quick Bean Dinner

Be glad for prepared foods on the days you want to serve meals that practically cook themselves. Be glad, too, that they lend themselves so easily to ingenious touches of your own devising. You can be just as original with foods which are already to serve as you can when you start your meal from scratch—and far more easily. Thus on your busiest days you may serve the meals which bring you the most compliments.

Here is a hot bean salad with lots of good flavor made in a matter of a half hour. Serve it with wieners or sausages or just by itself as a special treat for the family after you've had a grand afternoon at club. The oven-baked beans, Boston-style, which go into the making provide a wealth of good flavor just as they would if you had baked them in your own kitchen. Serve them frequently just heated up in a casserole with bacon strips over the top, but for variety make them into delicious hot bean salad according to the recipe below:

Hot Bean Salad

Brown in skillet —
4 strips bacon cut in small pieces
½ cup thinly sliced onion.
Add—
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup tomato ketchup
2 tablespoons pure cider vinegar
2 tablespoons water
2 teaspoons prepared brown mustard
2 medium (18-oz.) cans oven-baked beans, Boston-style.

Simmer together 20 minutes or until thickened. Serve hot with curly endive or lettuce. Serves 6.

GALLATIN COUNTY P.-T. A. MEETS

The regular March meeting of the Gallatin County Consolidated School P.-T. A. was held recently in the home economics room of the high school. One feature of the program created unusual interest. Miss Clare Sisson, a first-grade teacher, has been the recipient of several letters as the result of a poem of hers being published in an Ottowa (Canada) newspaper, the Ottawa Evening Citizen. Miss Sisson, who has had a number of poems published, wrote a short poem dealing with an incident of King George's viewing ruins wrought by Nazi bombs, which seemed to touch the hearts of readers everywhere. Miss Sisson had a brother in the first World War who went overseas with a Canadian outfit before America entered the war, and gave his life there. No doubt this fact struck a responsive chord in the hearts of Canadian people.

Two poems of Miss Sisson's writing, "King George of England" and "Queen Elizabeth," were read by Mrs. Clinton Vaught on the P.-T. A. program. Mrs. Vaught then read some excerpts from a number of the letters. One letter was from a former World War veteran who had gone to England to serve, was wounded and is back again in Ottawa, convalescing.

The Gallatin county school, in which Miss Clare Sisson has been a valuable teacher for many years, is very proud of her, and was happy to honor her in this P.-T. A. program.

Mr. Carl Winchester, principal, gave a stirring address on the topic, "Education for Democracy."

BIG BONE BAPTIST W. M. S. INSPIRITATIONAL MEETING

The W. M. S. of Big Bone met at the church, Thursday, for their regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Ella Rouse finished the mission book, "Trail of Seeds," in the morning hours.

After lunch, Mrs. Harrison, president, called the meeting to order. After the song, "Jesus Calls Us," Mrs. Edith Jones lead in prayer. Watch words were repeated after which the minutes of the last meeting were read and roll was called by Mrs. Kenneth Aylor. Reports of various committes were given. Mrs. Mullens then offered a prayer for shut-ins. The group joined in singing, "Our Best."

Mrs. Mullens, who had charge of the program, brought the devotions from Psalm 16. The program, whose topic was, "An Urgent Gospel Challenge to True Discipleship," was as follows: "True Discipleship," Mrs. Maude Asbury; "The True Disciple Takes a Stand," Mrs. Ella Rouse; "Against Salacious Literature," Mrs. Bertha Huff; "Total Abstinence," Mrs. Edith Jones; "Facts and Figures," Mrs. Gruelle; "Woman's Christian Temperance Union," Mrs. Kenneth Aylor; "The Cost of Discipleship," Mrs. Harrison.

We were glad to have Mrs. Steve Gabbard, son and sister, Miss Alma Green, with us as visitors. After season of prayer, the meeting adjourned.

—Publicity Chairman.

LAND USE PLANNING MEETINGS SCHEDULED

Land Use Planning discussion meetings will be held in Constance, Hamilton, Florence and Hebron communities this week and next, according to H. R. Forkner, county agent. Second series Land Use Planning meetings will be held in Petersburg, Burlington, Grant, New Haven and Walton communities during this coming week.

Land Use Planning study is offering farmers an opportunity to study basic agricultural problems from a new angle. This work is expected to play an important part in future agricultural programs.

VERONA 4-H NEWS

The third monthly meeting of the Willing Workers 4-H Club of Verona, was held at the Verona school, April 7.

The meeting was called to order by our president, Vernon Myers.

We had a very nice playlet, conducted by our vice-president and program chairman, Anna Frances Sturgeon. The subject of the playlet was, "Building Fires in Safety."

Mrs. Moore also gave us our citizenship books. We were sorry all of our leaders were not present, but were glad Mrs. Helen Chipman could be there.

The project captains gave their reports.

We all join in wishing Miss Gillasple a speedy recovery.
